Rev. E. C. Moore Praises USA To Lions Club

Ability of the United States to face difficulties with confidence and then overcome them was cited by the Rev. E. C. Moore, St. George's Church, in a short address to the Lions Club Monday night.

Mr. Moore, a one-time resident of the United States and a keen student of that country, said "we in Canada need to grow up in our attitude towards the United States."

He said that while he was not impressed by the tall buildings of New York City he was impressed with the "tremendous spirit" that was responsible for the designing and erecting of them.

Because of this spirit, he said, the people of the United States were able to appraise their difficulties and then overcome them. "We in Canada should take that attitude," he said.

Americans will admit it when they are shown some cultural deficiency, he said. But, he added, they will then endeavor to make up this deficiency, if not for themselves for their children.

He praised the way in which United States' cities, distant from the Old World, would nevertheless spend millions of dollars on European works of art.

Our culture has its roots in European Christian culture, he said: and he warned his audience not to despise history. "Art, which was fostered by the church, has given men something to hang onto."

"You can't separate religion from life," he said. "I think the American people began to see this and therein lies one of the rays of hope in this dark world."

Useless to Dam Communism

"All the damning of Communism in this country is useless unless people realize this," he said. "The church did not come into the world to fight Communism or any other ism, but to give that great truth."

Literature, art and architecture, he said, were the little pieces of colored glass that fit together to make up the picture of God.

Mr. Moore then said that a culture as great as any in the world could be built in Canada. In this country he said there were the British and French traditions side by side as well as the influence of the United States to the south.

"If we are for God and God is for us, who can be against us," he asked.

Mr. Moore was introduced by James Dutton Jr., and thanked by Robert Marston. President Simpson Gledhill presided.

After the address the meeting adjourned for a stag evening of entertainment.

Guests were A. Mortlock, Arthur Lucking, W. Begley, J. Armitage, Leo Martyn and George Moncreef.

Revised Resolution

PARIS, Nov. 2 — (AP). — The Security Council will meet Thursday to consider a revised Anglo-Chinese resolution threatening sanctions if Israel or Egypt disobey United Nations orders. The sub-committee's revision of the resolution, contained in a report to the Council, retains the demand that forces in the Negev Desert of Southern Palestine withdraw from positions taken on or after October 14.

Speaker Explains Method Used To Locate Breaks In Cables

Buried telephone cables in Ontario and Quebec are on an average day carrying 8,500,000 telephone conversations, R. H. Hall, of Montreal, Bell Telephone customer relations representative told the Rotary Club on Monday.

Seven of every 10 miles of wiring are now carried underground, Mr. Hall told club members in the course of his lecture-demonstration.

To illustrate the complexity of this underground communications system, he said that underneath one intersection in one of Canada's largest cities there were 85 of these wrist-thick, lead covered poles carrying a total of about 3,000 wires permitting 95,000 conversations to be carried on simultaneously.

If the wires at this particular intersection were carried on a single telephone pole, he said, it would require a pole six-and-a-half miles high with horizontal arms every two feet.

Mr. Hall then described the manner in which the telephone companies track down a break in one of their underground cables. This description was supplemented by portable demonstration equipment which he used to help the layman audience understand the technical points involved.

The lead cables are pumped full of nitrogen gas and blocked off in sections about 5,000 feet in length. The sections are sealed off from one another and the pressure of 10-12 lbs. per square inch is maintained by independent units.

As soon as the cable is punctured and the gas begins to seep out, two things happen: one, when the pressure falls to five or seven pounds per square inch an alarm bell rings in the exchange giving the approximate location of the break; two, an auxiliary supply of nitrogen gas is turned on maintaining a higher pressure outside than inside and thus preventing moisture from entering the cable.

A novel method of detecting gas leaks in England was cited. A dog was given a whiff of the gas used in the cable every time he was fed. In this manner the dog began to associate the smell of the gas with food. He was trained to search in the locality of a cable break and would immediately notice where gas was escaping in anticipation of a meal.

The speaker was introduced by Gordon Monkman and thanked by A. Ward Smith, President W. J. Hamilton was in the chair.

Guests were George R. Williams, Newfoundland; Ernest Danby, Brantford; Leslie Braunton, Lindsay; P. H. Seanlan, Toronto; C. D. Patterson, Toronto; F. W. Rummels, Picton; Bud Cochrane, Peterborough, and Quirt McKinney, Peterborough.

Rambling Reporter

A HALLOWE'EN STORY

On Hallowe'en night a Sherbrook resident opened the door in answer to a rap. Three little girls, all costumed, politely asked him to shell out. He did so with generous portions of candy and fruit. About 15 minutes later he again heard a knock at the door and when he opened it he saw the three little girls standing there once more. But this time they were joined by two frightened looking little children, recent graduates from infancy. Before he could say anything, one of the original trio explained, "We've had some, thanks, but these two haven't had any yet." Then the three polite little girls stood to one side while the two wide-eyed tots advanced to receive their first shell-out of the night. As soon as they walked down the steps the solemnity was dropped and the little ones, who but a few moments before were tongue-tied, were last seen disappearing into the darkness whooping with joy.—DW.

Reject Rail Request For 8 PC Rate Raise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP). —The Interstate Commerce Commission today rejected the railroads' petition for an immediate "emergency" eight-per-cent. freight-rate increase.

The commission announced that it will open hearings Nov. 30 on the general 13-per-cent. advance in rates asked by the railroads.

At that time, the ICC said, it will also take evidence on the rail industry motion for an eight-per-cent. increase to be collected while the commission considers the request for a 13-per-cent advance on a long-term basis.

Dewey Still Favorite

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2—(AP). — James L. Carroll, betting commissioner, continued today to make Governor Thomas E. Dewey an overwhelming favorite to win today's election over President Truman. Quotations on Dewey remained at 1 to 15, which means that a bettor must wager $15 on the New Yorker to win $1. Odds on the President are 8 to 1, which means a $1 bet will yield $8 if the Democratic candidate is elected.

6 Traffic Offences All Bring Fines

Six traffic cases and two liquor items were disposed of by Magistrate W. R. Philp in city court today.

G. A. Brethen, RR 1, Norwood, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs for speeding; Gerald McAdam, of Frankford was found guilty on two charges. He paid a fine of $10 and $2.50 for failing to have an operator's or a chauffeur's license, and on a second count of careless driving, was fined $10 and $7.50 costs.

Stanley Peaver, Bancroft, was found guilty of careless driving and the fine was $5 and $2.50 costs. Charles Ruttan, Campbellford, had improper lighting on his truck and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs. Beverly Johnston, 1149 Clonsilla Ave., paid $10 and $2.50 costs for careless driving.

William Lidkie, Peterborough, was nicked $15 and $11.50 costs for careless driving, the charge arising out of an accident in the city in early October.

William Godfrey, RR 1, Omemee and Edward Paudash, 148 Queen St., Lindsay, each paid $[illegible] and $2.50 costs for being intoxicated in a public place.

GANGSTERS' DUPE.—Attractive Elaine Peltier, 19-year-old Windsor girl who was deported from the United States to face trial for skipping $10,000 bail on a narcotics charge at Hamilton. Last June 1, Elaine cowered in a Cincinnati rooming house while Harold Jamieson, 37, of Hamilton was almost cut in half by FBI machine-gun bullets. Jamieson had also skipped bail and was believed involved in a bank holdup in the U.S. Both the girl and Jamieson were reported friends of Ulysses Lauzon, escaped Kingston Penitentiary convict who was slain several weeks later in Louisiana.

Man Strangled In Car Crash

KINCARINE, Nov. 2. (CP)—Albert John McQuade, 49, of Kincardine, met death by strangulation in an automobile accident a mile and a quarter north of Lucknow Sunday. Harold Wessels of Kincardine, driver of the car, told police that McQuade had tried to jump from the car when it headed for the ditch after the lights had gone out.

The car rolled into the ditch, pinning McQuade by the neck by the partially open door through which he was trying to escape.

Coroner Dr. M. R. Heilliwell, Kincardine, said that death was due to strangulation. No decision has yet been made in regards to an inquest.

Shoots Up Town Celebrant Jailed

KENOGAMI, Nov. 2—(CP)—Provincial police locked up a Hallowe'en celebrant to started blasting daylights out of the zone in front of a hotel here late Sunday. Armed with a high-powered rifle, believed to be a 44-40, McCauley stopped traffic and brought a crowd of startled residents to the area as he fired round after deafening round into the air.

The hotel management, alarmed at the possibility that the man's aim would not continue reliable, contacted provincial police and the rootin' tootin' Hallowe'en celebrant was disarmed and hustled off to police cells.

He will be confined to jail for observation, police said, and will probably face a charge of drunkenness at least. He could also be charged, it was stated, with discharging a firearm "to the alarm of the public."

TRUMAN WINS, DEWEY CONCEDES DEFEAT

Pledges Self To Peace Truman Says

Wires Dewey Thanks, Lauds Sportsmanship In Political Upset

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3 — (AP)—President Truman promised today to dedicate himself "to the cause of peace in the world" and "prosperity and happiness at home" as he won one of American history's greatest upset political victories.

He promised to "serve the American people to the best of my ability" in the four years ahead.

And he acknowledged the congratulations of his defeated opponent, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, and commended him for his "fine sportsmanship."

"I feel very deeply the responsibility which has fallen to my lot as the result of the election," said his simple statement. "I shall continue to serve the American people to the best of my ability.

All my efforts will be devoted to the cause of peace in the world and the prosperity and happiness of our people here at home."

Wires Thanks

And he wired Dewey, "I thank you sincerely for your congratulations and good wishes. Your fine sportsmanship is deeply appreciated. We jointly owe congratulations to the American people who have once again shown the world the vitality of our free institutions."

Cheers went up from his headquarters in the Hotel Muehlebach Penthouse as word of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's concession of defeat was conveyed to him.

A long line of old friends, including newspaper men who have covered his campaign, swarmed into the living room of the suite to shake the President's hand and to congratulate him on the "give-'em-hell" campaign which upset the dopesters.

The impromptu celebration also included secret service men, who dropped their non-political role to shower their congratulations upon the "boss" to whom the whole White House detail is devoted.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN was assured today of a new term in the White House with a Democratic Congress behind him. Thomas Dewey, who trailed him from the start, conceded the election at 11 o'clock.

Report Marshall Resigns Jan. 20

PARIS, Nov. 3 —(AP)—State Secretary Marshall of the United States will resign next Jan. 20 regardless of the outcome of the presidential election, an informed source in the American United Nations delegation said today.

The source said there had been many recent reports that Marshall might resign.

Marshall, the source said, plans to retire to his farm.

There was no confirmation of this statement from Marshall who earlier in the morning appeared at the United States delegation headquarters. He posed for photographers and listened to broadcasts of election returns with John Foster Dulles, and Warren R. Austin, United States delegates.

Newspapermen asked him to comment.

"On the elections?" Marshall asked with a smile.

Pressed by reporters, he grinned and said only:

"Gentlemen, I am an Episcopalian."

Stuart Imprisonment Justice Miscarriage

KITCHENER, Nov. 3 — (CP). —Counsel for William G. Stuart, charged with public mischief in the investigation of the strangulation slaying of Mrs. Emma Pohl, argued to-day that continued imprisonment of Stuart without reasonable bail is "a miscarriage of justice."

Magistrate H. R. Polson announced he would grant bail of $20,000 property value or $10,000 cash.

Defence Counsel Paul Dufresne was refused permission to-day to read statement which he said was a reply to allegations in the press affecting Stuart's reputation. The magistrate ruled the allegations should be answered in the press.

Quebec Liberal Caucus Endorses New Leadership

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP).—A caucus of Quebec Liberal members of the Commons has unanimously endorsed Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent's leadership of the Federal Liberal Party. The caucus, held in camera Tuesday, also confirmed the appointment of Solicitor-General Jean as director-general of Federal Liberal Party organization in Quebec.

A member of the caucus said the meeting was unique. It marked the first time that members from Quebec had been called to an in-between-session caucus to discuss organization and other matters.

"We were called here to express our views on various matters affecting the government," he added. "Quebec is giving the lead to other provinces in this matter. The other provinces are free to call meetings similar to this one if they so desire."

Two Requests

Two requests, it was learned, were made by the 40-odd members attending the meeting. These were for tax reductions and improved family allowance legislation.

There was no hint given by Mr. St. Laurent, who attended briefly, as to when the next general election will be called, or when the next session of parliament will begin.

One member said that, in his opinion, a federal general election will not be called until April, 1950, just a few months before life of the present parliament expires.

Stocks Plunge After Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP) — General Motors Corp. plunged 4¾ points on the first sale after a delayed opening in the Stock Exchange today. Other key stocks showed similar losses after an opening around one hour later.

The market generally tumbled fractions to around four points in the first market reaction to the Democratic election victory.

Delay in opening many stocks, according to reports from the floor of the Exchange, was caused by a flood of selling orders which were not matched with buying orders. Buyers and sellers finally got together at the lower prices.

U.S. Steel Corporation, Market bellwether, cracked four points to 79 when 15,000 shares first sold soon after 11 o'clock. Westinghouse Electric, another key issue, dropped 2¾ to 25⅛ on a sale of 8,000 shares.

Rallying tendencies appeared almost immediately. Big Steel came back nearly a point from the opening loss and others improved fractionally.

Pearson Finally Makes It Takes 24 Hours To Paris

PARIS, Nov. 3—(CP)—"P for Pearson" finally made it today.

The RCAF Dakota landed at Le Bourget airfield 24 hours after first setting out from London, and from it emerged L. B. Pearson, Canadian External Affairs minister, with a big grin and a cheery wave.

He came to take over leadership of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations, succeeding Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier.

"I knew I'd finally make it," Pearson chuckled as he climbed from the green aircraft with a red Maple Leaf on the nose. Then he turned to say goodbye to Flt. Lt. Jack Mills of Montreal, pilot of the plane which was forced to turn back, Tuesday after reaching the fog-bound French coast.

"I think I'll go to bed and make the reporters come to me," he said. Later he added that he would try to make his first appearance at the United Nations sometime during the afternoon, perhaps in time for the expected plenary session on atomic energy.

"Otherwise I have nothing to say beyond the fact I am glad to be here. "This time it's not a platitude . . I really mean it."

If Pearson arrives in time, he is expected to address the plenary session of the general assembly on the important Canadian atomic energy resolution. If he is not here in time, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, veteran member of the Atomic Energy Commission and permanent Canadian representative to the security council will make the Canadian statement.

A Mexican resolution asking the big powers to adjust differences is likely to be the first item on the assembly agenda. However it is expected that the 58-member assembly will take up the atomic energy question in the afternoon session.

Didn't Hear Shooting, But Saw It

Neighbor Watched Seth Linton 'Go Through Motions'

SIMCOE, Nov. 3 — (CP). — A neighbor of Seth Linton, charged with murder in the farmyard slaying of two men here on June 6, testified to-day he saw Linton "go through the motions" of shooting John Kipp, 32-year-old Vienna carpenter.

Linton is also chargedwith the murder of Lew Stuart, 41, a well-digger.

The neighbor, Leonard Maylin, said Linton came to his door early on the morning of June 6, his face a mass of blood, and told him that Kipp had beaten him. Two hours later, Maylin testified, he heard Linton order Kipp off his premises. He said he saw Kipp run off Linton's verandah and to the rear of the house where he hid behind some tiles. Maylin shouted to Linton: "Don't shoot."

He testified he saw Kipp run and Linton "go through the motions of shooting." He saw Kipp fall, but he heard no shots.

Bert Mills, another neighbor, testified he heard a disturbance and then three shots. He heard Maylin's voice say "Don't shoot," and then three more shots.

Stewart's wife testified to-day she had lived for six years with Linton as a housekeeper. She said there had been no sexual relationship. She "wanted to be through with Linton on June 5," the day before the slayings.

David Larmour, who lives across the street from Linton, said he saw Linton chase Kipp to the rear of the house. Later he saw him emerge with a rifle and walk towards Stewart who lay on the ground. Larmour said that at this point he turned his head away. He said he heard a sound as if someone were being clubbed.

Liquor Cargo Lost In Crash

NAPANEE, Nov. 3—Thousands of dollars worth of assorted liquor went up in fire and smoke Tuesday night when a heavily-loaded transport crashed into a car driven by Rev. J. A. Haw, United Church minister at Morven, four miles east of here on Highway No. 2.

The accident occurred directly opposite the church parsonage. The truck driver, whose name was not immediately available, was taken to Kingston General Hospital, suffering from burns. Mr. Haw was treated at the scene and his injuries were said to be of a minor nature.

The transport burst into flames following the impact. Fed by the liquor, the fire raged out of control until Napanee and Odessa Fire Brigades arrived and put out the blaze. The liquor load was said to be an entire loss.

Traffic on No. 2 Highway was disrupted for two hours.

Radio Helps Nab Suspect

COBOURG, Nov. 3—(ENS). — The Provincial Police radio which last week played a dramatic part in the arrest after an 80-mile-an-hour chase of four Montreal car thieves was used at 11.45 this morning. John Fredrino, 68 years old transient, was struck by a hit and run a few miles west of here and was taken to Cobourg General Hospital. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine radioed Cobourg, and within an hour a man in a truck similar to the description flashed by Erskine was picked up at Belleville. He is being held pending further investigation.

DEWEY STILL HAS JOB

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(CP). — Thomas E. Dewey lost the presidential election to Harry S. Truman—but he still has a job. His second four-year term as Republican Governor of New York State runs until Dec. 31, 1950. He didn't have to resign before entering the presidential race.

Concession Comes Quite Unexpectedly As Several Important Key States Still Remained In Greatest Doubt

Democrats Now Will Control Congress, Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — (AP). — Democrats clinched control of the United States Congress today.

After breaking a 48 to 48 tie in the Senate, the Democrats grabbed a majority of the House seats —218—on returns from Tuesday's elections.

Including holdovers and members elected Tuesday, the Democrats counted 49 Senate seats and were leading in three other states. An actual Senate majority is 49.

Thus the American people — in a startling upset — decided to revamp the legislative body President Truman dubbed history's second worst — even "idiot."

Late returns told of mounting Republican defeats in both Senate and House battles. If the trends contined, here's how the new Congress would look:

Senate
Democrats—54 seats.
Republicans—42 seats.
(The Republicans now control the 96-seat Senate, 51 to 45)
House of Representatives
Democrats—246 seats.
Republicans—188 seats.
American Labor Party—1.
(The Republicans control the present House 243 to 185, with two American-Labor members and five vacancies.)

Badly Beaten

Long before the vote-count was completed, the Democrats had turned out six Republican Senators in winning 18 of the 33 contested seats. They led in six other races. Republicans had elected only seven and were leading in two races. Only one-third of the Senate had elections this year.

In the battle-royal for supremacy in the Lower House — the chamber the Republicans were sure they couldn't lose — Democrats had ousted 40 or more Republicans and one American Labor Party member.

Not one Democrat who stood for re-election had been turned down.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts and most other Republican big wheels in the House survived the Democratic onslaught. These included the Republican leader, Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana; Chairman John Taber, New York, of the appropriations committee; Chairman Charles A. Eaton, of New Jersey, the Nova Scotia-born chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee; Chairman Leo E. Allen, Illinois, of the Rules Committee; Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott, Michigan, of the Banking Committee; and Chairman Clifford R. Hope, Kansas, of the Agriculture Committee.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas of the House Un-American Activities Committee pulled through in New Jersey. But one of his Republican colleagues on that controversial committee, John McDowell of Pennsylvania, was defeated.

Confident Republicans entered the Senate contests with 51 seats of which only 18 were at stake this year. Most Republican leaders expected to retain their six-vote margin or at worst end in a 48-48 tie with the Democrats.

They won the first contest last September when Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith won the Maine Senate seat.

But the first returns Tuesday night indicated many voters shared to some degree Truman's estimate of the lawmakers. Among Republicans defeated were West Virginia's Senator Chapman Revercomb, and Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota.

The 68-page statement invited the court now trying Godse to pass the maximum sentence of death by hanging, saying, "I do no desire any mercy be shown me nor anyone beg for mercy on my behalf."

'Half Sobbing, Half Crying' McAllister Found Dying In Lonely Cottage

By BOB BUCHANAN
Examiner Staff Reporter

LINDSAY, Nov. 3.—A Hamilton laboratory technician, testifying at the murder trial of Jane McAllister, told today how he found 29-year-old John McAllister "half sobbing, half crying, dying of pistol wounds at his lonely cottage at nearby Kirkfield. "There was a hole in the top of his head," said the technician, Thomas Wilson. "He was completely undressed and the bed clothes were up to his waist. I called his name but he didn't answer.

Driving to the log home of the accused and the dead man near 11 p.m. he approached it alone carrying a flashlight. Only light in the house was a burning coal-oil lamp on the kitchen table. He received no answer to his knock and call, and saw no one when he looked through the kitchen window.

Entering the house, he said he heard a "half-sobbing, half-crying sound like someone in pain." In the bedroom, he found John McAllister lying on his back in the bed. Examining him by the flashlight, he saw that the man's eyes were open and glazed and he was unconscious.

There was blood on the pillow under his head, he said.

Notified Parents

Wilson said he went at once to the cottage of John McAllister's parents, and with the mother, father, two sisters and brother, Bruce McAllister, he returned to the log house, where McAllister's condition was unchanged, although he was choking more and bleeding at the mouth. While waiting for a doctor, the party put hot water on the stove.

The witness said he noticed the holster and an open box of .22 shells in the kitchen later.

Later, when the doctor and other help arrived, an effort was made to move the wounded man to hospital. McAllister died as he was being moved to a couch to be taken away.

Bruce McAllister of Hamilton, young brother of John McAllister, told the court of the activities of the dead man and the accused the day of John's death. He had been at their home during the noon meal that day, he said. At that

China Stunned At Manchuria

PEIPING, Nov. 3 — (AP). — Extent of the Communist victory in Manchuria stunned government supporters in north China today.

Chinese loyal to Chiang Kai-Shek called it a "disaster" and a "monumental tragedy." They feared more setbacks now that the Communists can unleash their Manchuria armies for attacks elsewhere.

The government has given no idea of its losses in Manchuria with the fall of Mukden.

There were indications, however, that not a single soldier escaped the Mukden area to the seaport of Yingkon, 115 miles south. No new reports came from Mukden, bombed by government warplanes Tuesday for the second straight day.

Cabinet Resigns

NANKING, Nov. 3.—(Reuters) —The Chinese cabinet headed by Premier Wong Wen-Hao resigned today.

The cabinet decision for collective resignation was adopted at today's meeting of the Executive Yuan.

Despite Wong's appeals to the members of the cabinet that they should remain at their posts irrespective of what action he himself was taking, the members resolved to join him in resignation.

The cabinet secretariat was entrusted with the task of drafing the document of resignation which will be submitted to President Chiang Kai-Shek after it has been signed by all the ministers.

The premier gave as his reason for quitting his total failure to balance the budget because of heavy military spending. The unbalanced budget is undermining the stability of the new gold yuan.

Fast-Thinking Yachtsman Averts Tanker Explosion

QUEBEC, Nov. 3—(CP)—Fast-thinking on the part of a Sillery Yacht Club member, Joseph Gagnon, was reported to have averted a major disaster Tuesday night in the lower part of suburban Sillery when fire broke out simultaneously aboard the oil tanker Britamlube and the wharf.

The tanker was unloading its cargo of oil into one of three oil pipelines underneath the wharf when a "violent explosion" occurred. Flames shot up aboard ship and to the mouth of the pipeline which leads to large oil tanks on the Sillery shore.

The yachtsman was reported to have closed the valves of the burning pipeline thus avoiding possible spreading of the fire to the tanks.

Cause of the explosion was not known today. One report had it that the explosion occurred in one of the ship's motors while a later report said a windblown cigaret probably landed in an oil patch on the wharf.

Damage to the tanker was light. As soon as the flames sprang up, ropes holding the ship fast to the wharf were cut and the tanker pulled into the stream under her own power and remained in mid-river until the flames were extinguished.

The wharf, extending about 200 feet into the water, caught fire like a flash from the oil on it but firemen assisted by the fire-ship Lanorie succeeded in quelling the blaze before serious damage was done.

Dewey Trails From Start In Big Upset

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(CP).— Harry S. Truman's re-election to the Presidency of the United States was conceded today by his Republican challenger, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

The concession, which came unexpectedly at 11.15 a.m. EST with several key States still in doubt, climaxed what may go down as the most exciting Presidential election in modern American history.

Truman, given no chance by practically every political dopester, fought his campaign courageously to the finish and brought a surge of support that sent him and his Democratic party back to power, not only in the White House but in the Senate and House of Representatives as well.

Set Precedent

It is the first time any United States administration has been elected to power for two decades. Truman holds office until 1952.

James Hagerty, Dewey's press secretary, announced that Dewey had conceded the election in a telegram to Truman. It read:

"My heartiest congratulations to you on your election and every good wish for a successful administration, and I urge all Americans to unite behind you in support of every effort to keep our nation strong and free and establish peace in the world."

The telegram was addressed to the President at Kansas City, Mo. It was signed "Thomas E. Dewey."

Before Dewey wired Truman, he telephoned his Vice-Presidential running mate, Governor Earl Warren of California, and talked the matter over with him. They agreed to concede.

Commenting on the concession, Hagerty told reporters:

"We were waiting for Ohio."

When it became apparent the President was going to hold his lead in Ohio, Dewey decided the election was lost.

The last Republican hope that Dewey might nose out Truman in the electoral vote, even though he was trailing well behind in popular balloting, apparently faded with late California returns which

Democrats Seek N.Y. Recount

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 3 (AP)— Democrats sought a recount today of New York presidential balloting in which Governor Thomas E. Dewey narrowly defeated President Truman.

Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick asked all of his party's county chairmen to request a local recheck. Dewey's unofficial plurality, meanwhile rose to 42,128. Only three rural upstate districts were unreported.

Fitzpatrick described his action, which also sought to have voting machines impounded, as a routine move always taken in a close contest. He added that he made no charges of fraudulent voting for counting.

First Local Plebiscite Held On Cocktail Bars

MIMICO, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Ontario's first local plebiscite on the question of establishing cocktail bars and dining lounges will be held December 11 in this town a few miles west of Toronto.

Held at the same time as Mimico's civic election, the plebiscite will have to be carried by 60 per cent of the electorat before cocktail bars will be set up. At present the bars are open in only five cities in Ontario—municipalities of less than 50,000 persons must vote on the question.

The plebiscite was touched off by the presentation of a petition by a local hotel keeper, signed by 1,700 voters. Temperance forces have begun a campaign to keep the bars and lounges out of Mimico and have fielded 70 canvassers in their drive.

Student Nurse Treatment Angers Kelley

TORONTO, Nov. 3 —(CP)—A plea for better treatment of student nurses to induce more girls to take up the profession highlighted Tuesday's annual meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Ontario Health Minister Kelley told the association inadequate pay and inconsiderate treatment are two of the main reasons for the province's present atute shortage of nurses.

Speaking of preliminary findings of Ontario's $193,000 health survey, now under way, Mr. Kelley said some hospitals expect student nurses to work for nothing and others pay them as little as $5 a month.

In his first public statement on the extensive survey of health and hospital conditions, he said he "shivered" when he recalled some of the findings.

"In one hospital, for instance, the obstretical ward is on the third floor," he said. "Just think what would happen if there was a fire there."

Pearl Morrison, superintendent of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Toronto, was elected to succeed J. McIntosh Tutt of Brantford, as president of the association. Vice-presidents elected were John R. Marshall, Peterborough; Sister M. Pascal, Toronto, and R. J. Weatherill, St. Catharines.

Mr. Tutt warned that hospital costs might continue to increase, despite the sharp rises in almost every hospital in Ontario this year. Hospitals made every effort to control costs but were unable to set aside depreciation funds.

U.S. Election Sends Stock Prices Reeling

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP). — The Democratic victory in the United States elections today sent prices reeling in early trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Industrial, base metal and western oil lists dipped sharply in the first hour but began to recover in later trading as prices edged ahead slightly from the opening slump.

Industrials slumped on losses ranging up to about three points and then steadied before attempting a slight recovery. Every group suffering declines with papers and steels among the hardest hit as Blue-chip stocks dipped sharply. Utilities were also down and foods, refining oils and liquors weakened.

Base metals were down with the big four leading the list. Consolidated Smelters lost 2¾ and Hudson Bay was down two points. Waite Amulet, Pend Oreille, Noranda, International Nickel, East Sullivan and Golden Manitou were among the losers.

Golds showed a slightly easier tone as a few juniors traded heavily. Nicholson, Teck Hughes, Hollinger, Kerr Addison, Giant Yellowknife and Negus weakened.

1948 Surplus About Same As Forecast In Budget

MONTREAL, Nov. 3—(CP).—Finance Minister Abbott said today in an address his departmental experts have estimated that the 1948-49 surplus will not diverge "by any very large amount" from this year's budget forecast of $489,000,000. He indicated the surplus might range between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000. In defence of the Government's policy of budgeting for surpluses in "good" times, he said:

"Surely a budgetary surplus of somewhere between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 in a year when our national income will probably exceed $15,000,000,000 is not unreasonable."

In an address prepared for delivery before a Montreal service club, he noted that published treasury figures for the six months ended Sept. 30 showed an excess of revenue over expenditures of $469,000,000 — just $20,000,000 short of the surplus forecast for the entire fiscal year.

Some, he went on, might take this to mean that the surplus for the full year would be near $1,000,000,000 and contend that the government's budgeting policy was "radically wrong."

However these predictions were based on the assumption that the surplus would continue to accumulate in the last six months of the fiscal year at the same rate as it did during the first six months.

Actually, a substantially larger proportion of governmental expenditures occurred during the last half of the year and this would pull down the surplus.

time, the pistol was hanging in its holster on a nail in the kitchen wall.

In the afternoon, with the young couple, his parents and others they went to Bolsover, five miles from Kirkfield, where John took part in a veterans' parade and decoration day services.

Dinner that Sunday night was at the cottage of the senior McAllister. Later, Jean and her mother-in-law had gone fishing and John and the witness had chatted briefly.

John and Jean left about ten o'clock, he said. Their last words in the cottage which he heard were expressions they used often: "Come on home, Pet," he said John called. Jean answered: "Aye, Mac, I'm coming." Jean was wearing a plaid shirt and dark slacks.

It was about twenty minutes later that the car arrived with Wilson advising "trouble" at the McAllister home. The family went to the home and found the wounded John. One man left to get a Kirkfield doctor.

He returned to report the doctor would not come. Bruce said he went into Kirkfield to plead with the doctor personally, but was unsuccessful. He phoned the police, who said they would send a doctor. A doctor finally arrived—after midnight.

The brother said he netx saw Jean in the early morning as she came across the field towards her home.

He told defence counsel Richardson that both his brother and Jean had not been too well. John McAllister had been taking treatments in hospital following his discharge in 1945 and had complained often of violent headaches. Because of these attacks, he had to give up his work in a Hamilton steel plant.

Jean had worked in a Hamilton factory for a time after her arrival in Canada. He recalled that she had been in several Ontario hospitals with ulcers. She had an operation in the spring, John had told him.

Jean, who had not been feeling well for some time, appeared to be feeling better, and in "good spirits" the night of the shooting, witness said.

William McAllister, Hamilton, John's father, told the court that "everything was fine" with John and Jean that week-end. They had visited back and forth during the holiday.

"I never saw her better," he said of Jean's condition that night. She had borrowed the shirt-and-slacks outfit from one of the McAllister sisters to go fishing.

"I didn't notice a thing wrong when they left," he said "I said to Jean, I'll be seeing you tomorrow" and she said "aye."

In a steady voice, without a tremor, the father recounted the late evening call to the side of his son's bed. He recalled that a cat was curled up on the bed asleep at John's feet.

He also said that Jean had been "very ill" for some time and had been improving slightly in health.

John had been hurt on active service in 1941. Injuries included fractured skull and concussion. He received insulin treatments at Halifax. "His nerves were in bad shape."

When he first saw the accused after the shooting—in the early morning of Sept. 6—he said, "I would never had known her. She had spent the night in the bush, and had been crying all night. She looked pitiful. She had her hands up to her face."

"Both John and Jean had been improving in health. They were looking better every week-end we saw them. And Jean was mingling with people more than last week-end than I had ever seen her."

High point of the trial on Tuesday afternoon was the evidence of Miss Sarah McCallum of Kirkfield, who said that the accused woman virtually confessed to shooting her husband when she met her on the road that evening.

"You didn't shoot him, did you?" Miss McCallum said she asked the accused, who stumbled out of the night barefooted and sobbing hysterically.

"Yes, in the head," was the reply the witness said she received.

Miss McCallum, a dressmaker who lives near the little village of Kirkfield, 20 miles north of Lindsay, said that she left her home about 10.30 that Sunday night to drive home guests of hers One was Mrs. Barrett, who lives close to the McAllister two-story log-and-frame house north of Kirkfield.

When they drove past the McAllister home, she said that she saw John McAllister, the 29-year-old navy veteran victim of the shooting, standing on the steps of the kitchen door. The car lights picked him out standing there with his hands on his hips, she said.

Continuing up the lonely road, she turned into the driveway of Mrs. Barrett's house, and with her other guest, Mrs. Con McDonald, she went into the Barrett house for about five minutes.

Backing the car up and turning around to drive out, she neared the gate. This was the point where she first saw Mrs. McAllister.

Crying, Hysterical

The woman, dressed in a plaid shirt and dark slacks and with nothing on her feet, was "very hysterical," the witness said. She was crying.

"I said 'Hello, Jean, what's the matter.' She said: 'Oh, Sarah, oh, Sarah, come in and see what I've done to John.'"

"'What did you do?' I asked her."

"Oh, Sarah, I did something awful. Why did I do it?"

"I asked her again what she did, and then she put her hand up against the car door and I saw what she had in it. It was a gun."

Had An Argument

"What's that you've got in your hand," she asked the accused as the pistol came into sight through the car window.

"You didn't shoot him, did you?"

"Yes, in the head. We had an argument."

At this point, Miss McCallum identified the .22 calibre single-shot pistol introduced earlier in the trial by the Crown as the weapon the accused had been carrying.

The witness said that the bride, who had quieted down a little by this time, grabbed her by the shoulder and begged her to "come into the house."

"I heard her muttering something. It sounded like, 'Oh, John, John, John . . .' the witness told the court with emphasis on every word.

Miss McCallum said she told Mrs. McAllister to go back to the house and that she would try to get help. The accused ran out the gate and down the road.

Running Along Road

The witness said she passed "Jean" about halfway between the Barrett and McAllister houses on the road. The woman was still running along the side of the road towards her house.

That was the last time the witness saw the accused that night.

The McAllister couple had lived near the village for about two years before the shooting, she told defence counsel H. E. Richardson of Lindsay. The log structure they lived in was owned by a man in Chicago, she said, and had not been used for several years before the couple moved in.

John McAllister had operated a small trucking business in the area of the village and had also worked on maintenance of the Trent Canal System.

Under Mr. Richardson's questioning, she insisted that the words quoted by her in evidence were "exactly" the ones used the night of the shooting.

She vigorously denied having said: "I hope Jean McAllister hangs," to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Angus McCallum.

"I made no such remark to anybody," she snapped.

Objection of Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan of Lindsay to the counsel's question was overruled by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven.

"It is a fair question under cross-examination to show bias," His Lordship ruled.

"Were you very friendly with John McAllister?" asked Mr. Richardson.

"I knew him."

"Did you ever see him alone?"

"Several times. He used to bring wood to my place."

"Would you say you were very friendly with him?"

"No more than any other man," retorted Miss McCallum angrily, flushing in the face.

Friendly With Both

She had been on friendly terms with both "John" and "Jean", she said.

Mrs. McDonald, the last crown witness Tuesday, also testified as to the activities of the fatal night. She confirmed the fact that the dead man had been seen standing at the kitchen door as the car swung around a corner while driving Mrs. Barrett home.

Telling the story of meeting the accused in the Barrett driveway, she did not give all the vital conversation which had been reported by Miss McCallum. She recalled Mrs. McAllister sobbing hysterically about "See what I've done to John," and that she had "done something awful."

"I don't remember anything else that was said," she told Mr. Jordan. She said that she had seen the gun in the woman's hand.

Court Room Crowded

As with the first day of the trial, the Victoria County courtroom was jammed-packed with interested spectators. Craning necks from the overhead gallery peeked down on the accused sitting in the prisoner's box.

Throughout the whole day, Mrs. McAllister sat almost motionless, listening carefully to the evidence. Several times she leaned forward to follow expert testimony regarding the workings of the pistol. Once she beckoned to her counsel and whispered to him for a few minutes.

She showed no signs of fidgetting or other nervousness. During brief recesses, she gratefully took the police matron's arm and left the box to stand near open air, a welcome change from the hot, stuffy atmosphere of the courtroom. As in past appearances, she was guarded from news photographers as she was taken to and from the county jail, next door.

She chatted freely with newsmen during free periods and while she sat in the box when the court was not in session.

Directly behind her, in the first row of the spectators' seats, sat her widowed mother, Mrs. Emily McInerney of Greenock, Scotland, who was in the courtroom throughout the day. Due to return by plane to Scotland next Saturday, the homey little woman appeared calm and not too worried. The sudden return overseas had been made necessary because of "personal bad news" she had received from her family on Monday. The nature of the news was not revealed.

Dressed In Black

Mrs. McAllister wore a black "shortie" coat, small pill-box black hat and a deep red tartan skirt. She wore a black wool sweater under her coat. Her fiery red hair was tied back on a single bow with a black ribbon. At no time did she show any type of emotion, although following the evidence of the witnesses closely.

Young defence counsel Richardson, who has been in Lindsay less than two years, sat alone on the defence side of the long counsel table. Beside Crown Attorney Jordan sat Inspector Franks of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Provincial Police, Toronto, who investigated the case.

Clerk of the court is Sheriff Jasper Forman. He is one of many Lindsay residents who have been active in projects to lighten the burden for the accused and her mother.

As is the right of accused on a capital expense, costs of the court are being borne by the crown. Beside Mrs. McInerney during the sitting was Mrs. Frank Weldon, wife of the Victoria County Clerk, at whose home the war bride's mother is a guest. Also with her was a Salvation Army lady officer from Toronto.

Many times during the course of the trial, one of them—or the police matron, Mrs. Harry Stone, wife of the jailer—would lean over the edge of the box and whisper or smile at the accused. Mrs. McAllister smiled easily through the day at all questions put to her.

Being led away at the end of the day's sitting, a girl in the courtroom from Kirkfield called: "Hello there, Jean, chin up!"

Turning, the accused waved back and smiled.

An expert witness called by the Crown earlier in the day was Sergeant William Sutherland of the RCMP Crime Detection Laboratories at Rockcliffe.

Can't Identify Pellet

In his evidence, he said that it was not possible to "either identify or eliminate" the smashed pellet which had been taken from the body of John McAllister as having been fired from the pistol exhibited. It was the type necessary and could have been fired from the weapon, he said. The pellet was too badly mutilated to identify its manufacture.

The empty cartridge case which was taken from the pistol had been fired from that weapon, he said comparative firing tests showed.

Some time was taken by both defence and crown over a mechanical defect in the pistol described by Sgt. Sutherland. He said that it would not cock in the normal horizontal position as a small spring inside was either broken or missing. To cock the pistol, one must either hold it downward (in which case the weight of the trigger would complete the cocking) or force the trigger ahead with a finger.

He demonstrated to the jury how the pistol could be cocked.

"Assuming that a person were hit in the head with a shot from this gun, and assuming there were no burn marks on the flesh, what distance would you place it?" asked the Crown.

Replying that an exact answer would require extensive tests, he gave his opinion that 12 to 18 inches would be the distance required to leave powder marks.

Pistol in 'Dangerous Condition'

Defence counsel Richardson questioned him closely on a statement that "this pistol could be considered dangerous" in its condition.

"It's condition would make it more sensitive to accidental discharge than if it were in good shape," he said. Normal pressure to discharge it, he said, was three to five pounds. He estimated that two or three pounds would fire the exhibit pistol.

Under Mr. Richardson's questioning, he said that it would be possible for the gun to discharge, without touching the trigger, by a heavy blow on either the muzzle or grip end of the weapon.

In Lindsay for the trial are the members of the dead man's family from Hamilton. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McAllister, were not in the court room during the hearing, driving out to their summer home near Kirkfield, only a few miles from the McAllister home where the shooting took place. It was at this home that the young couple had visited only a few hours before the fatality in September.

It is believed that the parents will be called as witnesses later in the trial. When the shoting took place, they declared their intention of "standing by" their daughter-in-law charged with the murder of their son.

Three sisters of John McAllister are also in town and were among the spectators Tuesday. They are Mrs. Joyce Morrison, and Helen and Lois McAllister.

Through the long first-day session much of which concerned the technical evidence of the ballisics expert, the jury struggled to pay attention, but obviously found the proceedings less interesing than did the spectators. The twelve wandering heads in the jury box attested to the profundity of the Crown's case. However the vital evidence concerning Miss McCallum's encounter with the war bride was intently followed.

At one point in the trial, while the Grand Jury filed in to present its report on publicly supported institutions in the county, one juror decided to take a brief respite without telling anybody. Noting his absence, the court sent flurried Sheriff Forman and the court police who located the man in the washroom.

At another point a small grey cat, wandering aimlessly inside the court enclosure, was removed "before somebody trips over it."

The court adjournment for the day shortly before five o'clock was only a few minutes before the lights in the court room blinked out for a half-hour of Lindsay's hydro saving program.

Peterboro Tops Hydro Quota, Margin Small

Peterborough exceeded its 229,700 kwh electric power quota Tuesday by only 4,300 kwh. The figure for the day was 234,000 kwh. A week ago the amount of power used was 240,000; Tuesday, Oct. 19—260,000; Tuesday, Oct. 12—228,000; Tuesday, Oct. 5—238,000.

Average for Monday and Tuesday was 220,000. The total was: Monday, 206,000; Tuesday, 234,000; combined 440,000. Peterborough begins the week satisfactorily under the 229,700 daily quota.

If approximately that average can be maintained, there will be no "pulling of switches", as warned by the Hydro in notices to municipalities.

Peterborough has a daily responsibility of avoiding power waste in the homes, offices, stores and elsewhere.

put Truman narrowly in front in that State.

Ends Hold

Truman's personal triumph and that of his party put to an end the Republican hold on the administration which Dewey's forces gained in the "off-year" elections of 1946.

For Truman, the victory was a tremendous personal achievement.

With a fighting campaign, the Missourian roused his party from despondency and led it to a victory which almost all its leaders except the President himself had written off months ago as an impossibility.

For Dewey and the team around him, it was the bitter end of a 10-year dream. The New York Governor has been aiming at and working for the presidency that long.

He broke precedent when he captured the Republican nomination this year after a losing race against Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944. He can hold little if any hope that his party will entrust its banner to him again.

Submit Legislation

With a working majority of his party in Congress, Truman can submit the legislative program over which he and the Republican-dominated 80th Congress quarrelled—quarrelled so much that Truman called the Congress "idiot" and "second worst" in American history.

This program includes power to put on price controls, housing legislation, and the so-called "civil rights" measures, favoring the Negroes, which led many southern Democrats to break with Truman.

'Among the Civil Rights proposals is a law against race segregation.

Governor Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, leader of the "States' Rights," a dissident group of southern Democrats who opposed Truman's anti-Negro-segregation legislation, was in front in four states having a total of 38 electoral-college votes. He had won Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina, and was leading in Louisiana. In Tennessee, two electoral votes are in doubt between Truman and Thurmond.

In Washington, speculation already is running high that Truman now will make many shifts in his own administration.

This is based on the view that he got little help in his campaign from many Democratic officeholders who had looked on it as a lost cause.

The only other candidate regarded as a serious contender—Henry A. Wallace of the New Progressive Party—failed to win a single electoral-college vote, although he drew support from Truman in several key States and almost certainly lost the President the 47 electoral votes of populous New York State.

Truman's showing—win or lose—was the talk of the country and speculation was rife as to the reason.

It was probably the fighting finish of his campaign that drew the admiration of the large floating vote not committed to any party.

Another probable explanation was the resounding defeat of Wallace. It had been generally forecast that Wallace would draw off many more votes from Truman than he did.

Wallace lost considerable ground among his moderate supporters because of his endorsement by the Communist Party.

But almost every election forecast was toppled by Truman's strength. The national public opinion surveys were unanimously upset.

Some of the best - known opinion-takers continued to insist Dewey would be elected. Finally, they weakened and declared the result in doubt. One of them, interviewed on the air about 2 a.m. EST, was asked the reason for the shift. He replied:

"In brief, I don't know."

The Republicans started with almost-flat victory claims Tuesday night, while the Democrats were cautious. Then, as the night wore on and Truman continued to lead the popular and electoral vote, the Democrats became more and more confident, even though the Republicans still maintained little doubt as to the final outcome.

By midnight, both parties were admitting the presidential situation was in confusion.

Just before 5 a.m. Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman, reasserted in New York his belief in a Truman victory, though he did not rule out the possibility of a stalemate that would have to be decided by Congress.

Soundly-defeated, Wallace told reporters his party nevertheless would carry on and attempt to organize throughout the country.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 3 (CP)—An inquest into the death of Mrs. Emma Pohl, Kitchener housewife whose decomposed body was discovered Oct. 25 in an Oxford county pasture, will probably be held here on about Nov. 15, Crown Attorney Craig McKay said today.

PARIS, Nov. 3.— (AP).—The Social committee of the United Nations General Assembly Tuesday defeated by a big majority a Russian move to limit free movement of individuals both inside countries and between different countries. The Russian proposal was in the form of an amendment to the draft declaration on human rights.

HARVEY JAMES GARDINER

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3.—(ENS).—The largely-attended funeral of the late Harvey James Gardiner took place from the McPherson Funeral Home on Thursday, Rev. C. M. MacLean, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican church, Millbrook, having charge of the service. By request, an interpretive reading of the hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," was an impressive part of the service. The many beautiful floral tributes showed the nigh esteem in which Mr. Gardiner was held, and the pallbearers, all neighbors of long standing, were Messrs. Harvey Challice, Francis Gilmour, Delbert Olan, Leonard Challice, Clifford Allen, and Fred Challice. Burial was in Gardiner's cemetery, north of Millbrook.

The death of Mr. Gardiner, lifelong resident of Cavan township, took place with startling suddenness on Tuesday, October 26, in his sixty-eighth year. He was a son of the late Robert Gardiner and his wife, Elizabeth Armstrong, and was one of a family of seven children, four daughters and three sons. His marriage to Alice Freeman, of Peterborough, and originally from England, took place twenty-eight years ago, on December 11, 1920. Mrs. Gardiner survives her husband, also an only son, Frederick, at home. Other immediate survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Sam Kennedy (Margaret), and Mrs. W. S. Kennedy (Charlotte), both of Millbrook, and Mrs. W. A. Ferguson (Georgina), of Banff, Alberta; also two brothers, Charles R. Gardiner, of Carmel, and Sidney Gardiner, of Calgary, Alberta; one sister, Sarah, predeceased her brother.

Highly regarded as a good neighbor, giving dependable service to many in his home vicinity, Mr. Gardiner had, for the last two years of his life, been employed by the Docon Telephone Company at Millbrook. Only a few hours' illness preceded his death. Present for the funeral were friends from Peterborough, Port Hope, Millbrook, Rossmount and from Niagara Falls.

Parking Regulations

The attention of all motorists is called at this time of year to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic by-law regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on the city streets.

Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on a city street for longer than six consecutive hours.

The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police will be made necessary with the first snow fall, in order that city workmen may proceed with their work of removing snow from the streets.

E. A. OUTRAM, City Clerk.

Find Canadians Rooting For Mr. Truman

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Canadians watched the closest United States Presidential election in 40 years from a ringside seat and an unofficial appraisal of the rooting section north of the border indicated a Truman trend.

Displaying undiplomatic but neighborly partisanship in Truman's battle with Thomas E. Dewey, they seemed to have installed the President as favorite from the time the polls closed, and interest ran high as the returns trickled in.

Most Canadian spectators admitted scant knowledge of the finer political points of the campaign. A new Congress was being elected, but they didn't seem to care. Their attention was riveted on the see-saw Presidential race.

A Canadian Press survey showed preference for Truman was based largely on a feeling of familiarity after three years of friendly association with the man in the White House. The President also captured the support of many whose imagination was taken by his gallant fight as the underdog.

Papers On Job

Across the country, newspapers held open CP leased wires past the regular closing hours to obtain up-to-the-minute returns. Western papers, normally "off the wire" at 3.30 a.m. EST, remained on the circuit throughout the night. At least one paper, the Victoria Colonist, published an extra edition.

Many radio stations remained on the air all night to broadcast election news reports. Telephone calls continued far into the morning at CP bureaux, newspaper offices and radio stations. A leaning towards Truman was clearly indicated by many questioners.

At 3:30 a.m. EST press news, CP's radio affiliate, after transmitting election returns steadily 10 hours, stopped for eight minutes to effect a minor equipment repair. The slight delay brought the following message from one election-conscious customer:

"Let's have some election copy."

Reverse Wage Plan

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(CP). — Toronto city council Tuesday reversed an earlier decision and refused to ratify a $5 weekly salary boost for 6,500 city employees. D. A. Dunlop, president of the City Hall Employees' Union described the move as "an invitation to employees to walk out on strike."

DEATH UNDER mysterious circumstances has ended the life of Mary Nolan, 42, one time Follies beauty known as Imogene "Bubbles" Wilson, whose ill-fated career ended in an apartment bedroom in Los Angeles, Calif. Miss Nolan, shown above, in probably the last photograph made of her, had just completed her autobiography "Yesterday's Girl," but that had been rejected by a publisher. Child beauty. Follies star, German film star under her own name of Mary Imogene Robertson, she appeared briefly on the Hollywood scene, but had been in obscurity in recent years.

Hear Mexico Appeal To Powers For Peace

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(AP).— The United Nations' General Assembly, most of its attention centred on the United States elections, scheduled a plenary session today to take up Mexico's appeal to the Great Powers for peace.

The Assembly will act on one resolution, introduced by Mexico, that calls on the Big Powers to renew their efforts to compose their differences peaceably. The resolution recently was approved unanimously by the Assembly's political committee.

Informed quarters predicted the Assembly quickly would adopt the resolution, which is regarded generally as a statement of intentions with no real force behind it.

The Security Council's subcommittee on Palestine set a full council hearing for tomorrow on a British-Chinese resolution threatening either Israel or the Arab States with economic sanctions if one or the other fails to abide by the United Nations truce regulations in the Palestine war.

Ex-President Freed On Plotting Charge

PANAMA, Nov. 3—(AP). — A former president of the Republic of Panama and a former Ambassador to Washington were freed Tuesday by the Supreme Court on charges of plotting against the government.

Harmodio Arias, former president, and J. J. Vallarino, one-time Panamanian Ambassador in Washington, were detained Oct. 26.

The court ruled that there was insufficient evidence to hold Arias and Vallarino since the charges were based on hearsay testimony of a suspected leader of the movement, Luis Franceschi, now a refugee in the Peruvian Embassy here.

Private Plane Crashes

CALGARY, Nov. 3—(CP). — Two men were killed and one injured Thursday night in the crash of a private aircraft at Crossfield, 23 miles north of here. Dead are A. L. S. Harrison, pilot of the plane and J. C. Haley, president of Haley (Oil) Supply Company, Ltd., both of Calgary. Injured was C. C. Cross, also of Calgary and one of Alberta's leading citizens.

Cobourg All Set To Launch Rink Fund Drive

COBOURG, Nov. 3.—(ENS).— One of the first things which will be considered in regard to organizing for the proposed Cobourg Community Centre is selection of a definite spot for the site. For over a year the matter has been in the unsettled stage in regard to where the building would be located.

The committee has found that the tourist camp site will not meet the wishes of the Parks Board, nor is the site of the old rink suitable because it is not sufficiently large and the amount asked for enough adjoining land is excessive. The Parks Board has indicated that it would give serious consideration to the centre being located on McGill Street just east of the Curtis plant, but to contain its length it would be necessary to close the east end of Charles Street, it is pointed out. J. C. M. German, chairman of the Parks Board, has advised the rink committee that the board will meet this week, and that the board would be glad to discuss a site with this committee.

However, the Community Centre committee has agreed that there will be little done in stepping up the campaign until the site is agreed upon.

Chairman of the campaign committee is H. O. Taylor and his committee will consist of four major divisions under which will operate some 100 voluntary workers. First of these divisions is the general solicitation section under the chairmanship of Victor Climo with Mrs. A. R. Richards as vice-chairman. This division will be in charge of the general house-to-house canvass in the town's six wards. In the east sector, wards 1, 2 and 3 will be in charge of Stuart Webb and Mrs. W. G. Jamieson, who in turn will select teams of canvassers. In wards 4, 5 and 6, H. J. Cooey and Miss M. Rooney will supervise the activities of soliciting funds.

Second major division is the Advance Gifts group, whose job it will be to solicit donations from special names, etc. It is expected that this group will begin work a short time prior to the opening of the general campaign. Members of this division are E. F. McFadyen, chairman; Dick Parker, Lester Caughey, G. W. Birmingham, J. J. McTague, J. S. Walden and Cecil Wilson.

The third division, under chairman James Redmond, is the group solicitation division (payroll deduction). Under this group will be industries, garages, chain stores, municipal employees, hotels, etc. The public relations committee completes the organization and chairman of this is Gordon King with vice-chairman, F. M. Russell. In charge of publicity are Murray Smith and R. S. Malton. Leaders in the various wards in the general solicitation division are Ward 1, Claude Fowler and Mrs. Ruth Harrison; Ward 2, W. Mackie and Mrs. E. Hewson; Ward 3, Ed Hogan and Mrs. Murray Smith; Ward 4, Dr. W. Brett and Mrs. L. Searancke; Ward 5, Roy Dodge, Mrs. C. Nichols; Ward 6, W. Fisher.

Cobourg To Set Up Pension Plan

COBOURG, Nov. 3 (ENS) — Establishment of a pension plan for municipal employees is being held up in order that interested companies will have an opportunity to bid on the plan. If it is to be put into effect this year it will have to be done by November 15, the last meeting of council during the year before the annual elections. This was the information given to Councillor F. Ball, sponsor of the plan, when he asked council on Monday night the reason for the delay.

Council passed a by-law which provided for the sewer on Sinclair Street, to cost $1,700 of which residents in that area pay $800. Another by-law authorized a 50-cent license fee for all bicycles in the town. In reply to a letter from the CGE asking for a bus service to serve its factory north of the town, council decided to study the matter.

Aged Douro Resident Is Laid To Rest

Requiem high mass for the late Mrs. Ann Leahy, 80, of Lot 5, Concession 7, Douro township, was said at St. Josephs' church, Douro on Saturday. The Rev. J. J. McCarthy officiated and pallbearer were Danie Winn, Francis and Patrick Shine, Francis, Joseph and Clarence Leahy. Father McCarthy also conducted the graveside service and burial was at St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mrs. Leahy died ast Wednesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Michael Ross following failing health for a number of years. She was born in Downeyville, daughter of the late John Milloy and Ellen Collins and lived in Douro for the past 53 years. Her husband, the late John Leahy, predeceased her. There were many friends and relatives at the funeral from Downeyville, Lindsay and Peterborough.

Grand Jury Report Very Favorable

LINDSAY, Nov. 3.—(Staff). — Public institutions of Victoria County are in good condition and are efficiently operated, a Supreme Court grand jury reported Tuesday. Their report was handed to Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven, presiding over the fall sittings.

Premises of the County Home for the aged and infirm are "in excellent condition," the report said, and "the inmates appear to be well taken care of in every way." The jury recommended that a new roof be put on the barn.

They also recommended that an assistant, for night duty, be engaged to assist the superintendent and his wife.

"During the night hours, this extra help would be advisable because, at the time of our visit, there were 87 inmates, and these would present a great difficulty should there be a fire, particularly during the night hours," the report said.

The inspection of Ross Memorial Hospital also met with the jury's approval. "Everything is being kept in excellent condition."

Recommendations regarding the county jail were: Complete redecorating of the turnkey's room, front halls, entrance, office and jailer's living quarters; replacement of the coping on the yard walls; and the repairing of the cement floors in the basement corridors and cell blocks.

"We examined prisoner menus and found that these were quite adequate."

The report was submitted to his lordship by the jury foreman, Noble Swain.

Democrats Take Governorships

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP).—Democrats took majority control of the governorships of the United States in Tuesday's election, winning at least six posts previously held by Republicans.

Before the voting the lineup was a 24 to 24 standoff, but Democrats now are assured of at least 31 of the 48.

Returns at 8 a.m. EST gave the Democrats 17 victories and the Republicans eight in 33 state contests. In the eight unsettled races, Democratic candidates held the lead in three and Republicans in five.

Governorships won by the Democrats from Republicans were in Ohio, Illinois, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana and Montana.

Only one Democratic governorship was lost to the Republicans—Utah.

The top turnovers were in Ohio and Illinois. Republican Governor Thomas J. Herbert was defeated for a second Ohio term by former Democratic Governor Frank J. Lausche.

In Illinois, Governor Dwight H. Green, Republican National convention keynoter, was unseated by Adlai E. Stevenson, Chicago lawyer, professor and diplomat.

Dewey Michigan Grip Uneasy

DETROIT, Nov 3 (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey held an uneasy grip on the 19 electoral votes of his home state of Michigan today.

He was about 66,000 votes ahead of President Truman with 2,969 of the state's 4,202 precincts reported, according to unofficial returns. Dewey had 745,828 votes to 679,476 for Truman.

Detroit, heavily industrial and usually Democratic, was backing Truman by a 3-to-2 margin, with about one-third of its vote tabulated.

Unless the Michigan - born Dewey could lengthen his vote-getting stride, he faced the possibility of running into the same trouble he did four years ago against Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1944 Dewey carried outstate Michigan by more than 215,000 votes but the margin was swallowed up by Roosevelt's 238,000 plurality in the Detroit area. Dewey lost the state by 22,476 votes.

G. Mennen Williams, 37-year-old millionaire, who championed labor's cause as Democratic candidate for governor of Michigan, swept to a commanding lead over Republican Gov. Kim Sigler, the grim-jawed former Grand Jury prosecutor.

LONDON, ENGLAND: "My young niece will, we hope, graduate from Oxford next June. That may provide reason for a family re-union. What is the least amount needed to finance such a journey with a stay in England of two to three weeks? I shall be staying in a boarding house. Where should I apply for accommodation?"

Return ship fares to London next June are: Tourist $320 (sold out), Cabin $360 (sold out), and First Class $750 (reservations should be made immediately). Added to this would be train fare to Montreal plus ship voyage tips, about $50. Transatlantic air flight costs $649.80 return with no meal costs. Accommodation in London guest-house runs from $3 to $5 daily, with meals. Reservations could be made through British Travel Association, 372 Bay Street, Toronto. It certainly sounds like a grand family party.

KITCHEN COLORS: "We are building a new house and I would like some help with kitchen colors. What about woodwork, cupboard and furniture?"

Kitchens need the clean look far more than the new look. Consequently, ivory, yellow, and apple green are favorite colors. Ivory walls, ivory cupboards with deeper yellow shelf edges and under shelves combine well with blue linoleum-covered work surfaces. Add glazed chintz, blue and white striped curtains and it's a colorful ensemble. Pale green walls and cupboards combine well with a mottled linoleum table tops and beige linoleum flooring. Sherwin-Williams have color chart folders available on request.

FELT CHRISTMAS GIFTS: "Where can I get a book of instructions in making felt gifts such as book covers, knitting bags and so on?"

We have not been able to locate a book on felt-craft. However, Mrs. M. Rennick, Downsview P.O. says if you write her she will help you. Mrs. Rennick did a highly successful felt demonstration at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Voters Are Not Guinea-Pigs

The professional political soothsayers have been confounded by yesterday's elections. The voters confused them, President Truman confused them, and perhaps their own confidence in their poll-taking methods confused them.

• • •

Voters are not guinea-pigs. It is well for political democracy that that fact was demonstrated yesterday. Not only did the Democratic candidate win much greater support than was prophesied by the professional prophets; the Democrats in gubernatorial, senatorial and House of Representatives contests won victory where defeat was said to be certain. We do not presume to take the role of scientific political prophet; indeed we said last Friday that we felt it unwise to write Mr. Truman off as a total loss until all the votes had been counted. We suspected even last Friday that people are not robots whose actions can be determined before they move—or vote.

• • •

Joseph Tumulty once told his chief, Woodrow Wilson, that "everybody who comes to Washington either grows or swells". Mr. Truman has grown since he suddenly had to take over the awful responsibility of his high office nearly four years ago. He has also—certainly in the last months—increased in favour with his fellow-man.

The Soke Of Peterborough

For some time we have been worried about the Soke of Peterborough. Of course the link between Peterborough in Northamptonshire, England, and Peterborough in Ontario, Canada, is a frail one; even the origin of the name is different in the two cases. But we feel that it is not right that there should be such a thing as the Soke of Peterborough anywhere in the world, and that we should know nothing about it. Now we have the information which sets our mind at rest, and which we hope may do the same for any of our readers who has been similarly troubled.

The word Soke comes to us from feudal England, and it means a franchise, a privilege or a liberty—strictly, the franchise to administer justice within a certain district or territory. Such administration of justice was called soccage. Peterborough in Lincolnshire is a municipal borough, incorporated as such in 1874. But the Soke of Peterborough includes not only the city but a considerable surrounding area, with a larger population; for administrative purposes the Soke constitutes a separate county, although it is all included within the confines of Lincolnshire.

That's all about the Soke. Any further questions?

They Also Ran

Apart from the two chief contestants in yesterday's presidential campaign, there were no fewer than nine other candidates. The most notorious of them was Mr. Henry Wallace. His is the new "Progressive" party, organized for this election. It has proved to be still-born, for Mr. Wallace secured remarkably few votes, compared with the experts' prediction.

J. Strom Thurmond was the "States-Rights" candidate, and the first southerner to be nominated for President since the Civil War. His nomination came as a reprisal for President Truman's liberal policy towards the negroes. Norman Thomas, the Socialist, made his sixth consecutive appearance as a presidential candidate. Dr. Claude A. Watson entered as a Prohibitionist. He polled only 74,758 votes in the 1944 presidential elections. Prohibition does not seem to be a political conviction. Farrell Dobbs, "Socialist Worker" party, was the first presidential candidate of the 20-year old Trotskyist party. Edward A. Teichert (Socialist Labour party) ran for the second time as a Marxist. John Maxwell ran as a vegetarian. He is 86. He is ineligible for the presidency not because he does not eat meat but because he was born in England. Presidents must be native-born Americans. A renegade Republican, John G. Scott, from New York ran on a monetary theory (the "Greenback" party). The last on our list is Gerald L. K. Smith from Missouri. He is the kind of man whom we hope will never be president. He was an aide of Huey Long and founded the "America First" movement.

There seems to be something not quite right about the American system of electing presidents, even if the outmoded Electoral College system is not considered. Too many cranks are able to get their names on the ballot sheets.

Tea Or Cocktails?

From dark hints which we have discerned in the Ottawa papers it appears that the civic government of our capital city is torn by a vexatious problem; should tea or cocktails be served at civic receptions?

This is a genuine Canadian problem and should be treated with fitting seriousness. In the U.S.A. the problem would not arise because tea is not a customary drink there and not even the coffee-loving Americans would think of swigging coffee late in the afternoon; no doubt cocktails and soft drinks are served at American civic jamborees. Nor would the question need to be debated in England. If the reception were held before 5.30 p.m. everyone would drink tea without thinking about it, and after that hour everyone would drink cocktails—or if they did not like cocktails they would not feel that they had any right to impose their prejudice upon other people. But in Canada the questions bristles with difficulties.

In the first place we have no tradition of civic hospitality, and the Canadian taxpayer is suspicious of any public body which spends public money on food and drink. In the second place, Canadian private hospitality is dominated by women, and women, for some reason unknown to men, love to sit at a long table, pouring cups of lukewarm tea and archly asking their guests how many lumps of sugar they want. Thirdly, a strongly vocal group in every community disapproves of cocktails, just as their grandfathers disapproved of cigarettes, and would stand outside the Ottawa City Hall during any reception at which these drinks were served, singing hymns and predicting doom in loud, self-righteous voices.

The love which women have for pouring tea, and the objections which some voters have to cocktails, however, does not settle the argument in favour of tea. Men, understandably, hate to drink tea within an hour of sitting down to dinner, and civic governments are composed, in the main, of men.

Our advice to the Ottawa civic authorities is to drop the matter, relying on the Canadian custom of offering distinguished guests a drink in a hotel bedroom, strictly on the Q.T.

Let Us Not Be Wholly Quotable

Three or four times a year we receive clippings from a clipping agency of all the pieces from The Examiner which have been quoted in other newspapers. We look them over with the keenest interest, glad to be quoted at all but surprised to find that editorials over which we have laboured mightily have attracted no attention, whereas squibs and wisecracks which we confect in order to fill up holes have been repeated again and again.

It has occurred to us once or twice that a systematic analysis of these clippings might reveal to us what our contemporaries are sure to copy. Armed with that knowledge, we could then proceed to write upon nothing but subjects of the widest interest in the most popular manner, and everything that we wrote would be quoted elsewhere. We would be able to produce a wholly quotable editorial page every day.

There is something horrible in such a thought, and yet it has its own ghastly fascination. To be entirely quotable—it would correspond to being entirely edible. But the only entirely edible animals are those which contain no bones. We shall retain our skeleton of indigestible, unquotable matter, for without it we fear that our writings might become wholly intolerable.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Doris Duke, American heiress, has been granted a Reno divorce from her latest husband. Miss Duke, incidentally, maintains a home in Reno. She can afford all the modern conveniences.

The Kitchener - Waterloo Record comes to grips with reality, and says: "The keynote of the social scale is dough". Some will greet this realism with 'Ray!' and some with Fa!

Everything that Soviet Russia does is offensive. For instance, Stalin's latest charges about Britain and the U.S.A. being war-minded are reported from Washington to be Stalin's method of pepping-up the Red 'Peace offensive'.

CANADIAN CAUSERIE

Birds, Birds, Birds

By GEOFFREY VIVIEN

IT was a Baltimore Oriole that started it. I had never seen anything so orange outside a fruitstore, and I wondered what it could be. In that instant a bird-watcher was born. All this happened during this year's summer holiday, so the ornithologists among my readers will find my observations elementary and my enthusiasms naive.

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAVE however made enormously rapid progress. In the course of a mere six weeks I have reached the point which it takes the average under-graduate about two years to reach in his or her subject. That is, the point at which you realize you are very, very, ignorant. At university this stage is often attained before a groaning professor and a grinning class. In my bird-watching education it all happened privately and painlessly; I simply took an eraser and rubbed out the casual, over-confident tick that I had marked up against the Canada Jay in my list of species seen. I did this when I came upon the passage in which Richard Saunders describes his own behaviour on seeing this bird in a tree near Cherry Street in Toronto. "Dashing off at top speed, and shouting lustily for the others I caused various passers-by to gape and stare, but that could be no deterrent to the announcement of so great a discovery." Of course it is possible that mine was a Canada Jay too. Novice's luck. But I'd die rather than make a false claim. That is the spirit that breathes in the bird-watching world.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is a rare spirit, a compound of strict and sober devotion to truth with a riotous disregard for almost everything else. "Dashing off at top speed shouting lustily—"— wow! Surely in trigger-happy quarters of Chicago the bird-watcher must go in danger of his life. On occasions he can be a considerable menace himself; in the introduction to his new and excellent work "Flashing Wings" Saunders describes how the keen bird-watcher "in some moment of exaltation may drive headlong through the streets of a great city in a vain effort to keep pace with a golden eagle flying overhead." What fun if the City Fire Chief takes up the sport!

✧ ✧ ✧

PROFESSOR Saunders is a Historian of Toronto University, and I wonder what would happen to his tutorial class if a Bullock's Oriole (Icterus bullockii bullockii) perched on his window-ledge at Baldwin House. Perhaps an awed exclamation "Son of a ship's cookii cookii!" Another distinguished watcher of Canadian birds was the Right Hon. Malcolm Macdonald, during his term of office as High Commissioner for the U.K. at Earnscliffe, Ottawa. His approach is suaver. "It is charming to know" he writes in "Birds of Brewery Creek", "that so near the East Block where civil servants prepare Acts of Parliament, the love-life of Spotted Sandpipers is also being enacted, that within spitting distance of diplomatic cocktail parties in Rockcliffe Park many kinds of Warblers, Vireos, and Finches also hold their social gatherings." But his philosophy of the matter is not all on this sophisticated level. He would be not true member of the brotherhood if it were. The real thing comes out later, when he undertakes an expedition with Hoyes Lloyd, the President of the American Ornithologists Union. "We floundered around for a while waist-deep in cold water. That sort of experience creates a bond between men."

✧ ✧ ✧

WHAT is the mysterious charm of birds that makes men rush madly about their cities, plunge into icy water, sit for hours unmoving and silent in the hope of a mere glimpse? At its lowest it is the collector's instinct, that universal urge which is responsible for such various things as the pennants in your boy's room and Newfoundland in the Dominion of Canada. (There was even a shield left blank on the portals of the Houses of Parliament, like a space in a stamp-album for the "full set".) At a higher level there is the devotion of the scientist, surrounded by an almost infinite heap of little pieces in the vast jigsaw puzzle of the physical world, happily working on his tiny corner of the picture, grunting with pleasure when a piece falls neatly into place. And on the highest level there are all the aesthetic joys of colour, form, movement, and song. Is that the whole of it?

✧ ✧ ✧

NOT quite, in my experience. For me the ultimate pleasure in bird-watching is not in its complexity but in its simplicity. There is an immense untying of all one's inhibitions, cares, complexes, and whatever else makes life a burden, in this almost infantile pursuit. One is back in the nursery, or at least in a world where time and common sense do not count, inhabited by creatures who from the start ignored intellect and went for instinct. A through-the-looking-glass world, in every sense. Up to a point their behaviour is so very like yours and mine. The song of the catbird, for example, as described by F. S. Mathews in his classic "Field Book of Wild Birds and their Music". "The bird does not seem to entertain any regard for set rhythms, he proceeds with a series of miscellaneous, interrupted sentences, which bear no relationship with each other" (This is the inept politician caught without his notes). "The fact is, he is an imitator, and possibly does not know himself exactly what he is talking about, or what impressions he will embody in 'the next line'." (This is all of us, and especially the dear old lady who, when asked her opinion, exclaimed "How can I tell what I think till I see what I say?" Yes, a world amusingly like our own; and magically different.

JUST ONE THING

The teacher wanted to impress on his class that there was nothing a man could not do if he put his mind to it. Johnny Jones begged to differ.

"Well," said the teacher, "tell me and the class what it is."

"You try to strike a match on a piece of soap," was the answer.

SITE OF THE MOODIE HOMESTEAD

Letter To The Editor

DEVELOP PETERBOROUGH AS HEALTH CENTRE

Sir: Two articles written by G. N. Gordon and published in the Examiner Oct. 15 and 21 spur me on for writing another dealing with the subject of the Civic Hospital along with other subjects.

People cannot live by bread alone. Life is sustained by two kinds of food, one for the material and the other for the mental development of each individual. Nothing is more vital to the welfare of the race, than physical and mental health of each individual. Next is the love for each other and a sound financial basis, on which, to depend for maintainance for the necessities of life. Therefore, I consider that the subject of a hospital and finances to keep all necessities within reach of the pocketbooks of every individual, the more the public learns about how their money as taxes is to be spent the more they get knowledge of that which is involved and is necessary. The rights of all people should be maintained and exercised in such as the expenditure of vast sums of money expected to be involved, such as, that for the Civic Hospital, therefore, I maintain that the taxpayers should have a right to vote on that subject and any other, involving the standards of the progress of the people. Regardless of the three methods of obtaining assent to municipal expenditures, deeper consideration should be given, money obtained and immediate development made toward projects such as the arena, public and organized swimming pools, well equipped park facilities (for every lake section, as well as, advanced developments for the village and city parks) covered skating and game buildings for the villages, wider range of Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. educational advantages, better housing conditions, regulation on heating for all places where accommodations are given for business, for housing people; and a more thorough educational system for schools and adults in the line of health education. Church bands, school chorus work, dramatic groups for young and old alike, art and domestic advancement classes would train and interest all in health advancement both physical and mental, thereby, keeping the entire body actively engaged for health improvement and freerer from the susceptibility of diseases, both physical and mental. Mr. Gordon's method is to make this a medical centre by levying taxes to involve people 50 years from now.

Many may say, "It cannot be done for we need more hospitals." That is not true and God has proven it to us by at least one section not far distant.

There are sections, where chemicals are found in the vegetables, fruits and water in such degrees that the dental work of the people is of such a high standard, that very little tooth decay is noticeable as is found in other sections. Advancement and quality of teeth in each child depends upon the health of the mother and the type of food she eats, so it is that way with all other physical and mental advantages. Why spend, so much, on hospital and so little, for mental and health development?

Why should so many millions of dollars of the people's money be spent on just that, which, so few have a voice as a representative? The people in a democratic country should have a vote and voice in such expenditure and see that their tax money is spent more to educate, provide facilities for maintaining accommodations necessary to promote the best of physical and mental health for every individual. Spend more for health building and maintainance of both mental and physical health and much less will be necessary for treatment of the diseased and maimed ones in hospitals. Accidents, crime waves and the contagious diseases can be checked and curbed if all facilities for better mental and physical health programs were established by the people for giving them an individual interest in the work will draw them in to take part in all when opportunity affords. Liquor does much to force the necessity of hospitals, use liquor proceeds for them.

Mr. Gordon mentioned the doctors of Peterborough as high class and the dentists as outstanding. I admit several are so high priced that they only work certain months of the year to keep from paying more income taxes. I speak from experience, having had nurse training along with my work as a teacher, had a brother a noted doctor, and many months experience in hospitals as a patient. I know there are always quacks in every group whether the group be teachers, doctors, dentists or nurses etc. If the people received advancement at all times on knowledge of health, prevention, treatment and curing of physical and mental ailments instead of being kept so ignorant the country could get along with less doctors, nurses, dentists and make use of hundreds more in the promotion of health.

Mr. Gordon mentioned that many from the U.S. came here for medical and dental work. I want the people of this country to know, that, one of the U.S. highest class promoters for health improvement and maintainance, left Canada and went to the U.S. because he refused to sign up to do as the Ontario Medical Society demands. That doctor was born, reared, educated in Peterborough County and has proven to the world that it is better to prevent diseases by health programs and their maintainance. He has health centres in most large cities of the U.S. Why not here?

Transformation of London's River Bank

Work has just begun on a big scheme which will transform the surroundings of the River Thames in its path through the centre of London. The plans, which involve clearing a site covering 30 acres, were outlined on October 14 by the Leader of the London County Council, Mr. Hayward. Demolition of bomb-damaged buildings and warehouses together with reconstruction will cost £2,000,000 ($8,000,000). The scheme is to be completed within three years. The aim is to have the work finished in time for the opening of the Festival of Britain in June 1951. There will be several new Government buildings, a National Theatre, a big concert hall seating 3,000 and a river frontage of ornamental gardens. The concert hall, which will cost £1,250,000 ($5,000,000) to construct, will be the first building in what will eventually be a new cultural centre in London.

Truman Spends The Night In Quiet Hotel Hideaway

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3—(AP).—President Truman, who fought like a champion to upset the dopesters and sway the vote of a nation, took his feat in stride today. He arrived at his penthouse in the Hotel Muehlebach at dawn to tell how he slipped away to Excelsior Springs Tuesday to spend election night in a hotel hideaway.

Sitting there in his shirt sleeves, with sleepy-eyed reporters huddled on the floor around him, the President looked happy and confident, but he awaited a certification by others on his hard-fought struggle with Governor Thomas E Dewey, the Republican nominee.

While newspaper men wondered as to his whereabouts he left his home at Independence at 3 p.m. Tuesday to drive to Excelsior Springs, 32 miles away, to spend the night in the Elms Hotel.

"I got there about four, took one of their hot spring baths and rubdowns," he sadi. "Then I ate and went to bed.

Fight Of Life

"I woke up around midnight, heard a news broadcast and went back to sleep. I woke up again about 4.30 a.m., heard another broadcast, and decided I'd better drive back to town and have breakfast in the penthouse."

The President wouldn't talk about the election returns, other than to say that he had made the fight of his life because he believed in the campaign he made.

He said he would not have any comment on the returns before 11 a.m., EST, but there was no doubt that he was pleased with the way things were going.

Truman Shows Leadership On Par With FDR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP).—Win or lose on the final count, Harry S. Truman's huge vote tally in the Presidential election demonstrated a quality of political leadership that measures well by the Roosevelt yardstick.

Five months ago organization leaders in the Democratic party tried to dump Truman. He couldn't win, they said. Henry A. Wallace organized a splinter Progressive party. A group of southerners bolted the Democratic convention in anger over Truman's civil rights program and formed the 'States' Rights party. Polltakers counted Governor Thomas E. Dewey as good as elected.

How did President Truman win the support that poured in millions of votes? These factors stand out:

1. Truman's own personal fight against the overwhelming odds of a party split wide over his nomination, splintered by factions, apparently crumbling under the load of 16 years of continuous rule.

2. His choice of issues, including what he called the "idiot" 80th Congress — "the second worst in history." He hammered at:

a) Enactment over his veto of the Federal Taft-Hartley labor law so bitterly opposed by organized labor;

(b) Failure to vote legislative controls for a soaring cost-of-living;

(c) Failure to provide a long-range program to relieve the housing shortage;

(d) Lack of action on his civil rights program—a recommendation that cost electoral votes in the south but doubtless added to his popular vote in northern cities.

3. Farm belt uneasiness in recent weeks over grain price declines stirred by Truman's arguments that the 80th Congress crippled the price-support program and that a Republican administration would bring back 1932 farm conditions.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP). — Eleven teams in a field of 12 were bunched within a few laps of the leaders as the 47th international bicycle race entered its third day in the international amphitheatre. Rene Cyr of Montreal and Cesare Moretti of Italy, along with the Belgian team of Robert Decorte and Andre Maelbranque, continued to set the pace. Both were tied at 1 a.m. (CST) at 867 miles.

Perfect Form Requires Nine Actresses

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 — (AP) —Fashion designer Edith Head has combined anatomical parts of nine film actresses to form the perfect dummy.

This is a literal dummy, one used for fashion scenes in "Bitter Victory." A perfectionist, Miss Head had to make it the best. Choosing from the stars she has designed for, she picked this list:

Neck—Diana Lynn, 13 inches.
Shoulders—Barbara Stanwyck.
Bust—Olivia Dehavilland, 34½ inches.
Waist—Loretta Young 24 inches
Hips—Lizabeth Scott, 35½ in.
Arms—Hedy Lamarr.
Hands—Veronica Lake.
Legs—Marlene Dietrich, of course.
Feet—Mona Freeman.

Football First

Jane Russell tells me her husband, Bob Waterfield, will not give up pro football as reported. He will see another season or two with the Los Angeles Rams. Meanwhile, he is seeking an auto agency in the San Fernando Valley. Jane would like to see him star in a Western series. He has got the looks and build for it.

Dinah Shore is bragging about her disc "Buttons and Bows" shoving over the 1,000,000-mark in sales. She and other record stars are eying sheet music again in preparation for the renewal of waxing.

"Mister Roberts" is still in doubt as a film. Johnston office censors would remove much of the play's lustiness, and it is a question whether enough would be left for film material. At any rate, James Stewart will replace Henry Fonda in the show next summer, giving Hank a chance to do a picture, much-needed for his movie career.

Wild Bill Goes Home

Randolph Scott heads for a three month trip after "Wild Bill Doolin." He will visit his mother in Charlotte, NC, and may cruise to South America. "I want to get away from my creditors," jests Randy, reputed to be one of the wealthiest guys in town.

An exaggeration, he claims.

75 Children Attend Trent River Party

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 3—(ENS.) (ENS).—A very successful Hallowe'en party was held in the United church dining hall on Saturday evening for the children of the village, under the direction of Mr. Murray Wight and Mr. R. W. Umphrey.

About 75 attended in costume and were treated after the program to candies, sandwiches, cookies, pies and cocoa.

Mr. Umphrey took charge of the 'grand march.' Those winning prizes were:

Little Gracie Vaughan and Donnie Henry for best dressed couple and Scott Little won first prize dressed as on old fashioned flower girl. Mrs. Eris Little played the piano for the group singing. Mr. Wight conducted a radio quizz from an improvised microphone. All contestants were given jelly beans as prizes.

Other prize winners for the gum chewing and beehive contests were Fred Umphrey, Ronnie McMillan, Orval Vaughan and Jack Young.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, stayed Tuesday night at the suburban home of Toronto movieman Arthur Gottlieb before motoring today on a hunting expedition at Gottlieb's camp north of Ottawa.

On his return after a week's hunting the New York Yankee outfielder will go to Johns Hopkins Hospital for an operation to remove bone spurs from his right heel.

Toronto Argonauts Tuesday night nominated centre Doug Turner and fineman Don Durno for the 1948 Jeff Russel Trophy, awarded annually to the Big Four football player voted most sportsmanlike and the most valuable to his team.

Ottawa Rough Riders nominees for the Jeff Russel Trophy are halfback Howie (touchdown) Turner and middle wing Eric Chipper, it was announced yesterday at Ottawa.

The winner of the award will probably be announced later this week.

Veteran lineman George Shields was voted the Jimmy Keith Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the member of Toronto Beaches Indians showing the type of spirit, loyalty and ability of the late Jimmy Keith, former Balmy Beach outside wing. The selection was made by the Beaches players.

President Clair Warner of the Western Football Conference announced yesterday that Hec Crighton of Toronto would be unable to officiate in the two-game Western Canada final between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders. Earlier, arrangements were made to bring the veteran arbiter west but in a telegram to Warner, Crighton said he could not make the trip because of previous commitments to the Big Four Union.

Canadian featherweight champ Jean Richard scored a technical knockout victory over Lou Alter at Montreal Tuesday night in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title fight. Richard scaled 129¾, and alter 125½. Referee Bobby Leitham stopped the fight when Alter was unable to answer the bell for the sixth round.

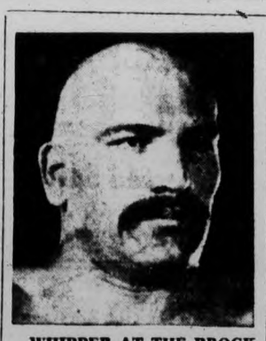
The American Hockey League Buffalo Bisons Tuesday sold Jack McGill to Providence Reds for an undisclosed amount of cash and the bargaining rights to left winger Fernan Laliberte, it was announced at Buffalo. The 20-year-old Laliberte, now with Montreal Nationals in the Quebec Junior League, belongs to the Reds.

Chipman Finds Football Now Too Costly

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3 (CP) — After four years as head of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, retiring president Arthur Uniac Chipman has come to the conclusion football is becoming too costly.

Stressing the need to develop home talent, he said that the Bombers had to be subsidized "substantially" this season even though "we had wonderful attendance at our seven home games." This was due partly to the big salaries paid American imports.

"We should quit trying to live up to the Joneses," he said. "Winnipeg, with a population one-third the size, can't keep pace with Toronto and Montreal. The sooner we realize it the better it will be for all associated with football in the west."



Apart from suggesting that western teams forget about American imports, with a resultant heavier concentration on home brews, Chipman also recommended that the home talent share in a player pool at the end of the season rather than get salaries.

Chipman thought that hiring of a "high class coach—and I really mean high class" would put Winnipeg in a position where players could be developed locally and it would be possible to compete on even terms with the East in two or three seasons.

"If we, Regina and Calgary all returned to home-brew talent, Edmonton and possibly even Saskatoon might come in a league."

Chipman said he did not know how officials of Calgary Stampeders or Saskatchewan Roughriders might feel about the matter although he had the idea that the proposal might be well received in Regina.

In the semi-final two of wrestling's biggest men George McNab, former pro rugby star, and Wladyslaw Talun, shown above, face each other. In the opener Jack Moore meets the brilliant Ralph Martin.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Football season hasn't much longer to go, November being play-off month. Three local teams see action this week-end, and one of them has to win to keep going—and by more than eight points. We mean the Panthers are in Orillia and down eight points in the two-game ORFU intermediate group finals. Winner to tackle Cobourg next. Our PCVS seniors have an exhibition joust here in the Oval against Pickering College of Newmarket. Later they'll be hitting into COSSA playoffs. And our junior PCI-ers go to Oshawa on Saturday in the first of a home-and-home group final series. And that's the local grid setup for the week-end.

* * * * * *

Made mention yesterday of a true amateur, and it might be mentioned today that the Panthers are certainly that. Not that they wouldn't mind taking pay for their work, but they know there isn't the dough. Yet they go out there game after game, smashing the opposition and getting smashed on every play, just for the fun of it. Some fun! They take far greater physical beatings every contest than do the puckists, lacrossers or ballsters—yet the latter all get paid something for their seasonal efforts. With 24 guys on the move on each play, there's sure to be a lot of collisions between the big-shouldered boys. At no pay, we'd call that true amateurism.

* * * * * *

The Birds Are Flying

Badminton club here is starting off strongly. Had 80 out one night recently, taking it in 15-minute relays on four courts at the Market Hall. With 50 new members, they have about 130 badmintoneers now, including many girls, and the action is fast and furious. Couple of tourneys coming up here before Christmas, with Oshawa and Belleville sending contingents. And a lot of the local players plan to go to Toronto on Dec. 3-4 to see India vs. Canada in a sort of tennis Davis Cup playoff, winner meeting the States. Yes, the over-the-webbing lasses and chaps appears to be in for a fine season.

* * * * * *

Andy Lytle writes: "It is promotional wisdom to cherish, not to shatter, illusions of grandeur. I have often thought, since the appearance of the centre ice red line in hockey, that a Johnny who can skate and throw rubber in say the American League is just as competent as his brothers in the National. We see the cream of hockey competition when two good junior clubs clash each spring and it isn't reasonable to suppose that the elite of this crop has to spend a season or two in one league to qualify for what common sense and a study of the rules tells us is the same kind of hockey in another. The difference, if any, is in accommodation and dressing-up, rather than in quality of performance."

* * * * * *

It Takes Experience

While there is something to be said for Andy's angle, we can't go along too far with it. True enough, class counts anywhere and it's a fact that dressing-up means much in pro sports. But experience is needed in the higher brackets and that takes a little time. A good junior stepping directly into NHL will—with rare exceptions—get himself hurt by some of the husky and cagy veterans of the ice lanes. He may go swell against teen-agers but he needs some seasoning in the company of moneyed players in the minor loops (which usually consists of a mixture of youngsters coming up and oldsters on the down slope) before he can hope to hold his own in NHL play. You see, a National League club doesn't depend on two or three stars—it must be made up of a solid puck performers.

* * * * * *

Just in passing, it might be pointed out that we use the word "alternates" in listing a lineup rather than the term "substitutes". As a team is only as strong as its alternates, and the latter aren't necessarily the second-stringers on the squad at all. In fact most coaches like to level off the lineup by planting some of the better players on so-called second or third lines in hockey or lacrosse, and among the alternates in football. Quite often a coach, working on some theory of strategy, will start his so-called second-stringers in a game, keeping his top talent to throw in a bit later at a propitious moment. So, don't underestimate alternates.

Top Trundling Counts

In the Girls' Bowling League this week, Towne Togs took down all the scoring honors. Their team total was a rousing 3428 with a one-game total high of 1178. Another one was 1171. And Marg Hawthorne of the same side swept individual marks with an 813 three-some and a smashing 341 single. Nice going. D. Martin won the blind score this time. The Togs are all Westclox softballers, or former ones, and all keen cagers at one time or another. They include: Aggie Anderson, Isabel Bullock, Nona Whetung, Marg Hawthorne and Bea Morrow. All top trundlers in this classy colleens' circuit.

From L. to R., Baker, Eddie Rommel, another old time Athletic player (now an American league umpire); Howard Ehmke, Lefty Bob Grove, Connie Mack, veteran leader of the A's (he will be 86 on Dec. 23); Big Chief George Bender, Hans Lobert (now scout for the Giants) and Otto Knabe, former infielder with the A"s. Connie got together with his former players in a party in his honor at which a premature birthday cake was presented. At the left standing are, baseball commissioner A. H. Football First

Jane Russell tells me her husband, Bob Waterfield, will not give up pro football as reported. He will see another season or two with the Los Angeles Rams. Meanwhile, he is seeking an auto agency in the San Fernando Valley. Jane would like to see him star in a Western series. He has got the looks and build for it.

Dinah Shore is bragging about her disc "Buttons and Bows" shoving over the 1,000,000-mark in sales. She and other record stars are eying sheet music again in preparation for the renewal of waxing.

"Mister Roberts" is still in doubt as a film. Johnston office censors would remove much of the play's lustiness, and it is a question whether enough would be left for film material. At any rate, James Stewart will replace Henry Fonda in the show next summer, giving Hank a chance to do a picture, much needed for his movie career.

Wild Bill Goes Home

Randolph Scott heads for a three month trip after "Wild Bill Doolin." He will visit his mother in Charlotte, NC, and may cruise to South America. "I want to get away from my creditors," jests Randy, reputed to be one of the wealthiest guys in town.

An exaggeration, he claims.

75 Children Attend Trent River Party

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 3—(ENS) (ENS).—A very successful Hallowe'en party was held in the United church dining hall on Saturday evening for the children of the village, under the direction of Mr. Murray Wight and Mr. R. W. Umphrey.

About 75 attended in costume and were treated after the program to candies, sandwiches, cookies, pies and cocoa.

Mr. Umphrey took charge of the 'grand march.' Those winning prizes were:

Little Gracie Vaughan and Donnie Henry for best dressed couple and Scott Little won first prize dressed as on old fashioned flower girl. Mrs. Eris Little played the piano for the group singing. Mr. Wight conducted a radio quizz from an improvised microphone. All contestants were given jelly beans as prizes.

Other prize winners for the gum chewing and beehive contests were Fred Umphrey, Ronnie McMillan, Orval Vaughan and Jack Young.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, stayed Tuesday night at the suburban home of Toronto movieman Arthur Gottlieb before motoring today on a hunting expedition at Gottlieb's camp north of Ottawa.

On his return after a week's hunting the New York Yankee outfielder will go to Johns Hopkins Hospital for an operation to remove bone spurs from his right heel.

Toronto Argonauts Tuesday night nominated centre Doug Turner and lineman Don Durno for the 1948 Jeff Russel Trophy, awarded annually to the Big Four football player voted most sportsmanlike and the most valuable to his team.

Ottawa Rough Riders nominees for the Jeff Russel Trophy are halfback Howie (touchdown) Turner and middle wing Eric Chipper, it was announced yesterday at Ottawa.

The winner of the award will probably be announced later this week.

Veteran lineman George Shields was voted the Jimmy Keith Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the member of Toronto Beaches Indians showing the type of spirit, loyalty and ability of the late Jimmy Keith, former Balmy Beach outside wing. The selection was made by the Beaches players.

President Clair Warner of the Western Football Conference announced yesterday that Hec Crighton of Toronto would be unable to officiate in the two-game Western Canada final between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders. Earlier, arrangements were made to bring the veteran arbiter west but in a telegram to Warner, Crighton said he could not make the trip because of previous commitments to the Big Four Union.

Canadian featherweight champ Jean Richard scored a technical knockout victory over Lou Alter at Montreal Tuesday night in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title fight. Richard scaled 129¾, and alter 125½. Referee Bobby Leitham stopped the fight when Alter was unable to answer the bell for the sixth round.

The American Hockey League Buffalo Bisons Tuesday sold Jack McGill to Providence Reds for an undisclosed amount of cash and the bargaining rights to left winger Fernan Laliberte, it was announced at Buffalo. The 20-year-old Laliberte, now with Montreal Nationals in the Quebec Junior League, belongs to the Reds.

Ailing Toronto Leafs Go On Ice Against All-Stars

By The Canadian Pretss

Coach Happy Day tonight throws his ailing Toronto Maple Leafs into action against the National Hockey League's dream team at Chicago.

It's the league's annual all-star game, between the champions of the world and a star-studded squad picked last year by the league coaches.

The all-stars — whose roster reads like who's who of the hockey world—won the game 4-3 last years. The Leafs, now in fourth place in the league, have been far from impressive in seven games this year.

Leafs probably will be without right-winger Howie Meeker, who sat out Tuesday's practice scrimmage, bothered by a toe he broke in the first game of the season.

Coach Tommy Ivan of Detroit Red Wings may have to send the all-stars into the game without a team practice.

But practice or no practice, he'll be icing a squad that spells trouble for any hockey club.

Expect Good Crowd

The game is expected to bring out a capacity crowd of 17,000 to the Chicago stadium and put $30,000 into the coffers of the National Hockey League's pension fund for players and the Daily News Veterans' Fund.

It marks the only activity in the league between last Saturday's games and the scheduled Saturday night tilts.

Saturday the first-place Detroit Red Wings play Canadiens at Montreal and Toronto is at home to the fifth place New York Rangers.

Ivan has had little chance to drill his squad, some of whom are not expected to arrive in Chicago until to-day.

His club comprises goalies Bill Durnan of Montreal and Frank Brimsek of Boston, defencemen Bill Quackenbush and Jack Stewart of Detroit, Neil Colville of New York and Butch Bouchard and Ken Reardon of Montreal; and forwards Gaye Stewart and Doug Bentley of Chicago, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart of Boston, Tony Leswick of New York and three Red Wings — Bud Poile, Ted Lindsay and Gordon Howe and Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach, Montreal.

Forward Edgar Laprade of New York was named to the all-stars last year, but injuries from a preseason auto accident have kept him on the bench all season.

Mercurys Edge Dutchmen 3-2, Shabaga Stars

By The Canadian Press

Owen Sound Mercurys, with eight points, crept within four points of the league-leading Hamilton Tigers Tuesday night.

Mercurys, paced by Mike Shabaga with one goal and two assists, nosed out the third-placed Kitchener-Waterloo Flyin' Dutchmen 3-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association senior game.

In the only junior tilt, Guelph Mercurys moved into fourth place besting the fifth-place Galt Rockets 3-2 at Galt.

Owen Sound garnered two goals in the first period and one in the third while Dutchmen scored in the second and third sessions.

Pat McReavy notched the first Owen Sound goal when he tipped in Mike Shabaga's rebound. Less than two minutes later, Shabaga scored on McReavy's pass to put Mercurys two up.

Fleet Trend Anderson counted for Kitchener when he blasted Bobby Bauer's pass behind netminder Tommy McGrattan.

Owen Sound made it 3-1 when Bruce Small scored on a three-way pass with Fred Smith and Shabaga. Minutes later Bill Dinning retaliated for Kitchener, counting on a 35-foot screened shot.

5th Place Tie

The Rockets defeat left them in a fifth-place tie with Stratford Kroehlers.

Ron Bell opened the scoring for Galt in the first period, slipping the puck in after drawing out goaler Dan Kewley. Biltmores tied it up in the second frame when Butch Martin blasted a long shot that caught the corner.

Bell got his second goal when he put Galt up 2-1. Lorne Ferguson came back for Biltmores minutes later and nipped the equalizer shortly after Galt's Tom Burcham drew a high-sticking penalty. Frank Bathgate got the clincher for Guelph minutes later.

In the junior circuit tonight, Galt clash with Guelph, Oshawa Generals meet the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees and Stratford Krohlers play the third-spot Barrie Flyers.

Only one game is slated in the senior loop. Stratford Indians clash with the cellar-dwelling Toronto Marlboros.

Filchock Wins Rugby Trophy For Best Player

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP).—Frankie Filchock, the forward-passing sensation of this football season, to-day became the second successive American import to win the Imperial Oil Trophy, awarded annuallly to the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

The quarterback and coach of Hamilton Tigers, who swept through the nine-game union schedule without a defeat, succeeds Bob Paffrath, now with the Ottawa Rough Riders, as the choice of players on his own and oposing teams for the award.

The 32-year-old native of Pittsburg, Pa., held a decisive edge in the balloting, result of which was announced to-day by Harold Bailey, ORFU secretary. Each team votes for two of its own players and one member of another team and the voices are pooled.

The award brings another honor to the man who came to Canada last year after his suspension from United States football on a charge of failing to report a bribe offer. Filchock protested the charge—he played the game of his career for New York Giants in the professional playoff in question—and some football men since have decided he was the scapegoat in a blare of US publicity on gambling in sports.

Acceptance Slow

His acceptance in Canada was slow. At first, the Big Four Football Union refused to consider him eligible and ruled that all games he played for Hamilton would automatically go to the opponents. The Tigers used him anyway and in mid-season named him coach about the time the Big Four relented and ruled him eligible.

This year the Tigers went into the Ontario Rugby Football Union and he built up a set of native-son receivers, notably Jack Harper and Jack Stewart—fellows who could snatch and hold throws they say hit a man's hands like a feather no matter what the distance.

Unofficial statistics show that in nine games this season Filchock attempted 129 passes and completed 83. Around a dozen were intercepted. But about 24 were direct touchdown passes.

Body Of Old Chinese Has Been Identified

MIMICO, Nov. 3—(CP)—The body of an elderly Chinese found last Oct. 26 floating in Lake Ontario off Mimico was Monday identified as that of Mah Whing Quong, an unemployed chef, last known to be living in Toronto.

Identification was made by a Toronto Chinese, who said he worked with Quong several years ago. Severe scalp wounds and facial cuts were found on the body and officials have been unable to decide whether the man's death was accidental or the result of foul play.

$250,000 Fire Guts Warehouse

TIMMINS, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Fire of undetermined origin completely gutted the furniture storage warehouse of United Movers here early Tuesday. The fire was first detected at 3.40 a.m. and firemen fought the stubborn blaze for several hours before bringing it under control.

The warehouse jammed to capacity with furniture and household effects, was a total loss. It is reported that only a small proportion of the furniture stored was covered by insurance.

There are gas tanks in close proximity to the building and for a time police evacuated nearby houses in case of an explosion, several moving vans belonging to the company were saved.

Fire department officials stated that the building had been inspected within the past week.

Insurance adjuster has estimated today's warehouse loss at $250,000. About 75 persons had uninsured furniture stored there.

Church Army Canteen Brings New Hope To Released Prisoners

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Every morning, as the great steel doors of Wormwood Scrubs Prison swing open, men in drab, utilitarian clothes can be seen walking rather self-consciously across the road to a little wooden hut that has no name.

The hut is just one of many free canteens operated throughout Britain by the church army—but some call it "the cafe of new hope."

Here ex-prisoners are given a cup of tea, a cake, and—however desperate the tobacco shortage — a cigaret. They also receive a friendly smile and a word of welcome from Sister Emily Hurt who for 12 years has acted as hostess to men who have "served their time."

Sister Hurt, a pleasant-faced, matronly woman, has been in the church army service 36 years. Her uniform is grey; her manner bright with warmth and friendliness.

Gains Confidence

"Come and have a cup of tea," she says, "it'll buck you up." Soon she has the visitors at their ease and has gained their confidence. Even hardened criminals seem to respond to her friendliness.

A man who had been inside six years told her: "It was no worse than being in the army. They don't serve the food on a silver plate, but it's good and there's enough of it."

Another, an old man who had been jailed for receiving stolen property, told how his health had improved in prison.

The majority say they never want to see the inside of a prison again.

Not all of Sister Hurt's visitors — she has an average of 500 a week — are released prisoners. A large number are the relatives of prisoners, for every jailed man is allowed two visitors a week.

"One old lady travels down here from Glasgow once every month," Sister Hurt said. "Her son has been in prison for nearly three years. She finds the journey a bit of a strain and usually takes a cup of tea here first."

Candles Glisten At Hallowe'en Party

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 3 — Mrs. Ross Pollock entertained at a Hallowe'en party and bridge on Friday evening when Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. Frances Ruttan and Mrs. Rhoda Campney of Havelock won prizes.

The dining table was covered with a lace cloth centred with a bowl of roses and tall candles. Tea was poured by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Eric Little. The rooms were lit by candlelight and were decorated in the Hallowe'en colors and favors.

Holds Birthday Party

HASTINGS, Nov. 3—(ENS)—Ronnie, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Scriver, Front Street, celebrated his 7th birthday on Thursday afternoon with a gay birthday party. Games were enjoyed, with Melvin Smullin, Kenny Montgomery, Carol Smullin and Bobby Scriver winning prizes.

Each child was given a bag of candy and a pink and blue crepe paper hat.

Mrs. C. Radford and Mrs. A. Smullin assisted the hostess with the serving of the sandwiches, cookies and chocolate milk, with the children all singing "Happy Birthday Ronnie" as he blew out the candles on the special birthday cake.

School Boys Excavate For New Rink

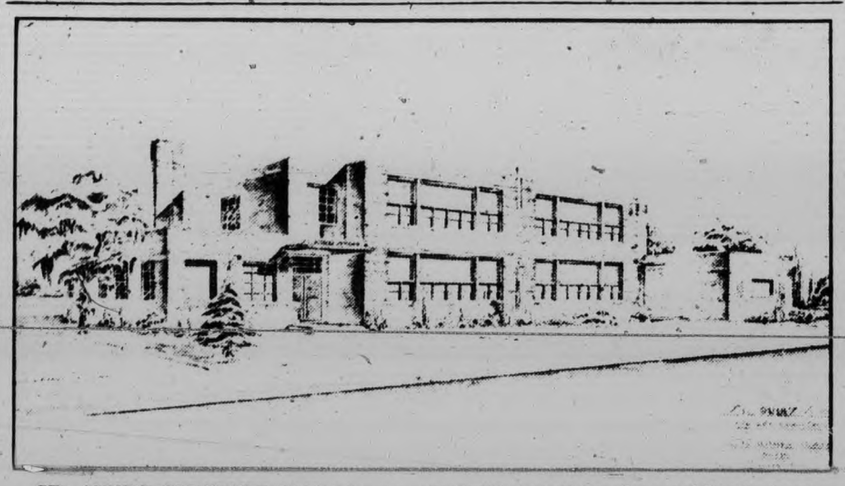
LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3.—(ENS).—Harry Stabler, reporting for the Rink committee, states that they have now raised the $2,500 to pay for the car on which tickets are being sold, and money raised from now on will go directly to the rink fund.

The village is really going all out to put the rink up. Each day a group of boys from the Grove school, supervised by prefects, a group from High schoool, supervised by Principal Robert Sutton and a group from public schoo; under Principal Everett Sloan, work in shifts, commencing at 8.30 a.m., digging the pits fo rthe septic tanks.

Even Chief Samis was lifted up by the belt in the teeth of "the strong man" on Saturday to swell the rink fund by $25.

City Engages Lawyer To Prepare Application

Alex L. Elliott, KC, has been engaged by the council to prepare its application for a judicial decision on the question of extending George St. through Morrow Park.



This recommendation was adopted in the report of the legal committee by Ald. Adam Sands Monday night.

The following is another clause in the committee's report: "That this committee study the bylaw appointing the City Solicitor and endeavor to limit his duties, based on the experience of the last several years."

Reconsideration of salary is another detail referred to the legal committee.

MAKE TWO TRIPS

Firemen made two trips on Tuesday. The first was shortly after 12 noon when a chimney fire was reported at the home of Mrs. G. Garside, 199 Reid St. The other was at 4:20 p.m. when a flooded oil burner caused an alarm at the home of Mrs. D. Douglas, 1178 Monaghan Rd. Smoke damage is said to have been considerable.

ST. ANNE'S SEPARATE SCHOOL, an eight classroom structure, will be built soon at the top end of Benson Ave., to serve students in the north-end of the city and in Smith township. The architect's drawing is by Jas. H. Haffa, MRAIC, Toronto. Cost of the building is estimated between $175,000 and $200,000.

New Standard Presented Legion Branch

Ex-service women of the Elizabeth Smellie Branch 452, Canadian Legion who formed their branch a year ago were presented with a large silk standard on Tuesday evening at a special meeting of all executives and members. The gift was from the city of Peterborough and His Worship W. G. Ovens opened the ceremony and turned the duty of presentation over to Alderman Gordon Armstrong.

Mr. Armstrong said that it was a necessary thing to have a service branch of this nature in the city where old comrades could meet and carry on with community work. The standard was necessary to identify the new Branch in functions and parades.

Miss Louise Hall, vice-president introduced the members to Mayor Ovens and Miss Lyla Gerow, standard bearer, received the flag from Alderman Armstrong. Second vice-president, Mrs. Rosa Humphries, thanked the city officials for their generosity. The standard will be used for the first time at Church Parade on Sunday, Nov. 7.

OCTOBER BIRTHS FEWER

Births, marriages and deaths in October were all fewer than in the same month last year as reported at the city hall. The month's count was: births 133, marriages 43; deaths 43. And in October last year: births 137, marriages 49; deaths 46.

Separate School Board Plans New School In North End

A new separate school, to be one of the most modern in Eastern Ontario, will be built soon on Benson Ave., in the north end of the city. It will be called St. Anne's School, and is being constructed to serve the pupils living north of Parkhill Rd. to the river, and those in Smith township wishing to attend a city school. It is for primary classes, including the eighth grade.

John Black, secretary of the Separate School Board, reported today the cost of the building when equipped will range between $170,000 and $200,000. There will be 8 class-rooms and an auditorium, and the overall dimensions are 141 feet by 70 feet.

The building will also include a library, medical room, teachers' room and a principal's office.

The only excavation will be for the furnace room, there being no basement. The building will be two-storey, brick and concrete construction and it will be completely fireproof. Liberal use of glass brick and windows is indicated so that the maximum amount of natural light will be available. The building will be available. The building will incorporate many of the features of the recently completed Queen Mary Public School and the Confederation Public School additions.

In recent years the number of Roman Catholic families north of Parkhill Rd. has increased considerably, throwing a burden on St. Peter's school that could not be handled in the existing building. Even with the addition of a two-room wing this year, the primary grades are over capacity, it was learned.

General contract has been let to George Hardie & Co. Ltd., Toronto, with Adamson and Dobbin doing the plumbing and heating, and Tweedy and Morris, the electrical work. Marble, terrazzo and tile sub-contract has been let to the Ontario Marble Company of this city.

The school is to be ready for occupancy next September.

City Engages Expert Realtor To Assess Site

W. H. Bosley, Toronto, expert realtor, has been authorized by the city council to proceed with the necessary appraisal of the property selected as the site of the new city hall.

The proposed site is the block bounded by George, McDonnel, Water and Murray streets.

Mr. Bosley has been asked for an early report on the individual properties in the block. To assist him in his survey, Mr. Bosley is being provided with a letter of introduction from City Clerk Outram, especially in carrying out inspection of the properties.

Mr. Bosley recommended that the rents of the properties occupied by CNR Telegraphs, Meyers Studios and Buehler's meat store should be doubled and that new leases be given to those firms which would expire at the same time as the other store leases in the market building.

Jaycees Appoint Three Chairmen

Three members of the Jaycees were named to office at an executive meeting held on Monday. They are: Bill Edworthy, director for membership; Keith Pilkington, director for sports and youth development; Claude Hewitt, publicity.

Plans were made for the Governor-General's visit, with the Junior Chamber of Commerce assigned to decorate stands and platforms at the Exhibition Park, and certain needs in the Armouries. The Jaycees are going to present a trophy to the champions of the Minor Baseball League, with the full team present.

Three new members joined the organization. They are: Bob McEroy, 575 McKeller St.; George A. Stone, 2 Trinity St.; Harold Lowden, 747 Brown St.

Cancer Society Membership 738

Peterborough branch of the Cancer Society held its first fall executive meetings in the city chambers on Tuesday evening, with President Douglas Anderson in the chair.

A candidate will be appointed from several suggested names to attend the society's board of directors' meeting in Ottawa on Nov. 10 and to hold a joint meeting with the Dominion secretary, Miss Isobel Oliver and Miss Jessie Torrance, new service director. A nomination committee will be named at their annual meeting in the city in January.

The society was brought up to date about its past summer activities. It had a booth at the Peterborough Exhibition and passed out a great deal of literature. It also had a display at the Public Library during National Dental week.

Their membership now stands at 738, a large increase over last year, but, in the opinion of all present, it is still far too low. Comparable with other cities of equal size there should be a membership of 2,500, they feel. Their present finances show a credit balance of $453 after paying off several operating accounts out of their original collection of $1,300.

Those present at the meeting besides President Anderson, were Miss Mary Ross, E. J. Wolff, L. H. Ingram, the Misses Myrtle Sargent and E. Miller and W. Bingeman.

FIREMAN INJURES HEEL

Robert A. Hall, a city fireman, fell from the ladder truck on Monday while on the way to a fire, and injured his heel. The truck gave a jog while crossing the CNR railway tracks on Aylmer St. near Lake St. He continued on to the fire. An X-ray showed that there were no broken bones and he returned to duty.

Charges Assault Took Place In Bath Room

Humorous and contradictory evidence featured an assault case heard before Magistrate W. R. Philp in city court today. Evidence was completed at noon, and judgment will be given later today.

The charge was laid by Mrs. Marie Ann Gordon, 307 Townsend St., against Desmond Hunt, storekeeper and lessee of the premises, which they both occupy. She claimed that Mr. Hunt assaulted her in the batnroom, causing actual bodily harm. Mr. W. B. Gordon was special prosecutor for Mrs. Gordon, and T. J. Carley, K.C., acted for Hunt.

According to the evidence given by Mrs. Gordon, she went into the bathroom to scrub it, carrying a pail of water. She found Hunt in there fully clothed and he grabbed her by the arm and by the hair, spilled the water, and tried to put her out. She told the court she fell striking her hip on a step, which leads from the hall into the bathroom.

It was brought out in evidence that Hunt has the premises leased and that Mrs. Gordon has two rooms rented upstairs. Hunt and his son occupy one bedroom and they share the bathroom.

"I am suggesting you are trying to ruin his business and that this charge is laid with that in mind," Mr. Carley said.

"No, Mr. Carley," she answered. "You've been wanting Mr. Hunt to marry you, you've been asking him, haven't you?"

"No, Mr. Carley . . . .

"Hmmmm, that's what you say," the lawyer replied.

Dr. John Epping and Mrs. L. L. Maguire, police matron both testified concerning the extent and character of the injuries, but Dr. Epping said he made his examination on Oct. 23. The alleged assault took place Oct. 13.

When the evidence of the Crown was in, Mr. Carley put the defendant Hunt in the box.

"What trouble have you been having with Mrs. Gordon?" he asked.

"The trouble has been going on for more than three years. When I pass her on the stairs or when she is sweeping, she hits me with the broom, and she said if I didn't get rid of Mrs. McGuire, she would scratch my eyes out."

It was explained that Mrs. McGuire was employed as a clerk in the store.

Objected To Girls

"I've had about 20 employees all women in the last three years and she has helped me get rid of all of them," Hunt said.

"Did she object to them?"

"Yes, she said she could look after the show without any help."

"There were two civil actions supposed to be coming up against you?" Mr. Carley queried.

"Yes, but I understand both have been dropped."

"What other trouble did you have with her?"

"One day I washed my car and parked it near the store. A pail of water was thrown on it from an upstairs window. I found two inch nails scattered around the car," Hunt said.

Thumbed Her Nose

"Did you tell her, 'Thanks for the nails sweetheart, your time is running out.'?"

"Yes, I believe I did say that."

"What did she say?"

"She laughed and thumbed her nose at me," Hunt said.

Describing the bathroom incident, Hunt said, "I was having a shave and a bath, when I heard someone mopping outside. Then I heard some light thumps on the door. The door lock is such that if the door is pushed it flies open. I got out of the tub, and put my shorts on, then I opened the door. Mrs. Gordon walked in with a pail of water."

"What happened then?" Mr. Carley asked.

"I said, 'Get out of here,' but she came on in, and tickled me under the chin and said 'What would your girl friend downstairs say if she saw us together in the bathroom.' I said 'You'll have her up here and she'll leave the same as the rest.' Then she said, 'It's my bathroom and I'll come in when I like.'"

"I heard Mrs. McGuire walking around downstairs and I didn't want her to see me under such circumstances, so I grabbed Mrs. Gordon by the seat and by the shoulders and pushed her out the door. She fell over the step and said, 'That's just what I wanted you to do,' and laughed."

"Just like she's laughing now?" Mr. Carley asked.

And when Mr. Hunt turned to look at Mrs. Gordon sitting nearby she was laughing quietly.

"She laughed and got up, she didn't remain on the floor," Hunt added.

"Did you spill the bucket of water?" he was asked.

"No, she dumped the pail of water in the toilet," Hunt said.

Mr. Carley asked if Mrs. Gordon's evidence that he had spit in her face twice was correct.

"It is not, she spit in my face when she got up off the floor," Hunt replied.

"Do you recalling saying, 'I hope God strikes you dead'" and the answer was "I might have, I was pretty mad at the time."

The evidence was enjoyed by a large gallery of spectators who had to be cautioned two or three times by police, to be quiet.

The case is continuing.

Allied Labor Council Favors Ward System In Electing City Council

The Allied Labor Council on Tuesday night went on record as in favor of the ward system for the city of Peterborough. And in the same resolution the Council recommended that the city council be petitioned to put this on the ballot at the coming municipal election. Introducing the subject, President Alfred Barber said: "I feel that Peterborough is big enough to have a ward system. There shouldn't be a representation consisting of service clubs and big business. The city has got too big to have a town council system."

"Some parts of the city have no representation at all," he said.

"The people in the south-end might just as well not live here," added Donald Corrin.

"I think this is the only city in Ontario that makes its citizens vote for four candidates," said William Triggs.

A committee of four, Donald Rosenburgh, John Beggs, Alfred Barber and Donald Corrin—was appointed to interview all possible candidates for civic election in the ranks of the Allied Labor Council and its affiliated unions. It will report at the next forthnightly meeting.

"I think our mistake in the past has been in selecting them just from the Council, and thus we have overlooked other good labor men," said Mr. Corrin.

The Council started by discussing the present Hydro shortage.

Serious Condition

"It's more serious than many of us think it is," said President Barber. We must appeal to the working class people to conserve electricity."

He warned "there'll be another reduction of power soon. The freezeup is coming and the lake level wil drop."

Several of the members told of instances of private citizens leaving unnecessary lights on in their homes. There was also some criticism of farmers and storekeepers.

"If storekeepers don't start cutting down on power we'll soon have a little less in our pay envelopes," said Mr. Barber, "and then they'll start to suffer."

"Let's get to the root of the root of the matter," interjected Harold Dormer. "Put the blame where it belongs—on the shoulders of the Hydro Commission."

The upshot of the discussion was that the Council decided to place an advertisement in the press asking citizens to curtail their consumption of power during the present emergency.

Before the meeting adjourned Charles Millard and his United Steelworkers of America came in for some rough verbal treatment.

The charge of "union raiding" was hurled at the Steelworkers whose organizers were in Peterborough two weeks ago conferring with union leaders of the Outboard Marine independent union. The UE has applied to the Ontario Labor Relations Board for certification as the bargaining agent for the Outboard employees and Philip Knibbs, UE district representative and acting recording secretary for the Labor Council, attacked the USWA (also a CCL affiliate) for what he termed its rading tactics.

"The USWA representatives came to Peterborough by invitation or pre-arrangement," he said. "They knew that the UE had applied for certification before the Ontario Labor Relations Board."

Mr. Knibbs accused the USWA of attempting to disrupt the UE drive to organize the Outboard workers.

"In Peterborough there has been no friction among the various unions," he said. "We don't want to see this shop-raiding come here. It will split the labor movement right down the middle."

The secretary was instructed to write a letter to Mr. Millard who is the national director of the USWA, calling his attention to the fact that the Outboard workers are being organized by the UE, a member of the local Labor Council. The Council also contended that it should be informed of outside attempts to organize local workers.

POPPY DAY - NOV. 6

DEAR CITIZENS

This year, as in other years, the Canadian Legion through its 2,640 Branches and Auxiliaries in Canada, is calling to the people of the Dominion that they should observe more than ever in solemn remembrance the symbol which has become an integral part of Remembrance Day observances, and asks that every man and woman purchase a Vetcraft Wreath long before Remembrance Day, November 11th, and that all people, including all children, wear a Poppy on Poppy Day, Saturday, November 6th, in memory of those who laid down their lives in the service of their King and Country.

This appeal is not made on behalf of the Legion or of its members, but on behalf of all ex-service men and women who are in need. The collection and administration of the Poppy Fund is part of the funds of the Legion. It is kept entirely separate and is treated as Trust Funds for one purpose and one purpose only—relief. In granting relief, members of the Legion receive no special preference but all ex-service men and women stand on an equal footing. Any veteran who has served and who is in need, has a claim on this fund. The Wreaths and Poppies which you are asked to buy are made by an organization of disabled and handicapped ex-service men and women. These veterans are so definitely handicapped that they cannot be open competitors in the labour market and but for this industry many of them would be a charge on public funds. If Poppy Day did nothing but keep these veterans self-supporting and self-respecting citizens, it would be worthwhile.

The organization of Poppy Day, the sales of Vetcraft Wreaths and Poppies, the handling of monies collected, the investigation and relief of all applicants, are done by voluntary workers. No person connected in any way with the sale and distribution of Wreaths or Poppies receives one cent as wages, salary, bonus, commission or allowance for expenses. All monies collected are placed in a special account which is controlled by a Board of Trustees of this Branch, or a Branch Poppy Committee. Every expenditure made is approved and every account checked by the Board or Committee. Every applicant for relief is investigated carefully but sympathetically. Relief may take the form of food, clothing, fuel, rent or medical assistance. It is practically never issued in cash.

Two million citizens of Ontario wore a Poppy in Remembrance last November. 9,000 Wreaths were placed in Churches and at Memorials, in honour of the dead.

Should any of our friends desire further information on any point in connection with Poppy Fund activities, our Branch Secretary or Chairman of the Poppy Committee will be glad to supply it. The Canadian Legion is grateful for the hearty support it has always received from the general public to make the lot of the distressed ex-service men and women easier, and it is our hope that there will be no partial or permanent black-out for them.

Buy Wreaths generously now to display in your window and wear a Poppy on November 11th.

Branch President

Gallup Polls Underestimated Dem. Strength

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The Gallup Poll, which predicted a safe margin for Governor Thomas E. Dewey, early today gave two reasons why President Truman piled up such a big vote in the United States election Tuesday:

1. He "recaptured" many votes from Henry A. Wallace.

2. A lot of the "undecided" voters in the poll voted for Truman.

Dr. George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion predicted in its final announcement Monday that Dewey would get [illegible] the vote and Truman 44.5 per cent.

At 6 a.m., EST today, with Truman's popular vote more than 1,300,000 ahead of Dewey's, a Gallup spokesman issued this statement

"In the closest presidential race since the Hughes-Wilson election in 1916 all public opinion polls—national, state and local—have underestimated the democratic strength.

"President Truman staged a strong upsurge in the closing days of the campaign to recapture votes previously lost to Henry A Wallace.

"The polls without exception showed a steady decline throughout the campaign in Wallace's following, but on election day his support skidded sharply.

"Polls earlier in the year showed that what votes the Progressive candidate would receive would come entirely from the Democratic party.

"Over 3,000,000 voters remained undecided on their presidential choice right up to the week before election. Obviously susbstantial numbers of these undecided voters cast their ballots for President Truman."

Dewey Squeezes Through To Win New York State

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 3 — (AP). — Governor Thomas E. Dewey squeezed through to victory over President Truman in New York States by a scant margin of approximately 40,000 votes.

With only 20 districts missing — all in small upstate Republican counties — the Republican nominee had a plurality of 38,410.

The count stood: Dewey 2,833,175; Truman 2,794,765.

It was one of the closest presidential contests in the history of the State. It gave Dewey 47 sorely-needed electoral votes.

The display of Truman strength and that of other Democratic candidates came as a surprise to Dewey's campaign managers. They had predicted a 600,000 landslide for the Governor.

Henry A. Wallace, the Progressive party's candidate for president, plainly cost Truman a triumph Tuesday in the empire state and saved Dewey from being swamped.

Wallace, running under the American labor party banner, polled approximately 507,500 votes, the largest number he received in any state.

Nevertheless, the Democrats gained eight congressional seats to capture control of New York's delegation in the House of Representatives. Seven of the seats now are held by Republicans. The eighth, in the Bronx, was won at the expense of representative Leo Isacson, American labor party member.

Th New York line-up in the House next year will be: 23 Democrats, 21 Republicans and one American Labor. Representative Vito Marcantonio, A.L.P. leader, was re-elected in Harlem's 18th district.

FATHER OF DETECT. NOVELS

Edgar Allan Poe is generally recognized as the originator of the modern detective novel.

Coalition Candidate Wins Minnedosa Vote

MINNEDOSA, Man., Nov 3.—(CP).—Complete returns from the 29 polls in this Manitoba riding Tuesday night gave H. S. Rungay, the successful Coalition candidate, 3,443 votes and his CCF opponent, Ralph Frith, 1,352.

Mr. Frith, who failed to poll half the votes received by Mr. Rungay, forfeited his $200 deposit.

The by-election was necessitated by the resignation of Dr. E J. Rutledge, who represented the riding as a Progressive Conservative in the province's 55-seat Legislature.

The election of Mr. Rungay, a Liberal-Progressive, makes the House standing: Progressive Conservatives 12; Liberal-Progressive 26; Independent 3; Social Credit 2; CCF 10; Independent Progressive Conservatives 1; Labor Progressive 1.

Ex-Lawyer Gets Chance To Produce Play

By PAT USSHER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Back in 1920 John Yorke was studying to be a lawyer in Toronto.

Then a sister in New York who had been on the stage urged that he try his luck in this city.

The result: To-day he is general manager of Cheryl Crawford, prominent New York producer whose presentations include "Brigadoon" and "Love Life."

One of the chief ambitions of general managers in theatre business is to produce a play on their own, said the well-built, ruddy-complexioned Yorke, who is 48. He is about to realize that ambition.

Yorke is producing a comedy called "Japhet," which will play in Toronto the week of November 8. "Japhet," a play about a timid Englishman with Ernest Truex in the lead role, then is scheduled to run in Boston before coming to Broadway.

The Englishman, who lives with three maiden aunts, leaves his native shores for the United States in search of romance and glamor—and gets a bit more than he bargained for.

Producing Gamble

"Producing is a gamble," Yorke said. "If the show is a hit, you make money. If it is a flop, your backers lose money."

His business association with Miss Crawford began three years ago when she was helping to run the American Repertory Theatre. Prior to that he was with the Theatre Guild in the business end of the profession for 17 years.

Yorke, who is married and has a small son, has just acquired a two acre property near Chappaqua, NY.

He attended a Public School on Huron Street in Toronto, then went to Lake Lodge School at Grimsby; and the Royal Military College, Kingston. By the end of the First World War he was in the Royal Flying Corps.

Things were tough when he first came to New York.

When his money began to run out, he tried for a berth with the now-defunct New York Americans hockey team. They told him to report next day with his skates. But that night a message from the Theatre Guild offered him a chance to go on the road.

"I jumped at the chance," smiled Yorke. "It was easier than hockey."

Paint Lurid Picture

MOSCOW, Nov. 3 — (AP). — The Russian News Agency Tass today painted a lurid picture of the United States elections. Purporting to quote American newspapers and press associations, Tass said the American public was indifferent to the election and described alleged voting frauds and intimidation of negroes. It refrained from predicting a presidential winner.

Congress May Be Deciding Next President of US

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(CP).—For the first time since 1825, the House of Representatives may determine who is to be the next President of the United States.

Normally, the actual decision is made by the 531-member electoral college. But if no candidate obtains a majority—still a possibility in this election—the task reverts to the House of Representatives.

The voters Tuesday were not, under the Constitution, actually voting for the President. They were voting to determine how the members of the electoral college in their State would vote.

Each State has one elector for each Senator and each member of the House of Representatives that it sends to Washington. There are 96 Senators and 435 members of the House of Representatives—a total of 531. Thus, there are 531 electors.

The Constitution provides that the electors are to be chosen by whatever method the State Legislatures decide. For a century or more, the States have chosen the electors in party contests. The electors are not legally bound to vote for any specific candidate but, in practice, all the electoral votes of a State have gone to the candidate receiving a plurality of the popular vote.

Goes to House

If no candidate receives 266 votes, a majority, in the electoral college, then the duty of choosing the President is handed to the House.

Each of the 48 States, under the Constitution, has one vote under such circumstances. A majority in each State congressional delegation would decide how the State's vote would be cast. The winner would need 25 of the 48 votes.

If none of the top three gets a majority in the House before Jan. 20, when the Constitution provides the new President shall take office, the Vice-President takes over.

In the event no candidate for Vice-President gets a majority of the electoral vote, a Vice-President is elected by the Senate.

Not since 1825 has the House of Representatives chosen a President. In that year John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts won the Presidency over Andrew Jackson of Tennessee.

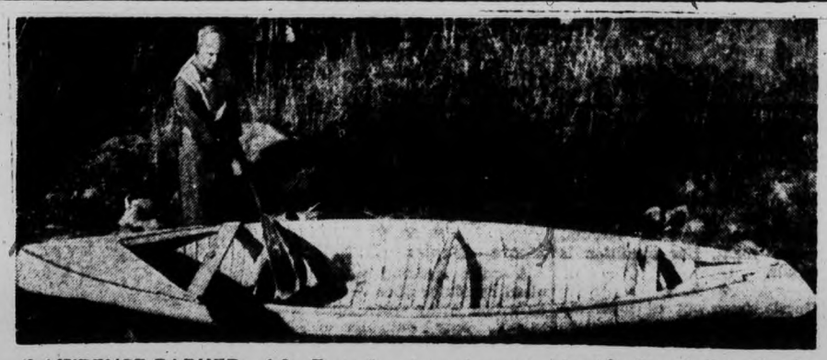
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 3 — (CP). — President Truman, cloaking his movements in mystery, stayed up until the early hours today, hopefully studying returns in his fight to remain in the White House.

He finally retired without making a statement.

Where he received the returns was a mystery, for neither his family nor his staff revealed the President's hideaway after he left his home early Tuesday night.



He was to have gone to bed early, but he slipped away in an automobile sometime after dinner. Only a few knew where he went.

With the final results in doubt, his associates said the President's prediction that the returns would leave the poll [illegible] already had been borne out.

States in which he had not been given a look-in by the public opinion samplers fell into the Truman columns and he was making it a nip-and-tuck affair in others.

Tuesday night crowds, calling for the President's appearance at the home, were told by his daughter, Margaret, that he was not there and she did not know his whereabouts.

Ross, his press secretary, refused to say. He took the position, "the President is entitled to one night of privacy."

LAWRENCE PARKER, of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, Que., is shown with the canoe in which the two missing youths left St. Eustache on the duck-hunting expedition on Saturday morning. Parker found the canoe on the north side of Ile Bizard, Que., Sunday afternoon with one of the paddles still inside. How it got onto the dock is a mystery. Residents deny moving the craft from the water.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 3 — (AP). — Governor James E. Folsom of Alabama announced Tuesday night that he plans to file a suit in court today to force Alabama's 11 presidential electors to support President Truman.

The suit will be filed in court here "and every other court that has jurisdiction," the Democratic [illegible] Press in a telephone [illegible] from Clanton, Ala.

Alabama supported Governor J. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina, states' right candidate in Tuesday's presidential elections.

Architects Provide Civic Hospital Estimates

The estimates of the entire cost of the Civic Hospital were prepared for the council by the architects, W. & W. R. L. Blackwell & Craig. They are the basic information on which the council is preparing a bylaw asking the ratepayers' approval of the borrowing of $1,500,000 by debentures to cover completion of the building.

"These estimates," the architects' statement reports, "were made from information received on contractors' estimates and allowances for increases in cost of construction during 1948.

The nurses' residence estimates were bases on costs of similar building in the province of Quebec on which firm prices had been obtained and allowances made for increase in cost in 1948.

The furniture and equipment estimates were based on a certain percentage of the building costs, with the allowance for the re-use of the present Civic Hospital equipment.

No allowance was made for any future change in costs after January 1, 1949, as these changes cannot be foreseen or estimated."

That is the introduction of the architects' report to the council. The report is published in its entirety for the information of the public. In that respect it is exactly the information which has come to the council.

All estimates are based on contractors' estimates plus contingencies for rise in costs during 1948, the report explains. Any future changes in costs during 1949 and 1950 cannot be estimated.

Main Hospital Building

The main building is now under construction. It provides for 180 beds and its space comprises 1,180,000 cu. ft.

Contractor's estimate of June 30, 1948	$1,464,000
10% allowance for 1948 increase cost of labor	146,400
Plus 10% allowance for increase in materials now on order, due to escalator clauses	161,040
	$1,771,440

(Common type of escalator is the moving stairway seen in stores and public buildings. In this application it apparently signifies only an increase, a going up.)

Architects Fees
8% for first $1,357,000	$108,560.00
4% for remaining $414,440	16,577.60
	$125,137,60
Say $125,130.
Inspection and miscellaneous expense—1%—	$17,710
Total	$1,914,280

Power House, Etc.

This contract comprised power house, laundry building, chimney stack and tunnel; 236,848 cubic feet.

Contractor's estimate Aug. 1948	$285,000
Architects Fees
7% on first $172,500	$12,075
4% on remaining $112,500	4,500
	$16,575
Inspection, 1%	2,850
	$304,425

Additional East Wing

This is based on sketches dated Oct. 12, 1948: additional 64 beds and 48 bassinets—292,000 cu. ft.

It will be remembered that completion of the building in its original design and capacity was recently discussed by the council, and it was decided that it should be carried out as planned for an east wing.

Estimated cost based on estimate of main hospital building, in the fraction 292,000/1,180,000 of $1,771,440, amounting to $438,356. Say—$440,000.

Changes to north and west wing of fifth floor—$10,000.

These two items amount to $450,000.

Architects fees, 8%	$ 36,000
Inspection	4,500
	$490,500

Nurses Residence

This building is based on sketches dated Oct. 7-48. Accommodation for 109 nurses, four supervisors and superintendents: 370,000 cu. ft.

Estimated cost based on costs of similar buildings in the province of Quebec in first half of 1948—370,000 cu. ft. at $1.10 per cu. ft., $407,000.

Add 10 per cent increase in cost in 1948 and contingencies, $40,700—$447,700.

Architects feets 6%	$ 26,860
Inspection	4,480
	$479,040

Furnishings and Equipment

(a) Main hospital building 15 per cent of building cost	$265,720
(b) Power house and laundry, 15 per cent of building cost	42,750
(c) Additional east wing, 15 per cent of building cost	67,500
(d) Nurses residence, 10 per cent of building cost	44,770
	$420,740
Less allowance for re-use of present furnishings and equipment of the Civic Hospital	$ 44,000
	$376,740

Summary of Estimates

Main building	$1,914,280
Power house and laundry	304,425
East wing	490,590
Nurses residence	479,040
Furnishingts, etc.	376,740
	$3,564,985

To this sum should be added the cost of land, sewers, water supply, hydro supply, roads, grading and landscaping. These costs can be more accurately figured by the Peterborough Utilities Commission and City Engineer."

Some of those services will be provided by the Utilities Commission and will not be chargeable through the council.

Total funds available for the hospital, $1,800,000. Leaving the balance of $1,764,985. This amount is further reducible by the estimated sum which is expected for the present hospital buildings, leaving $1,500,000.

Douglas-Newell Nuptials Held

The marriage took place in George St. United Church on Saturday afternoon of Frances May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Newell, and George Hugh Douglas, son of Mrs. Florence Douglas, all of Peterborough. The Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple officiated at the ceremony and Mr. Chas. Allen played wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and lace, a headdress and veil of lace net, and carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Shirley Newell, as maid of honor, and her cousin, Miss Grace Newell, as bridesmaid. They were frocked alike in light blue and wore matching feathered hats and pink gloves and carried bouquets of pink roses.

The groom's brother, Everett Douglas, was his attendant, and ushers were Cecil Martin and Earl Merrill.

A reception was held at the bride's home where her mother received, wearing a dress of black and gold, black hat and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother assisted and was attired in black with a similar corsage.

Afterward the bride and groom left for Toronto, Cooksville and Niagara Falls. The bride's going-away outfit was a green dress, brown accessories and brown fur jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas will live at 450 Rogers St.

Women Advised Buy Good Dresses

COBOURG, Nov. 3.—(ENS). — A few really good dresses are better than a wardrobe of many cheap dresses, Mrs. Mary Dalley McCullough, free lance fashion writer, told the monthly meeting of the Cobourg Business and Professional Women's Club. She spoke on the "origin of the new look" and said that it was something new at the end of the war when there had been no new styles for several years. It was introduced by Christian Dior, a strong believer in women looking feminine, said feminine look being impossible with broad shoulders and short straight skirts.

The introduction of the longer, fuller skirt, pronounced waistline, sloping natural shoulders and lower necklines produced the desired effect of more feminine-looking clothes, she said. This is what Mrs. McCullough advised in selecting a practical wardrobe.

Buy one real good suit each year, she said. In one year a classic tailored suit, another year, a softer, dressmaker type. If you don't like a suit buy one real good simple dress in black or the most becoming color. That number "one" is estimated to win the approval of husbands of the members of the Cobourg Business and Professional Women's Club.

"If you want to, this can be enhanced by a choice of jewellery, belts, collars and so on, if of good material and good lines and becoming to your type of figure, it will always look good and is a much better buy than four or five cheaper dresses which never really fit properly. Buy one good dinner dress or evening dress with jacket. Leave the more formal, bare types of evening dresses for the younger girls," she said.

IODE Planning Bridge and Euchre

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3 — (ENS) — The Catharine Parr Trail Chapter, I.O.D.E. decided to hold a mixed bridge, euchre and cribbage party on the evening of Tuesday, November 16 at the Curry home.

The Regent, Mrs. L. Quackenbush presided for meeting held Monday evening.

During the evening a most amusing skit was presented by "The Atomic Trio", Mrs. Don Hendren, Mrs. L. Bailey, and Mrs. W. Todd, with Mrs. Ken Morris at the piano.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs John McKercher. Highlights of the report were that over $74 had been cleared at refreshment booth set up at the Fair.

Mrs. Quackenbush mentioned that the new stage curtains bought by the chapter for the town hall were now up and a definite asset to the hall.

The correspondence was read by Mrs. T. Douglas, Mrs. R. Jackman, Mrs. T. Chaplin, and Mrs. J. Arnott.

Mrs. T. Chaplin, educational secretary read an article by Dwight Eisenhower on Communism, and part of the speech given by His Majesty King George VI to the Prime Minister's meeting held recently in London.

Mrs. Quackenbush was appointed to place the wreath on the cenotaph on Armistice Day.

Mrs. Winder Smith was named convener of the bridge to the held in November.

The flag was brought forward by Mrs. E. Orr and the roll call given by Mrs. A. Buchanan.

Mrs. George Tanner was made a member of the organization.

MRS. FREDERICK JOHN ROW, of Brockville, the former Barbara Jeanne McCulloch, who was married in a candlelight ceremony at George Street United Church Saturday evening. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCulloch of Peterborough.

Couple Fly to New York After Wedding Here Today

In St. Peter's Cathedral this morning the Rev. P. P. Butler said the nuptial mass and heard marriage vows pledged by Mary Anne Campanaro and Frank J. Vasey. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Campanaro, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vasey, all of Peterborough.

Bronze and white mums were combined in a charming background setting and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Marian Aman. During the signing of the register, Mrs. D. Campanaro sang "Ave Maria."

The bride wore white slipper satin fashioned with a bustle back and the skirt falling into a slight train. A yoke of nylon with high round neckline was embroidered with seed pearls, and she wore a tiara of pearls and orange blossoms that held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Mr. Campanaro gave his daughter in marriage.

Only attendant was her sister, Miss Leni Campanaro, who was frocked in blue taffeta styled with a bustle and nylon yoke edged with a ruffle of taffeta. Her headdress was a ruffled halo of the same material, and she had mittens to match and carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds and baby mums.

The groomsman was Mr. J. J. O'Sullivan and ushers were W. B. Vasey and J. L. Campanaro.

Guests were received afterward at the Empress Hotel. Mrs. Campanaro, assisting the bridal party, was gowned in blue crepe with black accessories and wore pink roses. Mrs. Vasey, mother of the groom, also received, wearing opal blue crepe dress, black accessories and corsage of bronze baby mums.

The couple will spend their honeymoon in New York City and are making the trip by plane from Toronto. For travelling the bride chose a navy gabardine suit and navy and grey accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Vasey will live in Peterborough.

DOROTHY DIX

Elderly Wives Should Laugh Off Grandpa's Deviltries

DEAR MISS DIX: After reading the problem about middle-aged husbands having affairs with young girls, I am moved to tell you how I solved it. My husband, who is well past 50, was having an affair with a young waitress and I found out about it.

I didn't reproach him, cry over it nor make any fuss. Instead I would say to my husband; "Lets go eat tonight at the restaurant where your Girl Friend works. She is so pretty and young I like to look at her." Or if we had company at home and I couldn't step out, I'd say to the others: "Be sure to go to the restaurant where Miss So-and-So works. She is my husband's Girl Friend and is so nice and attractive." And so on and so on.

I simply fed him up with flattery of this girl, and I guess at least it soured on his stomach. Anyway, it cured him and everything is fine with us now.

L. L.

ANSWER: Thanks for the recipe for curing an old man's flirtatiousness. I am sure it will prove efficacious in almost every case, for elderly men's attacks of romance are seldom fatal. At about his age Grandpa is apt to have a little touch of wanderlust and think he would like to step out with some girl young enough to be his granddaughter, but nothing serious happen if Grandma is smart enough to throw roses instead of brickbats at the affair.

Sense of Humor Needed

The trouble with elderly wives is that they lack a sense of humor. They think their husbands should act their age. So when they see their rheumatic Johns capering around like kids, they take it seriously and dissolve in tears and reproaches—which is a fatal mistake, for it causes Grandpa to feel real devilish and that he must be a wow among the girls. He even gets a kick out of knowing he makes Grandma jealous. But the real play would be for Grandma to just laugh it off and say that Grandpa always was a lady-killer, and to invite the little gold-digger to a party.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it possible to be in love with three men at once? I seem to be in just that predicament. One man is a soldier, one is a jack-of-all-trades and the last is a prize fighter.

Please tell me what to do. I seem to be all mixed up.

R. H. C.

ANSWER: I should think you would feel like a custard pie, all mixed up in three romances. Not being acquainted with any of the fascinating gentlemen with whom you are in near-love, I cannot help you much about choice; but it seems to me that each of them has his points.

The soldier is always attractive to women because brass buttons certainly do something to a man that make him almost hypnotic and irresistible to a girl, so that's that. The jack-of-all-trades would fill a long-felt want in every wife's life, for it would be fine to have a husband who could fix the plumbing and repair the leaks in the roof and hang pictures and do all the thousand odd jobs that most wives have to nag their husbands into doing.

As to the prize fighter, I am a little dubious. He might be too handy with his fists when the dinner was mean and the bills too high. But you never can tell how a man is going to turn out as a husband. You simply have pay your money and take your choice.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it true that the reason that most of the marriages that turn into divorces or failures is because most of the couples are failures before marriage?

CURIOUS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Probably. For the thing that makes a marriage a failure or a success is the kind of people who marry. Any man or woman of intelligence, good principles and self-control will make a success of marriage. It is the selfish and neurotic people who fill the divorce courts.

Splendid Cough Syrup Easily Mixed at Home

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix this recipe in your own kitchen. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Anyone can do it. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, satisfying relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages and taking hold of the cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Pinex Is Swift Acting. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, November 4

A particularly lively, eventful and fast-moving train of circumstances is forecast, in which high hopes and wishes may be pushed with alacrity, acumen, with interesting scope and promise. Shrewd and astute tactics well-studied and executed with dispatch and vigor, could go far on the way to cherished goals. But such fine enterprise and ambition could profit by some wise semblance of keeping within bounds not in extravagant or "flash-in-the-pan" maneuvers. Shun extravagance, false promises, overplaying, in all manner of relationships and contacts.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may prepare for a particularly lively, progressive and fast-moving pace, with new and ambitious ideas, hopes and wishes well on the way to perhaps spectacular accomplishment. The energies and mental faculties are stimulated to sagacity and high adventure, with shrewd insight and astute manipulation. However, there is danger of being overconfident, lured by false promises, or by an urge to over-play, exaggerate or "plunge." Large and expansive ideas may beckon, but thrift, sound judgment and discretion may pay larger dividends. This precaution applies also to personal or emotional contacts.

A child born on this day is well endowed with enterprise, initiative, versatility, but may be easily victimized by its own enlarged ideas or the fluency of false words or schemes.

Training of Girls At Cobourg Described to WA

The WA of George St. United Church met Tuesday afernoon in the church parlors and heard an address by Miss Mildred Brown of the Girls' Training School at Cobourg. Explaining the aims and accomplishments of the institution she said "We try to give the children a feeling of security and fit them to earn a living and make good use of their leisure time."

"Children must be taught if they are to make the best of their recreation hours, and they must have proper training, education and guidance. These delinquents need spiritual nutrition and must be shown love, affection, understanding and experience if they are to be the right kind of citizens." Teachers are equipped to give them lessons in music, singing, commercial and academic work, and are also taught housekeeping and sewing. At the age of 18 they are released from the school.

Mrs. E. Johnston favored the group with a solo and was accompanied by Mrs. K. R. McVeety.

Appreciation to the guests was expressed by Mrs. Max Kernaghan.

The devotional program was led by Mrs. J. B. Connell's group with Mrs. W. K. McGee giving the scripture reading, followed by prayer by Mrs. George Munro. Mrs. W. G. McLaren, film board representative, reported on three worthwhile films that are available, entitled "Holiday Island," "Highland Holiday" and "Sea Side Holiday" filmed in color.

The president, Mrs. E. Wand, was in the chair for the meeting and conducted the business.

Remembrance Day Plans Made By Legion Ladies

Mrs. A. Parrington, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, conducted the formal opening of the meeting Monday evening at which 45 were present. Members volunteered to go to the public schools on Friday with poppies, and to conduct the sale of poppies at the Collegiate. They also made plans to attend the memorial service at All Saints' Church on Sunday, November 7, at three o'clock in the afternoon with members of the men's branch, and also to be present at the November 11th service at the cenotaph when the president will place a wreath.

It was decided to have Mrs. B. Cameron of St. Thomas, provincial president, attend the meeting for election of officers. This meeting will be on Monday, November 29.

A quantity of wool was given out to members to be used in knitting for patients at Sunnybrook Hospital. Last week the auxiliary sent 500 packages of cigarettes and 90 packages of tobacco to the hospital.

Mrs. R. Ritchie and Mrs. W. Downer gave reports of the recent convention held in Sault Ste. Marie. Mrs. M. Morrow reported for the visiting committee a total of 15 visits, three bouquets of flowers and four cards sent.

A pleasant social time followed close of the meeting and Mrs. R. Beresford and her committee served lunch.

Ballot Briefs From U.S. Election Front

FOSTER, R.I., Nov. 3—(AP)—A family election battle ended in favor of the husband Tuesday night.

Leslie Stone, the husband, slipped in ahead of Mrs. Lillian B. Stone, his wife, for the town treasurer and tax collector.

Stone, running on the Republican ticket in this small town in the northwestern part of Rhode Island, won the jobs by pluralities of five and seven vote. Mrs. Stone, the Democratic incumbent, has served in those positions since 1944.

Stone said he was turning over his newly-won duties to his wife. So she'll still remain on the job.

KEWANEE, Ill., Nov. 3—(AP)—The late President Roosevelt carried the city of Kewanee in 1944 by 346 votes.

BOSTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—Rejection of a birth control measure by Massachusetts voters appeared certain today as elections returns were tabulated.

The measure, sponsored by the Planned Parenthood League, called for an amendment in Massachusetts state law to allow doctors to prescribe contraceptives for married women whose health would be endangered by pregnancy.

Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston said the two Roman Catholic bishops in Massachusetts led opposition to the measure, previously defeated here in 1942.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 3—(AP)—It's easier to handle small kegs than small fry, 86 Buffalo bartenders pretty well agreed today.

Members of the Bartenders' Union (AFL), they sat with Democratic babies while the parents voted Tuesday. The bars were closed.

Bachelor Jimmy Hughes reported changing a diaper on a crying baby boy.

"Brother, what an experience!" said Hughes.

Pontypool Man First To Be Fined Under Watershed Bylaw

First person to be convicted of violating a Durham-Northumberland by-law relating to the cutting of trees in the Ganaraska Watershed area was J. W. Horner, RR 1, Pontypool. He was convicted despite his plea of not guilty and fined $15, and costs, by Magistrate R. B. Baxter in Port Hope Police Court.

H. R. S. Ryan, acting for the Ganaraska Conservation Authority, said the by-law was passed by the United Counties Council with authority of the Trees Conservation Act of 1942 which was later amended to provide for such a by-law.

The case, the first of its kind, was used, said Mr. Ryan, to test the by-law and to notify the people throughout the area of the by-law and to emphasize that it would be enforced.

Although the accused pleaded not guilty to the charge, he later admitted that he had cut white pine and red oak six inches in diameter, on land on which he held the timber rights, according to an agreement he had with his uncle, Thomas Richards.

Mr. Richards was called to the witness stand and corroborated the evidence of his nephew, but added that he had been informed of the minimum size tree which could be cut by the complainant, Herbert Crown, Trees Conservation Authority official, engineer for the Department of Planning and Development, Toronto. Mr. Crown is also the appointed inspector of the Department to enforce the Counties Council by-law No. 1541 governing the cutting of trees.

Mr. Crown testified that he had visited the section of land in question, Lot 2, Concession 1, of Cavan Township, on several occasions before the date the charge was laid and had seen a man cutting trees who claimed he had been hired by the accused.

The inspector, accompanied by Mr. Kirk, also of the Department of Planning and Developing, Toronto, returned June 17 and took white pine trees and red oak. Ac- photographs of the stumps of cording to the bylaw, it was pointed out, such trees could not be cut unless they measured over 10 inches in diameter at four and a half feet above the ground, or were cut to thin the forest, or were diseased.

"We counted 35 trees that showed no signs of being diseased," he said, "and should not have been cut down, for they measured less than seven inches at the stump height above the ground. They were cut in an area of about five acres, he added. Hhe bylaw does not cover anything cut for personal use on land of two acres or less.

"The accused is a small operator," said Mr. Ryan, and declared he was not asking for a big fine. Magistrate Baxter pointed out that the accused admitted cutting the trees contrary to the provisions of the bylaw.

"It is possible you didn't see the bylaw," he told accused, "but everyone is presumed to know the law. The maximum fine is $500 and three months in jail, but as Mr. Ryan says, you are a small operator."

On the other hand, he pointed out, the seriousness of the charge must be realized, and everyone must be made to realize that the bylaw must be observed.

Mr. Ryan informed the court that the bylaw had been well advertised in all the papers in the district.

German-Manned Army

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 3.—(AP).—The Russians are organizing a German-manned "Red army" in the Soviet zone, a former German General who fled the Russian zone said Tuesday. Maj.-Gen. Walter Schreiber said he and five other Generals had been told by Kurt Fischer, Interior Minister in East Germany, that the newly-organized people's police would be armed with tanks and artillery.

Wallace Says Voting ShowsRepressionHate

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 —(AP)—Henry A. Wallace left Progressive Party headquarters before dawn today, saying Tuesday's voting showed that the people of the United States oppose "repressive labor legislation and want price protection."

In a statement issued after a night-long vigil at his party headquarters where he watched election returns, the Progressive Party presidential candidate said:

"Yesterday, the American people showed by their votes that they were against.... repressive labor legislation; against high prices ot the consumer and for price protection for the farmer.

"These are the issues which would not have been injected into the campaign but for the determined fight of the Progressive Party."

Earlier, Wallace said his Progressive Party will be in the 1952 campaign regardless of this year's vote, and will aim at becoming "the dominant party in America."

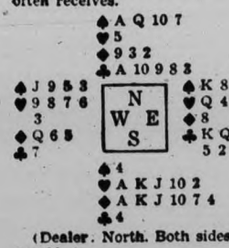
SALLY'S SALLIES



"Nothing to eat tonight, dear?"

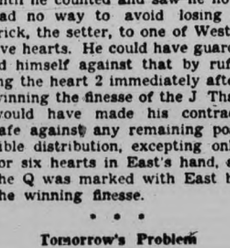
"I couldn't find a recipe for two people in this cook book."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ADD A PINCH OF SAFETY

THERE ARE plenty of situations in which you cannot play the hand so as to insure absolute safety of your contract. But if you can add a bit of safety, like a cook who adds a pinch of salt to the recipe, it may prove worth while. Bulling ahead on an easy line of play, which will work only if you find the defenders' cards distributed in the desired way, is the lazy man's way. And it often brings the same slim rewards, or lack of them, which the loafer deserves in any other field, and often receives.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)



North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

South's last bid there, the 5-Hearts, was a beauty. It made clear to North the fact that he had rebiddable hearts, at least five of them, and more diamonds, since he had bid them first. It also constituted an inferential absolute force to small slam in one suit or the other, since if North preferred the diamonds he would have to bid six to overcall the 5-Hearts. Of course, if North, who had shown the two black suits, had the strength to favor No Trumps, he was forced to put the slam into that, and with enough power might go to grand slam in whatever declaration seemed best. When he picked the 6-Diamonds, he made the wisest choice.

South should have made the contract, but was too lazy. He won the club 7 lead with the A, scored the diamond A and K, gave up a trick to the diamond Q, took the spade 3 return with the A, finessed the heart J, laid down the A and saw the Q fall. Momentarily this pleased him, until he counted and saw he now had no way to avoid losing a trick, the setter, to one of West's five hearts. He could have guarded himself against that by ruffing the heart 2 immediately after winning the finesse of the J That would have made his contract safe against any remaining possible distribution, excepting only for six hearts in East's hand, as the Q was marked with East by the winning finesse.

Tomorrow's Problem

What would usually be the final contract on this deal in rubber bridge? What in match point duplicate?

Says Urquhart Easily Led

KINGSTON, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Howard Urquhart, 21-year-old Kingston Penitentiary convict, "is very easily led," and gave prison officials "no trouble," Warden R. M. Allen testified today as Urquhart's trial for murder in the April 26 prison-break slaying of prison messenger John D. Kennedy went into its second day.

Convicted of murder last week in the same slaying was Austin Craft, with whom Urquhart escaped for four hours at the time Kennedy was shot to death. Craft was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 24.

Under defence questioning, Warden Allen told the court that Urquhart's behaviour until the time of the break had been "very good."

Another witness was prison guard Edward Barrett. He gave the same evidence as at Craft's trial. He said he saw Craft shoot Kennedy at the gate of the prison and that Urquhart had crawled out of the rear trunk of Kennedy's car and sat behind the steering wheel.

He said Craft swung open the outer gate and leaped into the car as Urquhart drove through.

BIT BY BIT—After seven years, Vincent Dalterio, owner of a service station in Montreal, has decided he doesn't like his location. A better place is 35 feet to the east. So, bit by bit, his establishment is being taken apart and carted to the new site. In the meantime, Dalterio hopes to continue business until he has only a gas pump and nozzle left.

Executives Rap Utilities Chief

In front of the Utilities office on Simcoe St., after the power meeting in the council chamber Monday afternoon, a group of industrial and retail executives raised voices of pretended protest. And it was not all pretense either.

"Come here," they called to Gordon Matthews and Ross Dobbin, nearest representatives of the Utilities Commission. "How about some power saving. They've even got the ventilation shades down on the back windows, and the lights on."

Mr. Dobbin said the building was used by the city council, but he was plainly equivocating, because the rear section is part of the Utilities office.

One of the men was Claire Collins, manager of Neill's. He mentioned an incident against his own place, a janitor having passed from floor to floor without turning the lights off on the first. Some one also referred to banks and their lighting practice, question the necessity of the extent of their illumination.

The Examiner did not escape, either. There was a remark that some of its lighting appeared to be excessive at times. Disposition was to name means, in good humor, but also in the conviction that if every person in the city would think of turning off unnecessary lights Peterborough could keep under its Hydro quota.

Hunter Claims Bounty On Eleven Wolf Pelts

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 3 — Ask any self-respecting wolf, or any other kind, for that matter, who is the most-feared trapper in the mid-northern part of Hastings County, and the pack will howl "Albert Sauly."

The activities of this intrepid young trapper during the past few weeks in particular and over a period of years in general, have been largely responsible for the holding to an appreciable low of the wolf population around his native Turriff, and other parts of the county.

For when Sauly starts to trap, he does not fool. For instance, word came to him around the 1st of October that a pack of wolves was operating in and around Madoc Township. He loaded his trusty, if weather-beaten, jeep with his traps and other necessary paraphernalia, and within two weeks or so had reduced the pack to a minimum.

Brings in Eleven Hid s

Monday he brought to the city the spoils of the hunt. Eleven bush wolves which averaged between 66 and 72 inches in length were evidence of Sauly's trapping ability.

The young trapper was born in France and came to Canada when he was three years of age. He speaks English with a flawless accent.

He started trapping, he said, when he was "so high" and during his wolf-hunting seasons has caught and killed over 100 of the sheep-killing marauders. His 1947 bag was 23.

Uses Special Lure

Sauly uses a special lure for the wily wolf—but he's not giving away any formulae. Formerly he used a club to despatch the animals, but an experience caused him to change his mind. Now he uses a rifle.

It happened one early morning when he was "running" his traplines. In a tangle of tag-alders he saw an animal threshing in what appeared to be its death-agonies. He recognized it as a large timber wolf. To its leg was attached the trap, and the stake to which it had been secured. It was nearly eight feet in length.

Breaking off a "club," Sauly rushed in for the kill. But the wolf had other ideas. As the trapper closed in it lunged forward with a vicious snap of its powerful jaws, and the teeth closed with a crunch over one of Sauly's hands. They tore through the thickness of Sauly's heavy leather glove.

"He beat me to the punch, that was all," recalled Sauly. "After that I always used a rifle."

Learned The Hard Way

He had his first taste of trapping when he was little better than a small youngster. "I was so green in those days, that I used to bait traps with carrots hoping to catch weasel or skunk. The only thing that would nibble at that special bait was an occasional rabbit."

During the early stages of his trapping career, Sauly was troubled with foes, skunks and other smaller animals falling to his lure. By means of a special gadget, which does not permit animals weighing under ten pounds to spring the trap, he has eliminated much of this nuisance.

"There is no money in fox pelts" according to Sauly, "but wolves pay very well."

Sauly collects thirty-five dollars provincial bounty for every bonafide wolf pelt, while township's bounties add a substantial sum to his amount.

He has studied the habits of these animals. A brush wolf cannot run down a deer in the summer, in his opinion, but their fiercer, speedier counterparts, the timber wolves, can pull down a buck with very little start. The brush brothers concentrate their kill-lust on sheep flocks.

Kill Many Sheep

"Apparently they kill for killsake," is Sauly's opinion. "Many times I have seen only partially devoured carcasses of sheep lying in the trail of these killers.

Sauly's method of transportation; his sleeping quarters when on the hunt, and his living and dining rooms are contained in his trusty jeep. He drives to the terrain where Brer Wolf is roaming at large; sets his trap-line and awaits results. His "lure" is very effective, as past incidents have proved, and it is not long before a rifle shot cracks in the air and another sheep killer bites the dust.

As long as Albert is roaming the north country, the wolves had better be warned. He is a relentless trapper, stalking his prey until they are caught within the steel jaws of his beloved traps, and then goes looking for more.

It's going to be a tough winter for wolves, if there are any left by the time Sauly decides to take time for a rest.

Wrong Man Named

On October 2, an accident occurred on the Young's Point Rd., in which a car carrying Reg. Hopkins, Gerry Pearson and David Byers, of Lakefield, was sideswiped by another car. All three were injured and taken to hospital.

Provincial police investigating the accident got the impression that David Byers was the driver of the car. They later were told that Byers was not the driver, but by that time the story had appeared in the Examiner.

Pays $150 For Old Fur niture Before Owner Will Rent Second Stor ey Of House

The housing racket in its manifold chiselling through various and devious channels has become a shopworn subject except for its victims.

For instance, this character who "grubbed" his way into considerable money has a house which, according to this story, prior to the war would rent for not more than $18. It is now renting at $40 a floor, that means $80 a month, instead of $18, or $960 against $216; alas it has only two floors.

However, that is not the main part of the story. There are three or four rooms on the upper floor. And they were furnished with pieces of junk. The owner graced it with the name furniture. The hapless rentor was informed that he would have to pay $150 for it. The furniture should stay, it fitted and all that, and since he would want the furniture it would cost $150, in addition to the $40 a month for the flat of the house that pre-war rented for $18. The prospective tenant was desperate. He knew he was being gouged, but there was nothing he could do about it except turn his back on the place. There was no court of justice to which he could look; no government agent; no one. The landlord was putting on the sting.

And when the tenant wrote the cheque for the $150, premium for getting a couple of rooms, he said to the landlord: "Now, will you get this junk out of here; I don't want any part of it; and if you don't take it away I'm going to throw it out on the sidewalk."

The man who tells this story said: "I dont' think that man would talk if you asked him about it. He would be afraid of losing the $40 apartment."

HON. LIONEL CHEVRIER, Right, Minister of Transport and until the arrival in Paris recently of Hon. L. B. Pearson, head of the Canadian delegation to the UN, is shown chatting with the Netherlands' Ambassador to Canada Van Rojen at a committee meeting.

US Asks Sanctions Dropped From UN-Palestine Order

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—The United States asked the United Nations Security Council today to delete references to sanctions from a British-Chinese Palestine proposal directed mainly at Israel. The resolution, introduced Oct. 28, provided for economic and political sanctions to enforce peace in the Holy Land. Shortly after it was presented, a reliable informant said the United States would back it. Later, however, other informants said President Truman had intervened to change the American delegation's position.

The proposal was referred to a Security Council subcommittee, a step some sources said was intended to get the question out of the way until after the United States elections.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup of the United States delegation proposed today an amendment enabling the council to consider action under chapter seven of the charter. That chapter sets out what action the council might take "in respect to threats to the peace, breaches of the peace and acts of aggression."

While an article specifying sanctions as part of chapter seven, observers quickly said that deletion of a direct reference to sanctions softened the resolution.

The British-Chinese resolution calls upon Israel and Egyptian troops to resume positions occupied Oct. 14, the day of short but sharp campaign started in the south. This would mean a Jewish retreat in the Negev and an Egyptian advance.

Boxing Promoter Jailed 3 Years

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Daniel Keller, 52-year-old former Toronto boxing promoter, was sentenced today to three years on nine charges of theft and false pretences involving more than $28,000.

He faces 19 additional charges in the United States involving some $76,000. Keller was arrested during the summer at Port Hope, while he was motoring to Toronto from Montreal. He had recently arrived in Canada from a trip to Belgium.

At the time of his arrest Keller said he was seriously ill. He was remanded on Monday for medical examination. Medical evidence today was that he had undergone three major operations since 1944.

Police said Keller operated the "Dan Keller Equipment Company" dealing in bull-dozers and steam-shovels. They said he accepted down payments for the machines and failed to deliver them or return the payment.

Continue Hearing On Trenton Plant

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Hearing of an application by the Amalgamated Silver workers' Union (AFL) to prosecute H. J. Craddock, president of the Benedict Proctor Co., Trenton, for unfair labor practices, was resumed here Wednesday before the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Witnesses last week said that a suggestion had been advanced that the union buy the company to keep the plant in operation after they had been told it would be forced to close because it was losing money.

The employees accepted a five-per-cent. wage cut and made other concessions to keep the plant in operation, but there was disagreement between the management and the employees on labor relations.

William McCall, a member of the union's negotiating committee, spoke Wednesday of a promise of sale made by Craddock to Russell Harvey, union organizer and a member of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Night Cuts In Power For Toronto

City Will Be Dark Between 7-7:45, Till Quota Being Met

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP) — For the first time since the wartime practice blackouts, citizens of this city of 700,000 will have darkness in their homes for three-quarters of an hour each evening this winter.

Mayor Hiram McCallum announced today that because the city has continually exceeded its daily power ration under Ontario's conservation plan, its electric power will be cut between 7 and 7:45 p.m. The evening cut extends two hour-long day cuts already in force.

Street lights and trolleys will be unaffected by the evening cut, which starts Monday and will extend through Friday. The day cuts were for different times in various sections of the city but the evening stoppage is for the whole town at once.

"We have no alternative but to order evening cuts," said the mayor.

The city, which recently exceeded its power quota of 4,835,250 kilowatt hours, is faced with a reduction of 305,250 in the daily ration.

One Exception

An exception to the evening cut will be buildings at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, where the Royal Winter Fair is scheduled to open Nov. 16. The mayor said switch-pulling with so many people in that locality would be dangerous.

Chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said today enough idle generators to supply more than 100,000 Toronto homes have been found during the last month and hooked into the provincial system. This may mean avoidance of further cuts, he said.

Recent complaints that present power restrictions will adversely affect local Hydro commissions financially will be considered by auditors, said Mr. Saunders. He added that they are reviewing the entire Hydro structure and it is possible that adjustments will be recommended.

Hydro Worker Dies Of Burns

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Nov. 4 —(CP).—Hugh P. Swayze, 54-year-old Hydro man, died early today of burns suffered Wednesday at the Decew Falls generating plant of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

A second man, David A. Robson, suffered second degree burns about the head and shoulders but hospital officials described his condition as satisfactory.

A. S. Robertson of Niagara Falls, regional manager of the H.E.P.C., said in a statement issued today that the two men, both of St. Catharines, were "cleaning up after testing operations and apparently were using wrong procedure in closing some disconnecting switches. This apparently caused a short circuit which caused the high-powered flash which engulfed the two operators."

Ontario Will Be Flooded With Cheap Power When New Project Ready, Doucett Says

BURK'S FALLS, Nov. 4—(CP). — Highways Minister George Doucett said today Ontario will be "flooded with cheap and dependable power" when Hydro developments now authorized come into production.

Ontario's Progressive Conservative Government had authorized projects capable of producing 1,441,500 horsepower since it took office, he said in an address prepared for delivery at a party nominating convention.

The convention was called to pick a candidate for the Dec. 9 by-election in Parry Sound Provincial riding.

The present Hydro program—providing for a change from 25-cycle to 60-cycle current and increasing rural electrification—was "by far the biggest thing that has ever happened in Hydro history," the Highways Minister said.

The new power sites would be producing by 1952 and would provide power for "another huge forward surge of Ontario industry that may well double the population" of Ontario.

Doesn't Know He Won

LEWISTON, Idaho, Nov. 4 — (AP). — Joe Rosenkranz won his first political victory in Tuesday's election, but he doesn't know it yet. In fact, the 5,447 Nez Perce county voters who elected him state representative on the Democratic ticket aren't even sure Joe is alive. Rosenwranz and another Lewiston man, W. J. Bolick, haven't been seen since Oct. 24. On that stormy Sunday their red Stinson plane disappeared in the wilds of the Selway - Lochsa area of north central Idaho. Air and ground searchers have found no trace of the men.

Question Right Of Admitting Jane's Statement

By BOB BUCHANAN
Examiner Staff Reporter

LINDSAY, Nov. 4—Hearing of evidence as to the police securing a statement from Mrs. Jane McAllister on the morning following the death of her husband in their lonely cabin home near Kirkfield and argument to its admissability continued today at the murder trial of Mrs. McAllister before Mr. Justice Trelevan.

Early Wednesday afternoon the crown sought to put in as evidence a statement secured from Mrs. McAllister by the provincial police. It was immediately challenged by Defence Counsel Richardson. The jury was taken out of the court room and by noon adjournment today had not returned, as Mr. Justice Trelevan was still hearing argument on whether the statement should be admitted or not.

An indication of the possible length of the murder trial was given when court opened this morning by Mr. Justice Trelevan. Addressing membersof the jury panel who are not serving on the McAllister jury he told them, "It is quite evident your services will not be required this week". The panel was then dismissed until Monday morning.

Police Evidence

Wednesday afternoon, O.P.P. Lloyd Lyle, first police officer on the scene after the Sept. 5 shooting of John McAllister near Kirkfield, told the court the events of that night and morning. He arrived about 25 minutes after midnight, he said. A search—to locate the missing wife of the then-dying man and the weapon which had caused the fatal wound in his head—was instituted.

The weapon — a .22-calibre single-shot pistol—was found by OPP Lyle about 6.30 that morning. It was lying in the grass beside the concession road close to the McAllister log house.

An hour later, the officer said, he saw the accused woman walking across a rough, broken field towards her house. She was met and escorted back by Provincial Constable Keeler of Peterborough.

Dr. Robert E. Jamieson of Cobconk, the physician who arrived in response to police calls, said that he received the call about 11.55 that night. He arrived at the McAllister home about 12.20.

Jumps $25,000 Bail And Skips To Canada

BROOKLYN, NY, Nov. 4 — (CP) —Noel K. Knowles of Toronto, charged with selling $100,000 worth of fraudulent securities to American investors, has jumped bail and gone to Canada, George W. Percy, assistant United States district attorney, said on Wednesday.

Percy said that Knowles, who had been released under $25,000 bond pending trial in the United States District Court here, could not be extradited from the Dominion under present Canadian-United States treaty agreements.

Knowles, gold mining operator, appeared in court here last June 21 on a charge of fraud filed by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. Trial was set for October 6. President of the La Salle Yellowknife Gold Mines Corp., Ltd., he appeared before Judge Harold Kennedy on charges of violating stock registration regulations and mail fraud.

McNaughton Denies Dead End Reached

Wants Six Countries Meet Shortly; Has 4 Major Premises

PARIS—The United Nations General Assembly today approved over bitter Russian protest, the western plan for world atomic control.

By ALAN HARVEY

PARIS, Nov. 4—(CP)—After Russia today rejected a western proposal for control of atomic energy, Canada's Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton told the United Nations General Assembly that Canada will urge an early "high-level" meeting of the six countries primarily concerned with atomic energy control.

McNaughton firmly denied that international negotiations have reached a dead end.

Earlier, Andrei A. Vishinsky, Russian deputy foreign minister said that there is no basis for agreement between the east and west on atomic controls. The assembly rejected Russia's atom proposals 40 to 6.

The Canadian delegate said he would press for a meeting of the six countries—the Big Five and Canada—at the earliest possible moment.

The Dominion also would propose that representation at such a meeting should be on the high level appropriate to the nature of the "political difficulties" blocking international atomic controls.

"I would like to make it clear we believe the six sponsoring powers should have the resopnsibility of removing political difficulties so the Atomic Energy Commission may proceed with a solution of the technical difficulties," he said.

Asks Approval

McNaughton spoke of the Canadian resolution now before the assembly. One of the resolution's clauses calls for a meeting of the six sponsoring powers.

The resolutions' main porvision —and principal point Canada has been trying to get across—asks the assembly to approve what are known as the majority principles of the Atomic Enery Commission.

In a full-dress debate on the atomic question, the Russians urged the delegates to accept a Russian resolution on atomic energy that calls for the assembly to recommend a ban on the atom bomb

Truman Welcomed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 4 — (AP). — Missouri's capital city gave President Truman a winner's welcome today. Thousands of Jefferson citizens jammed the rail yards from the station platform to cheer the "little man from Independence" who won election to the Presidency against what the experts thought were impossible odds. The crowd started cheering and waving even before the special train came to a stop to pick up water.

Premier Garson To Accept Federal Post

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 (CP) — Premier Stuart Garson is expected to inform his supporters in the Manitoba government tomorrow that he intends to resign as provincial government leader to accept a post in the Federal cabinet.

This was reported by political observers following announcement that the premier has called a caucus of all supporters of the coalition government for to-morrow.

Private members are not informed of the purpose of the meeting, but were told it was important that they attend.

No word has come from Ottawa yet concerning entry of Mr. Garson into the Federal field, but rumors have been widespread ever since the national Liberal convention. The Justice portfolio is the one earmarked for the Premier.

Reports in Manitoba are that Mr. Garson will likely seek to represent Marquette in the Commons should he accept a Federal post. The seat at present is held by J. Allison Glen, formerly Minister of Mines and Resources. Mr. Glen, who resigned his portfolio because of ill health, is expected to step out of Commons to make room for the Manitoba Premier.

Father To Die Slaying Son

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 — (CP).—Convicted of the murder of his son, George Hrynyk, 69-year-old Vita, Man., farmer, was sentenced last night to be hanged at Headingly Jail January 21.

An Assize Court jury deliberated for almost four hours before returning the verdict of guilty. It was combined with a strong recommendation for mercy, which will be forwarded to the Department of Justice with the transcript of evidence and report of Mr. Justice P. J. Montague who sentenced Hrynyk.

Hyrnyk was found guilty of stabbing his son John, 37, in the stomach with a long slender British Crimean War period bayonet that had a five-inch blade. The son died of the wound August 23, 12 days after the stabbing. The stabbing occurred after an argument earlier in the evening.

Ontario Hospital Rates Due For Boost, As Costs Up 16 Per Cent

Blames Increase On General Price Rise, Operating Room Costly; If Nurses Get Compensation, More Expense

TORONTO, Nov. 4—(CP).—Hospital rates in Ontario are due for another increase, says A. F. Moffatt of Ottawa, a member of the Ontario Hospital Association's accounting section. He told Wednesday's closing session of the association's annual convention that, since Jan. 1, hospital costs have climbed 16 per cent. And they are still headed upwards.

O. G. Smith, association consulting accountant, pinned the cost increases on a general rise in prices—"and hospitals cannot go on buying strikes to force prices down." He said operating-room revenue is not sufficient to cover expenses and patients soon may have to pay more for that service.

The question of including student nurses in the workmen's compensation scheme, compulsory to other hospital workers, was discussed by Arthur J. Swanson, superintendent of Toronto Western Hospital. He said inclusion of students would considerably increase costs to all participants.

Dr. W. Douglas Piercey, superintendent of Ottawa Civic Hospital, said it would cost large hospitals $10,000 a year to comply with new anti-tuberculosis regulations. Among other things, all workers must be given X-ray chest examinations when they enter and leave hospital employment.

Health Minister Kelley said the hospital at Pembroke had found a way to meet costs of giving patients a chest X-ray upon admission. It charges the patients a $1 fee for that service.

He also suggested that hospitals arrange to make chest examinations of employees of business firms in their communities at nominal cost. This would help pay for the X-ray equipment.

The Minister also said that a plan for establishment of an institution in Toronto to treat alcoholics on a cost basis is to be presented to the Ontario Cabinet in the near future.

Japan Convicted Of Waging War

TOKYO, Nov. 4 — (AP). — Japan to-day was convicted of waging aggressive wars against China, Russia, Britain, the United States and other Western Powers.

The conviction by the International Military Tribunal for the Far East came in the long trial of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 24 co-defendants of the war crimes charges.

Militarists and their supporters, the court held, seized control of Japan's government. They, the Tribunal found, provoked war through the Manchurian conquest of 1931 and the full-scale war against China that began July 7, 1937.

The court found Japan began preparations for war against China, Russia, Britain, the United States, and other Western Powers in the early 1930s.

Red Dean Denies 'Detention' At Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov 4 (CP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, "Red Dean" of Canterbury, laughed off reports today that he had been temporarily detained by immigration authorities on his arrival in Canada Wednesday night and got ready to leave for Toronto on a Canadian speaking tour.

Both immigration authorities and the Dean, noted for his pro-Russian views, denied that he had been detained on his arrival at nearby Dorval airport.

The Dean told newspaper men at immigration headquarters this morning that he was free to travel in Canada and then launched into one of his favorite subjects—the freedom of religion in Russia.

"There was a new immigration man on the job at the airport Wednesday night," Dr. Johnson said, "and he was suspicious about newspaper reports preceding my arrival. I told him that if it would make things easier for him I would come down here in th morning. I have bee . very courteously treated by all concerned."

J. A. Langlais, inspector-in-charge of immigration offices there, also said there had been no question of detention in the Dean's case.

"I merely looked at his passport," Mr. Langlais said, "I didn't even question him concerning his views. It's just routine when we want more information. It could have been done at the airport Wednesday night but the Dean was staying in Montreal for the night so we just asked him to come down here this morning."

Kill Jail Guard During Escape

BUFFALO, N.Y., No. 4 (AP)— A jail guard died today after he had been slugged with a broken mop handle by one of the five prisoners who escaped. All the fugitives have been captured.

Joseph Wachowiak, 45, died in emergency hospital of a head injury.

Sheriff Arthur D. Britt said the guard was knocked unconscious and locked in a cell Wednesday night when the prisoners broke out of Erie County Jail in downtown Buffalo.

Another guard, Fred A. Hinkley, 59, also was struck on the head. The hospital reported his condition was good.

Within 15 minutes after the break, Joseph Feeney, 16, Carl Armstrong, 16, and Richard Ericcson, 21, were caught a few blocks from the jail.

The other two, Robert Callaghan, 18, and Stephen R. Tuskan, 31, were captured today.

PICTON, Nov. 4—Completely buried in a sewer excavation cave-in on King St., Percy Bongard was rescued by four fellow workers. He was working alone in the trench, but when the sidewalls of the trench collapsed his cries were heard by the others working 50 away.

The men freed his face and then dug him out. He was treated at hospital for cuts, bruises and shock.

County Hospitalization Plan Outlined To Members Of Peterborough Federation

Dufferin Man Explains Scheme In Use There Costs $11.50 Year For Family; In Three Years Membership Reaches 1,000

Dufferin county hospitalization plan, organized three years ago, has now more than 1,000 members, William McCarthy, one of its officers, told the assembly of 320 members of the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture and their wives at a dinner Wednesday night in the Empress Hotel. Thirty plans have been organized in Ontario similar to Dufferin's, and their experience in co-operative medical services on non-profit basis has demonstrated that it can be done. That was the substance of Mr. McCarthy's message.

W. W. Dawson, president of the Federation and chairman of the dinner, said Peterborough has obtained a charter and has 100 members. Mr. McCarthy suggested that it would be sounder business to begin with 200 members, but that 100 would be a satisfactory minimum.

The Federation attracted a splendid rural company to this dinner meeting, one of the most largely attended in a long time. It was arranged for a dual purpose, to advocate Farm Radio Forums and co-operative medical services. Two speakers promised to come. One was Claire Burt, secretary of Ontario Farm Forums, and Mr. McCarthy. Early in the evening it appeared that neither might arrive. Nothing definite was announced as to why Mr. Burt was not on the way, and a telephone call from Uxbridge conveyed the news that the McCarthy car had blown a gasket at Uxbridge.

That embarrassment called for pinch-hitters. The chairman was verbally aided by Hon. Harold Scott, Gordon K. Fraser, R. R. Stewart, James Gifford, Warden Humphries and others.

Appreciate Humor

The humor of the predicament appealed to the patient crowd in Mr. Gifford's remark that his program duty was to thank the two visiting speakers, but neither of them had shown up. And on that cue, Mr. McCarthy entered the Kawartha Room, substituted effectively for Mr. Burt in urging Peterborough rural communities to form Forum groups, and then outlined the Dufferin medical services plan in a compact speech with his watch before him.

Musical numbers were four vocal solos by Walter Dawson, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Harold Dawson. They included the "Floral Dane" and "The Road to Mandalay."

Mr. McCarthy mentioned difficulties in the early stage of organization, but emphasized their advantage in the development of rural responsibility. It required collective thought and effort, and the reward was an increase in enterprise and initiative. The family that neglected the encouragement of responsibility was likely to leave its children without initiative, and so with the community.

Blame Government

Farmers like other groups too often blamed government for not doing things for themselves, Mr. McCarthy said, "and the more things that are done for us the less responsibility is assumed by ourselves, thereby weakening our democracy."

"At the end of the first year of our Dufferin Co-operative Medical Services had 600 members," Mr. McCarthy related. "We had paid out more than $4,000, but we had $2,000 left over. In our second year we also paid for the babies born to our member families. Membership stepped up to 800, and we ended that year with a $2,000 surplus. In two years we paid hospital bills amounting to around $10,000, and we give as much if not more than any other plan. We are actually giving more for our membership fee than any other plan. We now have $8,000 invested, and the interest pays part of our operating expense."

Mr. McCarthy said each member had a credit in the surplus that would be returnable to him, and at the next meeting it was proposed that the first year's membership fees be paid back. So far Dufferin has "taken care of hospital costs". Hospital bed rates that were $3 and $4.50 a day have increased to $4 and $5.50. "We will have to meet that increase in charges next year. There is no master formula for any of our associations. Each operates on its own planning, and adapts its methods to its experience and the needs of its members."

Charges Outlined

For a $3 a day ward charge, the fee in the Dufferin association for a man and his wife and children up to 16 years of age was $11.50 a year. An additional $3 was charged for children over 16. For the $4.50 a day hospital charge, the fee has been $17 a year for a man and his wife and children to 16, and $4.50 for member of the family over 16. Dividends from the operation of the services was $2 on the lower rate and $3 on the $4.50 private ward plan.

"Secretarial and office work is important. No one but ourselves can compile our necessary information as we go along and build for the future. We've got to keep close records, establish our own source of information for our guidance in carrying on.

With 1,000 members now Dufferin keeps a girl on part time, from 1 to 5 o'clock each day. In our third year we know it is highly important to have some one who give considerable time to this work."

Pool Fees

The Dufferin plan so far has been a pooling of members' fees for co-operatively meeting hospital costs. "We have not gone into the further expense of doctors' bills. We may leave that to the doctors themselves, because they are setting up some plan on their own account in that field."

"We allow 31 days' hospitalization. Our association pays the hospital bills of members for the maximum of that time. Some insurance companies allow 200 days. We have found that the majority of our members require less than two weeks in hospital, and we feel that we should not have a plan that would impose unnecessary expense on our members."

Mr. McCarthy stressed the fact that Dufferin association has had only three years' experience. Their members have acquired information at first hand, and other counties were doing likewise. The Co-Operative Credit Union was a source of help in the first stage, and the Federation of Agriculture was also in a position to assist a new county setting up the hospitalization plan."

Reeve James Gifford in moving a vote of thanks said Peterborough county council and the Federation had not been asleep in concern about hospitalization. He is chairman of the county council health committee. Ground work has been laid, he said, and preparations had reached the stage of readiness for action.

TO OUR CITIZENS:

The local branches of the Canadian Legion have designated Saturday, November 6th, as Poppy Day in Peterborough. I particularly desire, however, at the earnest request of the Canadian Legion that all loyal and patriotic citizens shall purchase a Vetcraft Wreath long before Remembrance Day, and display it in their homes, or elsewhere, and then deposit it at the Cenotaph on November 11th.

The sacrifices made by our Canadian men and women in Great War No. 1 and Great War No. 2 are again recalled as we observe Remembrance Day, Canada's day of National Mourning, and a thankful people hold in grateful remembrance the courage and heroism of our soldiers, sailors and airmen, who gave their lives in the Cause of Freedom.

The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League has contributed valiant service to this country in helping to heal the scars made by the acts of war, and has brought comfort, courage and practical aid to many in distress.

The difficult conditions existing at the present time insofar as many disabled veterans and their dependents are concerned, offers a challenge to us to respond far more generously than usual to the Legion's appeal.

Let everyone feel it a duty and a privilege to purchase a Vetcraft Wreath now and to wear a Poppy on Remembrance Day and in so doing strengthen the hands of the Legion in its splendid work."

W. G. OVENS,
Mayor.

McNaughton

and a treaty setting up atomic control.

McNaughton, a leading member of the UN Atomic Energy Commission since its inception 2½ years ago, replied:

"Our position is held in the serious belief it gives not only the best but the only hope of relieving humanity from the fear of atomic warfare...."

"We shall vote for the resolution not with any sense we have reached the end in the process of negotiations but for the purpose of marking off the first stage which we hope will constitute the necessary basis for further progress."

Unfortunate Amendment

McNaughton described an Indian amendment as unfortunate since, he said, it would "make this difficult matter even more difficult."

The vote on the Canadian resolution is expected soon. Canada, with the United States and the United Kingdom—which have always supported the Dominion's stand—hope for an overwhelming mandate from the Assembly.

McNaughton reiterated Canada's four major premises:

1. Canada believes a control system is possible and that such control must be on an international rather than a national basis.

2. Control must be accompanied by security for all countries. Such security would be provided only by the control system outlined in the Commission's majority reports.

3. Canada will press for ameeting of the Big Five and Canada in an effort to remove the political difficulties before the Commission resumes work with limited terms of reference.

4. The whole process of atomic energy must be placed within the framework of an adequate system of control 'from beginning to end.' The Soviet proposal represents "oversimplification" because it ignores this.

Demands Approval

The United States delegate, Warren R. Austin, opened the atomic battle Wednesday with a demand that the delegates approve the majority report of the Assembly's political committee, which backed the Western view on atomic energy.

Vishinsky's rejection of the majority report was the Soviet bloc's counter-attack.

The Assembly is debating two major proposals.

The political committee reported the Western majority plan to the Assembly. This plan calls for the five great powers—the United States, Britain, France and China —plus Canada to consult among themselves in an effort to find a solution to the atomic problem.

It also calls for the UN Atomic Energy Commission, a six-power body, to continue its talks on world atomic control from the point at which they were suspended last spring.

Russian Plan

The Russian proposal calls on the Assembly to recommend that the Commission resume work with a view of drawing up to conventions:

1. A ban on the atom bomb.

2. Establish a system of atomic controls.

Russia asks that both conventions be made effective simultaneously.

Vishinsky launched his attack on the majority plan with the line that Russians have taken in many U.N. debates.

He said the "majority here (in the U.N.) is the minority of the world; the minority here is the majority of the world." Peoples everywhere are vying for atomic control, he added.

He described the majority plan as permitting complete control over the economic life of other States. The economic life of these States would be left to the "tender mercies" of the control organ which, he charged, would be dominated by the United States.

Returns Still Trickling In In U.S. Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 — (CP).— Scattered returns from Tuesday's Presidential elections still trickled in from the outlying polling places throughout the United States to-day, but interest centred in Washington where President Truman's new administration will set up shop for the next four years.

Truman, who rode into power with his upset victory over Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York and took his Democratic Party with him in the polling triumph, was scheduled to leave his Missouri home for the Capital this morning.

His defeated rival, meanwhile, quietly returned to Albany, NY, to resume the business of being Governor of New York State, the most populous in the Union.

Just nine hours after he conceded victory to Truman, Dewey returned to the State Capital and received a warm welcome from a crowd of several hundred a the railroad station. But the air of restraint about it contrasted sharply with the yelling, shouting throngs that had greeted him on his campaign travels as the man most likely to win.

Matter of Form

The results were still coming in, but now it is a mere matter of form to determine the actual vote count and settle a few scattered local battles, although they are important enough from a domestic point of view.

Returns now are about 95 per cent complete and point to a total vote of somewhat less than the 50,000,000-odd forecast before Nov. 2, at 3 a.m. EST today, with 122,349 of the country's 135,864 voting units heard from, the total stood at 444,603,668 in the presidential poll.

Truman held a commanding lead of 22,288,519 against Dewey's 20,420,056, a lead in the popular vote that he had held almost from the time returns started coming in Tuesday night.

But it is the electoral vote that tells the tale in the United States and his showed the President leading in 28 states having a total of 304 votes in the Electoral College that names the president. A majority of 266 is needed to win. There are 531 such votes allotted among the various states in proportion roughly to their population.

Dewey lagged with leads in 16 states having an aggregate vote of 189. The only other candidate with an Electoral College count was Governor Strom Thurmond of the southern "State's Rights" group which broke off from the Democratic party over the question of Truman's Civil Rights program which would forbid Negro segregation.

85 MPH Chase Ends In Arrest

STURGEON FALLS, Nov. 4— (CP)—A wild, 85-mile-an-hour chase along Highway No. 17 ended Tuesday in the arrest at gunpoint of two men, Arthur Souliere, 19, of Sault St. Marie, and George Kemp, 24, of Brantford.

The men, police said, were armed with a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun when captured. They have been taken to Sudbury to face trial on charges alleging theft of the truck they were driving.

The incident was touch off when the truck stopped at Wanapietei Engineering Service Station while gas was put in the tank. The men then asked the service station attendant to check the radiator. Away getting water, the attendant heard the truck drive off toward Sturgeon Falls.

The attendant telephoned provincial police at Sturgeon Falls. The truck was finally stopped and the two men were arrested at gunpoint.

Wins Murder Acquittal But Gets 7 Years

KINGSTON, Nov. 4.—(CP).— Howard Urquhart was acquitted Wednesday of the murder of Kingston penitentiary messenger John D. Kennedy. But he will spend an additional seven years in the Federal prison for his part in the prison-break that resulted in the fatal shooting of Kennedy last April.

He was acquitted after Austin Craft—his partner in the escape who was sentenced to hang Jan. 24 for Kennedy's murder— said Urquhart did not know he had a gun. Craft took full responsibility for planning the escape and producing the gun with which he shot Kennedy as the two escaped in the prison messenger's car.

It was the second acquittal on a murder charge in 2½ years for the 21-year-old convict. In 1946 a jury reduced a charge of murder to manslaughter and he was sent to Kingston for 20 years for the slaying of Meyer Tobias, a Toronto merchant.

Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay had told them that to find Urquhart guilty of murder they must agree that Urquhart knew murder would be the probable consequence of the attempt to escape.

Questions Right

midnight. McAllister was bleeding from the mouth and nose and from a wound in the left side of the head at that time.

The doctor decided to move the injured man to hospital. With the help of residents, a couch was moved into the bedroom and McAllister placed on it for removal. The couch, with its patient, was moved into the "living-room" of the simple home. It was here, the doctor said, that John McAllister died.

Cause of death had been hemorhage from the head wound.

Dr. Charles B. Waite, provincial pathologist of Peterborough, gave the results of his findings of the post-mortem on the body. The bullet went through the man's brain, he said, lodging in the skull bone on the left side, opposite the point of entry.

During questioning by Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan, Dr. Waite said that, in his opinion, it would be "just about impossible" for the wound to be self-inflicted. He was challenged on this point by Defence Counsel H. E. Richardson.

"Would you show the jury the contortions a man would have to go through to give himself this wound?" he asked the witness.

Dr. Waite placed his hand first on the point of entry in the head, then raised his hand above that point.

"It would be very awkward," he commented.

"Thank you, doctor, you just did it though," said Mr. Richadson, concluding his cross-examination.

Mrs. McAllister on Wednesday wore the same outfit she was dressed in on the opening of the trial on Tuesday—black shortie coat, black hat, black wool sweater, plaid skirt. During this second long day, she also retained her calm appearance, not displaying any signs of anxiety or nervousness. She conversed with her counsel a number of times during the day.

Moral support from her mother, Mrs. Emily McInerney, was continued during the day. With her through the sittings were Col. Wallace Bunton and Major Margaret Woolcott of the Salvation Army, Toronto.

"We have assured Jean that she doesn't have to worry about her mother," said Col. Bunton, referring to Mrs. McInerney's return trip to Scotland soon.

"We are looking after her. She will be coming to Toronto with us at the end of the week and we will be arranging her plane trip as soon as we can."

Crowds during Wednesday's sittings were even heavier than on Tuesday. One woman, in the gallery, had to be removed by court attendants during evidence of the medical witnesses concerning the bullet wound which killed John McAllister. She fainted.

Canada, U.K. Negotiating Food Pacts

Contracts Cover Sale Of Wheat, Bacon And Dairy Products

OTTAWA, Nov. 4— (CP).— Quietly and behind the scenes, Canada and the United Kingdom are preparing to re-negotiate the all-important food contracts between the two countries.

Preliminary overtures already are reported to have started in Canada and London and a British negotiating mission is expected to come to this country late this month to open talks with the Canadian government. Thus far, there has been no public announcement of the negotiation plans.

However, the British mission probably will include Food Minister Strachey and officials of his ministry as well as the British treasury.

The contracts cover the sale to Britain of Canadian wheat, bacon, cheese and eggs. They lapse at varying dates, depending upon the duration of the production year for each product.

Their importance is two-fold. They are important to Britain because she needs them to bolster the meagre British diet. To Canada, they loom large as the key factor in the government's policy of stabilization for the farming industry. All other considerations notwithstanding, they have helped to keep farm prices high since the war years.

If Britain can find enough dollars, the contracts may be large; if not, they may be small.

Press For Loan

Observers here noted that Britain has been pressing Canada to release the unspent but "frozen" remainder — $240,000,000—of the Canadian loan to Britain. This credit was cut off last April when Canada herself ran into exchange difficulties.

The wheat contract, of major importance to western Canada agriculture, differs in some respects from the other food agreements. It was signed for a four-year period and still has more than a year to run. Under its provisions, Canada agreed to ship 160,000,000 bushels of wheat and wheat flour in each of the first two years and 140,000,000 bushels in each of the last two.

However, the price range was not definitely established for the four-year period and the two governments must get together before Dec. 31 next to set a price for the last year of the contract, beginning Aug. 1, 1949. In the current year, which began last Aug. 1, Britain is paying $2 a bushel.

Bacon Contract

Another major contract is that covering the sale of bacon. It ends this Dec. 31. When the 1948 contract was negotiated last year, Britain agreed to take 195,000,000 pounds, paying $36 per 100 pounds for Grade "A" Wilshires at the Canadian seaboard. The target later was boosted to 225,000,000 pounds.

So far, Canada has shipped 158,000,000 pounds and officials here are confident the cargoes will go over the 200,000,000 pound mark by the year-end. The value of this contract is $53,712,000.

There is no indication of the size of the 1949 bacon contract but Britain likely will want to buy substantial quantities to maintain her bacon ration. There is a possibility that the price might be boosted slightly to encourage Canadian farmers to produce more hogs. Hog production in Canada has fallen during the last year or two.

Two other meat contracts negotiated last year likely will be dropped this year. These cover mutton and beef.

Dollar Shortage

Under the beef contract, the U.K. purchased 15,000,000 pounds, carcass weight, for $3,735,190 before the contract was suspended by mutual consent this summer because of Britain's shortage of dollars.

She likely will turn away from beef for 1949, putting her dollars into bacon instead.

There probably will be new contracts for eggs and cheese.

Under the cheese contract, Canada agreed to ship 50,000,000 pounds at 30 cents a pound. However, short production this year likely will keep the total shipments down to 30,000,000 or 35,000,000 pounds. This contract was worth $6,270,000 this year.

Montreal Driver Held At Cobourg

COBOURG, Nov. 4—(ENS)—The long arm of the law, enhanced by the long arm of the police radio, reached out from a hit-and-run accident at Cobourg yesterday and at Belleville one hour later, Raymond Labonte of Montreal was picked up and held for provincial police here. He was brought back to Cobourg and remanded until Friday on a hit-and-run count.

Yesterday near noon, John Dockstader, at first identified from papers in his pocket as John Fredrino, was found semi-conscious with head injuries on the highway about four miles west of here by two Port Hope men, Hank Haynes and Lloyd Austin. They notified police, and Dockstader, who is 68 and comes from Ottawa, was taken to Cobourg General Hospital. He is a transient and was walking along the highway at the time.

With the slender description of a new blue panel truck, as being believed the vehicle responsible, Provincial Constables Lyle Erskine and William Baluk sent a call out on the police radio. Peterborough, Cobourg and Belleville relayed the information to patrol cars. A car came in from Hastings along No. 45, another one went out from Cobourg along No. 45. Cars along No. 2 were alerted and an hour later the provincial police radio from Belleville reported that a blue panel truck, answering to the description, was picked up in that city and the driver was being held.

Twice within a week the newly-installed district provincial police radio has rounded up wanted men in a very short time. Last Friday it resulted in four alleged car thieves from Montreal being arrested, two of them being arrested by Provincial Constable Erskine after an 80-mile-an-hour pursuit on No. 2 highway, the other two, who had jumped from the car at the start of the chase, being picked up a short time later by provincial constable Nicol and Wilson.

The U.S. Election

Mr. Dewey Rejected

The American people have rejected the man who would have been their first President born in the twentieth century and who is in his person a symbol of the machine age into which he was born. For Governor Dewey is a city man, a technician in politics, somewhat mechanical, coldly efficient, competent, ambitious, but not heart-warming. The voters rejected not only the man of the twentieth century but a very American attitude, the attitude expressed in the song from "Annie Get Your Gun":

Anything you can do I can do better,
I can do anything better than you.

That in essence was the platform of Governor Dewey—that he and the Republicans would make no great changes in policies but were able to carry them out better than President Truman and the Democrats.

• • •

Whatever the personal and domestic reasons were for the American voters preferring President Truman and the Democrats to Governor Dewey and the Republicans, Canadians were assured that whichever man became the next President, the amity and co-operation between this nation and the American republic would not be lessened. However, Canadians already have felt President Truman's kindly regard and have proof of his administration's reasonable and generous co-operation. Canadians therefore warmly approve the American voters' choice.

• • •

President Truman will hold office in a gravely important time in the affairs of men. His decisions can make or mar the fortunes of more people and nations than those of any other President. The office of President is vitally important to millions who are not Americans. Therefore there has been world-wide interest in the election, and not because of differing foreign policies of the two chief candidates. Though Governor Dewey and the Republicans accepted the present policy and in office would have followed it, there is great relief that President Truman and General Marshall will be able to continue to direct without interruption the policy which the Democratic administration devised.

• • •

Poll Piffle and Newspaper Nonsense

Mr. Truman's victory is a mortifying defeat for the American press and the manipulators of "public opinion polls". American newspapers are largely Republican in their sympathies and understandably they support Republican candidates for the Presidency. But they go further; they misrepresent and slant their news in such a way that even keen readers may be bamboozled into expecting a Republican victory when in fact nothing of the sort is discernible by an unprejudiced observer. They take ridiculous risks in the hope of influencing votes, as did the picture magazine Life which, in its current issue prints beneath a picture of Mr. Dewey: "The next president travels by ferry boat over the broad water of San Francisco Bay". As for the pollsters, they have made monkeys of themselves in too many presidential elections to be taken seriously, and in the 1944 campaign the egregious Dr. Gallup admitted that he had arranged his figures to indicate a Roosevelt defeat, when the figures before his tampering showed that Roosevelt would win.

• • •

A great deal is said in the U.S.A. about a free press. It appears to us that the press of that country, in political matters, cuts a decidedly poor figure, allowing prejudice and wishful thinking to destroy that balance which a trustworthy press must maintain. By methods which it must have known to be dubious (for intelligent newspapermen could not have been so grossly deceived in such a matter) the American press tried to "sell" Mr. Dewey to the American people, protesting meanwhile that Mr. Truman did not have a chance.

• • •

Obviously the American people paid little attention to their press. The selling job which was done on Dewey went too far and defeated itself. It seems strange that the American press should not know what the Canadian press has known for decades—that the public can be persuaded but cannot be bamboozled. And it must be said that freedom of the press can only flourish when the press is determined to behave in a honourable and responsible manner toward its readers. Abuse of press freedom merely makes the Russians laugh, and the American electorate disregard their press, which they should be able to trust.

• • •

We do not wish to take an "I-told-you-so" attitude in this matter, but we cannot refrain from reminding our readers that upon several occasions during the past six weeks The Examiner has said that, so far as could be seen from Canada, Mr. Truman's chances appeared to be fully as good as Mr. Dewey's. We are surprised that American papers, in the thick of the fight, could not see at least as much.

• • •

Cumbrous Electoral System

The American presidential election system is rather confusing to Canadians, and there was a general furrowing of brows yesterday morning when it seemed that no decisive vote might have been registered for either Governor Dewey or President Truman. What would have happened then?

• • •

The Constitution of the United States provides that the President and Vice-President be elected not directly by common voters, but by an Electoral College. The Electoral College always has as many members as there are members of both the House of Representatives (now 425) and Senate (96). That adds up to 531. The majority which a candidate needed on Tuesday to be assured of election was therefore half of that number, plus one—in other words 266. Each State has as many Electors as it has Representatives and Senators.

• • •

In theory the voters elect the Electors, and the Electors assemble later, and vote in state blocs for the man they think most fitting to be President. In practice, the chief parties name a man pledged to represent them at the Electoral College meeting; it is for these figureheads that the people vote in a presidential election. The electors have in practice no freedom of choice after they themselves are elected to be Electors. This has been true almost since the Constitution was written. Therefore, though President Truman has not yet actually been elected President, and will not be elected until the Electoral College meets, everybody knows who the next President will be.

• • •

If no majority in the Electoral College had been possible for either of the two candidates, the new House of Representatives would have had the duty of electing the next President. That situation has occurred twice: in 1801 when Thomas Jefferson was so elected, and in 1824, when the House elected John Quincy Adams.

• • •

It is an outmoded, rather cumbersome system in comparison with our procedure for electing a Prime Minister, and certainly less directly democratic in its theory.

"Memory Work" And Education

The Protestant School Board of Montreal wants to drop "memory work" from its curriculum. We all know what "memory work" is; in Ontario schools all children have to memorize a certain number of verses of poetry every year. The Montreal Board says that this "strikes at the root of the effective teaching of poetry".

We do not agree. Many children do not like poetry, just as many children do not like to eat vegetables. But they learn to like both, if firm methods are used, and both are good for them. By memorizing poetry a child develops its sense of rhythm, and acquires certain scraps of beauty and wisdom which it often carries to the grave.

Of course, not all that is prescribed for "memory work" can be dignified with the name of poetry. We recall a piece about the burial of Moses, and another about a slave who died at his work, both of which were markedly less than poetic, though we had to get them by heart. But we also learned some fine verse in this way, and are grateful to those who made us learn it.

The essence of the Montreal Board's complaint is that "memory work" is hard work for children. Our opinion is that a little hard work, judiciously supervised, is exactly what children need.

From The Critic's Notebook

THE PLAGUE, by Albert Camus (Hamish Hamilton). This is a truly remarkable novel by a man who is perhaps the most promising of living French novelists. Its theme is an outbreak of plague in the French colonial city of Oran; when the calamity can no longer be concealed the city is isolated, and the people enclosed in it are thrown more and more upon their own resources. Moods of deep alarm, indifference and at last of relief seize upon them. Under stress some become saints, some scoundrels, and a few live in surprising isolation from the suffering and danger which surrounds them. But in the city as a whole the greatness of mankind is exemplified, and a type of saintliness which has nothing to do with religion reveals itself. One character says to another: "Each of us has the plague within him; no one, no one on earth is free from it; we must keep endless watch on ourselves lest in a careless moment we breathe in somebody's face and fasten the infection on him". The book is undoubtedly an allegory, but whether the plague stands for totalitarianism, or for a decayed capitalism it will be for the individual reader to decide. My own impression is that the plague is something greater than a political system and that Camus is struggling to say something about mankind which has hitherto been explained in terms of religion, without employing the concepts or vocabulary of religion. A brilliant and compelling novel, strongly recommended. R.D.

✧ ✧ ✧

SAINTE COLLINE, by Gabriel Chevallier (Secker & Warburg). This witty and admirable novel is by the author of "Clochemerle", which has for some time been available in Canada. Sainte Colline is a French school for boys, presided over by a group of teaching Fathers. The school itself, and its famous "system" supply the theme of the book; the excellent potraits of the priests and their pupils are subordinated to it. As a comment on education the book is somewhat depressing; at Sainte Colline everything was sacrificed to discipline, to piety and to expediency; very little human contact was possible between the boys and their masters, and the misery and frustration on both sides was intense. But can Canadians who have first-hand contact with our own educational systems read it without some pangs of recognition? Systematized education is much the same, wherever it is found. Chevallier understands better than many authors who have chosen this theme the dark places of the adolescent mind—the odd combinations of childish innocence and devilish depravity. And he is less impressed by teachers, also, than writers of the Mr. Chips school. I cannot recall one entirely admirable teacher in all the faculty of Sainte Colline, but all are interesting human beings. R.D.

✧ ✧ ✧

CARROTS, by Jules Renard (Grey Walls Press). This is a minor French classic made available for the first time in English in a fine translation by G. W. Stonier. Carrots is the name of a little boy whose well-to-do parents disagree, and who serves as a butt for both of them. He is not a nice little boy, and he is pathetic only in a large sense; as a day-to-day companion he is a hateful little nuisance. Yet who can blame this child, whose father is an indifferent dullard, and whose mother is gifted only in the ingenuity with which she tortures her son and contrives always to put him in the wrong.... This book first appeared in 1895, and its bitter author wrote: "The child—Victor Hugo and plenty of others have taken him for an angel, but his real nature is diabolically fierce. Furthermore, writing about children can only be renewed by placing oneself at this point of view. The sugar-child must be destroyed..." Certainly Carrots is no sugar-child. And yet he carries a conviction, and lingers in the mind, as the sweeter children of fiction do not. If truth were known, there is many a Carrots in the world, with no Children's Aid Society to help him, or a soul to understand his misery. R.D.

THE HIDDEN DAMAGE (George McLeod Limited, Toronto) is another war book. The author is James Stern, an Englishman who spent the decade before and during the war in the United States but who went to Germany on a government assignment the week after the war ended. He became one of the large and motley crew of civilians who swarmed locust-like over the battle areas and the occupied countries when the fighting man's job was done. They went in uniform, of course. Mr. Stern relates his experiences and whims from the day he heard that such jobs were available and presented himself at the Pentagon in Washington for a job, to the day of his return several months later, a veteran of post-war Europe.

His particular job was that of "Bomb Analyst". His qualifications—he could speak German. He interviewed Germans to find out what damage (physical, financial and domestic) had been inflicted. The author confesses that during the interviews he was often more interested in the social and mental condition of the individuals than in the statistics which he and the others were expected to accumulate. Thus he discovered "the hidden damage".

His observations on this damage are neither acute nor coherent. The book is chiefly interesting for the parade of place-names, streets, hotels, cafes and sentiments. It may interest readers who, like the author, travelled in Europe before the war. The author's nostalgia for the pre-war Europe and his sentimental disillusionment on seeing it after the war carry whatever theme the book has. The author's visit to his old mother and father after eight years' absence is touching. His parents are, it might be expected, gentry. They live in an old-world country home, have other-world manners, and a faithful old butler (Spencer) who speaks to the prodigal son of the household in phrases like: "If I may be so bold, sir". Mr. Stern, the son, confesses to old Spencer that "since we last met I've been living on my wits". The butler groans, "Oh, sir!" "The Hidden Damage" is a product of his living on his wits as a writer. This reviewer echoes the butler's "Oh sir!" T.J.A.

THE FLOWING SUMMER, by Charles Bruce (Ryerson). Charles Bruce is really a poet, and there are few moderns who handle complex adult themes to better effect. Readers of poetry will recall his "Words Are Never Enough", which was included in A. J. M. Smith's "The Book of Canadian Poetry", and other virile poems which appear from time to time in the Canadian Poetry Magazine. Of "The Flowing Summer", a series of verses about a twelve year old boy visiting the Maritimes, the fly leaf reports that it is a poem by accident. Unfortunately the accident didn't happen. Admirers of Charles Bruce as a poet will have to overlook this one. H.T.K.

Letters To The Editor

NEW INTEREST IN MOODIES AND TRAILLS?

Sir: I was interested in the article of Friday's issue concerning the gathering of the descendants of Mrs. Moodie and Mrs. Traill and their visit to the old sites.

It is hoped that Mr. Edmison's hobby will attract sufficient interest to give these two literary ladies a more prominent place in our district's history.

District people who have not yet read, "Roughing it in the Bush", will find a new interest in our little towns and villages if they do so. A Sunday drive in the car to some of the places referred to in the book gives an added pleasure to these trips.

There is little likelihood of the reader wishing a return of the good old days unless perhaps some luckless angler reflects longingly upon the occasion when the Moodies were being entertained by the Young family. Tables were set up on the lawn and to add to the variety of food being prepared the boys were ordered to catch some fish—not merely a certain number of fish, but the boys were instructed what kinds to get. Mrs. Moodie records the boys soon returned with their catch.

If you would like a greater interest to be taken in the writings of these ladies by your readers may I suggest one of their books be published in serial form in your paper.

Yours truly,
F. McGOVARIN.

RAILWAY INTO HIGHWAY

Sir: I think the City Council should adjoin with other municipalities and make an application for the closing up of the C.N.R. from Peterborough to Port Hope and for the grant of it to the Department of Highways so it could be used as a Provincial Highway.

The C.N.R. has been losing money for about 30 years and this right-of-way is a natural roadbed for buses and motor vehicles on a Provincial Highway. This would give a direct route to the front in addition to the highway running through Bewdley and it is a matter, I think, that should receive the serious consideration of the Municipal Councils in this neighbourhood.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

THIRD SHOT

As the secretary of the golf club was crossing the course he saw a player driving off about a foot in front of the tee-mark.

"Here," he exclaimed indignantly, "you can't do that! You're disqualified."

"Why," demanded the player.

"You're driving off in front of the mark."

"Don't be an ass!" was the terse reply; "I'm playing my third shot."

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life.... In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return. (Gen. 3: 17, 19.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. (1 Cor. 15: 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Moreover the Lord spake again unto Ahaz, saying, Ask thee a sign of the Lord thy God; ask it either in the depth, or in the height above.

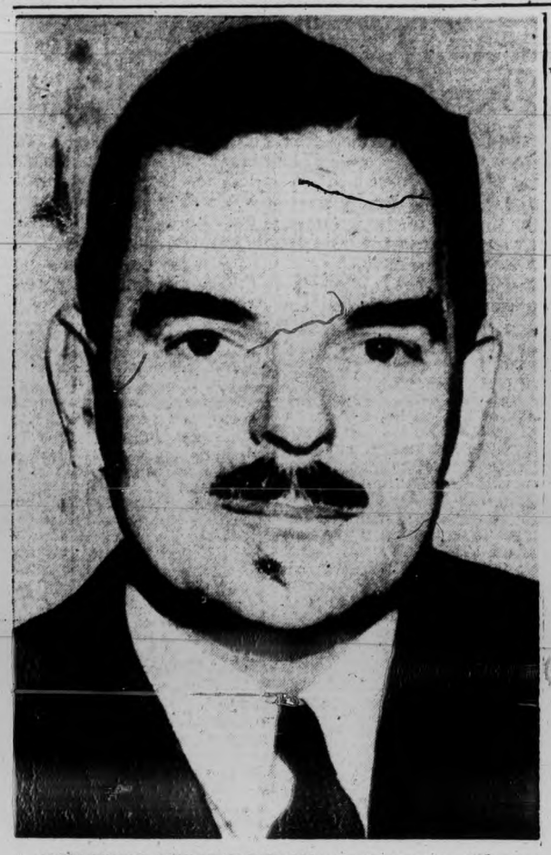
But Ahaz said, I will not ask, neither will I tempt the Lord. And he said, Hear ye now, O house of David; Is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also? Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. Butter and honey shall he eat, that he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good. (Isa. 7: 10-15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.... But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?....

And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. (Matt. 3: 13, 16, 17.)

Women In The Ring



A London girl is reported to be training in hopes of becoming the first woman professional boxer, but it seems highly improbable that public opinion would now tolerate such exhibitions by "female pugilists" as were sometimes staged in the eighteenth century. A newspaper report of one such contest in 1788 recorded: "Two women fought for a new shift, valued at half a crown, in the Spa Fields, near Islington. The battle was won by a woman called Brusing Peg, who beat her antagonist in a terrible manner."

In the same year, in the same place, it was later recorded: "An extraordinary battle was fought between two women and two tailors for a guinea a head, which was won by the ladies, who beat the tailors in a severe manner." Of yet another such contest the record is preserved in a London newspaper advertisement: "I, Elizabeth Wilkinson, of Clerkenwell, do invite Hannah Hyfield to meet me upon the stage and box me for three guineas, each woman holding half a crown in her hand, the first to drop the money to lose." Which seems rather a good way of discouraging either of the combatants from ceasing to box and starting to scratch. — Manchester Guardian.

Son Diverted Bullet From Father

By FRANCIS LOVE

TORY HILL, Nov. 4—(Special to The Examiner)—Borne to his last resting place by six stalwart bushmen Arnold Gill, 20, who died from a gun shot wound on the main street of this village on Saturday night, was buried Thursday in the cemetery beside the railway tracks in Gooderham. According to an old saying in the north country there are only two kinds of people in the world "the quick and the dead" and Arnold Gill is dead.

Arnold Gill was not quick enough. Given another second he might have been alive today, for those who saw the shooting say he jumped to reach the gun with which his father was being threatened and thus diverted the blast into his own body.

His body came home to Tory Hill on Tuesday, after it was released by the provincial police, who are holding Herman Woodcock for further in connection with the shooting.

Flanked by three of Arnold's sisters his grief stricken mother accompanied him on his last journey. Devastated by her own sorrow Mrs. Gill had time to search her mother's heart and to find compassion for her son's alleged slayer for she expressed the hope that Herman Woodcock would not be dealt with in any spirit of revenge, nor too harshly.

Mrs. Gill would like to see the whole thing ended now.

At the graveside three of Arnold's brothers, Kenneth, Gordon and Marvin took their places beside Allan Gill their father, while his three sisters, Mrs. Walter Reil, Mrs. Hilden Johnston and Miss Faye Gill and their mother along with Mrs. Sandy McColl, an aunt, made up the chief mourners.

The pallbearers were David Duff, William and Thomas Maughan, Edwin Short, Melville Gill and Mitchell Gill.

MRS. RICHARD MORROW-TAIT, British round-the-world flier, landed safely at Shemya, Alaska, Wednesday on a 1,778-mile flight from Northern Japan despite storms, a crippled radio and a dwindling gas supply. She and her navigator, Michael Townsend, had been unreported for eight hours in their single-engine plane.

The four — George Nicholson, 18; Colin Cook, 18; Gwyllyn Dark, 20, and Ivor Pretty, 20—pleaded innocent. The attempted hold-up failed because the plant's employees had been payed just before the bandits forced their way into the office.

TWO THINGS

To Think About...

THERE ARE TWO THINGS to think about in considering an investment. One is the security itself — its safety, the income it yields, its marketability. The second is your own position. A man of thirty has not the same investment needs as a man of sixty. A man who holds a large proportion of common stocks is not in the same position as a man who holds bonds.

In other words, it is not sufficient to know that a security is good in itself. It should also be suitable to your particular needs. We are always ready to assist investors in considering such questions and invite inquiries regardless of the amount involved.

We offer the following securities as principals, subject to prior sale and change in price:

Report People Of B.C. Resent Freight Rates

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4 (CP) — The Board of Transport Commissioners was told Tuesday the people of British Columbia resent "the injustice of discriminatory freight rates."

Chris Brown, president of the New Westminster Board of Trade —one of several such bodies appearing in support of the province's application for removal of the mountain differential in Canada's freight rates structure—voiced the sentiment in these terms:

"This resentment has been shown by our people irrespective of ideological concepts, political beliefs, social standings, economic status, trade, profession or calling."

Mr. Brown said the mountain differential, charged because of the hauls through the Rockies had operated to increase the costs of incoming supplies and outgoing products.

Girls' basketball pries the lid of the 1948-49 season tomorrow (Friday) evening at 8.15 in the YWCA gym with a double-header. Neill's open against Nurses, and the nightcap is between CGE and Lock Co. Other clubs in the circuit this year are Normals and Kawarthas. The cage colleens have been practicing the past several weeks and should be ready to really roll in the hoop games on the morrow. Some changes likely in each lineup from a year ago, but many of the former favorites will be back in action again. The lasses put a lot of zip into their play and are worth seeing. This opening twin bill deserves a goodly gallery.

Pickering College of Newmarket supply the grid opposition for the PCVS seniors at 2.15 in the Oval this Saturday aft. It's an exhibition but should produce plenty of thrills as these wide-open football teams turn it on. Senior PCI-ers are prepping for COSSA playoffs in the near future and have really been clicking lately. A classy crew to view in action with a smart backfield putting swoosh into their screened plays behind a strong front wall. Given good weather, the exhibition should draw a big crowd. PCVS juniors are off to Oshawa the same day for a group playoff, while our Panthers will be in Orillia in their group final.

Wins Craig Trophy

Most valuable player to his team in the City Baseball League the past season was Don (Cack) Pagett of the junior southend Kiwanis, winners of their section. He was picked for the Fred Craig Memorial Trophy by Alex Kay from a large number of prominent players in the City Loop. The commissioner of minor ball in the city took a lot of time in making his selection, using his own keen observance of every game, checking with other coaches and ball-wise followers locally, and even checking with coaches in other towns playing against local teams. As some boys play better away from home, and vice versa. It is a good choice, in our opinion.

* * * * * *

Don Pagett played a bangup game at shortstop for Kiwanis, threw and ran well, showed plenty of hustle and proved a steady clutch hitter. Had a flock of runs batted in to his credit. On top of that, Pagett—who just missed being a juvenile last spring by two weeks—was on loan a large part of the season to the senior club, and held his own in this company, too! Yeah, he played both junior and senior, and will likely do so again next summer as he has another year of junior left. Plays minor hockey, also, and is a fine chap in every way. Too bad his dad, who died just recently, couldn't have lived long enough to learn of this award.

Choice Of Alex Kay

Our thanks to Alex Kay for doing this job for us. We can't cover enough City League games to be a competent judge for such an award over the entire season. Alex is such a judge. The trophy is put up annually by The Examiner in memory of the late Fred Craig, former sports editor here over a long spell. It was given first in 1945, with Jack Sisson the winner. Next season saw Al Menzies get it, and last year Kenny Pammett was the winner. Each one keeps the trophy and a new one is offered the following year. This is the first time a junior hallster won it, the others being bantams or juveniles at the time. Oh, yes, we forgot to mention that Don Pagett even went in at times as a relief junior hurler and did okay. Yes, he earned this trophy and has our congratulations.

Concerning soccer, school and otherwise. Confederation blanked Prince of Wales 6-0 yesterday to capture the Kinsmen Cup and the senior title of the Public School Soccer League. Congrats to them. Capt. J. Daniels turned in a fine job for the winners, scoring five of their goals, with Strickland getting the other. Losers battled hard but couldn't count. Thus endeth another good soccer season for the schools. This Saturday at 2.30 in King Edward Park, the final for the Mayor Ovens Cup (for injured players) will be staged between Legionnaires and O'Halloran's. A neutral referee and neutral linesmen, Bill Post and Eddie Lane. Prexy Bill Gracie insists on this match starting on time with whatever number of players are on hand. At the conclusion, the Mayor will present the trophy.

Mat Fun And Fury

Hectic mat action at the Brock last eve as Whip Watson lost the main bout on a disqualification. Won the popular vote, though, from a big crowd and the ref had to run for it. Dunlop, who missed big Ben Morgan's rough stuff, warned Watson not to ram Ben's head into the turnbuckles. So, what was he kicking about when Whip rammed it into Dunlop's, er, pantry? Anyway, he disqualified Whip, who promptly rammed Bunny's bean into the bolts and then smacked down Morgan—but after the bell. A hot go, and the fan who swung on Dunlop coming out of the ring is nursing a sore jaw today. And huge Ben showed plenty of power, as well as rough stuff. We also liked George McNab in the semi-final, though he lost to Talun. He is 298 and a pro gridder with legs like telephone posts, a driver. Martin and Moore went to a prelim draw in a good grapple card.

Pagett Chosen By Alex Kay For Craig Cup

Don Pagett, junior ball star of Kiwanis — who won the junior championship of the City Baseball League last summer — has been named "most valuable player" this year. He was picked by Alex Kay, the commissioner of minor ball here, for the Fred Craig Memorial Trophy, put up annually by The Examiner.

The Kiwanis' shortstop also played frequently at that position for the senior Petes this year, on loan from his junior club. He was a fine hustling young player, a clutch hitter and good fielder. And he was just two weeks over juvenile age last spring, which will give him another year yet in junior ranks. Previous trophy winners were Jack Sisson, Al Menzies and Kenny Pammett.

GETS TROPHY—Don (Cack) Pagett, starry shortstop for Kiwanis Juniors—and rookie player for the senior Petes—gets the Fred Craig Memorial Trophy this season, being chosen most valuable player in the City Baseball League.

Two Lakefield Teams Score Shutout Wins

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 4 — Lakefield School teams scored two shutout football victories here on Wednesday afternoon. Lakefield Firsts defeated Pickering College Seconds 17 to 0, while Lakefield Seconds blanked the Pickering Thirds 15 to 0.

Touchdowns by Terry Clark, Hugh McCulloch, and Peter Irwin gave Lakefield Firsts the bulk of their score. Two converts by Hugh Withers completed the scoring.

In the other game, Bob Legate and Andy Morrison scored touchdowns that Pickering was unable to match. Along the way, three singles by Hugh Faulkner, one on a convert, and a safety touch completed the Lakefield total.

ALL-STARS DOWN LEAFS—In Chicago last night, the NHL All-Stars defeated Toronto Leafs 3-1 in a good puck exhibition. Though not a scorer, Edgar Laprade (left) of the Rangers made Turk Broda (centre) of the Leafs hustle in goal to keep down the count, while Ted Lindsay (right) of the Red Wings opened the scoring with the first goal of the game early in the second period.

Soccer Honors Are Taken By Confed., 6-0

Confederation defeated Prince of Wales 6-0 in the final for the public school senior soccer championship at King Edward Park Wednesday afternoon before a large crowd. J. Daniels, Confederation, scored five goals and Strickland got the other one. Best for the losers were Buott, J. Smith, P. Evans and W. Downer.

Marvin Buchan, captain of King Edward soccer eleven, last year champions, presented the Kinsman Cup to Captain J. Daniels of Confederation.

Right from the kick-off, Prince of Wales forwards concentrated their efforts in a steady pressure in front of goal to find M. Bryan, Confederation custodian, unbeatable as he turned aside the shots ranged at him. Eventually Outwater punted clear upfield where Tyndal trapped the ball out quickly to Strickland who made a bee-line for goal. Sisson closed in on the run as the goalie blocked but a scrimmage ensude that climaxed with Daniels registering. On the next raid, Strickland trapped the ball on the run to deliver a knee-high shot inside the upright with a left-footer. Prince of Wales replied with a succession of break-aways that Holland, Outwater and Tyndal checked to a standstill. Just before the interval, Daniels dribbled his way through the defense to rattle a left-footer inside the upright. He had scored another shortly before.

Worked Hard

Prince of Wales were more aggressive in the second period to back the Confederation boys inside their own territory. Prince of Wales repeatedly broke through but lacked finish in front of the goal. Then a succession of flag kicks in favor of Confederation found Faiers and Avey, Prince of Wales, putting up a solid defence. At this point, Buott and Holland were ordered off for fighting. Daniels outplayed and dribbled his way right into goal to convert a lovely goal. To climax his smart performance, Daniels from the 10-yard range registered his fifth goal to make it 6-0.

Prince of Wales — A. Smith, Q. Avey and B. Faires, fullbacks; J. Holbrook, J. Smith and J. Armstrong, half-backs; W. Downer, P. Evans, A. Buott, K. Lockie, D. Halliday, forwards. Subs, J. Mongraw, K. Lowell, B. Moffat.

Confederation—M. Bryan, goal; E. Henderson and E. Dunstan, full-backs; R. Tyndall, N. Outwater and R. Holland, half-backs; C. Simmons, D. Miller, J. Daniels, G. Crouter, and G. Strickland, forwards. Subs, G. Holden, J. Post, G. Simmons.

Referee, H. B. Cunningham. Linesmen, D. Whatley and W. Murduff.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Leo Durocher on Wednesday signed up Frankie Frisch and Freddy Fitzsimmons, a couple of old New York heroes, as coaches for his New York Giants and announced that he had his hooks out for a front-line pitcher.

"If I could get the pitcher I have in mind," Leo told reporters in a press conference in New York, "I'd be ready to challenge anybody for the 1949 pennant."

Durocher declined to identify the pitcher he hoped to get, but admitted he had made overtures for southpaws Johnny Schmitz of Chicago Cubs and Harry Brecheen of St. Louis Cardinals, and right-hander Ralph Branca and Rex Barney of Brooklyn Dodgers.

Frisch, a great second baseman for the Giants from 1919 through 1926, and later manager of the Cardinals and Pittsburg Pirates, has for the last two years been a broadcaster of the Giant games.

Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, is going to trade the punches again with Billy Conn, who has emerged from a retirement forced by the Brown Bomber two years ago. Conn, who was knocked out by Louis in eight rounds at Yankee Stadium in June, 1946, will be matched against Louis in a six-round exhibition at Chicago's International Amphitheatre December 10.

Ottawa Rough Riders, Big Four leaders, will play the first match of the Big Four playoffs Thursday afternoon of next week, Manager Jimmy McCaffrey announced Wednesday night at Ottawa. He said if Montreal Alouettes are still in second place after the final games Saturday, the game will be played in Montreal. If Toronto's Argos spring up from third place, the game will be played in Toronto's Varsity Stadium. Final match of the playoffs will be in the Riders' own Lansdowne Park in Ottawa November 13.

Western Canada football clubs need the aid of qualified United States gridiron imports "if we are to continue competing with Eastern Canada," Tom Brook, the president of the Calgary Stampeder Football Club said in Calgary Wednesday night. Commenting on a suggestion by retiring President Art Chipman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers that the Western clubs reduce expenses by eliminating US imports. Brooks termed it "just a Blue Bomber excuse for a disappointing Winnipeg season."

Nelson C. Hart, general manager of Canada's Olympic team, says a "comparatively inexperienced" team management "did a reasonably good job," and denied there were too many officials who "went along for the ride." In a letter to the Vancouver Sun on Wednesday Hart replied to criticism of Percy Norman of Vancouver, amateur swimming official.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The International Typographical Union said Wednesday that "suffering from Taft-Hartley oppression" will soon be at an end. A statement issued from the office of Woodruff Randolph, union president, said that "we hope the new Congress will act quickly to remove the "shackles" of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Bearded Ben Gets Main Go When Whip Is Disqualified

Whipper Bill Watson was disqualified by Referee Bun Dunlop in the main pro mat bout at the Brock last night, and huge Ben Morgan was the winner in the third round. A big crowd expressed strong disapproval and the referee had to fight his way to the dressing room. He did this effectively, the ex-wrestler teeing off on a few who got too close.

It might be that Dunlop disqualified the Whip not for trying to ram Ben's head against the turnbuckle after being warned, but for ramming Morgan's noggin into Bunny's tummy. The ref did warn Watson but he missed a lot of fists and rough stuff used by the bearded mountain. Watson was going good early in this last round, once tying up Ben and hitting him with tackles—also hitting Bunny once—but later the powerful bearded one got in with his fists and bull strength. The Whip finally came back to slow him up with his turnbuckle charges till he was disqualified. The infuriated Watson then beat up both the ref and his opponent after the bell as the crowd cheered. It went eight minutes.

Evened It Up

Watson, scaling 231 to Ben's 322, won the second fall to even the bout in 15 minutes. He did it the hard way and both grapplers looked groggy at the finish. The Whip used his whip hold hard twice after finally managing to lift huge Ben up for a slam. Before that he couldn't hoist the Tennesseean and his flying tackles bounced off the powerful foe. He was faster and got in some hard clips in a few flurries but the stronger Ben pounded him about brutally and illegally with the referee trying desperately to yank him off several times. It was a hot go.

Morgan had taken the opening fall in 16 minutes, falling like a ton of bricks on a prostrate Whipper after a clip to the jaw. Whipper outboxed him and had the speed and experience but lacked the strength and weight. Also, Morgan played it rough all the way, pulling hair, using knees to the midriff and fists to the face. While the Whip got in a few elbow smashes to the jaw, Ben came back strongly and twice had him out of the ring. Once, Bunny had to clip Morgan to make him break a bulldog grip. The fans were definitely for Watson in a good scrap, but Ben was too tough at this time. His fall in the second round was the first time he's been dropped in more than a year.

Two Big Guys

Blockbuster Talun, at 316, took the semi-final over 298-pound George McNab in just four and one-half minutes of furious milling. McNab, who played pro football last year for Buffalo Bills, drove from the start. A powerful man on huge legs, he lunged right in there with knees, elbows and fists working on the hefty Pole. It made him somewhat unpopular but he showed plenty for a young and powerful wrestler, and he said afterward that he'd have won if the referee hadn't let Talun yank him back through the ropes—after throwing him out—and then applying his punishing bear hug. At that, Talun had quite a time with his hug to get McNab off his feet for the fall. It was short but full of action.

Jack Moore, scaling 242, and Ralph Martin, going 223, went to a 30-minute draw in the prelim. Moore was rough and Martin tried a lot of scientific stuff without making too much headway. They warmed up after a bit to put on a good scrap. Martin waded in then to muss up Moore but the latter retaliated roughly as the hard-working referee warned him and kept yanking him clear. Dunlop declared it a draw as they finished up hotly and on pretty even terms, with Martin more popular with the customers.

NHL All-Stars Trim Leafs For Second Straight Year

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP). — Practice makes perfect, but you can't tell that to the National Hockey League All-Stars, who Wednesday night trimmed the champion Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1, for the second straight year.

Just as they did in winning the All-Star inaugural, 4-3, at Toronto last year, the Stars took the Chicago Stadium ice without any preliminary drill and out-scored and out-manoeuvred the Stanley Cup champions before 15,781 fans.

All the scoring was packed in the second period in which the All-Stars took a 2-0 lead, allowed the Leafs to nudge in their only tally on Max Bentley's pay-off shot, and then added their third marker 28 seconds before the period ended.

Two-thirds of the estimated $27,000 gate went to the league's player pension fund for which the all-star game is played.

Crowd Boos

The first period was so lackadaisical the near-capacity crowd booed the teams as they left for the intermission.

But the second period was on the 8.35- out when Detroit's Ted Lindsay rammed home the first All-Star tally. A bristling charge by Montreal's Maurice Richard set up the score as Toronto goalie Turk Broda was hustled out of position.

A minute and a half later, Boston's Woody Dumart beat Broda to the draw for the second All-Star marker. Then came Bentley's lone Toronto score which made it 2-1.

With time running out in the second chapter, Chicago's Gaye Stewart poked the puck home with an assist by Chicago's Doug Bentley, brother of Max, and that was the match.

Toronto's goal was the first scored in 60 minutes of all-star play against goalie Frankie Brimsek of Boston. Brimsek played the first 30 minutes Wednesday night and then yielded to Montreal's Bill Durnan.

Line-ups:

All Stars—Goal, Brimsek (Boston); defence, Quackenbush (Detroit); J. Stewart (Detroit); centre, Lach (Montreal); wings, Richard (Montreal), Lindsay (Detroit); subs, Durnan (Montreal), Bouchard (Montreal), Colville (New York), D. Bentley (Chicago), Laprade (New York), Howe (Detroit), G. Stewart (Chicago), Dumart (Boston), Schmidt (Boston, Reardon (Montreal), Leswick (New York), Poile (Detroit).

Toronto—Goal, Broda; defence, Mortson, Thomson; centre, Kennedy; wings, Meeker, Lynn; subs, Watson, Boesch, M. Bentley, Klukay, Ezinicki, Costello, Mackell, Gardner, Juzda, Barilko, Mathers.

Officials—Referee, Bill Chadwick; linesmen, Sammy Babcock and Mush March.

Three Tied For Lead

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP). — Three teams were tied for the lead on laps in the 4th international six day bike race in the international amphitheatre today after a night of spectacular jamming. Four other combinations were in second position, two laps behind the leaders. Topping the field on points were Cesare Moretti and Montreal's Rene Cyr, the Italian-Canadian duo. But the Belgian pair of Roger Decorte and Andre Maelbranque were only a few points behind. Immediately following on the point basis were Alvaro Georgetti and Ferdinand Grillo of Italy.

4 Junior Teams Fight It Out For East. Final

By The Canadian Press

Four crack junior football teams battle it out in games at Montreal and Sarnia this Saturday to whittle the field down to two for the Eastern Canada final Saturday, Nov. 13.

Hamilton, one of the greatest football cities in the Dominion, sends a team into each of this Saturday's semi-final contests and has a chance to make the eastern championship game an all-Hamilton battle.

At Montreal, Hamilton Wildcats tackle Montreal Westmounts, champions of the Quebec Rugby Football Union. The Wildcats won the championship of the Big Four junior series, which operates in the Toronto, Hamiltotn and Niagara districts.

At Sarnia, Hamilton Tigers meet an undefeated team from the village of Point Edward for the Ontario Rugby Football Union championship.

The Wildcats, who will take a 30-man squad to Montreal, are coached by Fred Veale, once an outstanding outside wing for Queen's University and later a coach of senior Tiger and Wildcat teams in the mountain city.

Their highly-favored, free-wheeling team brings back one of the most familiar names in Canadian football. Heading their back division is Brian Timmis, Jr., son of the famed Brian who was one of the greatest middle wings in the game. Taller than his renowned father, young Brian is a great booter and battering ram plunger.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Argonauts tried playing football under United States rules in New York 23 years ago today and wound up on the short end of a 55-7 score piled by a team representing the U.S. Third Army Corps Area. The Toronto club was baffled by the Americans' use of the forward pass, then unknown to Canadian football.

Top Tracks See Wager Drops, May Cut Purses

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 — (AP)— Officials of the nation's race tracks, wrestling with declines in attendance and betting, this winter face the problem of whether or not to trim purse distribution.

Purse outlay in the United States last year was $40,642,555, compared with $45,486,793 in 1946. Figures for 1948 are incomplete, but the total is expected to approximate '947's big handout.

While major racing plants in California and Florida have announced a continuation of their rich stake events for their coming season, officials of most northern tracks have adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

The northern tracks can hold off on such announcements until February or March, at the same time keeping an eye on the turnstils and mutuel windows of the southern plants.

But they can't ignore such figures that showed up after they closed the books of their 1948 meetings.

Betting was off 27 per cent at Havre de Grace in a spring meeting hurt by competition from nearby New Jersey. At Garden State Park in New Jersey, it was down 21 per cent from 1947 Attendance at Havre de Grace was off 24 per cent from 1947; at Garden State it was down 11 per cent.

In New York, Aqueduc betting skidded 21½ per cent for its fall meeting, after taking a 13 per cent drop in the spring. At Belmont, the spring betting decline was 13½ per cent compared with 1947, and 14 4-5 per cent for the October meeting.

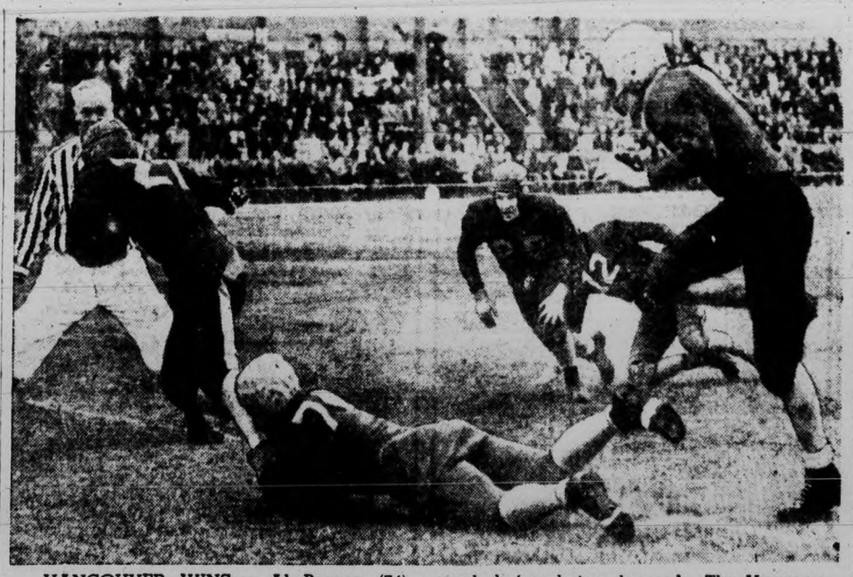
New Jersey and New York track officials say nothing has been decided about purses next year. They say they don't usually take up the subject until some time during the winter.

Slump at Chicago

In Chicago, Arlington and Washington parks reported a 10 per cent slump in betting and a 7 per cent drop in attendance this year.

Pimlico, also hard hit by the spring competition from New Jersey, saw a 24 per cent betting drop at its spring meeting.

It is the first major track to announce a slice in stakes offering: A total of $20,000 was cut from four stakes at the Baltimore Oval for the fall meeting which began October 29. The biggest was a $10,000 reduction from the Walden Stakes, from $25,000 to $15,000. Two other stakes were transferred to Laurel, which also is operated by the Maryland Jockey Club.



A Pimlico spokesman brought up the question of the triple crown classics — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, and Belmont. Each has been a $100,000 added affair now for three years.

The Maryland Jockey Club anticipated a possible reduction in the Preakness by "guaranteeing" a minimum of $50,000 for 1949 and 1950.

"But if others of the Big Three, the Derby and Belmont, continue to offer $100,000, we will undoubtedly go along.

Frankly, he said, Pimlico would be just as pleased if the stake was reduced, because the Preaknes was hiked to $100,000 "just because the others did."

At Louisville, track officials preferred not to be quoted, but persons close to Churchill Downs doubted if the Derby "jackpot" would be lowered next year — at least.

VANCOUVER WINS — Al Byman (74) hauls down Bill McMahon (27) of Calgary Tornadoes in the first half of the Western Canada junior football semi-finals between Calgary and Vancouver Blue Bombers at Calgary. McMahon raced for a gain of 33 yards before being downed. The Vancouver team won 29-12. Coming in fast at right is Bill Bennett (61) of the Bombers. Ron Campbell (25) of Calgary and Morris Carey (72) of Vancouver, are at centre rear. Les Ferguson of Calgary is the official shown.

British Seeking Four Players

LONDON, Nov. 4 (Reuters) — The visit to London of hockey teams from the continent and elsewhere is eagerly awaited in sporting circles here to compare the strength of the game in Britain and abroad.

Main talent still comes from Canada although native - born British players are beginning to compare favorably with the Canadians.

Wembly, whose two teams—Lions and Monarchs—annually draw packed houses to the Empire Pool, have cabled their former star forward Joe Beaton, now in Toronto, to hire a rink for special workouts of players who may wish to go to Wembley for the present season.

Four new players are required, mainly for the Lions whose present team are having their first season in England.

Alex Archer, another old Wembley favorite as a player, now is hockey coach at Wembley and also manager of the teams. He is in daily touch with Beaton. When the workouts in Canada are finished it will be decided, in a trans - Atlantic telephone call, which four players watched and coached by Beaton will be selected for the trip to England to augment the Wembley playing strength.

Marlies Finally Notch Win As Flyers Blast Kroehlers

By The Canadian Press

The youthful Toronto Marlboros finally did it last night.

Marlies picked up their first win of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series by nosing out the fourth-place Stratford Indians 1-0.

Marlboros had tried everything from signing up 36-year-old Flash Hollett to reshuffling their juniors for a winning combination. Until Wednesday night they had only been able to scrape up two ties—both against Owen Sound Mercurys—in five starts.

In other OHA games Wednesday night, the 1948 Memorial Cup semi-finalists Barrie Flyers hung onto third position in the junior race by blasting Stratford Kroehlers 8-1. Guelph Biltmores slipped into a fourth-place tie with Oshawa Generals by edging Galt Rockets 4-3, and the undefeated Windsor Spitfires swept to their sixth straight win to remain in second place by defeating Oshawa 4-1.

Marlies' speedy Ray Hannigan got the only goal on a pass from Johnny McLellan from behind the Indian net while both teams were shorthanded.

Outstanding Performance

Had it not been for netminder Bobby Bindernagel, Marlies would have racked up a higher score. Bindernagel played outstanding hockey, particularly in the third period when he threw back many three-man rushes.

Barrie's Gord Pennell scored twice in the first period, the first on a pass from shifty Paul Meger and the second from Stan Long and John Leckie.

Billy Mitchell tallied for Stratford while his team was shorthanded. Mitchell picked up a pass at centre ice, and broke away to beat Hurley on a hard shot that caught the corner of the net.

Flyers roared back and in the third session George Ford scored the first of five third-period goals. Paul Meger blasted in two quick markers for Barrie minutes later. Gary Gordon and Don Ashbee then scored one apiece for flyers.

Guelph scored twice in the first period, once in the second and garnered a lone goal in the third when they downed Galt.

Galt opened the scoring when Jerry Hudson banged in a rebound after a goalmouth scramble but Flyers came right back with two counters—Mill Mullen and Lorne Ferguson taking the honors.

Don Olbenholtzer notched one for Guelph when he broke up a Galt rush at the blue line and went in alone to beat netminder Somerville. Minutes later Hal Hopper got the equalizer.

Puts Galt Ahead

Billy Bercham put Galt ahead early in the third period on a three-way play with Bell and Yeomens, but Barrie drove back to get the clincher—Mullen taking the honors.

Windsor built up a 2-1 lead in the first period, battled through a scoreless second and slammed home two more markers in the third.

Right winger Larry Wilson sparked the Windsor attack with one goal and three assists. Doug MacKay and Al Van Belleghem notched the first two Windsor tallies and Bobby Thompson answered for Oshawa minutes later.

In the third period Doug McGinn and Wilson counted for Windsor. Of the eight penalties handed out, Generals got six.

All teams will sit it out tonight.

Caps And Flyers Battle To Scoreless Tie

By The Canadian Press

Ralph (Red) Almas, regular goal tender for St. Louis Flyers, Wednesday night chalked up his fourth shutout of the season with the help of teammate Don McDonald. Indianapolis Caps and the Flyers battled to a scoreless tie in an American Hockey League game.

McDonald took over the netguarding position late in the first period after Almas was carried from the ice suffering from a cut head. The injury was caused by a flying puck.

Terry Sawchuck was the unbeatable man in goal for the Caps.

Providence Reds are still holding down first place in the eastern division of the league despite a 3-2 defeat handed them by Buffalo Bisons.

Pete Kapusta got both tallies for the Reds while Lloyd Finkbeiner, Freddie Hunt and George Pargeter shared scoring honors for the victors.

Philadelphia Rockets broke a seven game losing streak as they defeated Washington Lions 5-2. The victory lifted them out of last place and pushed the Lions in to the cellar of the eastern division.

Eric Prentice led the winners attack with two goals and an assist while Kenny Kilrea had four assists.

Mike Narduzzi, Harry Pidherny and Eddie Bush countered once each. Kenny Schultz and Harry Dick were the Washington snipers.

Pittsburgh Hornets came from behind to score two final period goals and edge out a 5-4 victory over Springfield Indians.

Ray Ceresino tallied twice for the Hornets while Billy Benson, Tod Sloan and Pete Langelle divided the balance. Indians' Bill Gooden got a pair of markers. Vernon Kaiser and Harry Taylor scored once apiece.

at the half on a converted touchdown by Wright. But the Toronto team came back strongly in the second half. Wright, Martin and Arkley were best for Trinity.

The only win was registered by the junior school, who won 15-1. Jackman and Seagram starred for TCS. Yesterday the school Seventh team defeated Lakefield juniors 17-5. Molson scored two touchdowns for TCS. Hylton tallied the other and converted two.

TCS Wins One Tilt Out Of 3 With UCC

PORT HOPE, Nov. 4—In three football games here Wednesday against UCC, Trinity College School was only able to salvage one.

Although given several chances to score, TCS Thirds were unable to do so, and lost 1-0 to UCC Seconds. The Blue and White squad tallied their single point in the first quarter, with Hedges booting the ball. From then on it was a see-saw battle, the play being hampered by high winds.

TCS Fifths lost to UCC 125-pounders 15-6. Trinity led 6-5

Classy Swimmers Give Exhibition Saturday Night

Peterborough swim fans will have an opportunity of seeing Evelyn Buchanan, of the Dolphinette Club, Toronto, winner of the Canadian Olympic diving trials for women, when she gives an exhibition of her prowess on Friday and Saturday.

The aquatic show will be given at the YMCA and will include a special exhibition of competitive synchronized swimming by the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club.

One of the numbers will be a repeat performance of the Humoresque routine by Iris Forbes-Rielly and Jean Millard which won the Junior United States Indoor Synchronized Swimming championship for the Peterborough club in Detroit last spring.

A four-girl team will swim to the accompaniement of a special medley of "Butterfly" music arranged by Charles Allen. This number was first performed in public at Des Moines, Iowa, recently, and this will be the first time it has been seen by local spectators.

At Des Moines it took fourth place in the team competition followed by another entry composed of nine Peterborough girl swimmers. In appropriate costumes they put on a swimming display simulating the picture-book conception of a Persian market.

The two Junior American champions will also interpret the music of "Kiss Me Again" in a routine named Sweethearts. It is also being shown here for the first time.

One of the most crowd-pleasing events of the night should be a relay race being staged between the girls of the Ornamental Swimming Club and the boys of Gordon Minty's YMCA Swimming Club.

Gordon Crowley, 11, who received the Ornament Club's medal for most progress in swimming during the summer months, will give an exhibition of what he has learned.

In addition, the winning playground team from Inverlea Park will give an exhibition of life saving and water safety. Headed by Captain Don Stewart the team consists of Grace Sarginson, Beverley Rowley, Shirley Pritchard, Carol McKenzie, Roy Turnbull, Stewart Brooks, Don Cook and Tom Farthing.

Several other interesting events are planned for this aquatic show.

TWIN BEDS are the newest and most startling feature of the new car. Following the trend that cars be equipped with all the comforts of home, this sedan carries full length twin beds, easily made up by dropping the backrest of the front seats and fitting two accessory single mattresses over the lowered seat cushions. In this picture, only one of the beds is made up.

Reject Birth Control

BOSTON, Nov. 4. — (AP).— Massachusetts voters rejected overwhelmingly an attempt to amend a 100-year-old law which bans any form of birth control. They rejected by 200,000 votes a proposal which would make it legal for doctors to give contraceptive advice to married woman whose health would be endangered by pregnancy.

Wm. J. Shearer Lakehurst, Dies

William John Shearer, highly-respected resident of Harvey township, died at his home at Lakehurst on Tuesday following a short illness. Mr. Shearer for many years operated a general store at Lakehurst and took an active part in all community affairs. Every man in south Harvey considered 'Bill' Shearer his friend.

Born in Lakehurst 62 years ago he was the son of the late Andrew Shearer and Elizabeth Jane Elliott and he spent his whole life in the Lakehurst area. He was a staunch supporter of Knox Presbyterian Church, Lakehurst and was for years a member of the session.

Besides his wife, the former Jane Fawcett, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. N. Brown of Bancroft. There are two brothers in Buckhorn, Harry and Wallace and four sisters, Mrs. John Coones (Luella) of Lakehurst, Mrs. Charles Gardiner (Lottie), Mrs. Ian McKenzie (Margaret), and Mrs. H. Ross (Lillie), all of Peterborough. There are also three grandchildren, Joyce, Beth and Bill.

Funeral service will be from the family residence to Knox church on Friday at 2.30 p.m. The Rev. H. Kay, assisted by Mrs. S. A. Wood, will officiate and burial will be in Lakehurst cemetery.

He spent most of his life in Percy Township where he farmed. Some years ago he moved to Toronto and then to Kinmount where he died Tuesday morning.

Surviving are six sons and three daughters—Archie and Walter of Kinmount, Jack, Mathew and William of Toronto and Richard of Windsor; also Mrs. Cecil Shultz (Annie), Mrs. William Mark (Nellie) of Kinmount, Mrs. Dave Craig (Mary) of Chatham.

SETTLERS OF ONE of the 25 Jewish communities in the Negev are shown at the entrance to one of the dugouts in which they lived since the Negev was cut off from the main part of Israel by the Egyptian drive some months ago. The watertower in background is shell-damaged. The recent breach of the truce that took place here when the Egyptians refused to pass Jewish convoys, as called for by truce conditions, brought about some of the most severe fighting of the Palestine war and ended in a claimed victory for Israel. The Negev is no longer isolated and Israel has defied a United Nations' order to return to pre-truce positions.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Reuters).—By 359 votes to 295, the House of Commons Wednesday night defeated an Opposition motion—regarded as virtually a vote of censure—condemning the Labor government for "obstinately persisting" in nationalization policies when the international situation is grave.

WI Discusses Resolutions For Convention

HAVELOCK, Nov. 4—(ENS)—At the meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, a discussion took place regarding how to raise money to make a donation to the Rotary club toward the building fund for the vault at Maple Grove cemetery and it was decided to make a Christmas cake which will be drawn for sometime in December as a means of aiding this worthy cause. Mrs. R. J. McCutcheon will make the cake and she was authorized to purchase the necessary material. Mrs. H. Wood was appointed as ticket convener and to select her own helpers.

The treasurer of the cemetery fund was also authorized to turn the balance on hand over to the Vault fund.

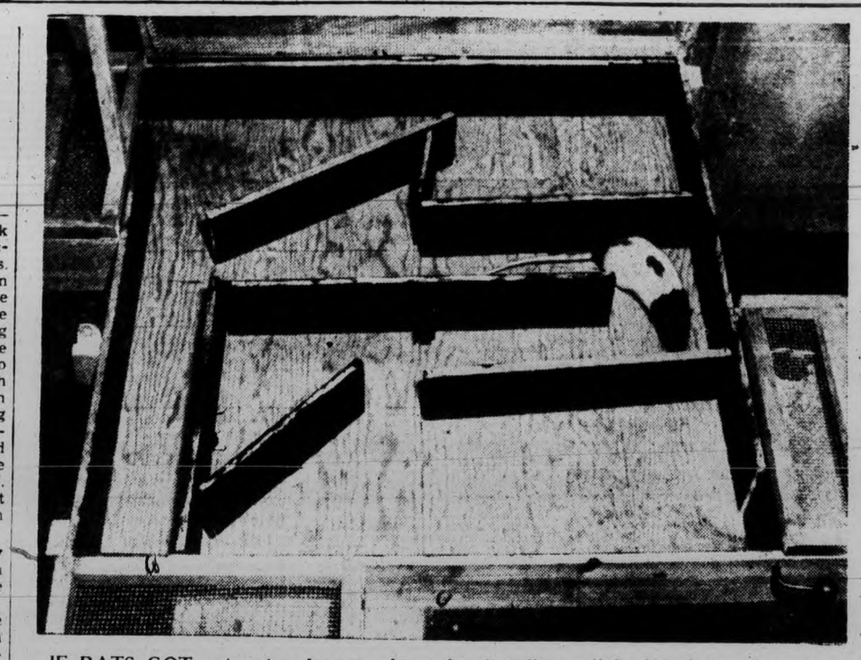
The treasurer reported that the receipts from the salvage drive in October was $14.55, for a shipment of 4,200 pounds.

The president, Mrs. H. Hoard, will attend as delegate the convention in Toronto on Nov. 10, 11, and 12.

Mrs. F. McKenzie and Mrs. F. Bennett who have been appointed leaders for a girls club to be organized the beginning of the year in affiliation with the local W. I., will attend a convention in Peterborough this week in this connection.

A communication was read regarding the Legislative grant of $3 to branches having a membership of 15, and it was decided not to make application for this grant.

Many Resolutions



Several resolutions which will be voted on at the convention in Toronto were discussed and the local branch was in accord with all of them. Walter's Falls Institute in Grey centre district and Derry West Institute in Peel district will present resolutions regarding the racial discrimination shown the Indian population of Canada. They claim that under the Department of Indian Affairs they are controlled and treated as a conquered people deprived of rights of full Canadian citizenship. They ask that the Federal Government be requested to remedy this situation so tha we may not seem hypocritical and inconsistent before our own people and other nations.

Elm Grove Institute in North York district will present a resolution that the Provincial government be asked to abandon Daylight Saving time as it is not practical for farmers during haying and harvest months owing to morning dews and agricultural production is of vital importance at the present time.

Westwood Institute in Peterborough district will go on record as requesting the Executive of the Central Ontario Area to change the date of their convention which has of late been held on dates conflicting with Remembrance Day and these dates deprive delegates and members of attending Remembrance Day services in their own communities. Other resolutions will request adequate pensions for permanently crippled civilians; reduction in the rate of postage on parcels of food and clothing to Great Britain and Europe; owing to alarming increase in juvenile delinquency throughout Ontario a strict censorship be made of movie films, magazines and comic books; increased sentences for persons guilty of cruelty to children.

The treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque for $20. expenses to Mrs. Hoard the delegate.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Hitler's Orders To Generals Cause of Nation's Defeat

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 —(AP)— The cause of Germany's military defeat was a rigidity of defence imposed by Adolf Hitler, his own generals claim.

Because of orders that every man stand and fight where he is," whole armies in Africa, Russia, and Normandy were nailed to their positions until they were hammered to bits.

German generals who survived the war say there were times on all fronts when commanders begged for permission to take timely steps back to concentrate on holding strategic points.

But Hitler ordered his generals to fight for every yard, threatening court-martial and worse for any who demurred.

"This principle," says Gen. Heinrict, who commanded the army group that faced the Russians' final push to Berlin, "was so hammered into the army it was a common saying that 'battalion commanders were afraid to move a sentry from the window to the door". Time after time, forces stayed in impossible positions until they were surrounded and captured."

These statements are a synthesis of opinions expressed to B. H. Liddell Hart, British military writer, by more than 20 ranking generals of the third Reich.

Published in England under the title "The Other Side Of The Hill," they have been brought out in the United States by William Morrow and Co. as The German Generals Talk."

There are 19 specific instances, reported by these generals, where vast numbers of troops were frittered away because of Hitler's pathological aversion to yielding ground, even temporarily.

Haphazard Thrust

Gen. Von Thoma, a famous tank commander captured at the battle of El Alamein, says Rommel's threat to Egypt developed only haphazardly. After the unexpected collapse of the British 8th Army at Tobruk, he could not resist the temptation to push on into Egypt, extending his supply lines beyond their capacity. such a sensation he could not draw back. Hitler would not let him. The result was he had to stay there until the British had gathered overwhelming forces to smash him," Von Thoma said.

In Russia and Normandy it was the same. It may surprise many that Stalingrad was not a main objective in the German drive to the Caucasus. They wanted the more important prize of oil.

When the drive for Stalingrad became a stalemate, Hitler's commanders without exception urged withdrawals to a safe winter line.

"But Hitler would not budge," Gen. Blumentritt told Liddell Hart. The result was that when the Russians launched their winter counter-offensive, his army at Stalingrad (commanded by Gen. Paulus) was cut off and forced to surrender."

The paralysis that gripped Normandy after the allied landings was another instance of nonflexibility in command. The Germans held Caen and St. Lo, but it was obvious that Gen. Von Rundstedt, who commanded the Reich forces in the west, that these two pivotal points could not be held long.

Hitler Adamant

Von Rundstedt wanted to pull back his armor and reorganize for heavy counter-attack, but Hitler angrily refused, crying "there must be no withdrawal."

Von Rundstedt begged his master to come to France for a talk, and went to meet him in Soissons, where he tried to make Hitler understand the situation.

After this meeting, Von Rundstedt was relieved of command and supplanted by Field Marshal Von Kluge, then recovering from a head injury received in Russia. Then the German front in the west collapsed.

Of the great losses before Moscow, Von Rundstedt said causticallly: "It was Hitler's decision for rigid resistance that caused the danger in the first place. It would have not arisen if he had permitted a timely withdrawal."

Fairview Pupils Entertain Parents

FAIRVIEW, Nov. 4—(ENS).—Hallowe'en was fittingly observed in the district schools. At SS No. 4 the teacher, Mrs. R. Robertson, and her pupils entertained the mothers at a jolly party in the afternoon, when a program was enjoyed and lunch was served.

At SS No. 11 the teacher, Miss Ruth Murphy, and her pupils entertained the partnts and friends at the school.

Bobby Boyce was chairman, when the pupils presented a Hallowe'en play. Community singing was enjoyed, led by Harold Lewis, with Ken Patton at the organ. Audrey and Jean Patton sang a lovely duet. Miss Murphy was in charge of a number of very humorous contests. Prizes for costumes went to Betty Allen dressed as "Little Bo-Peep," and Bobby Boyce dressed as a girl. Those not in costume were fined 10c. Home-made candy and popcorn were sold, making the evening's proceeds over $7. Ernie Trotter received the door prize. Lunch was served.

200 Coal Miners On Strike In Saskatchewan

ESTEVAN, Sask., Nov. 4 (CP) —It was business as usual today for family and partnership enterprise in this southeastern Saskatchewan coal field despite a strike of more than 200 members of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) for higher wages.

The organized miners struck Wednesday. They had asked the operators for a 20-cents-an-hour wage boost from the basic pay of 92 cents and retention of the 40-hour week. The operators offered a wage increase of 10 cents an hour and a 44-hour week.

So the U.M.W.A. men went out. Ralph Blondeau, his father and three brothers, Sigurd Zealand and Ed Tage were too busy to watch them go. The Blondeaus and the others work mines southwest of here.

The Blondeaus work the former Olshanoksi mine under lease. It's 100 feet below ground. The coal is dug by hand and powder is used for blasting. The mine may produce 25 tons daily, trucked into Estevan.

Betland and Tage work the Bridge Mine by the same method. A third family is stripping the mine owned by George Bourquin in the valley south of Estevan. All three properties were working Wednesday. None is unionized.

The largest producer in the Estevan-Bienfait field was unaffected by the strike; it has an agreement with another union.

Empty box cars have begun to leave Bienfait for the Alberta field, where a shortage is reported. A briquetting plant at Bienfait reported it had 32 cars of coal on hand, capable of producing about 672 tons of briquettes.

AS SOON AS THE BIRTH of Princess Elizabeth's baby is announced, the church bells throughout England will be rung in celebration. They will be led by the bells of historic St. Paul's cathedral, where Herbert Langdon is the ringer. Mr. Langdon is conductor of St. Paul's bell-ringers. He has been a bell-ringer himself since 1900. The royal blessed event is expected the middle of this month.

Ottawa Parley 'Just A Dream'

PARIS, Nov. 4 —(CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canadian External Affairs Minister, reiterated today that as far as he knows there are no plans for a conference at Ottawa on the Atlantic pact.

Told by Canadian correspondents here at the United Nations general assembly that some American newspapers say United States oficials are reserving Ottawa hotel suites for such a conference, Pearson branded the reports as "nonsense."

There still was much "ironing out" ahead before the pact, joining the United States and Canada with the Western Union powers, is drawn up, he said.

These remarks emerged at Pearson's first background briefing conference to Canadian reporters here. They were the only statements which the correspondents were authorized to attribute to the external affairs minister.

Bribery Inquiry Brings Repercussions

By STUART UNDERHILL.

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (CP). — An event that promises to have greater political repercussions than any debate in the House of Commons takes place outside Parliament this winter

A three-man judicial tribunal has been set up to investigate allegations of bribery involving unnamed government ministers and officials.

No one knows whom the inquiry is likely to touch before it ends. Opposition newspapers say that since the inquiry was announced Scotland Yard and law officers have been swamped with charges of governmental inefficiency and corruption.

With a general election less than two years away, Conservatives watch with bated breath. The political possibilities of the inquiry's report are unlimited.

The tribunal already has held one meeting—a half-hour get-together in a stuffy crowded room of the Royal Courts of Justice, an angular and inconvenient edifice at the entrance to Fleet Street. It discussed procedure and then adjourned to November 15

Mr. Justice Lynskey, chairman of the tribunal, said the allegations, which Prime Minister Attlee told the Commons about, "centred upon the activities of a certain alien" and was related to four specific matters

They were connected with an import licence for some amusement machinery, a building licnce, formation of football pool companies, and withdrawal of prosecution of a football pool firm charged with contravening paper regulations.

Deaf And Dumb Panhandler Lands In Jail When He Recovers Speech

LINDSAY, Nov. 3 (Staff) — Asking two innocent questions landed 71-year-old Frank Brown of Toronto in jail here.

His error was asking the same man both questions.

The first question was asked earlier one morning. It was in the form of a printed card which he handed to Charles Perkins, a Lindsay merchant. It read: "I'm deaf and dumb. Can you help me?"

Touched by the appeal, Mr. Perkins shelled out a half-dollar to the silent supplicant.

Then came the second question, later in the day, addressed to the same Mr. Perkins. This time it was asked in the normal vocal manner:

"Is this the highway to Toronto?"

Not so touched by this miraculous recovery of speech by the hitch-hiking Brown. He was picked up by Lindsay police and charged with begging. He was remanded for a week while a check of his record is made.

In court, he apparently didn't like Lindsay at all:

"If you fine me $10, I'll plead guilty... I only raised $3.65 in this dump anyway," he told Magistrate A. E. Gee.

Ask Hospital Act Altered For DP's

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The accounting section of the Ontario Hospital Association Tuesday passed a resolution asking that the Public Hospitals Act be amended to provide specific regulations governing payment of hospital costs for displaced persons.

The resolution said every Ontario hospital has unpaid accounts because displaced persons, who do not qualify as residents, have been treated without cost.

The section also asked for clarification of the terms "indigent," and "resident"; that municipalities be allowed only 10 or 15 days to dispute hospital bills instead of 20 as the Act now provides; that a county judge referee disputes between hospitals and municipalities, and that regulations governing prisoners be amended so that hospitals do not suffer a loss.

TORONTO— Workmen with a steamshovel unearthed the bones of a pioneer settler of suburban Scarboro township. A coroner said he believed the body had lain for more than a century in what now is a gravel pit.

Monod Admits Felt Uneasy In First Dive With Piccard

By HENRY RHYSSELS

Aboard Piccard-Cosyns Expedition Mothership Scaldis, Anchored in the Cap Verde Island Group, Nov. 4.—(By Wireless).—We are headed for Fogo Island, off which the first bathyscaphe dive to major depth will take place. For this first deep plunge, the underwater balloon will be operated empty.

This decision was reached following 48 hours of work on Prof. Auguste Piccard's strange craft to apply the knowledge gained during the first dive. French zoologist Theodore Monod was picked by lot to ride the bathyscaphe with Piccard.

I have now managed to corner Monod, to ask him what it was like.

"Well," he said, "let's be honest: You do feel a bit uneasy, cut off from the living world in a steel sphere under the sea. The fact that the port, which is both door and window, has to be bolted down from the outside doesn't add any sense of ease.

"Then the wait is so long while the float is being filled with gasoline and all the other preparations are being taken. There we were, hanging some 15 feet below the surfac, even though the top of the float was still awash."

Schools of Fish

Monod paused for a while to think back to that moment. "But there were compensations," he went on. "Through the cabin's port, we could see the clear blue water, flakes of white where sunlight hit the surface and was reflected back, and looking down, darker regions where white flashes besspoke schools of fish."

"How was it right at the bottom?" I wanted to know.

"At 82 feet we were actually resting on the ocean bottom," Monod replied. "The sand was brilliantly lit by our searchlight. Wave patterns marked the sand as far as we could see, made the more vivid by the shadows cast in the depressions between each little ridge.

"Clouds of tiny crustaceans floated about us, attracted by the light. But we saw only a couple of fish, strangely calm despite our inruption into their quite world.

"But soon it was time to go back up. I pressed the No. 1 ballast release. Then I rushed over to the port, just in time to see the heavy block settling in a cloud of sand where it had fallen. It was a curious sensation from inside our dry steel "bubble" to have caused that disturbance in the timeless sea floor.

"Soon, as more and more ballast dropped, the bathyscaphe could be felt moving. Then there was a perceptible acceleration. I noticed that the ocean floor couldn't be seen any more. Then we felt the movement of the waves, bobbing our float around; we were at the surface again."

Neighbors Honor Two Couples

SELWYN, Nov. 4 — (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McConkey and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gardiner (nee Hilda McConkey) were pleasantly surprised when the surrounding community gathered in the hall and tendered them a presentation when each couple received a walnut end table and magazine rack combined, a table lamp and a wall mirror in honor of their recent marriages.

Mr. and Mrs. McConkey had made their home in Montreal since their marriage but came to the home of the groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. Reg. McConkey a short time ago and intend making their home in Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner are residing in Peterborough.

The presentation address was read by Mrs. Donald Carter of Peterborough and the gifts were presented by six ladies, Mrs. Jim McConkey, Mrs. Clifford McIlmoyl, Mrs. Donald McConkey, Mrs. Wilfred Nichols, Mrs. Irvin Tully and Mrs. Chamer Sweeting.

There was a short program of community singing, solos and instrumentals, and to add to this Mr. Rehill of Peterborough very kindly presented some films, some of which he had taken himself on a tour of Canada and the U.S.A. last year, and others of the recent Olympic sports in Switzerland and featuring Barbara Ann Scott. All were thoroughly enjoyed. Lunch brought a pleasant evening to a close.

River Schooner Expert Says Business Good In '48

By PIERRE DUBOIS

QUEBEC, Nov. 4.— (CP). — The chill, grey portents of a new winter now show on the St. Lawrence river and, if you would take the word of Joseph A. Deschamps, this, for the river schooner, has been a good year.

Joe, grey-haired and with 31 years in the river schooner trade, is a man who represents a segment of Canada found only in Quebec — the St. Lawrence river schooner men.

Today Joe estimated the value of the business of the schooners on the St. Lawrence at more than $3,500,000 this year. And you have only to talk to old Joe to see that these schooner men are a race apart.

For seven months a year it's upriver with lumber, downriver with freight but life never becomes humdrum for these sailors who man a fleet of 126 homemade schooners. The majority have Quebec as their home port.

It's a business that might net an owner as much as $25,000 a season covering both shores of the river, including many ports not served by rail. Among these are the small harbors extending from Baie Comeau to Havre St. Pierre on the north shore.

Deschamps is dean of the business. He directs movements of the St. Lawrence Gulf Navigation Company's 22 vessels.

About 72 of the sturdy little craft have a tonnage of 150 or more with a loading capacity of about 400 tons. All are motor driven. The odd one carries a gybe or a piece of old sail as a reminder of the schooner-sailing days of yore.

Crews range from six to 10 men a schooner. All are French-speaking Canadians bitten early in life by the sea bug, or sons of sea-faring fathers. Many present-day owners are carrying on a business started by their grandfathers.

The season usually starts about April 10 and ends Nov. 25.

Not all the fleet ties up for the off-season. Some schooners engage in seal-hunting in the Atlantic north of Labrador. Others go to South America where they may be chartered to carry rum, lumber or fruit.

Indian 'Chief' Gets 4 Years In Manslaughter

TORONTO, Nov. 4. (CP)—Peter Powless, 66-year-old self-styled Indian chief, will serve four years in penitentiary following his conviction on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the drinking-party death of Mrs. Gwendolyn Pine.

The body of Mrs. Pine, 35-year-old friend of the accused, was found July 30 in Powless' downtown room after what witnesses at the murder trial described as a five-day spree. The woman was badly beaten.

Following Wednesday's manslaughter verdict, Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow told the jury he could not see any other possible conclusion. He said the four-year sentence was imposed in consideration of the defendant's age.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Barlow had said that if the jury thought Powless was so intoxicated as to be unaware of the consequences of his act, "that rules out murder and reduces it to manslaughter."

Asks Justice

Defence Counsel Norman Lickers, summing up, asked the jury not to take into account that the dead woman was white and the accused an Indian. The accused man was entitled to the same measure of justice as any other individual.

Crown Counsel W. O. Gibson told the jury Mrs. Pine had died of a severe brain haemorrhage which could only have been caused by violence of some sort.

"Only one person—the accused—knows what happened to her," he said.

Police charged Powless beat Mrs. Pine unmercifully. He is believed to have slept in the same bedroom afterward, unaware that the woman was dead.

Police said they believed that Mrs. Pine became jealous of attentions Powless was paying to another woman and that a quarrel followed.

Williams Wins Governorship

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 4. (AP) — Tall and boyish, G. Mennen Williams, 37, who six months ago was a minor state official, Wednesday was elected Democratic governor of Michigan.

He defeated his former boss, Governor Kim Sigler, by about 150,000 votes.

Williams, heir to a shave-cream fortune, once was named to the state liquor commission by Sigler but resigned several months ago to campaign for the governorship.

The Democrats, backed by labor, scored a smashing success as they all but swept Sigler's ticket out of the state capital. Only Fred Alger, Secretary of State, appeared in a position to sidestep the free-swinging, house-cleaning Democratic broom.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey fought to the last ballot box before he apparently edged out President Truman for Michigan's 19 electoral votes.

The Democrats took at least two seats held by Republicans in the 80th Congress. They made sizable gains in the Republican State Legislature, but nearly enough to give Williams the working majority that a governor likes.

Displaced Arabs To Demand Return of Lost Property

By SEAGHAM MAYNES

RHODES, Nov. 4—(Reuters)—Homeless Arab refugees from Palestine, crowded into neighboring Arab states, are demanding "eye for an eye" treatment for the hundreds of thousands of Jews living in Moslem countries.

United Nations officials in touch with Arab politicians have received hints that, unless the Jews in Palestine permit Arab refugees to return to their homes, many thousands of Jews in the Middle East may be driven out "in the same condition as Arabs were driven from Palestine.

Arab refugees who have lost property in Palestine are reported to be receiving semi-official support for their demands that they should be compensated from Jewish homes and property in Arab countries.

Jewish authorities have described the wiping out of Arab villages and town quarters as "slum clearance" or 'civic improvement schemes." But the Arabs are convinced that demolitions are part of a plan to ensure that Arab refugees can never return—even if return were ordered by the United Nations.

In Palestine's major part of Haifa, where only 10 per cent of the original Arab population remains, sections of the Arab quarter are being razed by demolition squads. Many buildings, particularly around the Arab market place, could be classified as slum property.

Dozens of evacuated Arab villages, particularly in Galilee, where most of the territory has been occupied by Jewish forces, are being dynamited into rubble.

Reports of demolitions, coupled with the Jewish provisional government's refusal to permit the return of Arab refugees to their homes in Jewish-occupied areas, are inflaming Arab feeling against Jews living in the Arab countries.

Arab Figures

Some Arab unconfirmed figures show up to 900,000 Jews living in the Moslem countries "from Pakistan to Morocco."

It is felt that if Arab resentment should flare up in reprisals, the full weight would probably fall on Jews living in the countries bordering Palestine, such as Syria, Egypt, the Lebanon and Iraq.

Some Jews already have been murdered in Syria and Jewish shops in Cairo have been blasted by explosives.

The Arab man-in-the-street has been led by his press and government to expect destruction of the Jewish state by Arab armies. Middle-East experts believe the Arab populations, embittered by the non-fulfilment of the promised objectives, would be ripe for trouble if the Palestine conflict were halted either by compromise or by the power of the United Nations.

Competent observers in the Middle East consider that demonstration in Iraq, Syria, Trans-Jordan and Egypt have already paved the way for more serious disorders. If the Arab peoples felt they had been "let down on the Palestine situation they might turn on their leaders.

The same sources believe, however, such demonstrations could easily be deflected from Arab officialdom toward Jews in the Arab countries who would then be at the mercy of vengeful mobs.

Many Folk Lack Vitamin C Parents Told

HAVELOCK, Nov. 4—(ENS)—Rev. P. A. Rickard of St. John's Anglican Church was the guest speaker on Monday evening at the meeting of the Home and School Association. Taking "Education" as his subject, Mr. Rickard divided it into three sections, namely the physical, intellectual and spiritual, and their relationship to the three agencies in civilization—the home, the school and the church.

Mrs. L. H. Cooke gave a very instructive health reading, entitled "Starved for Vitamins," showing from recent surveys how many people, adults as well as children, were found to be in need of vitamin C. A vocal solo, "The Sinner and the Song," was given by Mrs. S. Southward.

The pupils from Mrs. Backus' room, grades 3 and 4, presented the following program: Dance, by Shirley Jewell; piano duet, Billy Watson and Mrs. Backus; piano solo, Brian Scott; skit, "The Animal's Store," Anne Hubbel, Marie West and Tom Sanders; two songs by Jo-Ann Kennedy, Anne Ruchanan, Shirley Jewell, Robert McKenzie, Robert Revoy, Reggie Scott.

Mrs. F. McKay presided for the program, and a vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Mr. Rickard by Mrs. G. Hubbel.

The president, Mrs. James Wilde, gave a report from the recent regional conference of the Home and School Association held in Peterborough; and she also read the appeal of the H. and S. movement to parents.

It was decided to order 6 copies of the constitution, 6 manuals and 50 membership cards.

For the December meetings the school rooms will be open for the parents to inspect the pupils' work. At the meeting the prize of $2 will be presented to the room whose pupils procured the largest number of members for the H. and S. Association. A donation of $5 was given toward purchasing prizes for the oratorical contest open to pupils of Grades 7 and 8 of Havelock and district schools.

The treasurer reported $17.49 in the general fund and $4.48 in the social fund. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Lions Entertain Children On Hallowe'en

MILLBROOK, Nov. 4—(ENS)—The Lions Club repeated its entertainment for the children at a big party in the Armories from 7 to 9 p.m. Halowe'en, followed by a dance in the town hall for the older ones from 9 to midnight. In consequence of this community service, the village was free of any acts of major damage.

Noisy delight predominated at the Armouries where witches, clowns cowboys and fairies milled about in excited enjoyment. Games of various kinds, in charge of R. I. Fallis, P. E. Hamilton, J. O. Medd, Howard Lancashire, T. W. McCamus, F. Lowery, K. Pennington, kept the children amused until it was time for the parade and the judging of costumes. Ron Palmer, disguised as 'Rastus' acted as master of ceremonies. Taking charge of the parade in the various age classes were T. A. Campbell and H. A. Kerr. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. E. Ball acted as judges.

The Following Letter was delivered to downtown store operators by the Peterborough Business Men's Association in an effort to save more power.

It is reproduced here for the attention of store operators in other parts of the city, as well as offices and other business establishments.

To All Store Operators:

RE HYDRO SHORTAGE

So far, no switches have beeen pulled in Peterborough. We are told, however, that unless further savings are made by the end of this week there will be!

We feel that all store operators have reduced their power consumption to the legal minimum. To avoid daily cut-offs, though, we will have to make voluntary savings away below what the law permits.

Every store operator in Peterborough is therefore being asked to reduce his power consumption by 10% immediately. We ask that everyone—without exception—adopt the following suggestions.

(1) Change present light bulbs to an even lower wattage.
(2) Put out ALL window lights at all times.
(3) Use entrance lights only when it is dark enough and only when the store is open.
(4) Cut interior store lighting after hours to what is necessary only for police protection.
(5) If fluorescent lights are being used, put out every second one. (We know that fluorescent lights use only a small amount of power but it is the principle involved.)

Most merchants have tried to reduce every possible way but it only takes one or two exceptions to make the others light up again. This voluntary saving will work only if EVERYONE co-operates. Unless we do—this week—there will be daily cut-offs.

Remember, it's smart not to be bright. Let's be meter-misers.

Yours sincerely,
E. C. BRAUND,
President.

Damage to Rosebush's car was estimated at $15, and that to Webster's at $30.

Suggest City Needs Planning Engineer

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. XCVII, No. 103 THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1948

Say Engineer On Planning Needed Badly

Appointment of a town planning engineer was mooted on Wednesday night at a meeting of the Planning Board.

James Dutton, chairman, said that in municipalities which are smaller than Peterborough a town planning engineer had been appointed, and he recommended something similar be adopted here.

Hubert Sills strongly supported this suggestion saying that a department should be set up in the city with s omeone employed, part-time or permanently, to look after the work of planning.

James Hamilton and City Clerk E. A. Outram both emphasized the point that it was desirable to get a local man who knew something of the problems involved in advance.

Eventually it was decided that a committee consisting of Messrs. Sills, Dutton and Hamilton, would investigate the matter of hiring expert help and report back to the Board.

Also included in the motion was a provision that if it were felt necessary to get this expert help an agenda of work to be done immediately should be included.

The problem of peak traffic at noon and 5 p.m. in the downtown district came up for discussion again.

James Craig suggested that Sherbrooke St. should be widened and made a through street to Water St.

Alderman Waddell said this did not overcome the traffic congestion problem as it only caused a slow-down at Water St.

An existing city by-law requiring truck traffic coming into the city from No. 7 Highway to enter by way of Park or McDonnel Sts., was recommended to the City Council as worthy of enforcement.

A letter will be written to J. F. Pringle, general manager of the CNR asking that he consider the suggestion that CNR trains to Dranoel and Lindsay be run on the CPR lines.

By this means it is hoped to eliminate heavy freight traffic from coming through the city. Two other plans, one suggesting that the CNR should approach the city from the east, and the other that the tracks should be moved to the western outskirts of the city were both turned down by Mr. Pringle.

A request by Donald Laton that he be allowed to erect a store room was turned down as members of the Board said that the direct bounded by Monaghan Rd., Park St., King George and Park Sts. was designated as a residential area.

Reeves of the nearby townships will be asked to attend the next meeting of the Planning Board to discuss the subject of urban development. This follows complaints that unplanned building has started on the Chemong Rd. leading to Bridgenorth and also on the Lakefield Rd.

HETHERINGTON FARM attracted more than 200 prospective buyers at a home ranch sale on Wednesday. Eight animals and two foals brought good prices, according to experts. Six registered animals were reserved and will either be sold within one month or, boarded out elsewhere. Top photo shows the buying gallery looking over a remuda of range horses. Truman Victory Surprises Local Americans Prominent American citizens living in Peterobrough apparently are mostly supporters of the Republican party, and in interviews today, they expressed surprise at the unusual turn of events.

Hugh Campbell, president of the Outboard Marine Company, said: "I think it is one of the best things that ever happened now that Congress went the way it did. Dewey would not have made any progress if he had been elected with a hostile Congress. The win can be regarded as a personal victory for Truman rather than a victory for the Democrats.

Dewey showed himself a real sportsman, but if I were him I'd shave off that moustache."

Robert Abbott, general manager of the Canadian Raybesos Company, chuckled when asked for a comment. He said: "The election proved that the "poll men" are not as smart as they think they are in sounding out public opinion, and so far Mr. Gallup has not explained why he was wrong. When I heard that Thurmond had 38 electoral votes, and Dewey was sweeping New York and Pennsylvania, I couldn't see anything but a Dewey victory. One of the things that entered into the fight I believe, is the fact that there is so little difference between the programs of the two paries. Dewey avoided obligations and statements on policy and the old guard Republicans didn't like this spirit of independence."

Truman now has a better chance to carry out a program with a friendly Senate and House of Representatives. I never considered him a radical, but I think he is weak."

Mr. Abbott suggested J. H. Vernor, manager of the Western Clock Company be called.

He was reached by telephone and asked for a comment. "Sure, I'll tell you what I think of the election (---censured---)."

Dennis Fitzgerald, manager of Zellers Ltd., said: 'For years my father was on the Democratic committee of St. Lawrence county in New York, and I served after him, so I'm quite happy about the election results. Certainly it was a big surprise. Dewey disappointed me in that he seemed to lack color in his campaign and I have always thought of him as a rather colorful person."

Jack Lewis, manager of the S. S. Kresge Co., and a native of Missouri, said: "As a home stater I am glad to see Truman elected, but I don't know how he did it. My family figured Dewey would win easily. Something must have gone wrong. The Examiner can take a bow, because I believe it is the only paper to forecast the result accurately. I am waiting to see how Time Magazine wiggles out of its position in the next edition. They were so wrong it is funny."

They were: Les Reid, "Small Businesses," Len Martin, "International Accounant Society Incorporated," Andy Fowler, "Wire and Wire Drawing." Doug Vaisey, "Take Off the Colored Glasses."

Chaairman of the meeting was W. A. Curtain.

City Assesses Farm Land At $130 An Acre

After hearing from three property owners on Wednesday afternoon the city decided to reassess agricultural land obtained in the recent North Monaghan annexation at $130 an acre.

To assist City Clerk E. A. Outram and Cyril Agnew and Ralph Rowland of the assessment department in arriving at what both parties considered a fair and equitable assessment by the Court of Revision. The court, consisting of John A. Harstone, chairman, T. C. Ephgrave and Fred Finnie, acted in an advisory capacity only.

It is understood that other property owners in the annexed area will be informed that their agricultural land will be assessed at $130 an acre.

This figure was arrived at after Harold Doig, 521 Monaghan Rd., had asked for reconsideration of the assessment on two lots, both of approximately nine-and-a-half acres, assessed at $175 and $160 an acre respectively.

It was argued that as one of his lots had a sizeable frontage on Concession St. it should be assessed higher.

"I don't grow any more on one than the other," said Mr. Doig speaking against the higher figure.

As a compromise Mr. Outram suggested $130 for both lots, and this was immediately agreed upon.

A 16-acre piece of agricultural land owned by Joseph Bell, Monaghan Rd. had the land assessment reduced from $160 to $130 an acre, and that of the building from $1,905 to $1,750.

James M. Anderson, Erskine Ave., who owns a piece of agricultural land occupying about three-and-a-half acres had his assessment on buildings reduced from $1,740 to $1,600, and that on land from $150 an acre to $130.

County Given Deed For County Forest

Peterborough County has fulfilled the terms of the 10-year lease on the County Forest Area and is about to receive the deed from the Department of Lands and Forests.

Originally 2785 acres were purchased from the Crown in Dummer and Belmont townships, but additional lots were added until the area grew to about 4,000 acres. During that time 67,000 trees have been planted.

Purpose of the purchase was for reforestation and conservation Purchase price was $3,000 with an additional $1,000 to be spent on the land each year.

Other provisions which have been lived up to are: surveying and preparation of working land; employment of caretakers or supervisors (this has been postponed pending completion of a house on the property); construction of necessary buildings and purchase of essential equipment; erection of fences and firebreaks; planting of nursery stock, and the general improvement of the area.

The lease, for what is believed to be one of the largest county forest reserves in Ontario was signed by W. A. Anderson for the county and W. C. Cain, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests.

According to the patent, the lands which were originally bought for conservation purposes cannot be sold or disposed of in any way except by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

A permanent caretaker has not yet been appointed because it was felt that it was necessary for him to live on the Forest Reserve, and the house has only been completed.

Assault Charge Brings $5 Fine

D. Hunt, charged with his assault by Mrs. Marie Gordon, was found guilty by Magistrate W. R. Philp on Wednesday afternoon and fined $5.

The charge arose out of an incident in Hunt's home where Mrs. Gordon is a sub-tenant, and where she alleges he pushed her out of the plaintiff, claimed that even and suffer injury.

W. B. Gordon, who acted for the plaintiff, claimed that even if the court was to believe all of Hunt's evidence he still used more force than was necessary to eject her from the bathroom, where he was shaving and taking a bath. T. J. Carley, KC, defended Hunt.

NO ELECTROCUTION HERE

Some rumors are being spread around the city on Wednesday evening that there had been an electrical accident at one of the many construction jobs going on at the present time. All jobs were checked today but no truth was found in the tale. A radio newscast reports an Uxbridge man being electrocuted in that town yesterday. This is the only possible connection wtih the rumor that can be located.

Reserve Bid of $50,000 Prevents Sale of Horse

Tom Hetherington wasn't taking any chances on his standard bred horse "Flictor Grattan" passing out of his hands, or selling for a song at the auction on his farm near Nassau Wednesday afternoon. He slipped in a reserve bid in five figures, just to "keep out the pikers" or something.

A. M. McEwen, Toronto, auctioneer, got the bidding on this Peter Grattan Royal offspring up into the four figures, and had reached two "goings" and all but the last "gone." Then he opened a letter to see what the reserve bid said.

Over the McEwen shoulder the Examiner read "$50,000." So, Flictor Grattan was still in the old airy barn last night. But, if he is around there by December 2, Mr. Hetherington will have to do some explaining in court.

Then there was "Anovolo Royal," whose dam was by Peter Volo. The Hetherington reserve bid on her was $10,000.

"Box car numbers" was the comment of Dr. Arthur Johnston, VS, in an impartial remark.

Mr. Hetherington quite evidently didn't intend to part with "Flickshine Grattan," a sorrel horse born in 1944 of Anovolo and Peter Grattan Royal.

Must Be Out By Dec. 1

Chief Inspector C. W. Morris of Hamilton, an officer of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals told The Examiner that the Hetherington registered standard breds have to be cleared out of the old home barns by Dec. 1.

"They are not going to be here this winter," Inspector Morris said. "There is an adjourned court case of failing to provide proper care for these horse as required by section 542-A of the criminal code. In fact there are three charges pending, and if any of them come to the final stage of conviction we shall ask for the maximum penalty."

On the surface it was a voluntary sale, but quite evidently it was also reluctant, from the standpoint of Mr. Hetherington. And it was apparenty moving along chiefly by compulsion. Mr. Hetherington proceeded in an ordinary way of bringing out horses when they were asked for, but he tossed off bitterly sounding comments about "not being able to talk", references to the presence of the police and so on. Some of the horses were sold in the barns.

The sale drew probably a hundred or more men and five or six women, who are interested in the harness race horses.

Fifteen animals were listed on the sale bill. Mr. Jacb Low, solicitor for Mr. Hetherington, reported this morning that all but six were sold. Reserve bids kept them out of new hands.

"Mr. Hetherington gave an undertaking in court that he would remove the horses from that place," Mr. Low said. "For that reason the court proceedings were adjourned. Mr. Hetherington is going ahead as he said he would. The sale was held, some of the horses had reserve bids, and they will be sold, too, if Mr. Hetherington gets his price."

Boarded Out

It was intimated that if they were not all sold, the remnant group could be placed in other keeping for the winter. The horses have come off pasture looking well fed.

Some of the prices were:

"Flippie Grattan" foaled in 1940, by Peter Gratton Royal and Lady Peters, to Herb McKay, Indian River, $300.

"Valuable Lady Peters", foaled in 1944—sire Valuable Royal by Peter Grattan Royal out of Lady Peters, bought by F. M. Hawley of Belleville for $525. With her was this year's foal.

"Valuable Lady", 1942 by Peter Grattan Royal out of Lady Peters, sold to Alex Stewart of Newtonville for $760.

"Anovolo Royal" foaled in 1940 by Peter Grattan Royal out of Anovolo by Peter Volo, was covered by a $10,000 reserve bid.

Hal B. Watson of Toronto, of the Standard Bred Association, recalled to The Examiner that Peter Volo was one of the greatest sires of his breed in the world. He held the world record in three successive years, as a two-year-old, three and four. He came from Walnut Hall Farm, Lexington, Kentucky.

Valuable Line

"There is no doubt about the value of that Peter Volo line," said Mr. Watson.

The dam "Anovolo", foaled in 1929, was brought from the States by a man named Skelly and raced at the Dufferin as a three-year-old.

Herb MacKay also took "Valuable Dixie" for $350. "Sporty Grattan" for $280, went to F. M. Hawley, Belleville. A chestnut gelding was taken for $150 by C. Wanamaker of Consecon. H. Hamblin of Peterborough paid $70 for a bay gelding.

Valuable Doc, a foal of 1948, was coupled with its dam "Valuable Lady" bought by A. Stewart.

Old Peter Grattan Royal, foaled in 1922, was held by a reserve bid.

More or less confusion and doubt hung about the sale from time to time during the afternoon, but it was evidently an effect of the prevailing circumstances.

It was dusk when the horses were loaded into truck for the new owners. According to reports this round up was almost like a rodeo, as the horses objected to parting with their long freedom on the Hetherington hill west of Nassau.

London Port Workers Will Continue Strike

LONDON, Nov. 4—(Reuters)—London port workers whose strike is holding up unloading of three food ships carrying Dutch cheese, bacon, fruit and other goods today decided to continue the stoppage.

About 500 workers are involved in the strike which began yesterday over the introduction of a stacking machine to speed up the work.

The strikers claim that the machine, said to do the work of eight men, should be demonstrated before a viewing committee before being put into operation.

The stoppage is not officially supported by the union.

Hunt Deer With Bow And Arrow

Peterborough district deer hunters will probably do a lot of snickering this season when they find out that some local Robin Hoods of the newly-formed CGE Archery Club are going to try their skill in the are during deer season which opens on Nov. 8. It is understood that Ernest Brown, 140½ Park St. N., club executive, is one of the men planning to try it out.

His contention is that it is a more humane way of hunting for several reasons. First, archers stalk game instead of waiting on runways for dogs to flush out the game. Second, an arrow wound in his estimation has the best chance of healing naturally than a wound caused by a bullet which shatters bone and may never heal, even cause profuse bleeding and eventual death. To sum it all up, Mr. Brown claims it is more sportsmanlike than gun and dog deer hunting.

Aside from what dyed-in-the-wool gun hunters have to say against archery hunting, the Peterborough branch of the SPSO have their own ideas on the matter. They asked A. C. Kaye, Conservation Officer what he thought about the matter on Monday, and to clarify any existing rulings from the Department of Game and Fisheries, he phoned Toronto to learn that archery in hunting was perfectly legal provided the hunter purchased the usual deer hunting license. Last year was the first opportunity the Department had to study a like situation when four bow and arrow hunters in the London district went out and came back without any game. It is understood that the US Wildlife and Game Department ruled out archers after a two-year trial.

Mrs. W. A. Young, director, felt that a great many deer would be wounded unnecessarily and president Morley V. Powell and Mrs. Powell felt the same way and also that archers were just availing themselves of moving target practice. Game Inspector Stan Windsor said that it was legal as far as his department was concerned as long as archers had a proper license.

The SPSA conceded one point to Robin Hoods in that they stalked game sportingly without the use of dogs since they feel deer dogs developing stiff muscles and sore feet from a sudden burst of two-week hunting is an abuse to man's best friend.

So there is the case of archers vs. gun hunters vs. SPCA, a matter that will be discussed more fully by each group as the deer season draws closer. To date there has been no statement from the vitally interested fourth party, the deer themselves.

Auction Baskets On Hallowe'en

SELWYN, Nov. 4 — (ENS) — S.S. No. 9 Smith, under the direction of the school teacher, Miss Sheila Wilson, staged their annual Hallowe'en party and basket social, in the church hall Saturday. Besides the school children a large number of parents and friends attended, a great many in costume.

The judges selected Mrs. Donald McConkey and Miss Alta Bullock as "dressed up" gentlemen and Jim McConkey as a comical lady. Arriving too late for the judging but causing a great deal of merriment was Miss Esther Meiklejohn as a Scotsman.

The program was presented by the school pupils and included two short playlets, "Corn Fed Babies" and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs"; piano solo by Pauline Fitzgerald and recitations by Maureen Moloney and Joan Zeiroff. Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald was accompanist.

Mr. Howard Miles auctioned the baskets, which were gaily decorated in the orange and black colors of Hallowe'en and were shaped to represent everything from black cats to pumpkins. $47.60 was realized which will be used for improvemnts to the school.

16 Men Tossed About As Truck Leaves Road

SARNIA. Nov. 4.—(CP). —Two men were injured Wednesday when a heavy Hydro truck carrying 16 workmen swerved to avoid a collision on the plank road, six miles east of here, skidded off the wet road and came to rest 200 feet off the road after clipping of seven fence posts.

George M. Leonald, 17, of Oshawa, and Grant Maxwell, 18, of Forest, were thrown from the truck on its wild ride through a field. Maxwell suffered back and chest injuries. One of Maxwell's legs was pinned under one wheel of the truck.. Both men were treated at St. Joseph's hospital here and neither is believed to be in serious condition.

Hope No Delays In Carrying Out Foreign Policy

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (Reuters) —Most immediate reaction in diplomatic quarters here to President Truman's victory is the hope that there will be no post-election delays in carrying out the main points of existing United States foreign policy.

Real anxiety had existed in Britain and throughout Europe that the possible switch-over to a new administration, entailing the replacement of many key men in foreign affairs, might mean a hold-up in the co-ordination of policy between the United States and Western Europe when continuity was urgently needed.

The Marshall plan and an Atlantic defence agreement linking the United States, Canada, and the five European Western Union powers are the two most vital schemes in the co-ordination of joint policy between Western Europe and North America.

The fact that the personnel of the Marshall-plan administration which already combines a Republican administrator with a Democrat Ambassador-at-large, will not now be subject to upheaval raises hopes that European recovery will not be held up.

Europeans also hope that the new Congress, with its swing over to the Democrat side, will be more favorable than its predecessor to future estimates on American aid to Europe.

The prospects of a seven-power meeting, either on the level of foreign ministers or ambassadors between United States, Caanda, Belgium, Britain, France, Holland and Luxembourg, to discuss a formal constitution for an Atlantic union now are considerably advanced, though no date or place has been fixed.

In Britain, in particular, it cannot be doubted that the Democrat victory will prove far more stimulating to the Liberal and Socialist Parties than to the Conservatives.

Expect To Take New York In '50

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 4 — (CP). — Jubilant New York Democrats predicted today, in the wake of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's unsuccessful bid for the United States Presidency, that they would regain control of the state administration in the 1950 statewide election.

They interpreted Dewey's slender margin of victory in New York State Tuesday as a Democratic triumph.

Complete returns gave Dewey a plurality of 42,777. The final unofficial tally was: Dewey 2,837,858; Truman 2,795,081.

By capturing eight seats, Democrats won control of New York's Congressional delegation, 23 to 21.

In Buffalo districts, the Democratic grounds well unseated Republicans Edward Elsaesser and John Butler. The victors there were Anthony Tauriello, city councilman, and Chester Gorski.

It takes more than kisses to keep a man happy! It takes brains. The sure way to turn a man into a fault-finding grouch is to feed him wrong. You must not only give him enough food but enough of the right kind of food.

One "protective" food a man needs every day is Kellogg's All-Bran. It does two important jobs to give him that lusty, driving energy he must have to succeed in life.

First, All-Bran is made only from the outer layers of the wheat grain. That is the vital part so unusually rich in iron and other essential food elements he simply must have.

Second, All-Bran is guaranteed on a double-your-money-back basis to keep him regular naturally. And, if you want to enjoy living with him, one thing you must help your husband avoid is that "jumpy," irritable feeling constipation causes.

Let All-Bran help you. Serve it every day as a cereal with fruit, or in delicious bran muffins. Get some now. Clip this as a reminder.

Viewpoints Vary On U.S. Election

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — It all depended from what direction they were looking when spokesmen for Canada's three leading political parties expressed their views Wednesday on the United States election victory of President Truman.

Said Richard Bell, national organizer for the Progressive Conservative party: "This is a tremendous encouragement. Mr. Truman demonstrated the weakness of the so-called public opinion polls in the face of a strong and fighting personal election campaign. That's the kind George Drew knows best how to conduct."

Said Allan McLean, national director of the Liberal party: "Mr. Truman proved that the electorate seldom shoots prosperity and full employment. The returns show the people hesitate to change governments during international tension. What happened in the U.S. Tuesday will happen here in the next election."

Said Davis Lewis, national secretary of the C.C.F.: "It shows that Tories in both countries — and by Tories I mean both Liberals and Conservatives — are depending on something that doesn't exist, a swing to the right, made it plain they like new deals."

Hope Hobbling After Accident On 'Gangplank'

By BOB THOMAS.

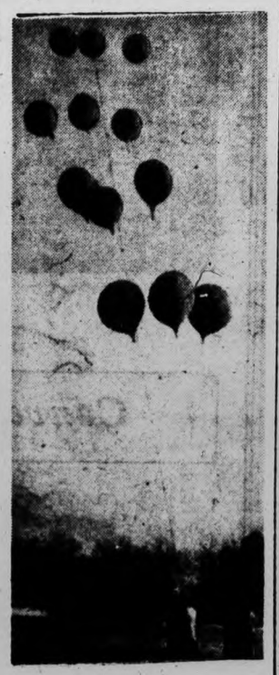
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4 (AP)— Now that Bob Hope is immobile with a sprained leg, I figured, 'tis a good time to corral him on his television plans. When I arrived at his home, Hope was standing on crutches by the front door.

"I've been in bed for three days —longest I've been in one place in my life," he said. "This sort of thing has got to go."

He hobbled into a car and said he was going to take a treatment in the training room of the Los Angeles Rams pro football team. As we drove over, he explained that the game gam was due to his over acting. He had to scramble up a gangplank for a movie scene and on the seventh try his leg folded up. The film is wryly titled "Easy Does It."

"Crosby said my hurting my leg taught him a lesson," Hope snorted. "What a laugh Crosby never moves that fast. The only time he really moves is when he goes to the bank."

To th Point



"What about Video?" I interjected, having heard he had passed up an offer from General Motors for four videocasts at $50,000 a shot.

"I just didn't have time to do it," he explained. "But I am free from Paramount and my air sponsor to do whatever I want on television—and it won't be long now."

"I'd like to do a full hour," he said. "Imagine what you could do on television. On radio, the people complain if you try to milk an audience with 'sight' stuff. (the trick of grimacing, etc., at the audience to get bigger laughs.) But on video, everything is 'sight.' I could throw the script out in the audience and have them throw it back."

Sees An Omen

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—(CP). — Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent Wednesday night pointed to President Truman's victory in the United States as a good reason why his own Liberal government should be returned for a fourth straight term. "They've had pretty good government for a long while in the U.S.," he told 150-odd young Liberals gathering to organize a new Eastern Ontario Young Liberals Association.

65 School Students Halt Week's Strike

BLAIRMORE, Auta., Nov. 4. — (CP). — Sixty-five high school students in this Southern Alberta municipality trooped back to school Wednesday, ending a week-long strike against school conditions.

The students, who walked out last Thursday in protest against poor lighting, defective heating and dirty windows, returned to the classrooms after a meeting in which two-thirds of the students voted to end the walkout.

Decision to end the strike was reached on School Board promises to remedy conditions. The students had the support of their parents in the strike.

Sees Television In Canada Within 2 Years

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.— (CP).— The CBC board of governors disclosed Wednesday that recommendations on applications for television broadcasting stations in Canada have been deferred pending study of the possibility of developing the new radio medium on a co-operative basis.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the board, said that broadcasters and manufacturers will be sounded out of the possibility of their joining the CBC in initial television projects. He said it might be three or four months before a decision on the matter is reached, but he believed that television will be introduced in Canada within the next two years.

Mr. Dunton recalled that Corley Thomson, manager oof a station in Verdun, had suggested at the Board's public meeting last week that television be developed on a co-operative basis. Mr. Thomson suggested that the CBC establish an English and a French-language station in Montreal and an English-language station in Toronto.

The stations, said Mr. Thomson, could be erected partly at the CBC's expense and party at the expense of those private stations which were interested in develing television. Time on the air would be shared by the CBC and the private stations. After the station had been operating three years, the CBC board of governors could then begin allocating the limited number of television frequencies.

He believed that the license fee for television sets might be fixed at $10 a year. This charge would be over and above the $2.50 a year now charged for radio receiving sets.

OUT OF FOG that shrouded Eastern Canada, the N. B. McLean, Canadian government icebreaker sails into Quebec harbor to end a four-month, 9,000-mile voyage in Arctic waters. The vessel was on ice watch for ships travelling the northern sea route from Churchill, Man. It also took supplies to far-northern posts.

Cartoonists Have To Make Amends

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(CP). — Cartoonists have been having a lot of fun in recent weeks poking fun at President Harry Truman and his chances of winning the election.

Since the election they have been trying to make it up to him and Rube Goldberg in the Sun did it Wednesday in the simplest and most effective way.

His cartoon space, three columns wide, was a blank space except for a line of type across the centre—"Rube Goldberg Regrets."

C. D. Batchelor in the Daily News pictured Truman as a happy-faced jumping jack springing from a box marked "Nov. 2" and shouting 'Surprise! Surprise!'

Packer, in the Mirror, pictured Truman leaning on his ax by a pile of logs labelled "The Political Polls" and the cartoon was captioned "Show Me!"

Morrison Rakes Conservatives Over The Coals

By JAMES McCOOK.

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Lord Woolton, as Conservative Party chairman, sometimes reminds his followers that Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, is a smart Labor organizer worthy of their steel in the 1950 general election.

Morrison has returned these compliments with a narsh examination of Conservative Party organization.

His conclusion is that many Conservatives are "poor little things," badly used by domineering leaders.

In his attempt to cause despondency in the Opposition Party ranks, Morrison studied the Conservative annual conferende at Llandudno, Wales. His conclusions:

A gathering with 4,000 delegates is more a mass meeting than a conference. "Perhaps that is one of the ideas of the manipulators of the Tory machine, who are not exactly enthusiastic about the rights of their rank and file."

Should Be Careful

The Conservatives - at - large should be careful or they will find a large proportion of their party's resources diverted to "the costly Tory machine in London."

Conservatives should be aware their leaders' opinions are divided on the relationship between the British Commonwealth and Western Union. "The truth is, of course"—said Morrison, in a confidential way—"that their leader (Winston Churchill) has run Western Union too hard for the Tory mind."

Morrison then wagged his celebrated quiff—a crescent of hair that rises over his forehead — and said he was sorry about the whole thing.

"I am one who would welcome both in the country and on the benches of the House of Commons a strong, intelligent and constructive Opposition Party."

Find Poison On Air

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.— (AP).—A Philadelphia chemical engineer said Wednesday he found evidence of fluorinee, a toxic poison, in the air at Donora, Pa., where 19 persons died in 36 hours last week-end. Philip Sadtler said the gas is given off in the process of making zinc and other metals, which is one of Donora's industries.

WED 75 YEARS—Married at Berthierville, near Sorel, in 1873, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Godefrey celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary at their Ramoe, Ont., home, 50 miles east of Timmins, last week-end. Natives of the Berthierville area, Mr. and Mrs. Godefrey were 17 and 18 respectively when they married.

Rap Questioning Of Police On War Records

KITCHENER, Nov. 4.—(CP).—The Ontario Police Association does not think a police officer should be questioned on his war record during a trial when such questions have no bearing on the case in question.

The association Wednesday voted full support of its Leeds and Grenville branch for its action in a recent case in Brockville where the branch claimed a lawyer took unfair advantage of a Brockville constable.

The association backed a protest made to Department of Veterans' Affairs and other officials at Ottawa.

Sgt. S. M. McFadden of Brockville, who outlined the case, said the incident occurred last summer when a policeman was cross-questioned by defence counsel on details of his service record. Sgt. McFadden said the questions had nothing to do with the case being tried.

Questions Asked

"He was asked if he was ever away without leave from the army," said the sergeant. "To my knowledge about half the Canadian and British Army was charged with that offence at one time or another, no matter how slight."

He said the officer had at the time been only 17 years of age, and there had been a question about his status as a minor. While awaiting clarification he joined a lake vessel, but later served overseas for four years, three of them in combat areas, and was honorably discharged.

The association was told that DVA department legal experts had replied that requests for such information in trial is usually left to the discretion of the court judge. But they believed in this case the witness would have been entitled to refuse to reply.

The branch has suggested an amendment to the evidence act to clarify the point.

THEIR HANDS HIGH in the air, suspected Korean rebels are forced to kneel by loyalists troops during a roundup in Sunchon. The rebels are believed to have cooperated with Communist-inspired troops to overthrow the Southern Korean government established by U.S. occupation authorities.

Complexity of US Elections Caused Delay In Results

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 —(CP)—More than 12 hours passed after all polls closed in Tuesday's Presidential election before Governor Thomas Dewey of the New York conceded victory to Harry S. Truman.

That was an indication of the almost - unprecedented closeness of the contest.

But it was more than a close vote that caused the delay. It was the complexity of American elections.

The result of a Canadian general election often is known with certainly before the last polls close in British Columbia. The party which elects most members of parliament forms the new government. Its leader normally becomes prime minister.

In the United States federal, state and some local elections are concentrated on the same day.

All on the same ballot—which sometimes looks like a rail-and-steamship ticket for a trip around the world—may be the names of the presidential candidates, the names of the vice-presidential candidates, the names of senatorial candidates, the names of candidates for the House of Representatives, the names of candidates for the state governorship and lieutenant-governorship, the names of candidates for the state senate and legislature, the names of country court judges, the proposals being advanced for amendment of state or even municipal constitutions.

And all the marks voters put on any ballot are normally counted at the same time.

To count the ballots for members of parliament at a poll in Canada may take a few minutes or an hour or so.

To count the ballots at some United States polls takes all night, all next day, and sometimes longer.

Boy 10 Entertains

HASTINGS, Nov. 4.—(ENS).—Russell, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Radcliffe, Front St., entertained several of his friends last Friday in honor of his 10th birthday. Each child was given a balloon favor and basket of candy featuring a ginger bread boy. After the lunch, served by Mrs. J. Radcliffe, the children sang "Happy Birthday Russell" as he blew out the 10 candles on a special birthday cake.

Games were enjoyed and in the evening the children all went to the town hall show.

Have Third Setback

BERLIN Nov. 4.—(Reuters).—The Berlin air lift this morning suffered its third setback this week when adverse weather conditions in Western Germany affected the flow of planes in all three Allied air corridors. British-controlled Gatow airport was receiving only half its normal quota of planes. At American-controlled Tempelhof airport the traffic was also reduced.

Gay Masquerade For New Arena

HASTINGS, Nov. 4.—(ENS).—There was a full house at the Hastings town hall on Tuesday evening when Art Jones and his band from Norwood supplied the music for a masquerade dance held to raise funds for the Hastings Memorial Centre. Over ninety per cent of the people turned out in costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crate won the grand prize of a live turkey for being the best dressed couple. The second prize of a live chicken went to Mr. E. Hess and Mr. C. Baker, dressed as a girl. Live chickens were also given to Mrs. C. Baker for the most original costume and to Leslie Scriver as the comic.

The judges were H. Fairman, M. A. O'Shea and A. Lamey. The grand march was led by Len Potten playing the bass drum.

Wm. Jones, acting as master of ceremonies, announced that the committee has planned a hard times dance to be held in the town hall on Tuesday, Nov. 16, to help raise more funds for the arena.

Late Returns Show California Truman's

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 4.—(AP).—Late returns from Tuesday's election appeared today to assure President Truman of California's 25 electoral votes and put the state in the Democratic column for the fifth straight presidential year.

After see-sawing from the start of counting throughout all day Wednesday, the lead switched apparently safely to the president Wednesday night with late returns from Los Angeles.

The vote from 13,775 of 16,802 precincts gave Truman 1,533,153; Governor Dewey, 1,475,223; and Henry Wallace, 144,704.

200 Gypsies Leave For 'Open Spaces'

HALIFAX, Nov. 4. — (CP). — Two hundred gypsies left Halifax Wednesday for "the open spaces" singing "Don't Fence Me In" in mockery of city police who, they claimed, "are out to make it hot for us."

By handcart and automobile, they departed less than an hour after one of them, dark-eyed Annie Demitro, pleaded guilty to a theft charge in police court. She was released on $500 bail and is to appear for sentence Wednesday.

Annie was arrested after an Estonian seaman, Robert Tolli, said she had stolen $12 from him while they embraced.

The girl, who gave her age first as 18, then changed it to 15, was believed to have left with the gypsies. Her case has been before two magistrates and a judge in two courts. Wednesday, when she appeared in court, she not only changed her plea, she changed lawyers.

Will Send Layette To Victor Home

Autumn Thankoffering meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United church was held at the home of Mrs. D. Richardson, 65 McDonnel St., with an attendance of 14 members and two visitors.

THS SUIT of continental green suede wool won approval at a recent fashion showing in Montreal. It is made with short jacket buttoning to the base of the throat and skirt with slight front fullness. The matching stole is lined with black Persian lamb.

Mrs. J. Donaldson presided for the opening exercises reading an address to the United Nations entitled "Is Peace on the Agenda."

Mrs. C. Cross read a letter of invitation from the Victor Home in Toronto to visit their new premises. It was unanimously agreed that a layette be sent to this home.

Theme for the worship service was "Thy Kingdom Come Through the Healing Ministry of the Church" and was conducted by Mrs. C. Ross, assisted by Mrs. H. Todd. Mrs. S. Frey gave a very pleasing solo. The Scripture was read by Mrs. C. Ross.

In absence of Miss C. Bailey, Mrs. J. Donaldson took charge of the Study Book period. The chapter was entitled, "Doctors old and new in West China," and told of three young Chinese doctors doing post graduate study at McGill University who made a solemn vow with each other to return to West China and devote their lives to Christian medical education. They represented many of the fine new doctors of China and they in turn owe their training and their inspiration for Christian service to the "old" doctors, the pioneer medical missionaries.

Mrs. D. Richardson conducted a "do you know" quizz dealing with current events about China and Mrs. C. Ross closed the meeting with prayer. A short social time followed and Mrs. H. Murduff moved a vote of thanks to the hostess.

Don Carter Heads Gladiolus Society

Annual meeting of the Peterborough and District Gladiolus Society was held in the Department of Agriculture rooms on Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance for the first meeting after the summer months. The following slate of officers was elected for 1948-49:

President, Mr. Don Carter; vice-presidents, Mr. H. W. Cardwell, Dr. J. H. Leslie; directors, Mrs. C. Plunkett, Mrs. G. Shearer, Mr. Alf. Barber, Mr. Al Spencely, Mr. Jackson, Mr. A. Harris, Mr. C. Porter; secretary-treasurer, Mrs J. H. Leslie.

Discussion followed regarding a drive for new members. All present members will endeavor to bring in new members in an effort to double membership for the coming year and make it the best ever. A drive for junior members is also being made, so they will become interested in glads and be the future growers of the district.

The secretary gave a gratifying report on the combined flower show that was held in August. All members are planning for the show next year to make it bigger and better.

SPORTY WEATHER VANE—The football season is in full cry with its customary accompaniment of horrible weather and chilblains. For the girls who believe in it, here is a coat which will get them through with comfort and style, and not cost them a fortune. Even non-sporting girls who have to tramp an icy campus for the next few months will see that the model can warm their heart cockles, as well. The coat is weather resistant, of neutral color, and three-quarter lined with alpaca pile fabric. Big, snuggly lapels and hood are made of warm mouton fur.

New Quarters Displayed To VON Board

Board members of the Victorian Order of Nurses were entertained at the tea hour Wednesday afternoon in the new headquarters located in the Royal Bank Building, corner of Hunter and George Sts. Miss Mary Ross, nurse in charge, and assistant nurses, Mrs. Marian Webster, Miss Mary Allen and Miss Wilma Armstrong, welcomed their guests, assisted by Mrs. Jean Loughman who is in charge of the office.

The more spacious quarters were displayed with pride, with particular emphasis on the fact they now have sufficient light from the windows to work with during most of the day. Walls are done in soft cream shade with venetian blinds to match and their new filing cupboards are in light oak to match their desks.

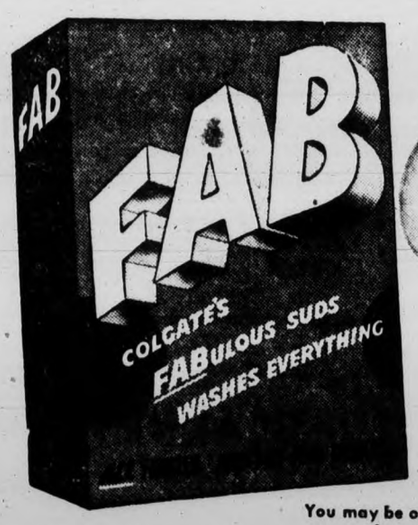
With their new office the VON has acquired a full time clerical worker who is on hand to take telephone messages and will interview those who can call in to make arrangements for service. In this way a great deal of time is saved for the nursing duties, and it is hoped that as many as possible will contact Mrs. Loughman.

The tea was poured by Mrs. F. J. Lynch and dainty refreshments served by the staff.

Mrs. Chas. Elliott Heads New Sketch Club

The Brush and Palette Sketch Club is an ambitious group which has organized recently, making the third official group of artists in the city. Second meeting was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ken Kingston, and officers were elected. Mrs. Chas. Elliott is president, with Bob Baker as vice-president, and Miss Jessie Colling the secretary-treasurer. The telephone committee includs Mrs. Leo Copp and Mrs. Elmer Brown. Membership for the present is limited to about 15, and a waiting list is being kept until there is sufficient scope for an increase. The charter members worked as a group last winter, under direction of Mrs. Winnifred Lampman. They have organized the club to further their interests and get ahead in this work. Most of the painting is in oils, though some may branch into water coloring and black and white. All are attending classes at the College and they hope to introduce further plans for instruction. An exhibit of their work is planned for the spring.

Ashburnham Group Meets



Mrs. T. O. Allison and Mrs. J. C. Hurl were co-hostesses to 17 members of Ashburnham group of the WMS of George St. United Church at their home on Hunter St. East Wednesday evening. Mrs. Ruth Reynolds presided. Scripture was read by Mrs. Harold Milburn and prayer offered by Mrs. Cuffe. THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: At one time you printed a recipe about sweet pickles the kind manufacturers put out with cauliflower. This recipe was printed in the latter part of August or the first week of September. Well, I had clipped it out and I am in the brining process. I have only a few days to brine these pickles as it called from 5 to 6 weeks. I'm in my 5th week of this process,—and have lost the recipe.

Is it at all possible that I can have this same recipe. You can either mail the recipe to me or print it in the paper, as I read your column every time and enjoy it. Thanking you in advance,

Mrs. S. DeG.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are in a pickle.

Brining Pickles

(Essential first step to making sweet or sour pickles)

Have ready 50 medium-sized or 100 very small gherkin-size cucumbers which have been freshly gathered (this amounts to 1 gallon or 6 lbs.); wash them in cold water until very clean, discarding any that are bruised or spotted. Place them in 2-gallon crock. Combine 3 quarts cold water with 1¼ cups salt, stir until thoroughly dissolved. Pour over the cucumbers, and add bay leaves. Place a board or plate over cucumbers, that fits inside the crock to kee cucumbers submerged in brine.

At the end of 24 hours pour 1 cup salt onto the board or plate over cucumbers—the salt must not touch the cucumbers directly. Keep in a cool dry place and at the end of the first week and each of the 5 succeeding weeks, add ¼ cup salt in the same way, first removing any scum which may have formed.

Using cucumbers which have been brined as above make

Sweet Pickled Cucumbers And Cauliflower

Use cauliflower which has been washed, broken into flowerets and which has stood in salt overnight—to every 3 medium-sized cauliflowers use 1 cup of salt, sprinkling it between layers.

Wash cucumbers (brined above), which have been taken from brine, 5 or 6 times in cold water. Let stand in cold water 24 hours, then drain. Rinse salt from cauliflower which has been salted overnight. Place both vegetables in stone crock, cover with cold vinegar and let stand one week. Remove pickles from vinegar and pack into hot sterile jars. Make a syrup allowing 4 cups sugar, 1 large stick cinnamon to each 4 cups vinegar, bring to boil. Pour over pickles to almost overflowing and seal. (Each quart jar pickles requires nearly 2 cups syrup.) Ready to serve in 2 weeks.

QUESTION: I have received help from you in the past and wonder if you could help me out again.

I would like a recipe for butter tarts, and pastry similar to the tarts put out by big bakeries. The pastry has a texture more like a cookie than pie pastry. The filling is kind of syrupy. I have a recipe calling for the addition of 1 tablespoon sugar to each cup of flour and beaten egg (1) added with milk to the pie pastry, but this doesn't seem to give the required texture.

Also I would appreciate an economical recipe for oatmeal cookies with date filling. Also one for gingerbread cookies or I should say 2 fine gingerbread cookies. I would like one that could be cut with cookie cutter to make gingerbread men. My Grandmother used to make gingerbread drops cookies when I was a little girl with tiny coloured seed candies on top—like caraway seed candies—but without the caraway seed. These were a drop cookie and spread out about 3 inches wide. I hope I haven't asked for too much this time. I thank you again.

Mrs. Wm. G.

ANSWER:

Banbury Tarts

Pastry (rich — for fruit tarts): Beat together 1 egg, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup ice water until very light; add ¾ cup good quality shortening and work with a spoon until lard is soft. Then add 2½ cups flour mixed with ½ teaspoon salt, and if desired, 1 or 2 teaspoons sugar. Mix with knife until blended. Use to line fluted tart shells. (If this pastry is to be kept warm it in double thickness of waxed paper.)

Filling: One cup seeded raisins, chopped or cut, 1 cup sugar (or if you prefer the filling to be syrupy when done use ½ cup sugar and ½ cup corn syrup), 1 slightly beaten egg, 1 tablespoon fine cracker crumbs, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Mix all together and fill into tart shells.

Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until tarts are golden brown.

Date Oatmeal Cookies

Two cups chopped pitted dates, 1½ cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup hot water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 cups rolled oats, ¾ cup melted shortening or butter. Mix dates, ½ cup of the brown sugar, and 1 tablespoon flour. Add the water and simmer 10 minutes, stirring. Stir in vanilla. Combine remaining cup of sugar with 1 cup flour, baking soda, and rolled oats. Add melted shortening, stirring. Spread ½ oatmeal mixture on buttered baking sheet about 12"x8"x1"; cover with date mixture; sprinkle with remaining oatmeal mixture. Pat flat. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. Cool in pan. Cut in squares with sharp knife when cold.

Filled Oatmeal Cookies

Cream 1 cup brown sugar with 2-3 cup good quality shortening or butter and lard mixed; add ½ cup sour milk mixed with 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon hot water, then add 2 cups rolled oats and 2 cups flour. Roll out very thin, cut out, spread half of each of the cut out cookies with about 1½ teaspoons of the date filling (see below) and cover this with the remaining cut-outs; press edges firmly together. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

Date filling: Boil to a smooth paste stirring 1¼ cups sugar, 1 lb. dates and ½ cup water

Soft Ginger Cookies

(for cutting out)

Three-quarters cup white or brown sugar, ½ cup dark molasses, ¾ cup melted shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon ginger, 2 teaspoons vinegar, 1 beaten egg, 2 teaspoons soda in 1 cup buttermilk or sour milk or cream. Mix very well in the order given, adding 3 cups flour or enough to roll out rather thick; carefully sprinkle sugar or coloured sugar over cookies and cut out. Bake at 360 to 375 deg. Fahr watching that bottom does not burn. A nice finish is to brush rolled out dough with beaten egg before sprinkling with sugar and cutting out.

Ginger Drop Cookies

Mix in order given 1 cup each sugar, molasses, lard or shortening—then add ¾ cup hot water, 1 teaspoon each soda (in the hot water), baking powder, ginger and cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 cups flour Drop, when mixed, on greased baking sheet, and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. watching carefully.

SCUFFS WITH A STYLE SENSE—Flat scuffs which can be toe-ed on with a minimum of groping in the dark, or in a hurry, have been rather lower case as to styling until these bunny cuffs came along. Pretty enough to pedestal your fanciest negligees, hardy as your galoshes, these models, pictured above, are pin money items with a waterproofed plastic vamp in a dozen pretty colors; good, stout soles; white rabbit fur cuff. Moreover, the fur trim is easily removable, leaving the durable, perfect bath slipper.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, November 5

A most powerful planetary set up may prove dramatic, spectacular, and breath-taking, with several adverse and conflicting aspects offset by quite as vivid and vital "beneftis" arising from potent astral forces. An upheaval an entirely unforeseen circumstance may be explosive and uprooting, while concurrently a tactful, shrewd and controlled surge of feeling and emotions, with a calm evaluation of the thrilling situation, may be wisely, astutely handled. Perhaps an uncanny stroke, with subtlety and craft, may divert the danger into constructive and happily pleasant and progressive channels. This menace and final successful climax may operate in business, romance—a surprising adventure in heart, home or spiritual aspirations.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may prepare for a year of dramatic and stirring events, of sudden and unpredictable nature, affecting the life in a radical and far-reaching manner. Business, financial, domestic and romantic ties are involved, with danger of loss and estrangements unless these be most prudently and shrewdly manipulated, free from emotional or erratic drives or incentives. Luckily the mentality is set in wise and stable groves, the emotions also partaking of a profound and subtle slant, veering toward the strategic or idealistic. In this, "hunches," intuitions, as well as reason and reserve may prove vital factors.

A child born on this day may possess a canny mixture of the mental and the emotional, with keen inner urges, but also shrewd mental or character promptings of real worth. The combination promises adventure and perhaps renown.

CWL Increasing Power to do Good

CALGARY, Nov. 4 (CP)—The Roman Catholic Women's League is steadily "increasing its power to do good," Most Rev. William M. Duke, Archbishop of Vancouver, said Wed. night at the opening session of the 28th annual national convention of the Roman Catholic Women's League in Canada.

More than 100 delegates representing every province were on hand for the opening ceremonies of the six-day convention.

Mrs. W. J. Dundin of Montreal, national president of the League, said the organization belonged to the "very fabric of the Ecclesiastical structure."

Mrs. Herman Stevens, president of the Calgary Diocesan Council, said the League would strive to increase its membership to 100,000. At present it has about 50,000 members.

DOROTHY DIX

Critical Spouse Is Cause Of Great Damage to Husband

Of all the mean wives, perhaps the very worst is the belittling wife whose favorite indoor and outdoor sport is humiliating her husband and attempting to lower his presitige in the eyes of all who know him.

The poor man who is married to such a woman is never permitted to make a statement without its being challenged. She always interrupts his conversation with strangers to correct his grammar. She is always bemoaning her fate for having married just a plodder who has no talent for money-making. She seems to get a morbid pleasure out of disparaging her husband and representing him as a fool to others.

Dorothy Dix

Now it is hard to understand why some women do this. Perhaps they have a distorted vanity that makes them want to glorify themselves at their husbands' expense, and they are to the men think that they show how superior they have married when they correct them. Perhaps they get a sadistic enjoyment out of torturing their husbands with their faultfinding, and derive a kick from watching them writhe with mortification as they are held up for ridicule.

Wife's Opinion Vital

But the belittling wife forgets that every wife writes her husband's price tag and that the world takes him pretty much at her valuation. If she thinks he is an oracle and begins every sentence with "John says," as if that settled the matter; if she is always boasting of how ambitious and determined to succeed he is, we begin quoting his opinion, too, and look upon him as an up-and-coming man.

However, if a wife always is correcting her husband and making him seem like a moron to us; if she is always wailing about what little enterprise he has and what poor judgment, why we set him down as a failure and pass him by when we have plums to hand out.

The belittling wife does her husband the greatest injury that one human being can do another. She kills his faith in himself. She paralyzes his energies. She slays his ambition. She puts out the fire on his altar.

It is a ghastly thing what a wife can do to a man when she shows him that she has no belief in him, no admiration for him. It makes life cinders, ashes and dust that isn't worth striving for. And the wonder of it is that so many men go on suffering martyrdom at their wives' hands.

We cannot help feeling a certain contempt for a man who puts up with such treatment from his wife. But, in reality, the husband may be guided by the noblest motives, by pity for a woman who is a poor neurotic, and by his determination to keep the home together for his children—no matter at what sacrifices to himself.

But the general reaction of the public is that a man should demand that his wife treat him with outward respect, and that he is more or less of a weakling if he fails to receive it.

FABRIC GLOVES MAKE NEWS—A top dressmaker tried to tell the fashion press a year ago hat her clothes were much too elegant to team with fabric gloves . . . and you should have heard the hoots of mirth. Such gloves get better and better, both in cut and colors, not to mention side trips into novelty, such as the pair shown above. In these gloves, little pancakes of self-fabric have detailed the model, fashioned tight with French knots, and for some reason not to be analyzed, the effect is very stylish and feminine. Other gloves from the same collection feature little shirrings at short wrists, take on sweeping gauntlet lengths, etcetera. Colors are wonderful from an ensembling viewpoint, ranging through pastels to hearty tones.

City Meeting Hydro Quota

Peterborough is keeping on the right side of the electric power register this week.

The daily record does not show how it is being done, but so far since the meeting in the council chamber Monday the average local use has been 222,666 kilowatt hours as compared with the Hydro quota of 229,700.

The figure for Peterboruogh Wednesday was 228,000 kwh; on Tuesday it was 234,000 and Monday 206,000.

Eight municipalities exceeded their quotas yesterday, as indicated by the only information available to Canadian Press today.

Their excess margins were: Kitchener 8,000 kwh; Niagara Falls 5,160; Oshawa 4,360; Owen Sound 2,178; Stratford 3,800; Waterloo 780; Woodstock 3,665; and Belleville 2,967.

Peterborough's margin of power saving Wednesday was 1,700 kwh. Today and Friday have still to be reckoned with in results for the five days, Monday to Friday, on which Hydro applies the quota.

This campaign of power conservation is a daily affair of vigilance over possibly offending lights and electric equipment to avoid waste of kilowatts. Each day, and also each night, count in the five-day total.

Given Seven Days

One man was convicted of drunk driving, one for vagrancy and one for being inntoxicated by Magistrate W. R. Philp in city court.

David Reid, Peterborough, was found guilty of being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle, having been found sitting in his car on Bellevue Ave. Police also confiscated a quantity of whisky and gin. He was sentenced to seven days in jail.

Isaac Taylor, Curve Lake, paid $10 and $2.50 costs when convicted on a vagrancy charge, and Cyril Houlihan, 301 Louis St., was fined $10 and $2.50 for being intoxicated in a public place.

EARLY IRON USERS

The first evidence of the use of iron by man was in 1000 B.C. in southern Europe.

Anglican Ministers Meet At St. John's

The annual conference of the clergy of the Peterborough Archdeanery met in St. John's Anglican church under the leadership of Archdeacon Robertson Tuesday afternoon.

The first topic under discussion was "Church in Rural Areas," with Rev. I. Delaney of Lakefield, GGeorge Sutherland, student of Trinity College, Toronto, Rev. R. Puxley of Roche's Pt., speaking on the subject.

Their annual service took place at the church on Tuesday night at 8 p.m. with mass choirs of the city taking part.

Rev. B. M. Wood, rector of the Comforters at Toronto, conduted the morning and afternoon sessions Wednesday, with the discussion on Evangelism. Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite is secretary of the organization.

MUSICAL GIANT

Johann Sebastian Bach, one of the world's greatest composers of serious music, was born in Germany in 1685.

Blame Children For Barn Fire

Children playing in the vicinity are believed to have started the fire that on Wednesday night seriously damaged a barn at the rear of 383 Edison Ave. Loss is set at about $250. It was not insured.

The two-storey frame barn was owned by Ivan Cunningham, 1211 Grandview Ave., who said that he had purchased it with the intention of tearing it down.

Part of it is still standing but will have to be torn down as it is beyond repair. Several wooden hen coops at the rear of the building were also burned.

Residents of that district told Fire Chief George Smith that they had seen children playing near the barn shortly before the fire was discovered.

Camera Club Has Exhibition

By T. J. ALLEN

The Peterborough Camera Club is holding its annual exhibition in the gallery of the Public Library this week. The photographs on display are numerous, the contributors considerably fewer. The work is neither exciting nor artistically distinguished but the exhibition has interest because it shows the kind of work Peterborough camera enthusiasts are doing. Probably, too, it has technical interest for amateur photographers.

Many of the photographs show an obvious attempt to make a composition. The more successful in that regard are William J. Riddle's "Water Lilies" (an overall pattern with the off-centre white of the lilies; J. Choate's "Misty Morning" (though the frame of leaves of nearer trees is much too dominant for the hazy middle-distance) and the portrait of "Victor R" by William Skene. It is a pleasant child portrait and the patterned textile background is efective. The most interesting composition is Riddle's "After Thaw" with its precise contrast of horizontal, vertical and curved lines. The dark blob of bare roof upsets the density.

E. W. Glover has contrived several attractive still-lifes and used blue and sepia for special effects. N. D. Seaton's "Winter Thaw" shows us the city in favourable guise. S. Bond's view of the Quaker Oats building is an overstatement, though the spots of light on the grain elevators give the picture some distinction. Ralph Greenhill's uprooted tree and water reveal the light and texture well. W. Goodswan's portrait of "John" and some of his scenes are noteworthy. J. McGrath had several pictorial and portrait studies of merit.

Two general criticisms might be made of the exhibition. The first is that there are too many small pictures and too few large ones for a wall display of this kind. The fault would be less noticeable if the photographers attempted to portray less, and gave us little in larger detail, on the small sheets they use—a head or leg rather than the whole body, a mouth or five toes rather than a head or leg. The second criticism relates to the first. The photographs tend to be merely pleasant routine pictures and not fresh and interpretative. A photograph should say something and not mumble about a lot of things. It should have a theme.

If a photographer has nothing to say, no mood to record, no hate to vent, no exciting moment to trap, no joke to crack, then he should be taking pictures only for commercial reasons. Prettiness in pictures is wallpaper stuff, and sentimental gush is for Christmas cards.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PLAY IS NOT THE SAME

YOU HEAR occasional devotees of the tournament style of game explain that it is exactly the same as rubber bridge in play of the cards, the only difference being in the bidding whereby you don't stretch a point to get into a game contract, but stop at the stage where you think you are in the highest safe contract. That is not true. In duplicate, it often pays the declarer to strive extra hard for extra tricks, and the defenders to take special measures to prevent them.

	♠ 10 8 5 ♥ K 9 2 ♦ K J 4 3 ♣ J 10 7
♠ Q 7 6 3 ♥ A J 3 ♦ A 10 8 5 2 ♣ A	N W E S	♠ K J 4 ♥ 7 6 5 4 ♦ 9 6 ♣ 8 6 4 2
	♠ A 9 2 ♥ Q 10 8 ♦ Q 7 ♣ K Q 9 5 3

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	Pass	Pass	2 ♣
Dbl	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
Pass	3 ♣

In rubber bridge, plenty of people with those North-South cards would wriggle themselves somehow into a No Trump game contract, and then weep salty tears over their futile straining to make it. But in the duplicate tournament, most North-South pairs got into the same 3-Clubs.

West led the diamond A and then the 5 to the Q. The club 3 lost to the A and West then made a bold try to cut down South's gleanings. He underled the heart A, with the 3. That brought the 2, 7 and 10, and made South think East had the A, which he was holding to kill off the dummy's K.

South could have made an extra trick now, if he had overtaken the club 10 with the K, used the Q to clear trumps and led a heart toward the K. So doing, he could surely reach the dummy to use his diamond honors for two spade discards, so that his losers would be only one each in hearts, diamonds and clubs.

But if he tried this and East held the heart A, as appeared certain, he couldn't ever re-enter the dummy to play the diamonds, and would lose two tricks in spades. So he led the diamond K, which East ruffed and he over-ruffed. He re-entered dummy with the club 9 to the 10 and led the diamond J for one spade discard. That method of play limited him to one spade loser, exactly making his contract. But West's bold play had enabled his side to take one more trick than anybody else against a 3-Clubs contract, giving his pair a fine score.

Tomorrow's Problem

How should South play for 3-No Trumps after West leads the heart K?

This was announced Tuesday at the section's annual meeting, which re-elected Mrs. J. Graham Harkness of St. Catharines president for a third term. Two other St. Catharines residents, Mrs. J. R. Christie and Mrs. Charles Sim, were chosen as recording secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Family Escapes Asphyxiation

OTTERVILLE, Nov. 4—(CP)—A mother and father and their two young sons had a narrow escape from death by asphyxiation Tuesday, when the father managed to reach the door of their home and call for help.

Near-victims of coal gas fumes were Mr. and Mrs. George Kellner and their two sons, aged three years, and five months.

The family moved to Otterville Saturday, taking rooms at the rear of the home of Mrs. A. J. Collver.

First indication that there was something wrong came when Mr. Kellner appeared at the door of the house about 10 a.m. Tuesday and, holding his throat, called to J. K. Wardell, who was entering his store nearby.

Mr. Wardell immediately summoned Dr. H. H. Batson and Mrs. Claude Morrison, RN. Dr. Batson had Mrs. Kellner removed by ambulance to hospital in Tillsonburg, and Mrs. Morrison and Mrs Ivan Leitch took the children to their homes. It was reported that Mr. Kellner was confined to bed in his own home.

The accident occurred, it is believed, after the Kellners, unfamiliar with the chimney in the house, checked the coal stove too closely before retiring to bed Monday night.

Coal Mines Idle In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 4. — (CP).—All coal mines in New South Wales were idle yesterday following a breakdown in negotiations to prevent a general coal strike.

The dispute began four weeks ago when the Communist-controlled Miners' Federation objected to members of the Right Wing Australian Workers' Union driving a tunnel to link two mines at Kemiera on the south coast.

The Miners' Federation claims the work should be done by miners, but A.W.U. men say rock tunnelling is always done by members of their union. The tunnellers say the miners would be satisfied if they would join the Miners' Federation, but that they would lose $16 a week by changing unions.

Completion of the three-mile tunnel would mean an estimated gain of 1,000,000 tons of coal annually.

The miners voted yesterday for the general coal strike despite last-minute intervention by Prime Minister Chifley and officers of the Council of Trade Unions. They pleaded with the men to accept arbitration as a means of settling the dispute.

Meantime A.W.U. men continue to work in the tunnel with police guards mounted at the locked entrance gats

Stomach Out Of Order: Nerves On Edge; Couldn't Sleep — Tells Of Grand Results He Got By Taking Syntona.

MR. D. W. OSTERTAG

During recent years, in addition to long working hours, I have had sickness and death in my family, which placed me under a very severe physical strain," said Mr. Delbert W. Ostertag, Welland St., Chippawa, Ont., in a recent report.

"As a result I became badly rundown. Loss of sleep, poor appetite, constant nerve tension brought on many other symptoms that made me feel sick and miserable. I suffered from indigestion, gas and sour stomach after my meals, I got dizzy spells and frequent headaches, my back and limbs ached all over and I felt tired and worn-out.

"Several friends were talking to me about Syntona, and when I read in the paper how it was helping other people, I decided to get some. Now, this medicine has surely proved a blessing to me and I don't know how I could have carried on without it. Appetite is improved so that I can once again eat and relish my meals. It helped to steady my nerves and since then I sleep soundly and have regained my lost strength and energy. Also, I am free of headaches and dizzy spells and the aches and pains are gone away."

Many, many people who have used Syntona have said, "this medicine helped me when I needed it most." Made from twelve Herbs and Roots, Syntona promotes better digestion and assimilation of food for increased strength and energy, drives excess acids and impurities from the system—makes you feel better.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Lodge Stages Gay 'State Fair'

MILLBROOK, Nov. 4—(ENS)—The "State Fair" held in the waiting-room at the weekend, under the auspices of the LOBA, Daughters of Cavan, No. 1066, was not only unique in character, but a decided financial success, more than $100 being cleared for the Lodge funds.

Mrs. J. R. Thompson, worthy mistress of the Lodge, welcomed the incoming guests and had a general oversight of the entire event, which opened at 3 p.m. with a sale of home baking, country store, and a table of fancy work all of which drew a liberal patronage. A 'touch and take' counter, with the enticing parcels tied to a gaily-trimmed Christmas tree, was in charge of Mrs. Albert Olan, and it was centre of interest for young and old alike.

Among the salesladies at the different tables, including one of lovely knitted goods, were Mrs. V. Sweeting, Mrs. I. Morgan, Mrs. Delbert Olan, and Mrs. D. L. Dunn; Shirley Forsyth was cashier.

A demonstration of bruches in various shape, and a variety of uses, was given at 4 p.m. by Mrs. S. Porter of Lindsay, a percentage of the sales going to the hostess society. One hour later service of a hot supper was an outstanding feature, tables being attractive with Hallowe'en cut-outs, Jack-O-Lanterns, and fluted runners. Among the many members who helped with the service of the guests, who came in goodly numbers in spite of the heavy blanket of fog which made driving dangerous, were Mrs. Allen Earle, Mrs. R. Carr, Mrs. E. Gilmour, Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. H. Hawkins, Mrs. G. Dew, Miss Betty Lunn, Mrs. Clifford Fallis and Mrs. Wilfrid Fallis.

Three handsome quilts were sold during the afternoon, and any fancy work or knitted wear left unsold was taken to the market at Peterborough on Saturday morning where it was disposed of readily, and orders for more received.

MRS. McALLISTER CLAIMS "BLACK OUT"

Will Continue Rationing U.S. Dollars

Ceiling Of $150 Set For Pleasure Travel By Canadians In USA

OTTAWA, Nov. (CP)—Rationing of United States dollars for pleasure travel across the border will continue for another year, Finance Minister Abbott announced today. The ceiling is $150 a person.

Mr. Abbott said the rationing will continue until Nov. 15, 1949, at least.

Lauding Canadians for their co-operation in this program to conserve exchange, the minister said the rationing of pleasure travel during the last 12 months had probably meant a saving of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 U.S. dollars.

"This substantial sum was thus made available for many essential supplies and commodities during this period," Mr. Abbott said.

Careful Assessment Made

The maximum amount of U.S. dollars any Canadian resident may obtain for pleasure travel in the next 12 months will remain at $150. In the case of children 14 years and less, the amount is $100.

The minister said decision to continue the ration was reached after a "most careful assessment of all factors relating to Canada's U.S. dollar position....it was felt that rationing of pleasure travel was less onerous than many other restrictions made necessary by exchange difficulties. Therefore, to the extent that the exchange situation had improved, it seemed reasonable to relax the more burdensome regulations first."

Travel restriction, however, he said, will be removed as soon as conditions warrant.

Some Consideration

Form "H" permits will continue to be necessary to take out of Canada more than $10 U.S. or more than $25 in U.S. and Canadian funds combined. As in the past, there will be no restriction on the number of pleasure trips taken by Canadian residents in the United States as long as the annual allotment is not exceeded.

Any U.S. dollars obtained for one trip and not used on that trip must be brought back to Canada and exchanged for Canadian dollars. Applications for U.S. dollars for business, health or educational travel will continue to receive special consideration.

Cabbies Hurt Two Men Held

OSHAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Police today held two men on charges of occasioning bodily harm, following two unsuccessful attempts to rob two Oshawa taxi drivers Thursday night. The men are Robert Lee of Oshawa and Ralph Bassett of Toronto.

Driver Bill Kashul suffered head wounds when two men beat him with an empty bottle. The other cab driver, Murray Davidson, was struck on the eye when he refused to yield to a threat of "a stickup." Both attacks occurred after the men had been picked up as fares.

Police Press Search For Guide's Murderer

FRANZ, Ont., Nov. 4.—(CP).—Police Thursday night pressed their search for the man believed responsible for the slaying of John Hargis, 68, veteran guide and bushman found ead in his burned cabin at Amyot, 25 miles west of here, two weeks ago.

Ontario provincial police officers said they believed Hargis was shot in the head and left inside the burning building.

Police were searching every train for suspects in this Northern Ontario district, 125 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

US 'Aggression Plans' Falsehood—Dulles

Organized No Fifth Columns, Officials Reply To Russian Charge

PARIS, Nov. 5 —(AP)—John Foster Dulles told the United Nations today that Russian charges of American plans for aggression are "vicious falsehoods."

Dulles, a Republican member of the United States delegation, spoke before the United Nations political committee now considering Greek charges that Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania are violating her border.

Dulles said that after the Second World War the United States withdrew her forces "cleanly" from foreign territory.

"We organized no fifth columns," he said.

Greece's northern neighbors, Dulles said, "Do not like Greece's getting the aid she asks for." But the three neighbors could correct the Balkan situation.

The American said that one delegate had termed "garbage" the report on the Greek situation by the United Nations special commission on the Balkans. The committee investigated border incidents.

Hector McNeil of Britain said the violence of the language directed at members of U.S.C.O.B. was "scarcely cricket."

U.N.S.C.O.B. members were called "dopes in moments of kindness and deceivers in moments of anger," McNeil said.

The Briton said that Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky, in criticizing the U.N.S.C.O.B. report, "tried to befog" the political committee and "tried to discredit" U.N.S.C.O.B.

"He even tried to discredit me," McNeil added. "I was accused of dishonesty because I patently attempt to be honest."

Montreal Man Slain in Hotel

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(CP).—The death of Colin Cameron MacKellar, 56-year-old Montreal textile executive, whose body was found early today in his Canadian-Club suite, was homicidal, police announced at 12.50 p.m. Thomas A. Gonzales, chief medical examiner, reported to police that the death was the result of MacKellar being kicked, punched or jumped upon.

Dr. Gonzales, who performed an autopsy in the Bellevue Hospital morgue, told detectives death was caused by internal injuries.

He expressed belief that the injuries were caused by "somebody punching, kicking or jumping upon him."

Resources of the East-Side New York detective division were put at disposal of authorities in charge of the investigation.

The body, fully clothed, was found on the floor of the living room of the suite by a maid. The pockets of MacKeller's garments had been turned inside out. Lying nearby was an empty wallet.

A few drops of amber-colored liquid was found in one of two glasses resting on a cocktail table.

No marks of violence were visible on the man's face.

A watch on MacKeller's left wrist was the only piece of jewelry on the body.

The color of the liquid in one of the glasses could have been caused by nicotine from a cigaret, authorities said as they prepared to analyze it. They added, however, they leaned heavily to the theory that the liquid contained knockout drops.

Gunmen Hold Up 10 Poker-Playing Women

Two Of Victims Swoon As Thugs Appear

TORONTO, Nov. 5—(CP)—Two of 10 poker-playing women held up by a pair of masked gunmen fainted early today when they heard a shout: "Get your purses on the table or we'll shoot."

The fainting was described by police, who said $65 in cash, a larger sum in cheques, a cigaret lighter, two purses and the women's personal papers were seized.

The gunmen then slipped away as quietly as when they came. Trying to telephone police, the women found the telephone wires had been cut. Entry was made by forcing a cellar window.

Two suspects were arrested later but were released when none of the women could identify them in a lineup.

Mrs. Elsie Green, at whose home the women were playing, told police the men brandished revolvers as they made their demands.

Garson Joins St. Laurent Likely Justice Minister

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 — (AP). — Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today Premier Garson of Manitoba has agreed to "associate himself" with the Liberal party in the Federal field — presumably to enter the Government.

Mr. St. Laurent also announced by-elections will be held Dec. 20 in the Federal riding of Marquette in Manitoba — where Mr. Garson is expected to run — and in Carlton in Ontario and Laval-Two Mountains in Quebec.

At the same time, Mr. St. Laurent announced that Hon. J. A. Glen, former Mines and Resources Minister, has resigned the Marquette seat, presumably because of ill-health.

Mr. St. Laurent did not say outright that Mr. Garson would enter the Federal Cabinet—possibly as Justice Minister—although this was regarded as a virtual certainty. He put his announcement into these words:

Answered Request

"The Premier of Manitoba has responded to my request, as leader of the Liberal Party, to associate himself with the party in the Federal field. To facilitate Mr. Garson's entry into the Commons, Hon. J. A. Glen has generously offered to resign his seat as member of parliament for Marquette."

Mr. St. Laurent said that although Mr. Glen's health was much improved, he felt it might be difficult for him to perform adequately all his duties as a member of the Commons.

"It is my hope," said Mr. St. Laurent, "that means may be found for the Government to avail itself of Mr. Glen's long and valuable experience in some way that will be of benefit to the public.

Mr. Glen has advised Mr. H. S. Rungay, the recently-elected MLA for Minnedosa, Man., who is also president of the Liberal Association of Marquette, of his resignation.

Madoc Baby Killed In Car Collision

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 5.—(CP).—One-year-old Shirley Thompson of Madoc was killed and her parents and two other persons were injured Thursday night when two automobiles collided on the Foxboro highway, four miles north of Belleville.

Most seriously injured was Mrs. Patrick Thompson, 20, mother of the dead child, who suffered concussion and a possible skull fracture. The child's father and two passengers in the car he was driving suffered facial cuts.

William G. Nicholson of Port Elgin, driver of the other car, was uninjured.

The collision is believed to have occurred when the Thompson car drove on to the highway and was struck by the car driven by Nicholson.

Reds Holding Key Positions Pushing Fight In Malta

CYPRUS, Nov. 5.— (AP). — Communists appear to be starting a fight to the finish for Cyprus, keystone of Anglo-American strategy in the eastern Mediterranean.

Soviet Russia has never had so much as a consulate on this vital island. But Moscow-training Cypriots are baffling the British colonial office with their fifth-column tactics.

A Labor party peer, Lord Winster, is governor. He is known to have filed strong warnings to London againsth the "Red rot" here. As yet, however, observers claim that no effective countermeasures have been authorized. They speak gloomily of "another Malaya."

Two big objectives are charged to Cyprus Communists:

Sabotage of Anglo-American plans for developing the island into an important air and naval base against possible Soviet encroachment in the Middle East.

Political and economic chaos leading eventually to severance of the island from the commonwealth and its adherence, under the guise of self-government, to an expanding Soviet bloc.

Under the bewildered gaze of British colonial officers, Communists here have achieved more, proportionally, than in France or Italy.

Red mayors run the majority of Cyprus towns. The largest newspaper on the island faithfully echoes Pravda.

Communists dominate the Pan-Cyprian Federation of Labor. It controls 15,000 of the island's 18,000 organized workers, including those employed by the British civil administration and British military garrisons.

In the backward, arid countryside, Communists are enrolling small farmers and the landless in a union of agriculturists.

Man Arrested In Hotel Blazes

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP)—A 36-year-old junk dealer is in jail today in connection with a $65,000 fire which destroyed two Jewish-owned hotels at nearby Carlsbad Springs, Ont. The owner of one had charged the blaze was the work of anti-Jews.

Discounting anti-Semitism as a motive, Ontario Provincial Police arrested Victor Vendette of Limoges, Ont., 20 miles east of Ottawa, just a few hours after the blaze destroyed the two hotels early Thursday.

The arrest came as the result of a search for an unidentified "tramp" seen loitering near the adjoining hotels at the summer resort, 10 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Police said Vendette admitted breaking into one of the structures and lighting a fire in the basement furnace. He said he was passing through Carsbad Springs and seeking shelter from the rain. Police believe Vendette was ransacking the hotel, locked up for the season.

Vendette admitted to police he saw flames engulf the hotel in a matter of minutes. He will appear in Carleton County Court Monday.

Max Tenebaum, proprietor of one of the hotels, said before the arrest that the fire "is the work of someone who is against Jews."

However, Samuel Epstein, son of the owner of the larger of the two hotels, said he doubted that the blaze was due to "anti-Jewish prejudice."

The fire was believed to have started at the rear of the Tenebaum building near a kitchen boiler. It spread quickly through the 17-room hotel to the adjoining 40-room Epstein building.

Suspended For Life

MONTREAL, Nov. 5—(CP)—The Quebec Racing Association announced today the suspension for life of Robert A. Edwards of Smithfield, Va., and Earl J. Ferris, Jr., of Danbury, Conn., in connection with the "ringer case" at Blue Bonnets race track, Montreal, last Aug. 28.

Hydro Plans 150 Million Power Plant

To Enlarge Queenston Build Tunnel; Will End Shortage

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—(CP). — A Hydro plan that may cost $150,000,000—to develop enough additional power from Niagara Falls to assure a permanent solution for southern Ontario's power shortage—will start immediately, Hydro chairman Robert Saunders said today.

Briefly, the scheme will consist of enlarging the existing Hydro station at Queenston, six miles below the Canadian Falls, and blasting a three-mile tunnel through solid rock under the Niagara escarpment to drive giant new turbines.

The plan, which requires signing of a treaty between the United States and Canadian governments, will cost approximately twice as much as the Queenston plant has cost to date, Mr. Saunders said in an interview. It is expected to harness an additional 380,000 horsepower, equal to about 86 per cent of Toronto's normal consumption.

Go Ahead Signal

Mr. Saunders said he has completed talks with Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent and the Department of External Affairs "and have been told to go ahead."

The next step is for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to conclude talks with the Niagara Hudson Power Company of Buffalo which controls the water on the United States side of the Niagara river. The resulting agreement will then be forwarded to Ottawa and Washington for ratification by treaty between the two countries.

Mr. Saunders said it would take four years after signing of the treaty to complete the new development.

"Of course before that, by the spring of 1950 we hope the Commission will have 240,000 horsepower of new energy from the Des Joachims plant on the Ottawa river. Another 240,000 horsepower will be available from the same plant in 1951. The total of 480,000 horsepower will make it

Oshawa Boy Dies Overcome By Fumes

OSHAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Garry Farrow, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Farrow, is dead, and his parents are in hospital here after being overcome by gas fumes early today.

Early arrival at the family home by Mrs. Floryence Tomlinson, a Red Cross nurse, saved Mrs. Farrow. The woman had been ill and was in serious condition when the nurse arrived 15 minutes before schedule. The nurse carried a key to the house and when she opened the door she found the home full of gas fumes.

Ask Gains Given Up

PARIS, Nov. 5 — (CP). — The United Nations Security Council Thursday night asked Israel to give up recent gains in the Negev Desert of southern Palestine. At a night meeting the Council voted in favor of an American-amended resolution calling on Israel to withdraw to positions held before last month's offensive against the Egyptians. The American amendment deleted specific mention of sanctions if either Israel or Egypt refused to obey the Council's orders.

Warn US Citizens To Leave Nanking Now

NANKING, Nov. 5.— (AP).— The United States embassy today urged Americans to leave Nanking and Shanghai lest triumphant Communist armies pushing south cut communications between the two great cities and the sea.

(It is the strongest hint so far that the series of government military disasters in North China and Manchuria have left China's capital and Shanghai exposed to Red attack)

An authoritative source said the 800 dependents of the United States military advisory group in China would leave shortly and even the group itself was placed on a "stand-by' basis.

There are 200 Americans in Nanking, not including the 150 employed at the embassy. By far the largest colony in China is at Shanghai, where there are 3,500.

A notice was circulated among Americans here signed by Minister Lewis Clark, while a similar notice was put out by Consul-General John M. Cabot in Shanghai.

"Military developments in north China," Clark's note read, "make it appear possible hostilities may spread further south with the result that normal transportation facilities between Nanking and its environs and the sea may be disrupted.

"Accordingly, it is suggested that unless you have compelling reasons to remain you consider the desirability of evacuation while normal transportation facilities remain available."

An estimated 400,000 government troops, most of them mediocre as fighting divisions, were massed in the general area of Suchow, east China military headquarters 170 miles northwest of Nanking.

There they face the tough, seasoned east China Communist armies of Gen. Chen Yi, which already are in a position to make an outflanking drive and isolate Suchow.

Gen Fu Tso-Yi, commander in north China where some of the best divisions left to Chiang Kai-Shek are stationed, was reported to have arrived in Nanking from Peiping for emergency conferences.

Another unconfirmed report was that Chiang was trying to persuade Fu to move his troops south for a final stand along the Yangtze.

War Bride In Witness Box Says She Was Cursed, Beaten, Hated By Husband

Mrs. McAllister Describes Night Of Shooting; Early Life With Foster Parents

Menial Work, Poverty And Illnesses

LINDSAY, Nov. 5—(CP).—Mrs. Jane McAllister, charged with murdering her husband, testified today she wanted to give him "a good scare" when she saw a revolver in their nearby Kirkfield home. "I certainly didn't mean to kill him," she said, under cross-examination by Crown Counsel Lorne Jordan. "When I saw the gun I don't know what my intentions were. I meant to frighten John."

The red-haired Scottish war bride, on trial for allegedly shooting her husband last Sept. 5, on Thursday told of a married life of cruelty and abuse.

She said she was "jealous" of her husband and that when he said "he was going to run around with other women, it made me nervous."

Looked Up And Saw Gun

She told of the events of the day of the shooting, repeating testimony given Thursday. She testified that after her husband said something about his future relations with other women, "I looked up—I saw the gun."

"After that it was kind of hazy," she said. "I couldn't tell what happened. I was feeling funny. I was hurt. My head felt funny, as if a dark cloud came over. I wasn't angry, I was sad. During the conversation (with her husband) I felt funny. After seeing the gun, the next thing I heard was the report of the gun. The dog was barking."

She said she could only remember leaving the house.

Court adjourned dramatically on Thursday a few minutes after Mrs. McAllister began to tell the story of that night. The red-haired accused straightened her body in the box and leaned back slightly. Her counsel strode rap-

Refinery Workers Join Steel Union

PORT COLBORNE, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Members of Port Colborne Refinery Workers' Union Local 637 (IUMM and SW) in two meetings called by the officers of tahe local on Thursday night, voted unanimously to affiliate with the United Steelworkers of America.

The move has been indicated during recent controversy with International Union of Mine Mill and Smelter Workers from which the Port Colborne Local by a vote of 3 to 2 withdrew on October 22.

The action was taken on a resolution presented by the executive. It followed closely the vote held Oct. 22, at which time the local voted to withdraw from IU MM and SW, at that time suspended by the Canadian Congress of Labor, and seek affiliation with the CCL directly or with some union designated by the Congress. The Smelters International has since been reinstated by the CCL.

3,000 Egyptians Escape Jewish Trap

TEL AVIV, Nov. 5 — (AP). — Egyptian troops escaped during the night from the coastal pocket at Majdal where they had been trapped during an October Israeli advance in the Negev, an official Jewish spokesman said to-day.

The spokesman said the Egyptians withdrew to the main Egyptian base in Palestine at Gaza under the cover of heavy artillery fire against Jewish positions ringing Majdal.

The Egyptians pulled out along the beach, getting "their feet wet," the spokesman said. He said they were not fired upon by Israeli forces although the waterfront is under the muzzles of Jewish guns.

He announced also that Jewish troops followed up the Egyptian withdrawal by moving into the whole Majdal area this morning. The city is in the coastal area of Southern Palestine which was given to the Arabs under the partition plan.

The Israeli advance involved up to 3,000 troops. Perhaps as many other Egyptian troops still are trapped around Faluja, 13 miles inland from Majdal. Their supplies are reported virtually exhausted and they are discribed here as faced with a choice of starvation, surrender or trying to fight their way out.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5.—(CP).—Five RCAF members were injured, one fatally, when an automobile left the road and overturned near here early today.

LAC Joseph Izidore Potvin 26, formerly of Ottawa, died of multiple injuries shortly after his admission to Westminster Veterans' Hospital here. He was born at Belleville, Ont.

Most seriously injured is LAC Thomas Joseph Higgins 23, who suffered head and possible internal injuries. He is a native of Ireland.

The other injured are reported in fair condition. They are: AC1 Richard Malcolm Doherty 22, of Vancouver, BC, head injuries; LAC Kenneth R. Lane 20, of Sydney, NS, leg and body injuries; and Cpl. William F. Baker 24, of Toronto, head injuries.

Truman Gets Hero's Welcome In Capital

Speak Plainly Of Scrapping Taft-Hartley Act, Writing New Labor Law

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—President Truman returned to Washington today and a tumultuous welcome home from cheering thousands.

As the President's train from Independence, Mo., pulled in to the station a cheer went up from the crowd surging around.

"We want Truman," they chanted.

When the train stopped, Senator Alden Barkley, the next vice-president, clambered aboard.

Truman beaming proudly, came out on the platform and greeted his running mate.

Members of the cabinet and other dignitaries hastily scrambled aboard. Some were accompanied by their wives. The hand shaking and congratulations went on for more than 10 minutes, while the crowd yelled and the Metropolitan Police Band blared away lustily.

Also waiting at the platform were President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, and Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Democrats spoke plainly of scrapping the Taft-Hartley Act and writing a few labor law for the United States; of creating a "welfare" department of cabinet rank; of public housing and, less plainly, of price controls.

One top-rung official hinted that the President also may try to bolster the country's red-ink budget without proposing a boost in taxes. That, if he can do it, will be almost as neat a feat as his "impossible" election victory.

It would mean a firm clamp on military spending, this White House adviser said privately, and perhaps the shipment of some existing land weapons to western Europe instead of buying new munitions for lend-lease delivery, as proposed.

There was a reassuring word for business. When asked about the prospect of a return to the wartime tax on excess profit—a revenue and anti-inflation plan twice urged by Truman—the official said:

"I wouldn't like to hear talk about an excess profits tax now. Perhaps business has had enough of a shock."

Hero's Welcome

The City of Washington, fairly blase by reputation, worked up something like a hero's welcome for the country boy who finds the White House lawn fine for pitching horse shoes.

All available police and 300 firemen were ordered out to handle an estimated crowd of 500,000. Government workers and school children got time off. Six bands were hustled up. Bunting and flags decked historic Pennsylvania Avenue from Union Station to the White House.

After the welcome it's back to work for Truman. He had an appointment with Budget Director James E. Webb. Topic: What can be done about that prospective $1,500,000,000 deficit next June 30?

Newfoundland Has Petition To Present

LONDON, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Arrangements are being made to have a petition of the Newfoundland Responsible Government League presented to the House of Commons, L. D. Gammans, Conservative member for Hornsey, told The Canadian Press today.

The petition will ask Britain to allow an established responsible government in Newfoundland to conduct negotiations with Canada on Confederation. The British government has taken the position that the Newfoundland vote for Confederation was representative and negotiations with Canada can proceed.

Gammans, who asked a series of questions in the Commons on Newfoundland recently, said that the petition is being brought to London next week by League delegates might be presented to the House by Sir Alan Herbert, Independent member for Oxford

Living Costs Jump Again, Rate Slower

Seven-Tenths Of Point Increase Noted During September

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Another increase in the cost-of-living index is on the records today, but the rate of rise is decreasing.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday that the index is on the records today, but the rate of rise is decreasing.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday that the index advanced only seven-tenths of a point during September, climbing from 158.9 at Sept. 1 to 159.6 at Oct. 1. A year ago — at Oct. 1, 1947 — the index stood at 142.2.

The Bureau said the advance in the index since the outbreak of war now totals 58.3 per cent. It is calculated on the basis that living costs in 1935-39 equalled 100.

The September gain was ascribed to higher costs for foods, clothing, fuels and home furnishings. The group indexes covering these items advanced while rents and miscellaneous items held steady.

The food index moved up to 205.4 from 203.9. It was propelled mainly by higher prices for eggs, meats and citrus fruits. There were declines in vegetables but not sufficient to keep the index down.

The fuel series went up — rising from 128.5 to 128.8 — on higher prices for coal and coke.

The clothing index rose from 179.9 to 181.0 and home-furnishings and services from 164.2 to 165.1. The Bureau said many price averages for items in these two groups recorded small advances, tapering off earlier increases in new autumn lines of merchandise.

In the wholesale group of prices, the Bureau reported that its index of industrial material prices declined from 162.4 for the week ended Sept. 24 to 161.6 for the week ended Oct. 29. Canadian farm products eased from 144.2 to 143.2 in the same period.

Prices Skid Downward In Heavy Trading

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Prices skidded downwards on the Stock Exchange in heavy trading here today. The market opened on firm trend and appeared to be stretching Thursday's strong advance.

Industrials and base metals suffered the steepest declines while golds began the downhill slide in mid-session.

Steels and utilities led the losers in the industrial groupings. Losses ranged to three points and blue chip specialities were affected most. Liquors and papers were easier on fractional declines and refining oils also lost. Trading was brisk and appeared to accelerate as the descent became more pronounced.

Thursday's strong gains in the base metals list were wiped out in brisk trading today. Smelters, Noranda, International Nickel, Pen Oreille, East Sullivan and Waite Amulet were among the losers. Several issues touched new highs in early trading but soon followed the downward trend.

POW Told To Get Out

LONDON, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Home Secretary Chuter Ede Thursday told the House of Commons that he had issued an order requiring Erwin Scholz, former German prioner-of-war, to get out of Britain and "stay out." Scholz was one of many German prisoners discharged in Britain to work in agriculture. He was said to have "beaten the big drum" at the Mosley union movement meeting in June.

idly across the courtroom and Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven asked "What's the matter?"

"It's nothing, Sir. Just standing up so long, I guess," she replied falteringly.

"The court will adjourn until tomorrow morning," said His Lordship.

Mrs. McAllister's evidence, which continues today, recounted her background—25 years in which foster - parents, menial work, poverty and serious illnesses played a big part. She is the first witness to be called by Defence Counsel H. E. Richardson of Lindsay.

On the day of the shooting, she said she and her husband had attended a veterans' service at Balsover. Dinner that night was at the home of John's parents. After supper, she changed to shirt and slacks and had gone fishing until it was dark.

She left the cottage of her parents-in-law in the truck with her husband.

"I asked John if he was going to work the next day. He said, 'No, I'm going to sit in Coby all day,'" referring to a hotel in Coboconk.

When they arrived at their home, John went in first and lit the coal-oil lamp on the kitchen table.

She said she asked him where he had gone that evening when he left the group at the cottage.

"You and your — — questions," he had replied, she said.

"He said he was going to start running around with other women," the war bride testified. During her time on the stand her voice did not often falter, although many times her words were practically inaudible even to her own counsel.

She asked John if he wanted some tea, he answered "all right" and she put the kettle on the stove and got out the cups, cream and sugar on the table.

John went outside for a minute.

"When he came back in, he walked right past me and into the bedroom. I asked him if he had any special woman in mind. He told me to 'shut my —— mouth.'"

"I followed my husband into the bedroom. I took off my shoes. He said something about times have changed. He was sitting on the edge of the bed. I said 'You don't have to tell me times have changed. I know it. The way you've treated me in front of other women is awful....' I went back into the kitchen."

"John said, 'If ever there was a —— whose guts I've hated, it's you. You can't even have a family, but I know where I can plant my seed. . . .'"

"I remember looking up and seeing the gun . . . I was pretty upset . . . after that I remember the dog jumping up and I heard him barking. I was standing by the bedroom door. The last time I saw John he was sitting on the edge of thet bed. I never saw him again."

"When the dog barked, it kept jumping up on me and I went out with it. I don't recall walking from our place to Mrs. Barrett's (next door) . . . but I vaguely remember meeting Miss McCallum. •I remember Miss McCallum's car lights shining in my face . . . she said 'What's that you've got in your hand?' The only thing I remember saying is 'What have I done?" From that time on, I don't remember anything until I fell and hurt my foot."

Witness Showed Control

Through the long evidence she gave—the longest time any witness has been in the box in the trial's three days and not yet concluded—Mrs. McAllister showed control of herself. Her words were spoken softly, with a faint Scottish clipped burr noticeable. She stood quietly in the box, with her hands part of the time in the big pockets of her coat, which she kept tightly closed around her neck and at other times she gripped the sides of the witness box.

Her deep red hair was tightly bound against her head Thursday. The first two days, she had a single ribbon-tied braid at the back. At one point, after she had been under questioning of her own counsel for an hour and a half, a court officer moved to the counsel table, poured her a glass of water. She smiled at him and drank it all.

Giving the details of her life, she said she was born in Greenock, Scotland. Her father had been killed in a railway accident when she was 10 years old. From seven to 13 years of age, she had been raised by her grandmother in Southern Ireland. She left school when she was 13 years old, went to work in a boarding house She was working in a factory by the time she was 14. A nervous breakdown then had forced her to leave that work.

Next position was as general kitchen help in a hospital. That job, too, was lost when ill-health forced her to leave. She next worked for three years in the laundry of a big hospital in Greenock. There the trouble continued, with crying spells, sleeplessness and general nervous ailments. She said she did not have the money to take the time off which was recommended by doctors.

She was working there when the war started and the hospital was taken over by Canadian medical forces as a casualty hospital. Several air-raids were near the establishment and her own home was bombed. On some of those hectic days, she told the jury, she did not get two hours sleep in a day with the war emergency.

She worked at the Greenock hospital until December 1942, when she entered a factory and became a welder. She met John McAllister a year before that, at the hospital. He was a Sick Bay Attendant with the Canadian naval forces and she saw him regularly from their meeting in 1941.

They were married in Birkenhead, England, in February, 1945.

Throughout her evidence, Mrs. McAllister referred to the dead man as "my husband" or "John."

Had Concussion Wound

During the war, John was at the Greenock hospital frequently for treatment for a concussion wound he had received. Besides his naval service, he had also served with the army in Europe, she said.

John returned to Canada in July 1944 and she came over in March of 1946. They had lived at first with his parents at Hamilton.

When she first saw John on her arrival at Hamilton, she said he looked "awful."

"He was pale and thin. He looked different."

John was not working then. He went back to his former job in a Hamilton steel plant for only two months, but quit because the noise bothered his head trouble. She had been in hospital in Hamilton for a period. Soon after her release, she also went to work in a Hamilton factory.

They left the city on July 5, 1946—her birthday—as the doctors advised a three month rest for John. She joined him a week later at Kirkfield, where they moved into the log structure which had been their home since and where the shooting took place. She recalled that it was "awfully dirty" when they moved in—with old furniture, lumber, other items scattered around. Rent had been one dollar a month.

John worked for a short time at a stone crushing firm near Kirkfield. That winter, they both returned to Hamilton and worked in factories there.

They returned to Kirkfield in April of 1947. That spring, on a trip to Sudbury where John looked (unsuccessfully) for some land she becames ill after they slept all night in their truck.

Unable to eat and feeling miserable, she went to doctors. On April 30, 1947, an operation was performed at Bracebridge. It was for an abnormal pregnancy. After an 11-day stay in hospital she returned to Kirkfield with John.

"John looked after me."

He started work in May. During that time, in pain, she was unable to walk erect comfortably but managed to do the housework, then she would go back to bed. Relationships with John had been "all right," at that time, she said.

During last winter (1947-48), John had no work and drew unemployment insurance. He had a small trucking business and did work on the Trent Canal, she said

In March of this year, relations had began to strain a bit. John "beat me up pretty bad—I was pretty well blackened up," she told the court, describing an attack by her husband before others. He had struck her and kicked her, she said. That had been occasioned when she had not got out of bed one morning when he called. She had been cold and sat up by the fire most ot the night, she said.

He began calling her curse names.

"It got to be a natural way of speaking for John.

The first summer in Canada, she also recalled, she had suffered from severe sunburn and John had hit her with his hand.

"That was when some people got the impression that I had an awful bad temper," she said.

This spring, anaemic and underweight, she had been under doctor's care again. Another operation had been performed, in May. In this, one ovary and the uterus had been removed. The result was that she could not have children, she said.

During this period of illness, there had been only John to look after her in their lonely nome. One week she stayed at the home of Mrs. Angus McCallum. Then John started work with the canal

"John did the best he could, although he was away a lot."

On jobs through the area, John usually returned about seven or eight o'clock in the evenings. Then, she said, he would often go out again and not return until perhaps midnight. No one was with her during those evenings, she said. The nearest neighbor was elderly Mrs. Barrett.

Question of Religion

Mrs. McAllister said that she is a Roman Catholic and John was a Protestant. The question of religion had caused no dispute, she said. She mentioned one occasion, however, when Mrs. Barrett was visiting their home and discussing religion. John had entered the house and told her that 'the discussion of religion is barred in this house.'

The Crown rested its acse of murder shortly after the opening of Thursday afternoon's sitting. This was announced by Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan of Lindsay after His Lordship had ruled as inadmissable alleged statements made by the accused woman to police officers on the morning of her arrest, following the shooting of her husband.

Defendant Cross-Examined

One hour before the court opened today for the fourth, and perhaps the final, day of the trial the spectators' sections were filled. This is the first time a woman has faced a murder charge in Victoria county. It is also "first" murder case for Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan and defence counsel H. E Richardson, both of Lindsay. Both are young men. Mr. Richardson has been practising law for less than two years.

Last murder trial in Lindsay was in 1943 when Howard McGinnis. found guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter, was sentenced to twelve years in prison. The charge in that case also concerned a shooting.

The incidents of which the young couple had quarrelled were the basis for the cross-examination by Mr. Jordan, and included an admission from the accused that her temper was "not too calm." She admitted an occasion in their cottage when John "beat her up," and in self-defence she took a bread knife in her hand. She denied making any advances towards him. She denied that she kicked John then and that she threw a butter dish at him. About the curse terms John used to her, she said he used them "with all the venom that was in a man." The episode of the sunburn slap by John on her back, mentioned by her on Thursday, in which she slapped him back and threw several tin can at him, who was laughing, she said she was not laughing. "After that I heard all over about what an awful temper I had."

Thrcugh the first full hour of questioning under Mr. Jordan, the accused went over again the story of her childhood, her work in Scotland, meeting and marrying John McAllister. She told of her life in Canada with John, answering the questions carefully and fully. She kept her eyes steadily on the Crown Counsel. She showed some nervousness under the Crown's queries. She bit her lips, shifted occasionally from one foot to the other, and her hands lightly gripped the sides of the witness box.

The last part of Wednesday's sitting and all Thursday morning was taken up with hearing and argument of evidence "avoir dier" —with the jury absent. The Crown's attempt to have admitted the alleged statements was not successful. Mr. Justice Treleaven said he would not permit the jury to hear the statements because "the accused was not in a physical or mental condition to appreciate the significance of the warning or, for that matter, what she was doing . . ."

"On the facts of the case," said His Lordship, "I do not see how it could be otherwise. She had nothing to eat since six o'clock the night before. She had been wandering through the open and the woods barefooted all night At one time, she fell and sprained her ankle and had difficulty getting up. She continued this wandering until met by police the next morning . . . the whole situation was like . . . a bad dream . . in her mind. In the interests of justice, statements made under these circumstances should not be heard . . . it would not be safe or right . . . ."

nearly as big a generating plant as Queenston.

No Bad Effects

The Niagara undertaking will mean closing down of three Canadian generating stations in the immediate vicinity of the Falls. Mr Saunders said the additional power from the Queenston enlargement will be used "without using a single extra drop of water or in any way marring the scenic grandeur of Niagara Falls."

Closing of the three stations is the answer, Mr. Saunders said they cannot produce as much power as turbines at Queenston, because Queenston is the only plant on the river making full use of the maximum drop from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario. At the Falls the drop is 225 feet, at Queenston 315 feet.

Biggest engineering headache is expected to be the three-mile tunnel to be driven above the Horseshoe Falls to a spot opposite the Whirlpool Rapids.

After water from the tunnel reaches the Whirlpool Rapids, it will surface to flow by open cut the balance of the way.

Enlargement of the plant is expected to boost power output by 40 per cent on the Canadian side of the river, where four plants currently develop about 930,000 horse-power.

U.S. Secretly Arms Three French Divisions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — (AP). — The United States is getting off to an unexpectedly early start restoring the military strength of western Europe.

There has been some official concern here for months over how the defences of leading non-Communist countries in Europe might be bolstered pending Congressional action on the formal American program of military support.

At least a part of the answer appeared today to have been given in an Associated Press dispatch from Frankfurt reporting that the American army has secretly revitalized three French divisions with new American equipment valued at $5,000,000. These divisions are said now to be on a war footing in the French zone of occupied Germany.

Military and State department officials maintained silence on the Frankfurt report but there was no tendency in any quarter to deny the disclosure.

Evidently the new equipment came out of Gen. Lucius B. Clay's reserve stocks and is being replaced by new shipments of supplies to Clay from the United States.

It appears probably that there considerations were paramount in the thinking of officials here:

1. The long-range aim of the Truman administration, with support of Republican foreign policy leaders, to build up the western European bloc as a centre of military power and a stabilizing force to offset Russian power in eastern Europe.

2. The urgent need to undertake this task as quickly as possible, particularly at the point where any Soviet threat most likely would fall, namely western Germany.

3. The desirability of having in the French zone of occupation a force strong enough to deal with any international effort by the Communists to disrupt the stability of western Germany.

France has been peculiarly dependent on military help from the United States since the war.

FOG PERSISTS

Fog patches plagued transport drivers and motorists along highways 2 and 28 after midnight Thursday. Between Dale and Welcome, a four-mile stretch, it was particularly bad, and the fact that there is no white line on that road added to the hazard. North of Bewdley almost to the Kawartha club the fog was very heavy.

Thinks Russia Wants Peace Red Dean Says

HAMILTON, Nov. 5 — (CP). — The "Red Dean" of Canterbury reiterated Thursday he believes Russia's one desire is peace.

"They have more cause to fear war than we," the 73-year-old Anglican cleric told nearly 1,400 people who heard the first address in his current Canadian lecture tour.

The Dean, Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, returns to Toronto today, despite the protests of Controller David Balfour who said he would try to find a way to stop the Dean from speaking there.

His arrival from England by air Wednesday touched off a storm of controversy because of his consistent support of the Soviet Union. Officials of the Church of England in Canada said he was "on his own" during his visit.

Wearing the gaiters and knee breeches of an Anglican dean with a diamond-studded crucifix given him by Patriarch Alexei of the Russian Orthodox Church, the Dean said Russia was primarily interested in rebuilding war-devastated sections of the country.

Near the end of his 90-minute speech he was interrupted by a heckler.

"Let us try to understand the Russians,' he said. "We can teach them many things. They can teach us many things."

"Yes, they can teach us mass murder," shouted a man in the balcony of the collegiate auditorium where he spoke.

House System Introduced At High School

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5 — (ENS).—An extensive program in which the students take a prominent part has been introduced into the High School. It is called the "House System," and is producing very satisfactory results in other educational centres. Its chief aims are to promote loyalty, co-operation and good sportsmanship in the school and to foster student leadership in extra-curricular activities.

The students are divided into three houses with an equal number of boys and girls from each form in each house. They remain in the same house throughout their stay in school. The houses are called Alpha, Beta and Delta.

Two teachers are assigned to each house to advise on all matters of dispute and policy. A captain is appointed from the student body and is given full authority over the house. He is assisted by a vice-captain who acts in his absence. The elected members are arts director, two athletic directors, special director, secretary-treasurer and six representatives. They are responsible for the cultural, social, athletic and financial activities of the house.

The captains, vice-captains and secretary-treasurers of each house form the Students' Administrative Council. From this group a president and secretary are elected. The president presides at all meetings of the general assembly when questions concerning the whole school are discussed.

The council deals with the affairs of the House System and with problems involving the student body. It has the power to instruct the secretary to pay bills incurred by the houses and to make expenditures up to $10. The principal is the sponsor of the council with authority to act on all matters of policy.

Each student is required to pay a house fee at the beginning of the school year. The amount is determined by the council and passed by the general assembly. Students keep their funds in the Campbellford High School house account. All deposits are made by the principal and he signs all cheques. A record of the financial standing of the House System is kept in the principal's office and is available to the house officials at all times.

Academic subjects are given priority over all other activities in the system. House officers whose academic work falls below pass standing must resign and no student whose academic work is unsatisfactory can be a member of a school team.

Doctors Open Heart Clinic

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5—(CP)—The Shute Foundation for medical research into treatment of heart and circulatory diseases was officially opened Thursday.

Ceremonies included a banquet in honor of three district researchers—Dr. Evan V. Shute of London, his brother, Dr. Wilfred E. Shute of Guelph, and Dr. Arthur Vogelsang of London—whose use of Vitamin E in treatment of heart disease and other conditions has stirred a controversy in the medical world.

Commenting on criticism of the use of Vitamin E in the treatment of heart, vascular and kidney diseases and diabetes, Dr. Evan Shute said a major criticism "has been that we have claimed too much. I am surprised that in the epoch of penicillin or the sulpha drugs or benadryl this should be regarded as a valid objection."

"If penicillin had to wait 14 years for recognition, we can wait another day or so, too," Dr. Shute said.

Chamber Bulletin Raps Chain Store

COBOURG, Nov. 5—(ENS)—An appeal to the merchant members for co-operation in saving electricity is contained in the monthly bulletin issued yesterday by the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce. The bulletin notes that "there are one or two who continue to set themselves above the necessity of contributing to the common good." It points out that the executive in Toronto of one chain store branch in Cobourg is definitely opposed to the prevailing custom of the local merchants in closing all day on Wednesday to conserve power.

"—the feeling apparently being that the executive of this chain store group does not wish their staff to become accustomed to a five-day week, which after all is their personal problem while our problem is to keep Cobourg going on what Hydro we are allowed. However this store was closed on Wednesday of this week and the only news your Chamber of Commerce can give at the moment is that if this store does open on Wednesday mornings, then all the stores will have to be opened and the onus of this move will rest squarely in the laps of the executive in Toronto of this particular chain group. As soon as a decision is reached in this matter, all retail merchants will be notified and a meeting called. It will be a gloomy Christmas without too many lights, but it would be a much gloomiery Christmas if lights are not cut everywhere possible so that industry can keep on working and have money to spend," the Chamber of Commerce bulletin said.

Two humorous observations are to be found in the bulletin:

"Publishers in the Soviet sector of Berlin are bringing out a multivolume edition of Karl Marx 'Das Kapital," in Braille. Is this a case of the blind leading the blind?"

"The chief difference between Old King Cole and the British National Coal Board is that old King Cole knew how many fiddlers he had."

De Gaulle Seeks House Control

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(AP).— Gen. Charles de Gaulle has called for the election of his followers to the Upper House of Parliament Sunday. He said this would have France form anarchy.

De Gaulle said Thursday night that if his party—Rassemblement du Peuple Francais — gets control of the Upper House, it will use its influence to bring about new general elections for the powerful Lower House—the National Assembly.

The Electoral College will name 267 of the 320 members of the Council of the Republic Sunday. The others, representing overseas territories, will be picked up later.

The Council, by contrast with the Assembly, has no real legislative powers, but De Gaulle said that if it were dominated by his R.O.P., it could "do much to provoke a return to Democracy and a consultation of the people."

Last Oct. 18 municipal councils throughout France picked 100,011 electors. They, along with 3,032 General Councillors and 546 Assembly Deputies, will choose the members of the Council of the Republic.

Get Emergency Lighting For Schools

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP).—Amid the deepening glooin of Ontario's power outlook, citizens of the province's biggest city are preparing for night blackouts.

Toronto's 700,000 citizens, now undergoing power cutoffs totalling two hours a day, were told Thursday that night-time 45-minute hydro breaks would start next Monday. Candles sold by the bushel.

The announcement prompted the Board of Education Thursday night to authorize buying of $25,000 worth of emergency lighting equipment for schools. Trustees said the board might be held responsible if a pupil fell and suffered injuries during a daytime cutoff.

Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders Thursday night criticized industrial and commercial firms for advancing lunch hours defeated the power-saving period. He said switching lunch hours defeated the power-saving objective and the firms used the same amount of power as before the cutoffs.

Ottawa prepared to split its hour-long cutoffs into two half-hour breaks effective next Monday in the Capital.

Kitchener, Stratford, Niagara Falls, Oshawa, Dwen Sound, Waterloo, Woodstock, and Belleville all reported Thursday that on Wednesday they exceeded their power quotas.

Doctors Lose Jobs

GREENFIELD, Mass., Nov. 5 — (AP). — Two more doctors have been discharged from the staff of a Roman Catholic hospital here for what they say was their support of the defeated "birth control" referendum in Massachusetts. Dr. Perrin Freeman was asked to resign from the Farren Memorial Hospital Thursday. Wednesday Dr. Alexander S. Nadas received the same notice from the Sister Superior. Two others were asked to resign last week.

76 DP's Reach Ajax Like New Country

AJAX, Nov. 5.—(CP).—Tired but hopeful, 76 European displaced persons today arrived at this village, about 20 miles east of Toronto, and said they were looking forward to life in Canada.

The group, comprising 75 women and one man, will make a 48-hour stop-over her eat the former wartime munitions plant where they will be interviewed by employment service officers.

The women, from Poland, Russia, Estonia and Latvia, will be placed on farms as domestic help for one year. After that they will be free to enter other employment.

Jaseps Sudnous, the only man in the group, will work with his wife at a Hamilton fabrics plant.

Raps Dangerous Talk

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Maj. G. Fay Davies, president of the Canadian Corps Association, said Thursday that any man who comes to Toronto "preaching Communist ideologies should be identified for what he is — an enemy agent." He was commenting on the arrival of the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, who stopped briefly at Malton Airport on his way to Hamilton.

An Appeal To Us All To Conserve Hydro Power

At its meeting on Tuesday night the Allied Labour Council of Peterborough decided to appeal to the people whom it represents to save Hydro power. It is a timely appeal and demonstrates the high sense of civic responsibility which labour organizations in Peterborough possess. The present shortage of power is acute, and is likely to be severe when the frosts come. It is a very real necessity for every one of our citizens to take thought how he can individually conserve electric power, in the office, the factory, the shop, the home and the kitchen. It now matters very much whether a kettle is allowed to boil one minute more than necessary on an electric stove and whether one electric bulb is not turned off the minute its light ceases to be essential. Scheduled or unscheduled interruptions of power would not only be inconvenient; they would eat into pay envelopes and cut down production. Thus far we have not had power interruptions in the city. If we use great care, and think before we turn on a light, a hot-plate or an electric iron, we may possibly avoid power interruptions.

* * *

When Mr. Alfred Barber, President of the Allied Labour Council, mentioned the power shortage at Tuesday's meeting he said: "We must appeal to the working class people to conserve electricity". We approve his motives but are rather disgruntled by his reference to "working class people". We are sure that others in Peterborough outside the factories work as hard as factory workers. How many citizens in this community are described on the electoral lists as "gentlemen"? Most of us are workers, and it is unfair that the people in the factories should take unto themselves a special name, and set themselves up as a special class.

The King And Mr. King

Mr. Mackenzie King, O.M., returned to Canada today from his last trip abroad as Canadian Prime Minister. It was an unexpectedly restricted visit. After a few days in Paris at the U.N. Assembly, he went to London there to be confined to a sickbed in his hotel. His visit was not, however, lacking in either value or distinction.

He was kept informed daily of all discussions at the Prime Ministers' conference. As senior in experience and tenure of office, the other Prime Ministers not only paid him their respects but sought his counsel. He was visited by the leaders of all the Commonwealth countries, including Eire. The Prime Ministers of the Asiatic dominions would be particularly interested in consulting the man who more than any other Canadian Prime Minister has brought this country to political independence and nationhood and yet kept it a major partner in the British Commonwealth under allegiance to the Brittanic King. Mr. King had separate conferences with the Prime Ministers of India (Mr. Nehru), of Pakistan (Liaquat Ali Khan), of Ceylon (Mr. Semanayake). The British connections of these three Dominions are now tenuous; they are deciding whether to remain within the Commonweath or to become alien to it. Mr. King could give them historical and practical information on the values of Dominion status. On sailing from London last Sunday, Mr. King accepted with gravity an apt name given him by the Daily Express—"Watchdog of Empire".

Honour came Mr. King's way. The Earl of Athlone and other officials of the University of London conferred on him in his hotel room an honorary degree. The most unique distinction, one never before accorded a Prime Minister from a Dominion, was the visit of H.M. King George to the sick man's room. In honoring Mr. King thus, the King honored all Canadians.

What Workers Pay For Strikes

The strike at the McKinnon Industries, Ltd., in St. Catharines, has ended with a compromise which will bring the workers increases ranging from twelve to fifteen cents an hour. The workers demanded twenty-five cents an hour in the first place, and they struck for fifteen weeks in the hope of getting something better than the company's first offer of twelve cents an hour. That is to say, the workers who benefit most from the increase will gain three cents an hour as a result of this long strike. This gain was purchased at the cost of $670, which is the average wage of the strikers for the period of the strike. It seems a high price to pay; indeed, according to our reckoning it will take each worker about ten years to make up his loss.

Of course, it is an old trick of employers to offer a very low compromise figure in the case of strikes, protesting that they can afford no more, and then to increase the offer little by little until the workers agree. But obviously the McKinnon management offered just about what it was prepared to pay, and the strike cost the workers dearly. Would they not have been better off to accept the original twelve cents, and to have opened negotiations for another raise at a later time?

Considering what strikes cost the individual workers, we are surprised that unions call them so easily. Employers nowadays are used to negotiation, and they do not need to be intimidated with the extreme measure of a strike. Surely both management and labour can see that these strikes cost everybody money, and can negotiate new contracts while work continues?

Governmental Snooping

Canada's Bureau of Statistics has sent out a questionnaire which contains 864 searching questions to a number of households; the answers, if we are not mistaken, will be used to discover something-or-other about the buying habits of Canadians. This news does not disturb us greatly, although we think that the Bureau is optimistic if it thinks that anyone is going to fill in a form with 864 questions on it, or give reasonably correct answers on matters of extreme and uninteresting detail. But some of our contemporaries have become greatly exercised about it, and have even referred to the questionnaire as "snooping".

We do not think that these innocent souls know what real snooping is. We were astonished to learn that there are now no less than 17 Government Ministries in Britain which have the right to send inspectors into a private house without a search warrant; there are in all 10,916 such inspectors. This is part of the socialistic planning which the Labour Government has brought to Britain.

Our feeling toward the Labour Government is not hostile; we think that it is doing a good job under terribly difficult circumstances. But every government bring its own particular brand of abuse with it, and socialist governments bring in their train a horde of snoopers who snoop for snooping's sake, and planners who have no special grasp of any particular field of work, but who dearly love to direct, badger and instruct people who have work to do. Toryism provides a paradise for toadies; Liberalism always has its plague of greedy opportunists; Socialism cumbers the ground with obstructive snoopers. So far no Canadian government has unleashed the snoopers upon us in a really big way.

Sweet Grapes

The fruit shops presented cheering shelves last Monday. Great hampers of crisp American lettuce (at prices which do not dismay), tomatoes from the warmer regions south of the border, and "Emperor" grapes from Californian vines—boxes and boxes of them in pe[illegible]k and purple clusters. The grapes are a foretaste of an even less austere Christmas table than we had last year—in fruit at least. It is too early to say whether turkeys will have jumped over the moon.

The reason for the fruit and vegetable display is that the paternalistic financial experts at Ottawa have decided to relax the restrictions limiting the quantities of out-of-season delicacies which may be imported. There are more American dollars in the Canadian sock than a year ago when general embargoes were applied. No doubt, too, the Ottawa officials have heard the public whimper for tomatoes, lettuce and other fresh vegetables and fruits which the Canadian people now consider essential the year around. So this winter we shall have Californian grapes if not American girders. They are among the fruits of our year-long campaign to save American dollars.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column, particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

QUESTION: When did Peterborough first have postmen? I ask because Port Hope has just begun having mail delivered to the door, and I wondered if Peterborough was larger than Port Hope now is before it began mail delivery.

ANSWER: Peterborough had its first postmen coming to the door in September 1907. The population was then 16,000. Port Hope's is now around six thousand. We have had post boxes on street corners for a long while—at least 50 years, says Postmaster Charles Lacheur. He guessed that mail has been picked up from post boxes on the streets since there has been a separate Post Office building. The present Post Office was built in 1886, so I am told.

✧ ✧ ✧

IS JAMES JOYCE'S "ULYSSES" still banned in Canada?

ANSWER: As far as I know, it is. Certainly the Modern Library edition is not on sale in any of the bookshops in Toronto or Montreal. I brought my copy into Canada from New York, encased in an Oka-cheese-odoured sock which the customs inspector was sure not to investigate.

Canadian censorship operates in a most awkward way. Hugh MacLennan, the author of "Two Solitudes" and "The Precipice" told me about an experience he had with the Canadian border officials when he was crossing from the States to Canada last year with the manuscript of "The Precipice" in his luggage. The customs inspector spied it. "What's this here?" he asked. "The manuscript of the book I am writing", replied the author. "Manuscript? What's that?". MacLennan explained. "Well, I'll have to look at it". He took it inside the building, MacLennan following. "Anything dirty in it?" He pawed through the pile of typed pages, looking not only for "dirt" but for something sinister like Communist pygmies or secrets on the Atomic bomb. It was three hours before MacLennan was able to proceed. It is a ridiculous situation where an ordinary able-bodied Customs man of not always strong intellect is set up as a censor.

YOU mentioned DDT in your comment about Latin abbreviations (D. Litt. etc.) last week. What does DDT stand for?

ANSWER: The insecticide discovered in 1939 is dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane. That is too large a mouthful for most of us, so the initial letters of the three main components of the word have come into use.

You may have read that the discoverer, a Swiss scientist named Dr. Paul Mueller of Basle, was awarded the 1948 Nobel prize for medicine because of it. His was really a rediscovery, for a German student sythensized it in 1874. This student did not discover the insect-killing qualities of the compound, so for 65 years DDT's existence was known, almost forgotten, and put to no use. Had its possibilities been immediately recognized, think what deaths, pain and misery in filth would have been prevented in the Boer War and the Great War!

Canadian soldiers at the front in Italy in the early days of the campaign would see in rear areas marks like this: "DDT 9/11/44", scrawled large in yellow paint across the walls of Italian sheds and farm-houses. They suspected the presence of Germans, or secret German codes, not knowing at first what DDT was, and that there were Canadian army squads whose job it was to decontaminate buildings which might be used to shelter our troops.

DEAR SIR: In visiting Peterborough recently I tried to find the house in which my mother was born. She told me it was on Smith Street. I could find no Smith Street. What has happened to it?

ANSWER: It has not fallen into the Otonabee—it's too high for that. It now masquerades under the high-toned name "Park Hill Road". The new name is justified by the street's having Jackson Park at one end, Nicholls Oval at the other end, and a hefty hill in between. The name is proper enough, but I dislike the reasons for changing it—the chief being that "Smith" was neither distinctive nor nobby.

It seems to me that there are few reasons for changing street names except to change them back to the ones they had before they were changed. Oxford has a "Magpie Lane". In the late nineteenth century it was prettily called "Rose Lawn Street" (or some such). During the preceding three centuries it was "Magpie Lane". It is good that it is back where it started.

A regrettable and ignorant change was lately made in the name of a narrow passage off Villiers Street near the Embankment in London. This street had the unusual name of "Of A[illegible]ey". It is now York Place. The name "Of Alley" had a reasonable and reasoned purpose. It is approached from Villiers street; it gives into George Court. From the Court two ways open, Duke Street on one side, Buckingham on the other; composing in historical unity the complete title of the great nobleman it commemorates, George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

QUESTION: Is it true that Peterborough has the largest and highest hydraulic lift lock in the world?

ANSWER: It is the highest. I am not sure what you mean by largest. It has the most concrete, the largest amount of lift. It is possible that there is in Europe a lift lock of much smaller lift, but with a heavier draft—that is, one that will take heavier vessels. The Trent Valley Canal people think that there may be such a one but had no explicit information about it for me when I raised your question.

FOR THE RECORD: This autumn may go down in verbal southern Ontario history as "The Fall of The Fog". The fog came in on cat feet at the beginning of the last week of October; thickened by last Saturday (Hallowe'en) to a weighty substance which people did not try to cut with a knife; hovered in gobs for ten evenings and mornings; interfered with driving, with flying, with duck-hunting (it is said that the ducks waddled up to the sights of hunter's weapons without being seen), and then vanished into thinner air. It is now a hazy memory.

WILL HE WEATHER THE STORM?

A Desk Is A True Curse

(NEW YORK TIMES)

IN any thoughtful listing of curses, the desk would be somewhere up near the top. The desk is a dreadful thing to have in the office, where little pleasure may be expected anyway, and it is even more sinister in the home. The desk represents work, which is another word for duty, and that is one of the better known products of the devil's earning overtime wages. No wonder there is an expression, "chained to the desk."

There is no expression about being chained to a golf course, steamed clams, a canoe in moonlight or broiled lobster. In certain colloquial circles a woman is known as a ball and chain, but you smile as you say that word. There is no smile at a reference to being chained to a desk. That chain is nothing to joke about, and it is a couple of dozen times stronger than its weakest link. The desk is a true curse, pure and without flaw.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are, of course, many types of desks. Manufacturers, perhaps hoping to disguise the things, build them of rare woods, semi-precious metals and glass. They are still desks. Anything at which a man must sit, in which there are drawers for the reception of papers and on which no dust is given a chance to gather is a desk. The dining room table on which relevant income tax data are put out for complete inspection, becomes a temporary desk, and no food eaten on it thereafter will taste the same.

Wily manufacturers build desks in the shape of bureaus, or tuck them into the wall like Murphy beds, or make a pretence they are Welsh dressers. They are still desks. Disgorging their contents, they still would show last month's bills, yesterday's unanswered letters and this morning's list of morbid appointments. Until the manufacturers create a desk in the form of a hammock, and hang it between two trees, they may expect no business save from absolute necessity.

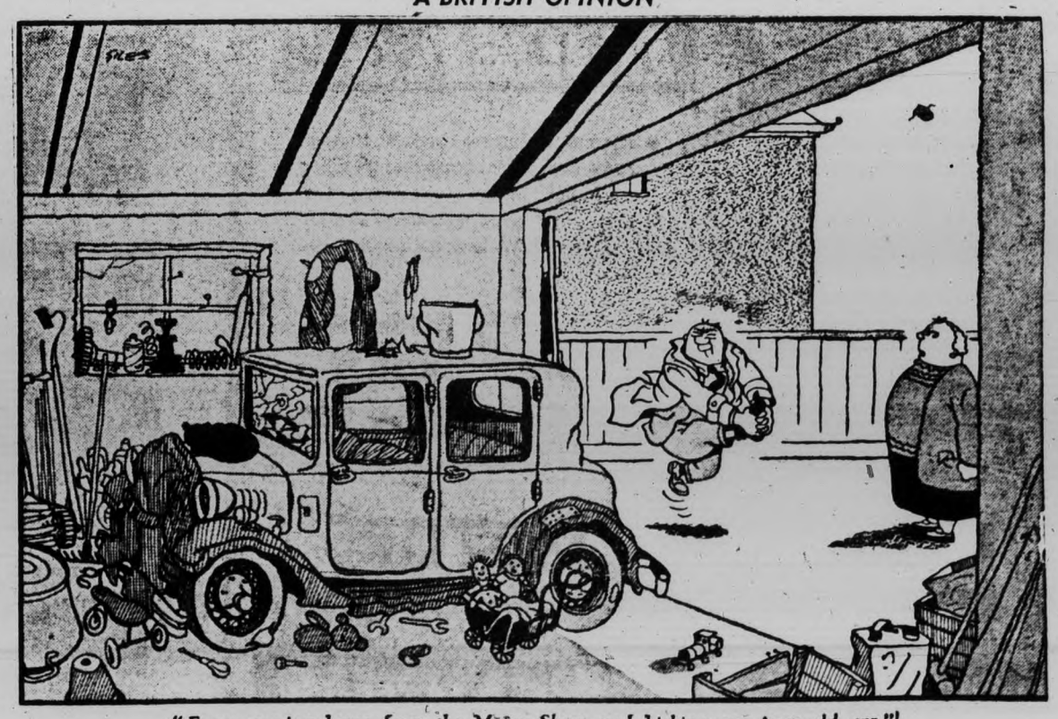
PERHAPS from a subconscious desire to get even, the owner of a desk shows it his worst side. In the desk are placed the contemptuous notes from lawyers in the hire of utilities, as well as sharp reminders of payment due. In the desk are lengthy letters from former friends who went away angry, and wish to explain again, by mail, just whose fault that was. In the desk are cards, sent at six-month intervals, by the dentists.



At the bottom of the big drawer of the desk are bundles of returned cheques, filed there against the slow march of the statute of limitations. Rose petals, four-leaf clovers, scented envelopes, and other tokens of the sunny side of memory are not kept in the desk, but are cherished elsewhere. In the desk are the symbols of the hard realities of existence, and possibly it is just as well to have them in one place. Scattered around the house, they would make that a home no longer.

THERE is a fairly general belief that by looking at the top of a desk it is possible to tell what kind of a man sits behind it. A cluttered top means a cluttered man, a clean top means a senior executive. This is not necessarily true. The man whose desk is a mixture of books, papers and cigar ashes may be a man studying an important idea, who simply cannot be bothered throwing everything on the floor. The senior executive also may be a man whose nerves are jumping like mountain goats. The top of his desk is clean simply because he has filed away the important papers in the drawer, under the theory that if he doesn't see problems they do not exist.

A woman's attitude toward her desk is somewhat different from a man's, however, for she doesn't file things away for future reference or to get problems out of sight. She just dumps her handbag, and any problems there must take their own chances.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of? (Isa. 2: 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.... And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So god created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day. (Gen. 1: 1, 26, 27, 31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made. (Gen. 2: 1, 2.)

Let all the earth fear the Lord: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast. (Ps. 33: 8, 9.)

Letter To The Editor

FOOLISH CROWDING AT FIRES

Sir: Last night about 7:00 I had occasion to make a call on Park St. near McGill. I noticed a building on fire, and found an alarm had already been sent in. In quick time Chief, hose and hook and ladder were on the job. But my reason for writing this is to again call attention to unnecessary jamming of traffic. In five minutes time there were at least a hundred cars packed in around the scene of action, and I wondered what would happen if someone were hurt, and needed an ambulance—or more equipment should arrive. It seems to me people act like lunatics when a fire occurs. It was impossible to get through the jam. One solution would be to provide a cycle cop with every fire call. I do not know how this can be prevented, but I am sure it would aid our fire boys a great deal if this foolish jamming of the traffic at fires could be controlled.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM R. POTTER.

ATTENTION GETTER

The little man was pushing his cart through the crowded aisles of the big super market.

"Coming through," he called merrily. No one moved.

"Gangway," he shouted. A few men stepped aside.

He ruefully surveyed the situation, and then smiled as a bright idea struck him.

"Watch your nylons!" he warned. The women scattered like chaff in the wind.

Bisons Trounce Ramblers 10-5

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons Thursday night equalled an American Hockey League record by scoring seven times in the second period of their their game against New Haven Ramblers.

The Bisons took the encounter 10-5 with defenceman Hal Laycoe getting three goals.

New Haven also scored three times in the hectic second frame, but the combined score fell two short of equalling the single period scoring record by two teams, 12, which was established by Pittsburgh and Cleveland in 1945.

Floyd Curry netted two markers for the cellar-dwelling Bisons, while F. Hunt, Doug Lewis, Tom Cooper, Ken Mackenzie and George Agar shared the balance of the goals. New Haven's goal-getters were Gino Rozzini, Jean Paul Denis, Ramsden and Wingy Johnston.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk got his second shutout in two nights as Indianapolis Capitals whitewashed Springfield Indians 5-0.

Fred Glover got a pair of tallies for the victors. Rod Morrison, Gerald Reid and Joe Lund racked up a goal apiece.

A brace of basketball games by the girls on tap tonight in the YWCA gym where Simcoe St. runs into Aylmer. Neill's and Nurses tangle at 8.15, followed about an hour later by Electrics against the Lock Co. colleens. The other two teams in the cage circuit this season, Kawarthas and Normals, will likely see action next week-end. Should be some smart hoop play served up this p.m. in the twin bill opener, and 'tis hoped a goodly gallery will greet the girls as the 1948-49 campaign commences. Something shortly on the men's set-up, we expect, but meantime the Marines' squad is drilling away, and the Lakeshore League is in process of re-organization.

Coach Bev Goulding's good PCVS seniors take on Pickering College of Newmarket in a 2.15 exhibition tomorrow aft at the Oval. Pickering is by no means a soft touch, playing strong Toronto squads, and the Garnet and Gray gridders are likely to have to hustle all the way. This senior school struggle will draw well, no doubt. The junior PCIers are off to Oshawa to open their two-game group finals, points to count. Return one may be here next Thursday, Remembrance Day. Winner goes in against the Quinte victor likely the following Saturday, Nov. 13, ultimate victor hitting into COSSA playoffs. Don't know the senior school setup, beyond tomorrow, as yet.

They're Off To Battle

Local Panthers are in a do-or-die duel tomorrow in Orillia. Return joust of their home-and-home ORFU intermediate group finals, with the Bombers up eight points. Gord Young's gang should be pretty well at full strength, and Doug Plunkett is hoping to be back in uniform for this one. Elimination is the lot of the loser, while the series winner goes in against Cobourg's Ghosts next round of the provincial playdowns. If the Panthers play up to their form of two weeks ago, they can wipe out that eight-point deficit early and go on to sweep the series. But it'll be a battle all the way between two good clubs, playing for keeps.

Visiting Buffalo last week-end, Bas Phelan was introduced to Babe Bogardis. Remember him? He played for the Petes in 1925-26 when they won the OHA senior title. Team of Dwyer, Parker, McLeod, Rose, Collins, Bailey, Ranger, Bogardis and Cox. The Babe, a good hustling player then, later turned pro in the States but gave it up to become a customs official at the Buffalo border. He is official timer for all the Bisons' home hockey games. Bogardis was quite interested in Peterborough and carries the engraved watch given the Petes by the council that year. The late Nagle Phelan, father of Baz, was on that council.

Rinks Here And There

New rinks seem to be springing up all around the place, and another year will see several more under construction. Our Civic Arena is nearing completion now, though not quite paid for yet. Lacks some $5,000 or so. Marmora's is built. Lakefield and Minden have hopes of completing their covered rinks in time for hockey this coming puck season. And there's a drive on at present in Bowmanville for $20,000 with the thought that a rink may be ready as winter really sets in. They've been without one quite a spell, following a fire which destroyed the old one. Local intermediate and junior clubs often played in that old arena. And Lindsay expects to have artificial ice in their good arena this week-end, with possibly an exhibition game starting the season Monday.

Cobourg columnist is pretty high on the Galloping Ghosts, and comments in part: "They have a great line and a wonderful backfield regardless of who is on the field at any time. This column does not overlook the win over Peterborouhg on Saturday by Orillia, who may be as strong as they look, but haven't yet seen a passing attack such as the Quigley-Jamieson duo. Nor have they watched a quarterback like Cooper who also throws the ball with nice aim. Peterborough have a good team and so have Orillia, but the Ghosts are a shade over both of them because of their individual stars who can and do break up the game when least expected to." And so forth. Well, time—without a Gallup poll—will tell.

Mauling The Maples

Cavanagh's were clipping 'em last night in the City Bowling League as they took six points from their opponents. They had top triple of 3726 and high single game of 1410. Bert McCarrell scored high three honors with 951, ahead of Gord Adams' 946 count. Latter led in singletons with 387, as well as rolling a 361, while McCarrell banged in a 359 effort and a 326. Bill Harris, Ned Vitarelli, Jim Herron, Bill Boon, Joe Denault, Frank McCormack, Art Pilling, Alf Pepe, Bill Martin, Bill Stanbury and Vince Anthony were other 300 or better bowlers. Riley's rule the roost at the moment just ahead of Shockey's, while Cavanagh's are nestling in the third slot.

After his retirement in 1937 Conacher sat for a time in the Ontario Legislature and served as chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission.

Leaf Showing Leaves Toronto Bosses Unhappy

By The Canadian Press

The holiday is nearly over for the National Hockey League and the six-team circuit goes back to work Saturday night.

Wednesday night's All - Star game—only activity in the league since last Sunday—put some $23,000 into the league's pension fund. But the All-Star's 3-1 victory left the front office of the Toronto Maple Leafs a little irked with their world champions.

Leafs, after winning two consecutive Stanley Cups, are an unimpressive fourth in the league standings, trailed only by the injury-stricken New York Rangers and the Chicago Black Hawks.

Rangers make their first visit of the year to Toronto Saturday when first-place Detroit invades Montreal for the second time. They played a scoreless tie the first time and Detroit has beaten Canadiens 4-1 in Detroit. Rangers and Leafs haven't played before this year.

In Sunday games New York is at Chicago and Boston is at Detroit.

Rangers, badly crippled by a pre-season car accident that battered six players, should be back at nearly full strength by the end of next week.

Defenceman Bill Moe already has thrown away the helmet he wore to protect head injuries he got in the crash.

Centre Buddy O'Connor is working out daily in Montreal and is expected back next week. Ed Slowinski, who cracked a knee in fall practice, is working out with the amateur New York Rovers and is due back at the same time.

Here And There In Sports . . .

BY CANADIAN PRESS

Dick Miller, general manager of the Indianapolis Caps, said Thursday a protest would be made to American Hockey League headquarters on last Wednesday night's scoreless tie game with St. Louis.

The protest will be based on the fact that the game went directly from the first period into the second without the usual 10-minute intermission.

Because of an injury to Ralph Almas, St. Louis, play was halter after 16:12 of the first period. When it was resumed, the remainder of the first period was played and the second period was started immediately afterwards.

Elimination of United States football imports as suggested by retiring president Art Chipman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers drew a cautious comment in Vancouver yesterday from the president of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, J. D. Rowand. He thought elimination of U.S. imports was "hardly practical" all at once. "That's a subject for off-season discussion when everybody's calm and collected," he said.

Stewart Maiden, the little Scott who became one of the great professors of golf, died Thursday near the course where he taught Bobby Jones the game. Maiden suffered a stroke three weeks ago which left him partially paralyzed and unconscious.

Mexican army riders won the military jumping prize at the National Horse Show Thursday night at New York, scoring their second triumph of the day with the same form that earned them the Prix Des Nations at the 1948 Olympics Their victory before 10,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden came in a relay event. They registered complete superiority over their military rivals from Canada and France. The Canadians came second.

The Oxford-Cambridge boat race will be contested on the Thames River March 26, it was announced Thursday at London. Previously there had been rumors that the race might be held elsewhere.

M. L. (Tory) Gregg, founder of the Western Ontario Athletic Association, was re-elected for his fifth term as president of the organization at its annual meeting at Wingham Thursday. Considered the largest Western Ontario sporting organization, the WOAA comprised 84 hockey teams last year.

CORNELL'S FRANK BRADLEY (26) knew what to do when he discovered his blockers and Columbia defence men tangled in a heap on the ground in front of him. He merely used their bodies as a springboard to take off in the air and drive for a first down. Cornell defeated Columbia at New York by a score of 20-13, grinding out two last period touchdowns after the underdog Lions had held them even most of the game.

Football Playoffs Begin In Two Senior Leagues

By The Canadian Press

Opening guns will be fired in Canadian football playoffs tonight as Hamilton's unbeaten Tigers invade Toronto to square off with the Beaches Indians in the first game of a best-of-three final series for the Ontario Rugby Football Union title.

Another unbeaten club — Calgary Stampeders—starts on the playoff trail tomorrow when the Stamps tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders in the opener of a two-game total-point set for the Western title and a spot in the Grey Cup finals.

The Big Four winds up its regular schedule Saturday, with Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts still fighting for the second playoff berth behind Ottawa's leading Rough Riders. Alouettes need a victory over the tail-end Wildcats at Hamilton to ensure themselves of second place.

Argonauts, defending Grey Cup champions, have a faint chance to stay in the title hunt, but they need a win over Ottawa in their final home game, coupled with an Alouette loss.

Enters Home Stretch

The Intercollegiate Union enters the home stretch as the unbeaten University of Western Ontario Mustangs entertain McGill's Redmen while University of Toronto Blues tackle Queen's at Kingston.

Tigers, who switched leagues with Wildcats this season, are counting on the smooth-passing of playing-coach Frankie Filchack to see them through the finals against the underdog Toronto club. Beaches are counting on a muddy field to play havoc with Filchock's operations and give their scat-backs a chance to show effectively.

Jack Harper, who led the ORFU in scoring this season, will be out there to catch Filchock's passes.

Toronto fans are counting heavily on the heavy back line, which played a big part in Beaches' 21-5 rout of Sarnia Imperials last week in the game that assured them of a playoff berth.

New Sports Bill Causes Furore

LONDON, Nov. 5. — (CP).— Connoisseurs of parliament debate smack their lips in anticipation of the blood sports bill.

The issue of whether the hare shall be hunted, the badger dug from his hole and the fox chased across the fields is apt, at any moment, to push international anxieties, steel nationalization and every other controversy into the background.

Preliminary skirmishes are under way. Pink-coated huntsmen, who delight in risking their necks in gallops over the country-side have practically taken their hounds in their arms and defied Parliament to part them.

The National Society for the Abolition of Cruel Sports, supported by the League Against Cruel Sports, has drafted a bill it hopes to get before Parliament to make any person taking part in hunting or coursing liable to a £25 ($100) fine or imprisonment up to three months. Even those who looked on at such sports would be liable to punishment.

Promoters of the bill claim they have the pledged support of 405 of the 640 Members of Parliament. They hope one of these members soon will have the chance to introduce the bill.

Stamps Capture Most Berths On All-Stars

By ROBERT CLARKE

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—(CP). — Everything a football coach could want is wrapped up in the 1948 edition of the Western Inter-Provincial Football Union all-star team.

Chosen for The Canadian Press by coaches and sports writers in league cities, the mythical team has speed, power, a solid front wall, good kicking, expert forward passers and glue-fingered receivers.

The league-champions Calgary Stampeders, unbeaten and untied in 12 circuit clashes and one exhibition game, provided the club with its nucleus of players. Seven Stamps picked up all-stars berths, while four places went to the Saskatchewan Roughriders of Regina and two were voted to Winnipeg Blue Bombers. That 13 players were picked resulted from a tie for one of the line positions.

The team:

Centre, Chuck Anderson, Calgary; guards, Dave Tomlinson, Calgary, and, in a tie, Bert Iannone ,Calgary, and Bud Irving, Winnipeg tackles, Johnny Aquirre, Calgary, and Mike Cassidy, Regina; ends, Woody Strode, Calgary, and Johnny Bell, Regina; quarter, Keith Spaith, Calgary; halves, Gabe Patterson, Regina, Don Hiney, Winnipeg, Ken Charlton, Regina, and Paul Rowe, Calgary.

ESCAPE COMMUNISM—Among passengers who arrived in Montreal aboard the Empress of Canada was Z. A. Nenecek, accompanied by his wife and daughter. Mr. Nenecek resigned as Czech minister to Copenhagen when the Communists grabbed control of his homeland.

To Contest By-Election

BURK'S FALLS, Ont., Nov. 5 — (CP). — Alex Johnston of South River, Ont, was named Thursday night by a Progressive Conservative nominating convention to contest Parry Sound constituency in the Dec. 9 Ontario legislature by-election. The by-election was made necessary by the death of Charles Cragg, Progressive Conservative. M. T. Armstrong, who represented Parry Sound in the last legislature and was defeated by Mr. Cragg in the general election in June, will again be the Libral candidate.

Britons Turn Back Pages Honor Memory of Fawkes

By SHAUN McQUILLAN

LONDON, Nov. 5.— (CP). — Today is the day Britons, both children and grown-ups, turn their history pages back to 1605 for their annual excuse to revel in fireworks.

Throughout Britain, bonfires are lit. Grotesque effigies are burned in a fashion that would have awed the ancient Druids. At night rockets soar into the sky, blooming into an umbrella-like illumination to the delight of children below.

It all began when a band of Roman Catholics planned to get a rise out of King James I. Peeved with the monarch's anti-Catholic measures, they hatched the Gunpowder Plot, designed to blow "him and all his friends back to Scotland"—and the Houses of Parliament into the bargain—with 36 barrels of explosives.

It developed into a damp squid. The plot was discovered at the last moment and Guy Fawkes was caught red-handed in the Parliament House coal cellar, accompanied by the necessary gunpowder, flintbox and matches. He duly was hanged along with seven of his fellow accomplices.

Ever since, November 5 has been commemorated as Guy Fawkes Day.

This year, true to tradition, small children with a cry "please to remember the guy" exhorted their elders to contribute a few coppers to their fireworks funds.

Complete with home-made effigies tied into baby prams, they run alongside potential contributors and their grubby hands hang on coattails as they cry "penny for the Guy mister, penny for the Guy"—and they usually hang on until something happens.

Million Workers Get Increase

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 5. — (CP).—More than 1,000,000 Australian workers this week received a wage increase of the equivalent of from 32 to 64 cents.

The increase in the basic minimum wage was granted by the federal arbitration court to offset the rising cost of living.

The states have been fighting a losing battle with rising prices since the Federal Government handd over controls of rents and prices after its crushing defeat in the rents-and-prices referendum last May.

State ministers in charge of price control claim they are doing all in their power to keep prices down, but complain that withdrawal of federal subsidies on essential goods such as wool, textiles, raw cotton and potatoes, coupled with the increasing wage rate, make it almost impossible.

Almost daily, applications for increased prices are received by the Prices Commission to meet higher costs of labor and materials, while prices of commodities released from control are going up rapidly.

Under Arrest, Powell Shoots Himself

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP). —Alvin (Jake) Powell, who rose from Washington sandlots to big league baseball fame, killed himself Thursday at police headquarters after he had been arrested on bad-cheque charges.

The 39-year-old former Yankee, Washington and Montreal outfielder, fired two pistol bullets into his chest and head before detectives could disarm him.

Powell had been taken into custody at Union station after a local hotel asked police to question him about some $300 in worthless cheques cashed during a three-day stay.

A warrant for Powell's arrest on a similar complaint was filed here several months ago.

During the questioning Powell asked for a chance to speak to a woman companion who identified herself as Josephine Amber of Deland, Fla. She told police they had planned to get married Thursday but had changed their minds.

As two detectives stood nearby Powell suddenly exclaimed to his companion:

"To hell with it—I'm going to end it all." He then fired the fatal shots.

Although Miss Amber spoke about marriage plans, Powell's wife, Elizabeth, told reporters they were not divorced. They were married in 1932 and have a 15-year-old daughter.

Powell, a native of nearby Silver Spring, Md., gained his greatest baseball fame with the Yankees during the 1946 world series when he cracked out four hits against the Giants' Carl Hubbell in the opening game. He played part of the 1941 season with Montreal Royals.

Last year he made an unsuccessful comeback try with the Class D Florida State League team at Leesburg. He batted only .200.

Drew Favors Broader Health Plans

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP). — George Drew, National Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, said Thursday night that he is in favor of health, social security and public construction plans which go beyond those put forward by the Federal Government.

"I believe, however, that they can and must be financed without imposing new income taxes and a poll tax such as that insisted upon by the Dominion Government (at the 1946 Dominion-Provincial Conference)," he said in a speech broadcast over a national network.

"I am also convinced that we must not endanger our Federal system or weaken our constitution when we put them into effect."

Mr. Drew said that since he was chosen as National Leader of the Progressive Conservatives a month ago, there had been "a very noticeable effort" to create the impression that while he was Premier of Ontario he opposed measures which would have been to the advantage of other provinces.

One Provincial Premier had said that Mr. Drew prevented adoption of the health and social security plan put forward by the Federal Government.

Contrary to Facts

"He attended the conference, and therefore knew that his statement was directly contrary to the facts," Mr. Drew said.

"In many other cases, I know that this criticism as made in good faith because my position at the conference has been misrepresented by th Dominion Government through every one of the costly propaganda agencies under its control. So far it has been impossible for me to deal effectively with this misrepresentation except in Ontario. Now for the first time in the wider field I am able to put this record straight.

Having regard to some of the statements you have read, you may be surprised to know that at every stage of the conference, and since then,the Ontario Government advocated and in fact was the first to advocate a national program for health, social security and public construction."

Mr. Drew said that, to pay for the proposed health and social security measures, the Federal Government suggested imposing a 5 per cent tax on all incomes, without exemption of any kind, in addition to present income tax. In addition, it proposed the levy of an annual poll tax, then estimated at $12, on every person 16 years of age or older, whether working or not.

Molested By Russians

VIENNA, Nov. 5 — (Reuters). — Maj.-Gen. T. J. W. Winterton, acting British High Commissioner for Austria, was molested Thursday by two Russian soldiers before a crowd of Austrians. The Russians shouted at the uniformed general for five minutes, refusing to allow him to visit a garage in the Soviet sector to see an automobile agent.

Fire Destroys 200 Homes

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 — (AP). — More than 200 homes were reported destroyed Thursday night by a brush fire sweeping down Topanca Canyon toward the Pacific Ocean. Hundreds of residents had left the area, some of them burned out and others abandoning their property to the advancing flames.

Limit To Loans

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Second mortgage loans, granted to purchasers of new homes under the 1948 Ontario Housing Development Act, will not be granted for homes costing more than $15,000, Planning Minister Welsh announced Thursday. The announcement was made, he said, to clear up existing confusion about the terms of the act.

Magazines, Papers Caught Cold In Election Forecasts

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Cold crow was the fare and red the facial color scheme today for some prognosticators in the United States press who tried to jump the gun on 50,000,000 voters.

Forecasts before election day that Governor Thomas E. Dewey would beat President Truman were hard enough to alibi in view of Truman's solid win. But look what happened to some people:

The Chicago Tribune put out Tuesday night, while the votes were being counted, an edition with the blazing headline: "Dewey beats Truman."

("That's one for the book," chuckled Truman Thursday as he held up a copy of that issue before the crowd which welcomed him at St. Louis, Mo.)

Life magazine came out four days before the voting with a picture of Dewey crossing San Francisco Bay aboard a ferryboat. The caption: "The next President of the United States."

Quite A Problem

Publishers of Kiplinger Magazine, Washington, D.C., bought a full page in this week's Time Magazine, to advertise their journal. Time went on newsstands in the United States Thursday and Kiplinger's add screamed: "What will DEWEY do? Find out in the November issue of Kiplinger Magazine, just off the press. Here the Kiplinger organization, nationally famous for its 25 years of reporting the news of Washington, gives you its accurate, down to earth, analysis and forecast of what to expect from the new administration."

Rumors circulated widely that Time itself guessed wrong and had to miss its deadline while it tore out a section based on Dewey victory. People said Life magazine, another Time, Inc., publication, contained a 20-page section on Dewey as new President.

"It isn't so," said Time. "We planned a month ago to go to press 36 hours late so we could cover the election. Actually we went to press 38 hours later. But we've covered the election in four pages.

"We don't work that way," said Life. "We've a story on the campaign, nothing on the election. We're out on time."

Columnist Drew Pearson was badly caught. His column for the day after the election was on the men who would surround the new President—Dewey.

And the New York Journal of Commerce brought out an edition with a five-column, two-line heading in bold print which read: "Dewey victory seen as mandate to open new era of government-business harmony, public confidence."

It's closing editorial asked "What kind of a president will Thomas Dewey make?"

That one won't be answered. Thursday Dewey told newspaper men that after two defeats he doesn't plan to try again.

14 Nazis Hanged At Landsberg For War Crimes

MUNICH, Nov. 5. — (AP).— Fourteen German war criminals were hanged at Lansberg prison today in a speed-up of executions. One man won a last-minute reprieve.

Today's executions brought to 43 the number of men hanged since the war crimes executions were resumed at Landsberg Oct. 15.

German church leaders have protested the hangings, but the United States military government has refused to take action in cases where the Judge Advocate General has certified that new evidence warranted a reprieve.

The last-minute stay of execution went to Georg Schallermair, 53, and S.S. (Storm Troop) sergeant charged with atrocities at a Dachau sub-camp.

United States army officials said a petition filed in his behalf had been found "of sufficient merit to warrant further investigation."

The charges had said he beat "many inmates until they died, exposing them to severe cold weather and by cutting the inmates' hair, leaving a small portion in the centre of their heads which he then pulled out."

Sent to death for killing fliers who had parachuted from disabled aircraft over Germany were:

Police captain Max Bruno Gartmann, 56, of Bad Salzdefurth.

Ernst Ittameier, 55, mayor of Wassertruedingen.

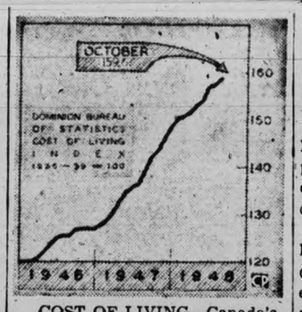
Johann Sturm, 37, a German army sergeant.

Waldemar Feldmeier, 38, a county organization leader.

Friedrich Heldebrant, 50, Nazi party leader at Gau Mecklenburg.

Wilhelm Bollow, 51, assistant to Helderbrandt.

Karl Gronwaldt, 56, party official at Gau Mecklenburg.



Ewald Haselow, 52, of Gau Mecklenburg.

Kurt Mueller, 46, of Gau Mecklenburg.

Franz Pensien, 52 of Gau Mecklenburg.

Trinity College Club Elects Philip Ketchum President

A meeting of the Trinity College Club of the Midland district was held last evening in the Public Library with about 35 members present.

The Reverend R. S. K. Seeley, provost of Trinity College, spoke on the activities of the college and gave a most interesting outline of the present-day life of the students and the high academic record achieved during the past year, when 13 students headed their courses in the whole university and 45 obtained first class standing. In addition, he mentioned the extra-curricular activities, which included art exhibits of work of outstanding artists as well as students, literary and dramatic creative writing and the general interest in university affairs as evidenced by the fact that of the seven students chosen to represent the University of Toronto at an international student service conference held in Germany last summer, three belonged to Trinity College.

The provost also commented on the fact that there are students registered in the college from all over Canada and Newfoundland, ass well as from 11 other countries, giving each undergraduate an excellent opportunity to broaden his outlook, especially in the residential system as fostered by Trinity College. The divinity faculty has the largest registration in its history, and is made up of graduates from many Canadian universities. The provost closed with a plea for financial support from graduates, alumni and interested friends, in order that Trinity College may continue to make its contribution to Canadian life, particularly in this day of mass production in higher education.

Larrett Higgins of IV. year political science and economics spoke briefly from the students' point of view on what Trinity College and all its stands for means to him.

An election was held and the following are the officers for 1948-49:

Hon. president, Dr. G. S. Cameron; president, Philip A. Ketchum, Port Hope; vice-president, Arthur K. Kembar, Lakefield; secretary-treasurer, Margaret McCulloch; executive committee, Mrs. G. H. Boulden, (Port Hope), the Reverend Hugh Bedford-Jones (Cobourg), Mrs. H. F. Ketchum (Lakefield), Miss Lillian Benore (Campbellford), H. E. Richardson (Lindsay).

An invitation to hold a meeting at Trinity College School, Port Hope, was read, and it was decided to postpone acceptance until spring.

The meeting then adjourned for refreshments and an opportunity for the members to renew old friendships.

OTTAWA, Nov, 5.—(CP).—A 26-week gunnery staff course in anti-aircraft artillery, first of its kind in Canada, opened this week at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery at Picton, Ont., the army announced Thursday.

Object of the course is to qualify active force non-commissioned officers as assistant instructors in gunnery in the anti-aircraft field. Previously, this qualification could be obtained only by Canadian army personnel who attended Royal Artillery schools in the United Kingdom.

Nineteen candidates are taking the course.

TWO OCCUPANTS of this car escaped without a scratch when it swerved off the highway just outside of Dunnville, slid down embankment, hit tree (left) and spun around just missing Percy Diett's house. Damage is inspected by driver Kenneth Mulkins. With him was Miss Joyce Schumaker of Jarvis.

By popular request, Dr. Leslie Bell will present his famous Bell Singers for a return engagement in Peterborough on Friday evening, November 12. This year's concert will be given under the auspices of the Major Bennett Chapter of the IODE at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Organized ten years ago as an alumni girls' chorus, the Bell Singers have since earned an international reputation as 'a capella' group. Critics in Canada and the United States hail them as 'unrivalled' for their superb ensemble singing, beautiful voices, versatile repertoire, and for the freshness and charm of the choir itself. Indeed, the remarkable coordination of the Leslie Bell Singers and the genuine pleasure each member derives from participation in the singing group add to their overwhelming popularity.

A major contributing factor, of course, to the Bell Singers' reputation are the unique musical arrangements by Dr. Bell, who possesses a rare combination of musicianship, diplomacy and discrimination. Recognized throughout the world as a leading arranger of choral music, Leslie Bell arranges all types of music for 'a capella' or unaccompanied singing. Not handicapped, therefore, by the fact that fashion for the last three centuries has been to write choral music with accompaniment, the Bell Singers are not forced, like many present-day choirs who have endeavoured to revive the 'a capella' tradition, to confine their activities to the works of the early masters or to some specialized field such as that of Russian church music or the negro spiritual.

Recently, the Leslie Bell Singers have enhanced their fame by receiving top billing on the new Canadian General Electric radio program heard every Sunday evening on the Dominion network of the CBC. Their film short, "It's Fun to Sing," is currently showing in theatres across Canada and the United States. A summer radio series on some 600 U.S. radio stations, designed to promote U.S. tourist trade in Canada, featured the Leslie Bell Singers with Hollywood movie stars.

Started Work As A $5-a-Week Office Boy Became Transport Chief At $50,000 A Year

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(Reuters).—Lord Ashfield, 74, who started work as a $5-a-week office boy in Detroit and became chief of London's huge transport system at £12,500 ($50,000) a year, died here Thursday.

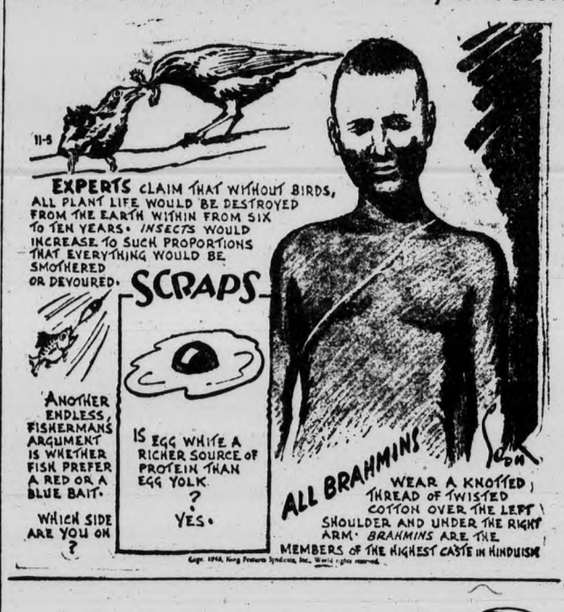
He had an operation a few days ago.

As Albert Stanley he went to Detroit in 1886 when his parents emigrated from Britain.

At 14 he began work with the Detroit Tramway Company at $5 a week. Within six years he was manager of the system, earning $4,000 a year.

In 1907, when the company operating London's first underground railway was in difficulties, Stanley went to London for a year to advise. He never returned to the United States.

He was soon appointed general manager of the United Electric Railways, of which he was afterwards chairman.



After three years in the House of Commons as president of the Board of Trade during the First World War, he was raised to the peerage as Lord Ashfield in 1920.

He returned to his transport work, and when, in 1933, London bus, tram and rail services were unified under the London Passenger Transport Board, Lord Ashfield became chairman.

He held the post until a year ago when he resigned to become a member of the new State Transport Commission.

At one time he was director of 23 companies.

MARMORA, Nov. 5—(ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild met in the parish hall on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. W. D. Lavender presiding. Plans were made for the holding of a bake sale and fancy goods table on December 11. Mesdames G. Kerr and J. W. Hickey were appointed as a nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers for the incoming year at the December meeting.

RELIANCE
ANTI-FREEZE
The only anti-freeze containing Paralloy

Last winter, the coldest in years, RELIANCE Anti-Freeze gave motorists complete protection against radiator freeze-up. Here's why: RELIANCE is the only anti-freeze containing Paralloy, a secret ingredient for added protection.

When you cut your engine, the cooling system heats up temporarily. The instant your engine stops, the Paralloy in RELIANCE starts fighting evaporation. Rising to the surface, it forms a thin protecting film that keeps the anti-freeze where it belongs . . . in the radiator. This winter safeguard your car, ask for RELIANCE—the "self-sealing", economical anti-freeze.

History of Jewish People Filled with Tragedy, Horror

Scripture—The Book of Job.

Many, many intensely dramatic stories are related in our Bible. They include tales of individuals—from Adam to Peter, Paul and other New Testament personalities who led adventure-filled lives, and stirring tales are also narrated of the Hebrew people, their tragedies, wanderings, sufferings, sins and triumphs.

Sometimes it seems that the history of the Jewish people, who have thought themselves the chosen people of God, have been so filled with tragedy and horror that there is no end to it. However, they, too, like Job, hero of today's Bible story, have remained true to Jehovah, and to their faith in ultimate salvation.

The Book of Job beings thus: "There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God."

We are told that Job was a great and wealthy man. He had many possessions—sheep, camels, oxen, and "a very great household." He also had 10 fine children—seven sons and three daughters.

Job feared Jehovah, sacrificed often to Him, even for his children, whom, he feared might be negligent in this rite. Job also was honest in business dealings, and generous to the poor and needy.

MEMORY VERSE

Consider the wondrous works of God."— Job 37:14.

Now there came a day when the sons of God (His messengers or angels) presented themselves to the Lord, and Satan also came, because he too was an angel, although a fallen one.

The Lord said to Satan, "Whence comest thou?" And the Prince of Darkness replied. "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." His answer shows the restlessness of an evil being.

The Lord asked Satan if he had considered His man Job, who was perfect and upright, "One that feareth God and turneth away from evil?" Satan suggested that Job might not prove so perfect if he was made to suffer without apparent cause. The Lord gave Satan permission to try Job by taking away his property, leaving him nothing: even depriving him of his children.

Satan took the challenge, and so it came about that all Job's possessions were destroyed, his children were killed while they were feasting together when the house collapsed, and nothing was left him.

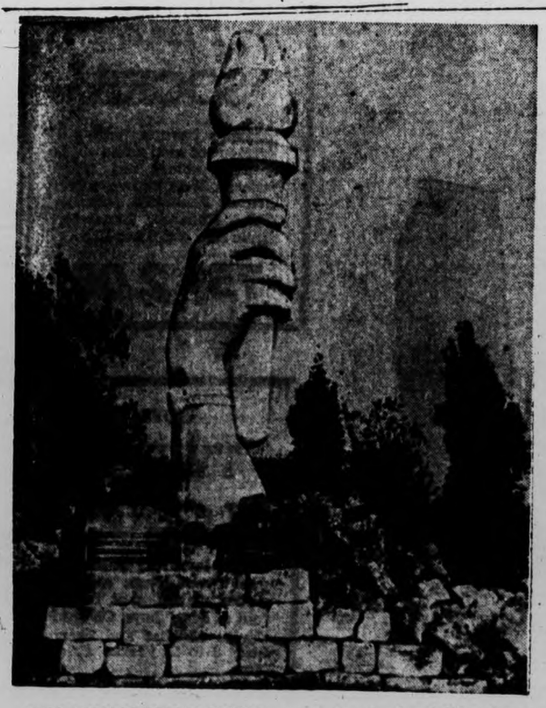
When messengers brought these dreadful tidings to Job, he fell with his face to the ground, saying, "Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither; the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Job had passed the first test and remained faithful, but more was to come. Satan said to the Lord, "Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for life. But put forth thine hand now, and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will curse Thee to Thy face."

The Lord answered, "Behold, he is in thine hand, but save his life."

So Job was afflicted with boils and suffered grievously, and his wife advised him to "curse God and die," but Job rebuked her.

Three friends of Job's came and argued with him, saying that he must have sinned and these afflictions were his punishment, but Job would not agree. He was still faithful to Jehovah and would not accuse Him of injustice, although in his agony, he complained bitterly and wished he had died in childhood.



At the last Jehovah appeared to him in a whirlwind, asking who was complaining of his sufferings, demanding to know "Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the world?" and reciting the wonders thereof which He had created, until Job was humbled, realizing how puny were his miseries compared with the marvels of the universe.

If there is time in the space allotted for the teaching of this lesson, part of the Lord's words to Job should be read. They are among the most beautiful in the whole Bible.

"Cast abroad the rage of thy wrath and behold every one that is proud and abase him," the Lord told Job.

"Then will I also confess unto thee that thine own right hand can save thee." After this the Lord praised Job for his constancy under torture, and thereafter He restored to him his riches, and ten more children were born to Job, three daughters and seven sons, as before.

Trade Steady As Cattle Run Is Light

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP). — A light cattle run of 7,401 head this week gave the Livestock Market a bit of a breather and trade was steady at stronger prices. Cattle gained fully 50 cents and lambs gained 50 cents. Hogs dropped 25 cents, but sows were $1-$1.50 higher. Sheep and calves were unchanged.

The cattle run was added to a heavy carryover of 1,400 head from last week. Fresh arrivals for the week were lightest for some months. Included in the supply were 2,200 stockers, and steers and heifers eligible to blue or red quality were scarce.

Plain to medium weighty steers were mostly $17.50-$22, with a few choice up to $25. Butcher steers were mostly $16.50-$19, with tops at $22. Heifers sold from $16.50-$21, with boners from $14-$15.50. Butcher cows were $12.50$17, with canners and cutters mostly $9-$12. Bulls sold at $18.50-$20 for good butchers with lights downward to $14.

Fed yearlings were $20-$28, with three at $30. Store cattle trade was fairly active with the tsockers from $14-$19 and up to $21 for good breedy feeding steers. Ordinary quality milkers and springers sold at $1.35-$1.75 each.

Calves were 2,000 head. Anything decent in light vealers sold readily at $27-$29. Heavy Westerns were slow to move at $16-$18, with thin grassers from $14-$15.50.

Hogs totalled 2,471 head. Prices were unsettled until Wednesday, then settled 25c lower at $30.75 for Grade A and $30.35 for Grade B1. Sows settled finally $1-$1.50 higher at $24.50-$25, dressed.

Sheep and lambs were 3,671 head. Good ewe and wether lambs sold steady at $23, with $1 discount on bucks. Culls sold from $14-$16. Sheep were steady at $9-$10 for good lights and downward to $5 for culls.

Canal Houses Tax Exempt Department Says

Employees of the Trent Canal system living in houses and on land owned by the Dominion Government are not liable to civic taxation the Department of Transport claimed on Thursday night before the Court of Revision.

After a lengthy hearing the court reserved judgment, but both parties hinted that an adverse decision would be appealed. Wilfred F. Huycke, KC, appeared for the city and F. D. Kerr, KC, for the appellant.

Each year the controversy arises whether or not these houses are liable to taxation by the city, and up until 1948 they have always been exempted.

Affected were Alexander McIlvena, lockmaster, and Bruce Clarke, canalman, who were living in two houses on the east side of the road near the Liftlock; James P. Francis, canalman at the lower lock in East City and Eric Kimball, lockmaster at Lock 19, who occupied similar houses.

Part from the question of whether or not the men could be classed as tenants within the meaning of the Assessment Act, a constitutional issue was raised by Mr. Kerr who quoted from Section 125 of the BNA Act According to the wide provisions of this section, neither Dominion nor Provincial crown lands or properties are liable to taxation.

Mr. Huycke said that the four men could be considered legitimately as tenants, and replied to Mr. Kerr's constitutional argument by declaring that the matter came under the equally broad provisions of property and civil rights which are laid down in the BNA Act as exclusively a provincial matter.

Robert J. Burnside, Trent Canal engineer, acting for the superintending engineer, testified that employees were expected to live in the Crown-owned houses and be on instant 24-hour call during the navigable season.

"Could their work be satisfactorily performed by men living at a distance?" asked Mr. Kerr.

"No," replied Mr. Burnside. "In the opinion of the Department of Transport it is necessary for them to be in the buildings provided, on call 24 hours of the day during the navigating season. They are required to occupy the houses."

He said that $5 a month was deducted at source from the employee's pay. This sum, said Harold Lang, accountant, was entered in the books as "rent" and he said it was applied toward 'Maintenance and upkeep" of the buildings.

Chairman of the court, John A. Harstone, after conferring with the two other members, T. C. Ephgrave and Fred Finnie, announced that judgment would be reserved.

VINCENT M. McCABE is the new president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club. He succeeds Edward G. (Ted) Pridham. Other officers announced as a result of the election held on Thursday are: Jack Allan, 1st vice-president; Al Plaskett, 2nd vice-president; Thomas Rodger, treasurer, and directors: James Collins, Gordon Hancock, Walter Howell, William Ovens, Jack Sinclair, George Solmes, and Fred Stinson.

Car Skids, Spins $300 Damage

Allan C. Ryan, 362 George St. S., had a narrow escape from injury Thursday when his car skidded on wet pavement on highway 28 and went into a spin.

Ryan, a finance company representative, was driving south toward Port Hope, and on the long curving hill two miles north of Bewdley, the accident occurred. The car spun out of control into the west ditch, and when it came to rest, the two front wheels were extended over a culvert. Ryan was unhurt, but damage to the car will be close to $300. Provincial Constable G. E. Henderson investigated.

Scott Praises Local Club For Fine Work

Peterborough Fish and Game Association was host Thursday night to the ladies at a banquet and entertainment held at the Kawartha Club and attended by 120 people.

Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, spoke briefly, expressing this pleasure at the fact that the Association was interesting women in the problems of conservation and game management. He remarked that so far as he knew this was the only club doing such work.

Dr. W. J. Harkness, chief of the fish and wildlife division gave an outline of the organization and functions of his department.

Mrs. Scott spoke briefly on behalf of the ladies for the fine program.

Robert McCabe, club president presided, welcomed the guests and paid tribute to the Minister for the work being done by his department. He then turned the meeting over to Campbell Rowatt, who made a splendid master of ceremonies.

Richard Evans and Douglas Delaney of Carling Conservation Club showed three fine films, chief of which was 'Expedition Moose," which deals with research work being carried on by the Ontario Museum and financed by Carling Conservation Club.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. James Joiner and Donald Boulder.

Suggest Holding Exhibition Early In Summer

Transfer of Peterborough Exhibition from the end to the beginning of summer was a suggestion of Norman McConkey at the meeting of the directors Thursday night.

For several weeks in the first part of June the farming community had caught up with their seeding plans and usually had a breathing period until haying and harvesting.

Mr. McConkey said the season was at its best, the days were longest and exhibitions in the Canadian west, and another at Ormstown, Que., all carried on successfully. Another advantage was to get away from the opposition in dates from Ottawa, Toronto and other big shows.

"I think there is some merit to that idea," Hugh Stewart, president said. It was set over for later consideration. Directors would call their annual meeting at once if they could, to wind up their first post-war exhibition, but the regulations require it to be some time between Jan. 1 and Jan. 21.

Expect Surplus

G. A. Gillespie, secretary-treasurer, reported his expectation of a net operating profit of more than $1,000 when the final bills have been paid. Only a few accounts are still outstanding he said. The surplus might be somewhere between $1,000 and $1,500.

Morrow Trust has paid $30,000 that was expended on the restoration of the park. Half of this capital outlay is regarded as coming from moneys received from the government as compensation for the changes that would be necessary to reconvert the grounds for civil purposes.

The Exhibition Board, it is understood, will assume the other $15,000, paying it in five years with their annual $3,000 grant from the federal government. These instalments will be turned over to Morrow Trust.

Spill Fractures Driver's Ankle

William H. Davey, 43 Lansdowne St., is in Civic Hospital with a fractured ankle as the result of a motorcycle accident on the Canal Rd. shortly after midnight.

According to police, Davey, who has not been long driving a motorcycle, was accompanying four cycling companions down the Canal Rd. When he came to the Maria St. turn, in some manner he lost control of the vehicle which skidded nearly 200 feet to the shoulder of the road, and then plunged into the ditch, overturning and coming to rest 55 feet further on.

His companions—Jack and Bill Wakeford of 95 Lansdowne St., and Arthur and David Howson of RR 8, Peterborough—took him to Civic Hospital where he was attended to by Dr. A. G. Howson.

The accident was investigated by PC's Claire McGillen and Harold Andrews.

USED 300 KWH TOO MUCH

Peterborough overran its electric power quota Thursday by only 300 kilowatt-hours. A little saving here and there, and it could have easily been done, and the city would have had another sub-quota day to its credit. The Peterborough average for the four days, Monday-Thursday, is 224,500 as compared with the quota of 229,700 kwh. At that rate this community should still be able to look the Hydro moguls in the eye.

Bousfield and Tinker Medals Presented To Top Students

The two top ranking students of King George Public School, Donald Clapper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dit Clapper, 27 Charles St., and Lorraine Derry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Derry, 165 Hunter St., were presented with the Bousfield and Tinker medals on Thursday afternoon. The ceremony, presided over by the principal, C. D. Munro, was held at the school. Both winners graduated in June and the awards were made for the leadership and proficiency which they showed during their years in public school.

The Bousfield medal, a memorial to the late George Bousfield, who met sudden death in a shooting accident some years ago when a student of King George School, has been donated by his mother, now a resident of Banff, and father, the late Rev. George Bousfield, who was for 21 years rector of St. Luke's Parish. The presentation to Donald Clapper was made by the Rev. Walter Gilling, rector of St. Luke's.

Lorraine Derry, winner of the Tinker medal in recognition of her proficiency at King George School, received the medal which is donated by Mr. and Mrs. William Tinker from Mr. Tinker, who in a short address said the occasion struck a personal note with him as Miss Derry's grandparents were the first friends he made when he came to Peterborough 40 years ago.

To Start Library In South End

Preliminary arrangements are being made to start building a new library in the south end, with the money remaining from the 1948 budget. This is the decision reached by the Public Library Board members Thursday evening.

W. L. Graff, librarian, explained to the group that the young interested children come to the library in flocks, after being there in the afternoon with their school teachers. He went further to say, that around 500 children attended a film last week-end, a story on Germany. He reviewed the two exhibits held during October and mention a letter from an architect in London, Ontario, stating the sketch for the interior designing of the Public Library will be ready at the end of the year.

Plans are being made to hire another janitor, to help with the increased amount of work. Since her service exceeds 25 years, it was agreed to pay Miss Myrtle Knapp for the time she has been sick.

Oil Killing Marsh Bluebills

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—(CP).—A group of scientists and conservationists, who have tried vainly to solve the problem of hundreds of oil-contaminated ducks in the St. Lawrence river, said today the only apparent hope of saving some of the birds lay in a special solution being sent here.

Dan Ryan, Verdun and district Sportsmen's Association president, who estimates more than 7,000 ducks have been mired in oil slicks along the river, said he had been in touch with the Audobon Society of New York and a newly-developed oil-removing agent was being sent here.

Ryan worked Thursday night with McGill biologists trying to remove oil from six mash bluebirds found along the river but the birds had to be destroyed.

City Council Asks To Meet With Memorial Committee In Order To Revive Project

A new approach to the Memorial Community Centre and its problems of location and financing was recommended at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Thursday night. Ald. M. J. Swanston, chairman, was authorized in a motion by Mayor Ovens and Ald. Hurrell Dodds to arrange with Joseph Jebson, chairman of the Centre committee, for a joint meeting of the council and the committee at any early date. It will probably be within the next two weeks.

Revival of the Centre project was suggested in a letter to the council from Mr. Jebson Monday night. He and Ald. Doug Miller, C. B. Neal and J. H. Eastwood recently visited Guelph and its new Memorial Gardens.

"On our return each of us was more convinced than ever that our Memorial Centre should be under way," Mr. Jebson wrote, requesting some decision in that direction "before this year's council dissolves."

The Guelph arena cost $450,000, Ald. Doug Miller told the committee Thursday night. It has seating capacity for 4,200 persons, and in its first two home games this season it sold its total accommodation. Two-thirds of the seats are placed on a subscription list. Guelph has a population of 25,000, Ald. Miller said.

Summer Activities

"The manager told us they will make more money from roller skating and dancing in the summer, because these pastimes are both popular, and there is more profit from them than from skating and hockey, as there is less expense of operation.

"They have one refrigeration system, but that is a hazard if anything happened to it. When they make ice they leave it there. Our Centre called for equipment to take out the ice in 18 hours. It was planned for public meetings, concerts and other affairs. That requires a different set-up than they have at Guelph. We would have to put in cork and lead under our pipes to prevent the frost from going into the ground. In my opinion they have a very fine memorial, suitable for their purposes.

"I think our Memorial Centre committee has reached a point where they are willing to revise their plans, and try to get our Memorial Centre under way. I believe they realize that what they wished to do in the beginning is now practically out of the question."

Ald. Miller said that from the Guelph contractor he got an opinion that some of the features desired for the Peterborough Centre would cost $100,000 more than Guelph's $450,000. That would amount to $550,000, assuming the approximation nearly correct.

"The funds we have are $300,000, including the $75,000 which the ratepayers approved as a contribution from the municipality. On that basis we would have a balance of $250,000 to raise somehow. Our Centre certainly can't be completed for $300,000."

Economies in Guelph Rink

Ald. Miller mentioned certain economies in the Guelph rink, including the use of a wall of an adjoining building as one side of the rink. They have various dressing rooms, refreshment booths, "and they have a wonderful organ. The acoustics were splendid."

That is an outline of Ald. Miller's description of the Guelph building. He said it was realized after the trip that seating capacity of 5,000 for Peterborough would not be too big.

Question of Site

Mayor Ovens suggested that the council and the building committee of the Centre should come together. "They could make some recommendations for doing what is necessary."

Ald. Dodds: "Is it up to us now to decide on the site?"

City Clerk Outram brought the Centre private bill from his office to refresh memories on that detail. He read that the city may acquire lands for the Centre, and also that the site "shall be approved by the council and the Centre committee".

Ald. Gordon Armstrong enquired whether the city was in a position to issue debentures up to $250,000 against the value of the market property. That query set discussion briefly on the question of financing.

"I think the first thing to settle is where the Memorial Centre is to be located," said Ald. Hugh Waddell. "We could talk here all night about where the money might come from, and not get very far."

Alternative properties were casually mentioned, including the block on George St. south occupied by the Children's Aid Society home.

That location would have to be bought from the C.A.S. Then, King Edward Park, on the west side of George St., was dragged out again as property owned by the city, and available without cost.

British Essayist Wins Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Swedish Academy today voted the 1948 Nobel prize in literature to T. S. Eliot, British poet, dramatist and essayist.

Eliot will receive the award, about $44,000 this year, at the Nobel prize ceremony in Stockholm, Dec. 10.

The Nobel prizes are provided by the will of Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish scientist and industrialist, who died in 1896. The prize in medicine was voted last week to Dr. Paul Mueller of Switzerland. The prizes in physics and chemistry and the Peace prize have not yet been voted.

Eliot, who is 60, was born in St. Louis, Mo., but carved out his literary career in England and became a British subject in 1927.

His works includes the versified plays "The Rock," "Murder in the Cathedral" and "The Family Reunion"; and the collection of poems "The Hollow Men," "Ash Wednesday" and "Four Quartets."

UNBROKEN BOTTLES OF LIQUOR are unloaded by residents of Morven, four miles east of Napanee, from upset, fire-swept transport which collided with United Church minister's car opposite the parsonage. Loss is estimated at more than $10,000. Rev. J. A. Haw was slightly hurt; truck driver Fred Jorden, Toronto, treated for burns in Kingston hospital.

Sentence Suspended On Four Youths In City Court

Four 16-year-old boys were given a stern warning by Magistrate W. R. Philp in city court Thursday advising them that if they appeared before him within the year each would be severely dealt with in the matter of a jail or reformatory term.

His advice came after the four had been convicted of causing a disturbance in the Ashburnham business section on the night of Oct. 28. They had been arrested and brought to the police station at 9.20 by Constables Niziol and O'Donoghue. Twenty minutes earlier the same group had been warned by Constables O'Donoghue and Mesley, that complaints had come in about their noise-making. When the second call came in, the arrests were made.

Each boy wass given one year suspended sentence, and required to sign his own bond of $200. Should they be brought into court within the next 12 months, they forfeit the bond, and also can be sentenced for this particular offence along with the second one.

The four boys are: Robert Rogers, laborer, 88 Douro St.; Neil Thompson, student, 125 Hazlitt St.; Allan Forsythe, laborer, 375 Rogers St., and Lawrence Foley, student, 338 Ludgate St.

Commenting on the case, Chief Constable John Thompson said: "It's a funny thing to me that we could lock these four boys in the cells until one o'clock in the morning and not have the parents inquiring about them. Sure-out where their children are when they are not home by 11 o'clock."

He added that others had been equally guilty with the four, but these had not been picked up, because the police were unable to locate them. He also said a special patrol would see to it that there would be no repetition of the rowdyism in Ashburnham, and if there was, he would urge the Crown to oppose suspended sentences, and see to it that offenders were given a jail term.

"They are four fine-looking, intelligent boys, but they have not the proper respect for authority, nor have they consideration for the merchants in that area. I hope the parents will take the interest they should in these boys, and avoid any further unpleasantness."

Find Moustaches Gaining In Popularity

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—(AP).—The moustache may have been defeated at the polls, but a Hollywood expert says it's on the upswing with the United States male.

"Moustaches are definitely gaining in popularity," reports Universal - International makeup chief, Buddy Westmore. But he warns that not all men should wear them.

"The trouble with men is that they try to copy someone else's moustache when they don't have the right physique or face for it," said brushless Buddy.

Before you start adding any upper-lip fungus, you'd better study Westmore's 10 rules for moustaches:

1. Short men should avoid them or they'll look shorter.
2. Square-jawed men shouldn't wear short, thin ones.
3. Long, narrow-faced men shouldn't grow 'em wide or let 'em droop. "Drooping creates an illusion of unhappiness."
4. A wide moustache for the round-faced.
5. Men with long upper lips should wear them.
6. Blonde men should avoid them unless they have heavy beards. "Or they can darken their light moustaches with the wife's eybrow pencil.
7. It's all right if hair and moustache color don't match.
8. A moustache looks incongruous on a bald man. "It seems to me they're just trying to prove they can grow hair some place."
9. Beware! A moustache adds age.
10. Keep it trimmed neat to derive any benefit.

I have asked a number of film personalities for their opinion on the moustache issue. Here are their replies:

Lizabeth Scott: "I think they're hideous. They tickle."

Dinah Shore: "Yes, they tickle, but it's worth it. They make men look so romantic."

Ella Raines: "I don't like them. If a man does wear one, I don't mind—as long as he keeps his distance."

Assured Of Fight

CORNWALL, Nov. 5.—(CP).—Mayor Lloyd D. Gallinger of Cornwall, was assured of a fight today in the municipal elections next Dec. 6. Aldermen Robert Revie, J. L. Johnson and Dr. E. J. Courville all indicated they will battle for the mayoralty office.

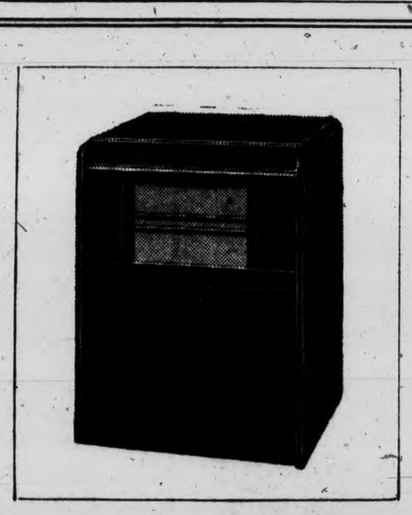
Claim Police Chief Fired After Laying Charges Against Councillors, OPA Checks

KITCHENER, Nov. 5—(CP).—The executive of the Ontario Police Association Wednesday decided to investigate the dismissal of Chief Constable Arthur Baker of Chesterville.

Chief Baker was dismissed Nov. 1, and the OPA claims there was no apparent cause for him losing his job.

Facts of the case were presented by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Police Association.



The meeting was informed that dismissal of Chief Baker followed his laying traffic charges against two councillors of Chesterville.

Baker claims that after the first charge had been made and upheld he was warned that if it occurred again he would be fired. His dismissal followed a successful prosecution of a second councillor.

In the resultant controversy Magistrate D. C. Smith of Smiths Falls wrote a lengthy letter to the district press supporting Chief Baker.

WEARING A DIAMOND-STUDDED gold crucifix given him by Patriarch Alexei of the Russian Orthodox Church, Rev. Hewlett Johnson, the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, arrived in Toronto Thursday. He is touring Canada and the United States on a speaking tour. Immigration technicalities delayed his arrival. He spoke in Hamilton late in the afternoon.

Primary Duty Of Canadian Banks Safeguarding Depositors' Funds

TORONTO, Nov. 5—Canada's economy is at such a peak of activity that the chartered banks handle customers' cheques totalling $6.5 billions a month, Robert Race, President of The Canadian Bankers' Association said here today.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Association, Mr. Rae, who is vice-president and general manager of The Dominion Bank, said more Canadians are using bank facilities than ever before. They are writing more cheques than ever before, with the result that debits to individual accounts average $6.5 billions a month, a volume of turnover equal to the deposits of the public once a month.

By handling and recording this huge volume of payments by Canadians to one another, the banks acts as the bookkeepers of their millions of customers. It illustrates, also, the simplicity, facility and impartiality of banking service.

Mr. Rae gave a general review of economic and financial conditions in Canada in the form of a report to the 7 million Canadians who are bank customers.

Sound Under Every Test

He said the Canadian banking system had proved sound and safe under every test in recent memory. Then he continued: "The prime reason rests with our seven million customers. Their unwavering confidence in their banks has been decisive.

"It is due to the steadiness of these satisfied customers, their willingness to leave their savings with us, their resistence to undeserved criticisms, their unreadiness to accept dangerous economic doctrines, that the banks have been able to serve so well the people's needs in war, reconstruction and postwar production.

In his general review of Canadian affairs. Mr. Rae found "a busy Canada", a nation that, part from the United States, "is in a more prosperous condition than any other country in the world." He predicted the Canadian people will not easily be led to scrap the free institutions of government and business that make this possible and have helped place the Canadian standard of living and way of life among the best in the world. Democratic processes and common sense will iron out any fault that may exist, including the combination of high prices and high taxes, which is not confined to Canada.

Mr. Rae said the 10 chartered banks, competing among themselves for deposit and lending business, have 3,385 branches across Canada. The banks are owned by 56,000 shareholders who last year earned 3.8 per cent. on their equity, compared to 4.2 per cent. before the war. The shareholders annually elect 192 directors who, is turn, appoint the senior management to supervise an army of bank employees now numbering 41,016, an increase of 65 per cent. since 1939, to handle the larger volume of bank business in Canada's expanded economy.

Bank payrolls last year approached $79 millions, 113 per cent. higher than pre-war. Interest paid to depositors reached $46.6 millions. Taxes totalled $21.4 millions, compared with $9.4 millions in 1939. Contributions to staff pension funds were $9.5 millions.

In the 3,385 branches of the Canadian banks, customers maintain 7,221,052 deposit accounts. Deposits by the public, as distinguished from those by governments, total $6,217 millions, of which $4,000 millions represent savings accounts of individuals. The banks have 900,000 borrowing customers, who, of course, are depositors also.

"Banking service is a matter of banking experience and managerial skill," Mr. Rae continued. "No alternative system aimed at steering credit for the fulfilment of political aims could serve as well or as impartially.

Our primary duty is safeguarding depositors' funds. We safeguard the privacy of all regular transactions. Our business is short-term lending. We take risks within reason. Competitively, we seek to keep credit moving through all the channels of trade and opportunity, thus furnishing a foundation under national prosperity, production, marketing and employment. We do the job efficiently and well, at low cost to our customers."

More people are using bank services today than ever before, Mr. Rae noted, adding at a time when feeling toward the banks among people at large is manifestly better than is any past period, it seems incongruous (one noted editor has referred to is as 'Canada's greatest anomaly') that an agitation should arise to change the accepted system for something else."

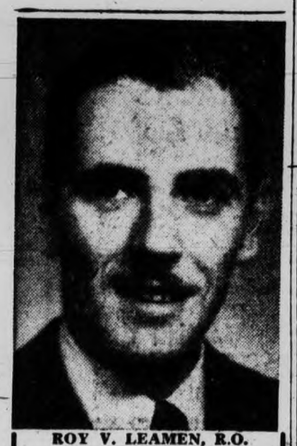
Ponder Plant Union Move To Prosecute

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP). — The Ontario Labor Relations Board is pondering a labor union's application to prosecute the head of the Benedict Proctor Silver Company of Trenton for what the union claims were unfair labor practices.

The Board reserved decision after hearing evidence that when the Intrnational Jwellery Workers Union (CIO) demanded higher wages, H. J. Craddock, company president, said the firm could not afford to raise the pay and might have to close because it was losing money.

W. R. West, counsel for Mr. Craddock, contended that the firm head was within his rights in considering closing the plant if he could not reach agreement with the union.



But union counsel E. B. Jolliffe claimed that Mr. Craddock had made a "calculated effort" to rid the plant of the Jewellery Workers' Union.

Says Pair Slain After Attack On Linton Home

SIMCOE, Nov. 5.—(CP).—Defence counsel D. E. W. Tisdale claimel Thursday the Crown had not even proved manslaughter—much less murder—in its prosecution of 41-year-old Seth Linton.

Linton, Charlotteville township farmer and well-digger, is accused of killing Lew Stewart, 44, and John Kipp, 32, in a fight June 6 at Linton's home, two miles west of here.

"Seth did what you and I would have done against those two drunken thugs," the lawyer claimed.

He said evidence showed Stewart and Kipp broke into Linton's house before the fight.

Linton now is being tried for the murder of Stewart, and faces another murder charge for Kipp's death.

Mr. Tisdale claimed Stewart and Kipp were "looking for trouble" when they came to Linton's home. They were accompanied by Mrs. Edith Stewart, the wife of Stewart and the sister of Kipp, who had been Linton's housekeeper. She and her 13-year-old daughter, Joanne, lived at Linton's house.

Some Bitterness

Crown Attorney C. P. Hope told the jury Stewart's announcement that he was going to leave the accused "must have left something of bitterness in Linton's mind."

He said Joanne Stewart had called out that Linton would not let her out of the house when the slain men and Mrs. Stewart called at the house.

Linton was advancing and the two men were retreating during the fight, he said. Stewart was lying on the ground when Linton struck him over the head with a rifle butt.

Evidence of pathologists showed Stewart was hit by two .22-calibre rifle bullets, but death was caused by a fractured skull. Stewart had been beaten badly about the head.

Taking the stand in his own defence Thursday, Linton testified that Kipp came to his house early the morning of the fight and struck him on the head and face. Later Kipp and Stewart came back and broke into his house.

He said he had "certainly" not intended to kill Stewart and only intended to protect his house.

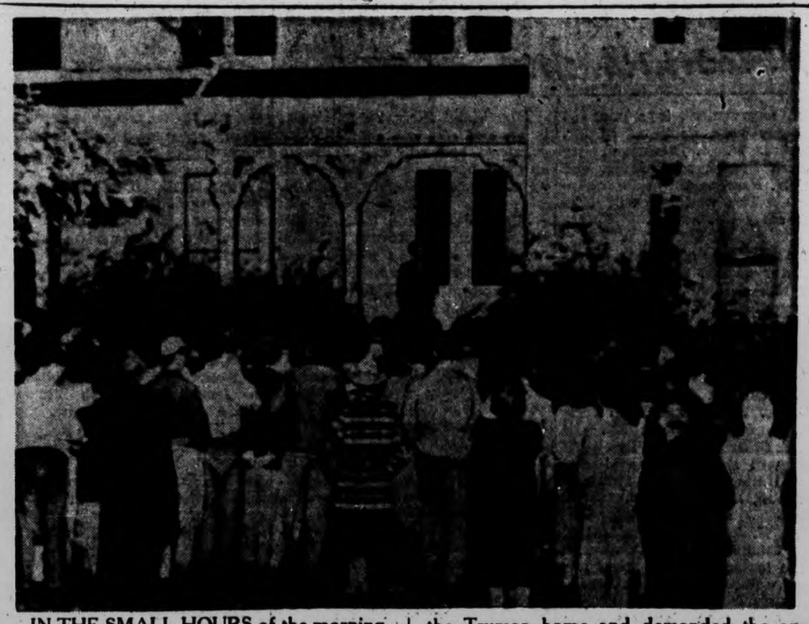
Oil, Poachers Kill Ducks On St. Lawrence

QUEBEC, Nov. 5. — (CP). — Quebec fish and game officials said today that last week's fog which immobilized many ships in the St. Lawrence River may have endangered indirectly hundreds of migrating ducks now on their way south for the winter.

The officials said they are investigating reports that unknown numbers of ducks were caught in St. Lawrence shore water left oily by the bilge pumps of fog-bound ships.



Reports to the department indicated that many ducks caught in the sticky water were killed on river shores by people from nearby localities who were able to get at the trapped birds with sticks.

Department officers will visit some of the areas from which the reports have come.

It was also learned that Royal Canadian Mounted Police, acting for federal authorities responsible for the protection of migratory birds, are also investigating.

They had to settle for Margaret Truman, who appeared on the front porch of the Truman home and explained that the president was not at home.

Speaker Deplores Soulless People New Spirit Needed

CALGARY, Nov. 5.—(CP). — Catholic women must fight against "forces in the world that would completely destroy the Christian home," Rt. Rev. Msgr. W. J. Burns of Halifax told delegates atteiding the 28th annual national convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

In an address Thursday night before more than 150 convention delegates, Msgr. Burns, provincial director of the C.W.L. for Nova Scotia, said keeping the home intact depended on the parents and their auxiliaries.

"We know that today there are forces in the world that would completely destroy the Christian home,' he said. "We must fight against these powers.

"Your home is what you make it; your children are what you give them so that future generations depend upon our efforts to make present generations grow in love, respect and fear of God."

One of the highlights of the second day of the six-day convention Thursday was a ceremony conferring the Procclesia Medal on Mrs. W. J. Dundin, national president of the organization. The medal, instituted by Pope Leo 13 and conferred on Mrs. Dundin by Pope Pius 12, was presented by Most Rev. William M. Duke, Archbishop of Vancouver. It was presented to Mrs. Dundin "in recognition of outstanding work with the C.W.L. in Canada."

Another speaker Thursday, Re. Rev. T. M. Nichol of Vancouver, told delegates there was a need "of breathing a new spiritual being into a soulless generation." He deplored a tendency of many churchgoers to neglect Christian principlesc in their approach to the business, social and political sides of their lives.

Women to Have More Power In Both U.S. Senate, House

WASHINGTON. — Women will have greater power in the next Congress with members in both Senate and House of Representatives for the first time since the days of Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas.

In the 80th Congress, there were seven women—four Republicans and three Democrats.

Now the Democrats are counting four winners and the Republicans four and hoping for a fifth.

The women lawmakers are expected to focus major attention on housing, high cost of living, education, veterans' affairs and social legislation.

National committee officials say the women got the voters' approval on their records.

15 Candidates

There were 10 Democratic women candidates for the House and five Republicans. The one candidate for the Senate, former Representative Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, was elected Sept. 13.

Election of a Democratic newcomer, Judge Reva Beck Bosone of Salt Lake City, Utah, is assured. Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Covington, Ind., Republican, won in her first bid for the House.

Two long-time members of the House, Representative Mary T. Norton (Dem. N.J.) and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Rep. Mass.) will return for their 13th terms.

Mrs. Norton, now in her 70's, was first elected in 1924.

Mrs. Rogers was named a few months later to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, Representative John Jacob Rogers. She was unopposed this year.

Mrs. Norton was the first woman to head an important House committee—that of labor. She lost the chairmanship when the Democrats lost control of the House in 1946. Now she is slated for a key spot again.

Democratic control of the House means Mrs. Rogers will have to yield her chairmanship of the veteran affairs committee. But she will continue as ranking minority member. She now is 67.

The Democratic sweep brought revenge to Victoria-born Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut. After one term in the House, she lost in 1946 to Representative Horace Seety-Brown Jr., Republican. This time she defeated him.

Representative Katharine St. George of New York, socially topflight and Republican kin of the Hyde Park Roosevelts, won her bid for a second term.

Representative Frances P. Bolton (Rep. O.), five times elected to the House, also came in victor as did Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (Dem., Calif.), actress-wife of Melvin Douglas. Mrs. Douglas comes back for a third term.

Thus the three Republicans and two Democrats who stood for reelection made it.

Seven other women candidates —one Republican and six Democrats—met defeat.

Nancy Moore, Educated Here Marries in Pasadena, Calif.

In the Chapel of Roses, Pasadena, California, the wedding of Miss Nancy Moore, formerly of Peterborough, to Elton E. Crutchfield, Jr., took place on Saturday, October 28. Miss Moore, who is a daughter of Mr. Albert George Moore of California, and the late Mrs. Moore, is a niece of Mrs. A. Constable, 583 Harvey Street, with whom she lived for 19 years, leaving the city only two years ago after completing her education in local schools. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Crutchfield, Sr., Denver, Colorado.

Candlelight in the chapel brought out the beauty of the floral setting of white chrysanthemums and gladioli, banked with palms. Organ music and chapel chimes were heard before the ceremony and the soloist sang "I Love Thee" and "Because." Rev. Arthur Lee Odell officiated at the service.

The bride's gown of white slipper satin had a net yoke edged with gathered lace, and the bodice was pointed at the front and edged with lace that formed a bustle at the back and the train was also edged with the gathered lace. She wore a finger tip veil of net, with lace edging, caught to a halo of orange blossom and carried a cascade of Briarcliffe roses and lily of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father.

Bridal attendants were Mrs Dorothy Pick, matron of honor, Mrs. Phyllis Foster and Miss Natalie Mayday bridesmaids. Their dresses were of blue, yellow and pink taffeta styled with low round neckline and bertha collar, puffed sleeves on bodice, pointed at waistline, and hooped skirts, caught up at the hemline to show white lace. They wore halos of flowers with short veils and carried crescent bouquets of pink, lavender and blue carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Stanton Coulter, and ushers were Jim McCall and Freeman H. Blair.

At the reception held in the Chapel lounge the groom's mother assisted in receiving, gowned in brown crepe with brown hat, and a corsage of yellow roses.

For a trip to the Mission Inn at Riverside, California, the bride wore a light brown suit, with light blue feathered hat and gloves and scarf to match, and brown accessories. During the Christmas season coming, Mr. and Mrs. Crutchfield expect to visit Peterborough. Their home is at 666 South Brady Avenue, Los Angeles, California.

DOROTHY DIX

Only Daughter Has Right To Leave Home for Job

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an only daughter, 23 years old. I have been offered the chance of my life to gratify my ambition and do the work I have fitted myself to do, but if I accept the opportunity I will have to leave home. Both my mother and father are about to have a fit at the mere thought of my doing so.

What is the duty of an only daughter to her parents? What would you advise me to do?

BEATRICE H.

ANSWER: I believe in children doing their duty by their parents and treating them with all due affection, respect and consideration, but fathers and mothers have no right to ask their boys and girls to sacrifice their lives for them nor to give up their careers for their whims.

My advice to you is to get up and go. Don't hesitate to follow where fortune beckons you. Opportunity has a way of passing us by when we don't respond promptly when she knocks at our door the first time.

Duty is to Self

You are young. You have your life still before you They are old. Their fates are sealed. You probably have years ahead in which to achieve things. Their day's work is practically over. Just looking at it from any standpoint, it isn't fair or just that you should give up all that you may do or have just for the sake of giving them the pleasure of your company.

◆ ◆ ◆

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a woman 25 years old, married to a man of 55. I have been married for about five years and during that time I have been utterly miserable due to my husband's insane jealousy. I can't go to a dance unless I sit right by his side the entire evening. I can't go to a movie with a girl friend. I can't even go to the drugstore or to visit a neighbor without him tagging along. If I attempt it, there is a scene.

Don't you think it is most unfair for my husband to treat me like this? I am fed up with his jealous insults.

A. B. C.

ANSWER: The only excuse that you can make for such a man is that he is crazy. No man in his right senses could possibly believe that his wife continually was trying to deceive him, or that she was carrying on clandestine affairs with every man she saw and that every visit she paid to a neighbor was a rendezvous.

Jealousy is the hardest of all faults for a wife to combat because it is a delusion, and when she fights against it she is fighting against an impalpable ghost. It is made up of the vile imaginings of a man's own mind. Perhaps it represents the things that he would like to do and would do if he were in her place, and so he attributes them to her. He cannot believe in anything that is good and honest and honorable; hence, he never can believe that a woman can walk straight for the sake of her own principles and self-respect. And nothing she can do or leave undone ever convinces him of her good faith.

The wife who endures cruel and inhuman jealousy from her husband for five years certainly is entitled to a hero's medal.

◆ ◆ ◆

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 16 years old and have had a few dates with boys, but they rarely come a second time. My girl friends tell me that the reason the boys do not return is because I am so sarcastic. Can you give me a cure for sarcasm?

JULIE

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: I suppose you mean by sarcasm that you make cutting remarks to the boys and ridicule their clothes and manners, and you think that shows how clever you are. Your girl friends are right when they tell you that no boy comes back for a second helping of that kind of talk.

So stop handing out conversational vinegar and learn to laugh with people, instead of at them, and to say pleasant instead of disagreeable things, and you will be popular with both boys and girls. (Released by The Bell Synidcate, Inc.)

For Saturday, November 6

Although there are auguries for favorable contacts with superiors, employers or others in influential places, with some hope of advancement, favors and other tokens of friendly interest, promising desired changes, yet it might be easy to fall into pitfalls, snares, schemes or other experiences—pernicious, illicit or chaotic. Keep wary of all possible traps.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may step into a year of promotion, preferment, favors and friendliness from those in high places in which new plans and objectives may thrive. This holds true in connection with personal relations as well as business and employment. Yet there is an undertone of the tricky, pernicious, sinister and subtle, making it imperative to keep a watchful and far-seeing eye on all manner of transactions or contacts that might prove complicated and distressing.

A child born on this day, while securing recognition or favors from influential sources, yet may find itself disposed to fall into strange places and experience by its own urge to take "the easiest way."

WHERE ARE THE RINKS?

Youthful hockeyists are wondering when the Board of Works employees will be putting up the rink boxes in the city. Last year the work was done earlier, and it was learned today that pressure of other jobs had delayed erecting the rink boards. Armar Butcher, parks supervisor says the rinks will be ready long before the weather is cold enough to make ice.

ONE CHIMNEY FIRE

Firemen made only one run on Thursday and that was a chimney fire which was reported shortly before 6 p.m. at the Peterborough Lumber Co. mill on Monaghan Rd. The draughts were cut and firemen waited a while to see that no sparks from the chimney ignited sawdust nearby.

City Council

"The Centre would ruin the whole appearance of King Edward Park," Mayor Ovens said.

"There's another park only a block away," City Clerk Outram remarked.

Mayor Ovens said King Edward was not only a beauty spot but it was used by many people during the summer months, and especially by children.

"I'd hate to see any part of it used for the Memorial Centre," his worship said.

"They don't use it enough to keep the grass down," said Mr. Outram.

May Need New School

Ald. Dodds said that 20 years hence the city might have to build a Collegiate Institute in the south end, and the Council of this time might be blamed if that park was not kept as it is.

Mayor Ovens said it was embarrassing to have to rehash this site problem. "Once we can adopt a site everybody will be a lot happier."

"I think the Memorial Centre committee would like to get down to brass tacks so they could start in the spring," Ald. D. Miller said. "From several men I was talking to, I think the petition about King Edward park was half-hearted. Some people signed it because it was brought along the street. If a meeting of the ratepayers was called it could be talked over with them."

Mayor Ovens recalled that there was nothing half-hearted about the number of telephone calls to him from residents of that south-end section when King Edward park was previously proposed. "I don't think I ever got so many."

"If we can get the site question decided, the problem of financing could probably be worked out," Ald. Swanston said.

COURTEOUS THIEVES

Fred Walker, 426 Wolsley St., was the victim of unusually courteous thieves while in Toronto. He parked his car on the street opposite his son's home on Monday night, and when he left the house on Tuesday morning to drive back to Peterborough he found that it was missing. Early on Thursday morning he received a long-distance telephone call from the Toronto police saying they had found the abandoned vehicle between Sunnyside and Mimico. The thieves had also left a number of parcels, the sum of Mr. Walker's shopping spree in Toronto, completely untouched.

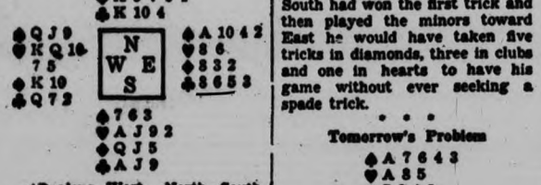
SALLY'S SALLIES



"If I marry you, how do I know I won't have to do this all over AGAIN!"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRONG TIME TO USE IT

THERE IS a right and a wrong time for everything in bridge. This truism is emphatically so in the case of the play called the "Bath coup," which is supposed to have been originated by whist players in that German resort town. It consists usually of refusing to play the ace from a holding of three or four cards headed by the ace-jack when the player at the left had led the king from king-queen. A repeat of the suit will of course give the declarer two tricks in it. But this should almost never be attempted if a switch by the leader to some other suit could wreck the contract.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	Pass	Dbl
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

West made the natural lead of his heart K. South, who had only recently learned about the Bath coup, noted that it might give him two prompt tricks if he played low. So he put in the 2, expecting West to lead a second heart. But West decided to shift and try his spade Q. It takes no brilliancy to see what that did to South. It caused him to drop four tricks in spades and be down one before he took a trick.

Somebody should have warned South that as a general proposition the Bath coup should not be tried except when he could not be harmed unduly by a switch in lead. The ideal spot for it, of course, is when a change of lead also would be helpful, no matter what suit the leader selected. This was not one of those times, but the reverse.

South could have noted, upon study, that both clubs and diamonds might be finessed toward East. If a finesse in one of those suits lost, East's return could not damage h..... in spades, but only build up the K as winner, no matter who had the A. In addition, the probability, from West's opening bid, was that either or both of those finesses would work. If South had won the first trick and then played the minors toward East he would have taken five tricks in diamonds, three in clubs and one in hearts to have his game without ever seeking a spade trick.

Tomorrow's Problem

If on your way to a sure bid of grand slam, West playfully doubles your 5-No Trumps, will you in the South redouble or go on and make your bid?

Two Guards Stabbed By Convict

Same Prisoner Knifed Guard Last June; Men Not Badly Hurt

KINGSTON, Nov. 6 — (CP).— Two guards were stabbed by a convict— one six times and the other once — at Kingston Penitentiary Friday, it was disclosed to-day.

The convict blamed for the stabbing is Patrick McKenzie, sentenced at Toronto two years ago on theft and wounding charges, and now awaiting trial on a charge of wounding a guard in the Penitentiary last June 20.

H. E. Goodfriend, a guard, was stabbed six times in the back—three times on each side—after he placed a tray of food for McKenzie on a table outside the cell.

The convict jumped on him as he turned. J. R. Hodgson, the other guard, was stabbed once when he went to Goodfriend's assistance.

The pair overpowered McKenzie.

It was not known where the convict obtained the knife which had been smuggled into his cell.

Wounds Not Deep

The guards are receiving medical attention, but it is reported their wounds are not deep.

C. M. B. Kemp was stabbed in the June incident with which McKenzie is charged. He was attacked and wounded in the prison's shoe repair shop.

In Toronto police said McKenzie was sentenced September 16, 1946, to six years on a charge of wounding a Chinese with an iron bar. He got another three years, concurrent, on a charge of robbing his victim of $170. His age was not known.

Jack Sargent Wins County Oratory Title

Jack Sargent, 13 year old pupil at SS No. 4, North Monaghan, won top honors in the Peterborough county public speaking finals held at the Normal school Friday night. Ten students representing the best in the county competed and second prize went to Mary Jean Wilson, SS 4, Apsley. Third money was taken by Shirley Hope, SS 1, Otonabee and fourth award went to Jane Jarvis, Queen Elizabeth school, Peterborough.

The winner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sargent, RR 1, Ida, and his ttopic was "From Politics to Palominos." It was a cleverly told story of John Bracken and his fine Palomino horses, and a description of Mr. Bracken's farm on the banks of the Rideau river near Ottawa.

The speaker showed good poise, a natural style without any annoying mannerisms, and the material, diction and enunciation work were excellent. He was awarded the Elliott trophy and $15 in cash.

First and second pace winners will enter the Eastern Ontario finals at Brighton Nov. 19.

Won't Attend Royal Birth

LONDON, Nov. 6 (Reuters) — The King has ended a centuries-old British custom with the announcement that Home Secretary Chuter Ede will not be summoned to Buckingham Palace for the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby expected about Nov. 14.

"The attendance of a minister of the crown at a birth in the Royal family is not a statutory requirement or a constitutional necessity," the announcement Friday night said. "It is merely the survival of an archaic custom and the King feels that it is necessary to continue further a practice for which there is no legal requirement."

Ede will still however, be responsible for making official notification throughout Britain of the birth of an heir to the throne, the announcement added. In practice, this means that the news will be telephoned to Ede, who will see that a bulletin is fixed on the doors of the Home Office.

He will also notify the Lord Mayor of London, who has a traditional right to be informed promptly.

Wants All Palestine Under Stiff Truce

PARIS, Nov. 6 (AP) — Britain prepared today to press her demand that the United Nations Security Council extend its stiffened truce regulations to all Palestine.

The resolution threatening U.N. action against truce violators originally was drawn up for the Negev area in Southern Palestine where Israeli troops last month pushed back Egyptian forces.

Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan insisted after the resolution had been passed that it be extended also to the Galilee area of Northern Palestine from which the Jews claimed last week they had cleared all Arab forces. Britain had the backing of China and Belgium in the debate.

The Council voted to postpone debate on Sir Alexander's resolution until complete information on the situation in Northern Palestine reached Paris.

British Factory Workers Will Tour Plants In US

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Hundreds of British industrial workers will visit the United States soon to observe how things are done in American factories.

They hope Americans will return the call.

Plans for the American tour by teams of British factory workers, both men and women, were announced by the Anglo-American committee on productivity.

The committee, composed of 13 British and eight American industrialists and trade unionists, has been studying British factory practices for several weeks.

It was set up at the suggestion of Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who hoped that American experts might give tips for increasing British industrial efficiency.

The American experts said at a press conference that inspection of many factories has impressed them with the fact the British worker is expected to do his job with far less mechanical aid than his United States counterpart.

British factories on the whole use less power, and the British worker must make up the difference with his muscle, the observers found.

An American factory, they said may use double the electric power consumed by a factory of equal size in Britain.

American production per man, they reported, is generally higher, possibly because engines do more of the work.

The American observers were impressed by the British workman's industry.

"From what I have seen" said Victor Reuther, American trade union member of the committee, "the tempo of the workers here is certainly as fast as anything that is customary in the United States."

Shoots Seven, Wounds Four Before Police Down Negro

CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 6—(AP).—Seven persons were shot to death and four others wounded today by a man who then shot himself to death when trapped by police in a nearby house, Police Chief Andrew J. Desmond, Jr., reported. Desmond said witnesses told him the man a Negro, leaped from an automobile in the downtown Bethel Court section, and fatally wounded Ellery Purnsley, a city detective who was on his way to work.

As bystanders rushed to the aid of the detective, Desmond said, the man opened fire, killing six other persons and wounding four more.

The Negro, yet unidentified, then fled to the second floor of a nearby house where police converged on him, opening fire with sub-machine guns, guns, shotguns and tea-gas shells.

Shot Through Heart

Samuel Hill, about 45, of Chester, fell with a bullet through his heart. He died 10 minutes later in hospital.

An unidentified man was fatally wounded through the head. Other victims were not identified immediately.

Descriptions of the frantic street scene during the shooting varied considerably with some witnesses reporting the man fired from the house while others said he jumped from a car and began shooting.

Police reserves were rushed into the area and terrorized residents of the neighborhood scrambled to safety as officers poured shots into the building.

State Police reserves were called but before they arrived the man was found dead in the second floor room where he had barricaded himself.

Some victims of the shooting walked several blocks to hospital unaided.

Girl 16, Dies Fractured Skull

COBOURG, Nov. 6. (ENS)—Marion Finley, 16, of Wicklow, died of a fractured skull on Friday night when in a collision on Highway No. 2, three miles west of here, she was thrown from the truck in which she had been riding. Death was believed instantaneous.

Beverley Harnden, 17, of Grafton, driver of the pickup truck in which she was a passenger, said he swerved his truck to avoid running into a vehicle a short distance ahead. He claimed he had not seen it because it carried no tail light.

When he swerved after applying the brakes he sideswiped an oncoming truck driven by John Inglis, Toronto. After this collision he continued on down the highway hitting the left side of another east-bound truck which was driven by Liandre King of Montreal.

The pick-up truck then turned over on its side finally coming to rest on the south side of the pavement.

OPP Lyle Erskine of Cobourg investigated.

Linton To Be Hanged Feb. 3 For Murder

SIMCOE, Nov. 6.—(CP).—Seth Linton, convicted murderer of 44-year-old Lew Stewart, will be hanged Feb. 3 unless the Ontario Court of Appeals quashes his sentence.

A Norfolk county jury Friday found the 41-year-old well-digger guilty of the rifle-butt murder of his housekeeper's husband June 6. An additional charge of murdering Stewart's brother-in-law, John Kipp, is expected to be deferred pending outcome of Linton's appeal of the Stewart verdict.

Wife Beating Stories Are Repeated

Evidence Is Completed In McAllister Case; Expect Verdict Today

By BOB BUCHANAN
Examiner Staff Reporter

LINDSAY, Nov. 6.— Further evidence that John McAllister had taunted, beaten and abused his wife was given on the witness stand Friday afternoon as the defence for the accused Mrs. Jane McAllister ended. Also heard by the jury on that fourth day of the war bride's murder hearing was evidence to show bias of the Crown's key witness and medical testimony to indicate the "emotional instability" of the accused as a result of operations she has undergone.

Mrs. Angus McCallum of Kirkfield testified that her sister-in-law, Miss Sarah McCallum had said to her "I hope Jean hangs by the neck." She said this statement was made to her by Miss McCallum on Kirkfeild's main street about 10 days after the shooting on Sept. 5. Miss McCallum had previously given evidence that the hysterical accused woman had admitted shooting her husband.

At ten o'clock this morning defence counsel Richardson started his address to the jury. He mentioned that it was the first time he had addressed a jury in a case that carried the death penalty.

"Look at the witness, sick, alone, penniless," he said. During his talk, he laid emphasis on his belief that one of the Crown witnesses, Miss Sarah McCallum, was "an actress" and that she apparently glorified in being before a court giving testimony. He reviewed her evidence showing that she would stop in the middle of a meaty sentence and repeat the whole sentence. He also pointed out that another witness who was also present could not recall the statements allegedly made by Mrs. McAllister to Sarah McCallum.

During Mr. Richardson's defence argument, the accused became ill and was led from the court room by a police matron. A few minutes later the sheriff advised the judge that she was sick to her stomach, and Mr. Justice Treleaven immediately ordered a ten minute recess.

Signs of Strain

As the trial continued past the noon hour Friday, Mrs. McAllister was showing the strain as Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan continued. Over several questions about the events on the fatal night in the lonely cottage, she stopped for long minutes, her head down, and silent before answering. There was no sound in the packed and tense court room as she told her story. In her evidence, she repeated her recollections of that night which she had given Thursday.

Quebec Citizens Fleeing Harbor

QUEBEC, Nov. 6. (CP)—Nervous Quebecers today were edging away from the water front as a damaged Portuguese freighter, the Ines Corrado, prepared to unload its danger-packed cargo of nitrate.

Whole families moved out when they learned the highly-inflammable material would be unloaded Monday. Other residents of Cap Blanc in lower town begged their parish priest, Abbe Maurice Tessier, to try and get the ship moved away.

The ship docked here after it collided with a St. Lawrence River schooner in a fog Oct. 28. It had loaded a cargo of nitrate of potassium in Montreal and was South Africa-bound when the accident occurred.

Since its arrival, two firemen and two policemen have been guarding it night and day and emergency fire hoses have been installed. The fire ship Lanoraie has been moved into a nearby dock.

Just to make things tougher, a number of dock workers have refused to handle the cargo and others are asking extremely high wages.

COLIN C. MACKELLAR, 56-year-old general sales manager of the Dominion Textile Co., Ltd., was found dead in his suite in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Police reported a Michigan youth has confessed to killing him.

Transient Left Lying On Road Dies In Hospital

COBOURG, Nov. 6 —(ENS)— John Dockstader, 68-year-old transient who was the victim of a hit-and-run accident on Wednesday, died today in Cobourg General Hospital.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, Cobourg, said that no additional charge would be laid against Raymond Labonte, Montreal, who on Friday in magistrate's court here pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of the accident. He was fined $50 and costs.

Two Port Hope men Wednesday at noon found Dockstader lying by the side of the highway, four miles west of here, in a semi-conscious condition suffering from head injuries.

With only the slight description of the hit-and-run vehicle as a "new blue panel truck" provincial police by using the newly-installed radio system located the driver and the truck an hour later in Belleville.

Labonte, through his interpreter, told the court that he had seen the elderly transient in the middle of the road and swerved his truck to avoid him. He said that he thought he had missed him and continued on.

A gas cap belonging to Labonte's truck was found at the scene of the accident which raised the conjecture that the fatally injured man might have been struck by the rear of the vehicle as it skidded to avoid him.

According to Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine the skid marks indicated that the accident probably happened in the middle of the highway.

45 Of Other Passengers Injured In Crash, Use Torches To Open Bus

Hear Collision Of "Reunion Special" Several Blocks Away; Dead, Injured Scattered Along Roadway

TORONTO, Nov. 6—(CP).—Six persons were killed and 45 injured early today when a chartered bus carrying party-going passengers from Hamilton telescoped a streetcar filled with night-shift factory workers. The six killed—four men and two women—were from Hamilton, on their way home from a reunion party of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Another 26 from Hamilton were injured, 21 seriously, when the bus crashed head-on into the streetcar on the rain-wet Lakeshore Road near the Sunnyside Amusement Park as the bus driver swerved his vehicle to avoid hitting a pedestrian. Some 19 of the streetcar passengers suffered less serious injuries.

Police said it was Toronto's worst accident.

Rescuers used acetylene torches to cut loose passengers in the bus, which telescoped into the streetcar.

Bus driver Frank Rowe, 24, and Mrs. Frank Noble, 31, both of Hamilton, were pinned in the wreckage. Police said the driver talked steadily while the torches cut them loose, trying to encourage Mrs. Noble. He had been thrown half through the front window of his bus. Both are listed as critically injured. Rowe is being operated on immediately.

Some 35 passengers were in the bus, police believe.

Dead:—Mrs. Thomas Hay, Frank Augustus Noble, Mr. and Mrs. David Armitt, Earl McKie, Gordon Beddie.

Seriously injured:—Frank Rowe, Mrs. Frank Noble, Thomas Hay, Bernice Conrad, Helen Patton, Mrs. Moffatt, Isabel Wooning, Sally McKay, Kenneth Patton, T. Craig and Lucy Craig, Mrs. Milne, Sgt.-Maj. and Mrs. J. McFarlane, Mrs. McGinley, John McQueen, William Ross, Mrs. Mary Ross, Ruth Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munro.

Minor injuries:—RSM. Peter McGinley, John Alderson, Sgt.-Maj. Herbert Pogson, Doug McFarlane, son of the couple more seriously injured, John Reid.

Most of the critically injured were passengers on the bus.

The Canada Coach Lines bus carried members of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders of Hamilton, who, with their wives, had attended a reunion party at The Top Hat Night Spot near the west-end Sunnyside amusement centre.

Most of the street-car passengers were workers coming off the night shift at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company plant in suburban New Toronto. The tram was travelling eastward, toward the city, on the Long Branch line linking the suburbs of Long Branch, New Toronto and Mimico with the King and Queen car lines in the city proper.

Intensive Search Under Way For Lost Plane

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 6. — (CP).—A dozen planes roared into the dawn today as the search began for a missing United States Air Force plane with six men aboard.

The plane, a twin-engined B-25, was believed to have crashed last night near Argentia, U.S. naval base in Placentia Bay, Southern Newfoundland.

It was last reported over Ship Harbor, a tiny fishing village three miles north of Argentia.

The aircraft was en route from Bolling Field, Washington, to Harmon Field at Stephensville on the west coast of Newfoundland, when the weather closed in.

At 5:42 p.m., Newoundland time, the plane attempted a ground control landing at Harmon Field. It then apparently headed for Argentia to attempt to get in there.

Seven U.S. navy and coastguard planes at Argentia were to take off at daybreak to start search operations.

The RCAF was also preparing to take part in the hunt and other planes stood ready at Harmon Field and Westover, Mass., if they were needed.

Chances were slim that the men had survived the crash. The plane had either plunged into Placentia Bay or crashed on the rocky, timbered Avalon Peninsula.

Soviet A-Bomb Test 'Failure'

PARIS, Nov. 6—(Reuters)—What is purported to be an account of an unsuccessful Russian atom bomb test was printed Friday in the Paris newspaper Figaro.

The copyright article says the test was made on a peninsula in the Caspian Sea in June of this year. The bomb exploded prematurely, the article adds.

The account of the test is said to be based on the information of a former Russian General Staff officer, Captain Silov, now reported to be working in South America as an engineering chemist after leaving Russia with false papers.

"The explosions took place prematurely," Figaro says, "in the sense that the engineers had anticipated a delay of 15 minutes. This serious defect upset the possibility of an immediate manufacture of delayed-action atom bombs."

Report Gains At Peiping As Peace Rumors Spread

NANKING, Nov. 6.—(AP). — Rumors of peace moves grew in volume in Nanking today but no responsible official would say that Chiang Kai-Shek's government was even considering seeking a negotiated settlement of the Chinese civic war.

The approach of at least three Red columns to Pengpu, midway between Suchow and the Yangtze river, raised fresh reports that the National government would abandon its efforts to win the war through fighting and would agree to a coalition government in which President Chiang would obviously not figure.

The Chinese government reported today it had hacked out gains to the north, west and south and enlarged its North China Peiping-Tientsin Island, which is entirely surrounded by Communists.

The biggest government gain was to the south. Government headquarters said three Communist brigades — posibly 30,000 men—were smashed in a drive on Shihkiachwang, Red headquarters 170 miles south of Peiping.

There was no hint as to how close the government is to the railway city. The Communist radio, however, has been showing nervousness over this government move.

Another 2,000 Communists were reported killed in the government's recapture of Hingcheng, in the Manchurian corridor, where the Nationalists are trying to fight south to the great wall and join up with troops of the North China command.

At Hong Kong, the government is preparing to requisition the necessary shiping should evacuation of Britons from Shanghai, some 800 miles away, become advisable, it was learned from unofficial sources here today.

Confesses 5 Killing But Police Not Sure

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. (AP)—Was an Arkansas University freshman really Texarkana's notorious "phantom" killer, or was his suicide note merely a bizarre hoax?

Authorities hoped to learn the answer today as they continued an investigation of the poison death of H. B. (Doodie) Tennison, 18, of Texarkana, Tex.

For two years police of two states have been unable to solve five slayings at the state-line city. All slayings were attributed to a "phantom."

K. Tennison was found dead in his room here Friday night. He left a signed note admitting three of the mysterious deaths, but no motive was given.

Police Solve Murder Of Canadian

Drinking Companion Held In Slaying Of Montreal Official

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(CP)—A chance acquaintance in a mid-town bar started a chain of events that led to the brutal death Friday of a 56-year-old Montreal textile executive.

Less than 12 hours after the body of Colin Cameron MacKellar had been found in his Canadian Club suite in Waldorf-Astoria, a 19-year-old Michigan salesman was arrested and had confessed to the fatal beating.

Dark-haired Ralph Edward Barrows, six-foot former football player from Grand Rapids, Mich., was the only suspect involved in the murder, police said.

A book of matches with the name and address of a west side bar gave police their only clue. The matches were found on the floor of MacKellar's luxurious suite in the Canadian Club, which occupies the 18th and 19th floors of the Park Avenue Hotel.

MacKellar who arrived Thursday night from Montreal by plane was general sales manager of Dominion Textiles, Limited. He is survived by his wife and two children—Bettina, 19, and James, 21, a student at Dawson College in Montreal. His home was in Westmount, Que., a suburb of Montreal.

Found By Maid

A chambermaid found MacKeller lying on the floor of the living room of his suite Friday morning. The pockets of his grey suit were turned inside out and a wallet lying nearby contained only $5.14 in Canadian currency.

Behind a wall mirror a maid later found a Canadian Club envelope with MacKellar's initials written on it, containing four $20 American bills.

Harold Birnes, assistant district attorney, asked if any money had been stolen from the body, replied: "No comment."

Reconstructing the chain of events that led to the Canadian textile expert's death, Birnes said that Barrows met MacKellar in another hotel bar.

They were joined by two others and moved on to another tavern. There another person joined the party before Barrows was invited to the Canadian Club suite.

Had Argument

The two entered the suite about 2 a.m. and had a few drinks. An argument followed and Birnes said, Barrows struck MacKellar who fell to the floor. Barrows left the suite 20 minutes after he entered with MacKellar, Birnes added.

Dr. Thomas Gonazles, chief medical examiner, said MacKellar had been severely beaten. He died of a fractured skull and ruptured intestines after being "punched, kicked or jumped upon."

Detectives said Barrows was pointed out at the west side tavern by a blonde barmaid. The woman told police that Barrows said he had a "hangover" from drinking a bottle of Scotch in the Waldorf the night before.

Police found a partially consumed bottle of Scotch in Barrows' rooms and said it was the bottle taken from the Canadian Club suite.

SKINS LEG

William Walker, 588 Sherbrooke St., was knocked from his bicycle shortly before 12 noon on Thursday when he was in collision with a car door being opened by Dr. C. F. Cahill, in front of the latter's office on Aylmer St. He was immediately taken to Dr. Cahill's office where he was treated for a skinned right leg.

MORE ABOUT—

Wife Beating

It was quite dark in the bedroom as she entered it, she said. She removed her shoes while John sat on the edge of the bed. She asked John if he wanted some tea, and received a surly negative answer. She repeated the words of the argument they had had "about other women".

"Did you love John?" asked Mr. Jordan.

"Yes, very much."

"Didn't this make you angry—his talk about women."

'Not very."

"You weren't greatly perturbed?"

"No."

At another point, she was asked "Were you jealous of John?"

"Yes," she replied.

"Strangely so?"

"I would say 'yes'."

"He said something about the delectable women he could get—I knew he could get delectable women," she said, mentioning other detailed words.

"I was crying—what he said about my not having a family hurt me."

"Are you sure you weren't looking for the gun?"

"No, I wasn't".

"Have you any recollection—through the haze—of what happened?"

"No, because during the time—I felt funny," her voice faltered for a moment at that point.

"Next thing I heard was the report of the gun, then the dog was barking. I was just inside the bedroom door."

"How close were you to John?"

"I don't know."

The next thing she said she remembered was meeting Miss McCallum. She denied to Mr. Jordan that she had told Miss McCallum, the Crown's key witness, that "I shot him in the head."

The rest of that night, stumbling blindly through the open and the woods were also hazy to her.

"Were you concerned about John?"

"He certainly was in my heart."

"Didn't you realize by this time that something had happened to John?"

"I don't know."

The last Crown question was: "Can you give any intentions for what you did?"

"I might have wanted to frighten him, but I didn't want to kill him."

Clarifying that on re-examination by Mr. Richardson, she said: "I wanted to give him a good scare, but not to kill him."

The defence rested its case Friday. It held that the slaying climaxed months of stormy married life during which McAllister is alleged to have kicked and beaten the slender redhead and taunted her about her inability to bear children.

The final defence witnesses called testified in lamplight after a power cut-off blacked out the crowded county court room.

Cruel Treatment

Other defence witnesses testified about occasions on which the dead man had treated his wife with cruelty and cutting words.

Mrs. Mary Ford, of Balsover, who said she was friendly with both the McAllisters, told of Mrs McAllister once staying for about a week at her home, recovering from one of her operations. She had found the accused, on a visit to the lonely McAllister home, sick and alone. She was in bed with a pint of milk and some crackers beside her for a meal. Mrs. McAllister used Mrs Ford's equipment to do laundry and ironing as there were no such facilities at McAllister's home.

"Until Jean's operation, everything seemed normal between them," she told defence counsel Richardson.

"After the operation, though, John seemed impatient with her, jibing her, making nasty remarks ....one time when I was visiting them, John used filthy language towards her when there was no more tea left in the pot for another cup."

She told the court of another occasion when the accused had shown her bruised legs and hips, a result of a 'beating" John was alleged to have given.

"I had nothing against John," she replied to Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan's questioning, "I just didn't like the way he treated his wife...."

Stanley Henderson, foreman on the Trent Canal maintenance crew for which John McAllister worked, also gave evidence of crude language the dead man had used in referring to his wife. At one time, he said John had offered to board him free while he (the witness) helped him build a boat. He said John remarked then: "There's an old hag down there who might be some good to you—she's no damn good to me." John spoke about his wife before the men day after day on the job, said the witness, using foul and course words.

Another Kirkfield area resident was Percy McNeish, who had worked with John for a time.

"John didn't seem to care much for her," he commented. He also mentioned McAllister's crude references to his wife to his fellow workers. Near Christmas of 1946, he was with the couple on a trip to Lindsay and later back to his home near Kirkfield. At that time, he said, there had been heated arguments and McAllister seemed to be scuffling with his wife in the back of the car.

McNeish said he also had to break up the pair at Kirkfield, when they faced each other menacingly—John with a flatiron, Jane with a stove poker. On another occasion, at the McAllister home, he said John cursed the woman for cutting the bread too thick.

"Your insides have cost me enough now," McAllister said then, referring to the operations Mrs. McAllister had had.

The operations on the accused were subjects of controversial and lengthy expert evidence Friday afternoon. Defence and crown argued technical points with doctors for several hours.

Witnesses testified that the operations on the accused had been the surgical removal of the uterus, both tubes and one ovary. The remaining ovary was badly diseased and functioning poorly.

Dr. P. B. Rynard, surgeon of the Rynard Clinic of Orillia, gave evidence about the operations performed. The one ovary left had been left there with the "hope" he said, that it would "soften the shock" to the system which the operation caused.

The operation, in effect, produces an "artificial menopause" ("change of life"), with disturbing effects physically, mentally, and emotionally on a woman of that age. It was over the extent of these effects that the long evidence of the expert witnesses was questioned.

"During the re-adjustment period, the patients are almost invalids" said Dr. Rynard.

Dr. M. E. Gorman of Lindsay said the effects of the operation would be "severe." The patient would be "irritable, depressed, emotionally unstable."

Dr. W. E. Blackwell, Lindsay, also testified that such a surgical move as performed on Mrs. McAllister would be a "great shock on the emotional system." He said it could produce periods of "difficulty in thinking—cloudiness, you might call it. Sometimes, she might be completely blacked out. Effects may last from six months to 10 years."

Also testifying as to the accused's general rundown health after her operation was Joseph Walsh, a friend of the couple. He quoted John as telling him, after a visit to the accused in hospital, "I hope she never comes out of it."

Not Mentally Ill

Called by the crown in rebuttal to defence medical evidence was Dr. Charles Tenant, Superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Guelph and psychiatry specialist for 28 years. His examinations of the accused, he said, led him to the conclusion that "she is not mentally ill."

In general agreeing with the three other doctors on effects of the operation, he added that he could find no evidence from his examination that the accused had suffered such effects.

"She appeared to me to be healthy," he said. He indicated that he believed Mrs. McAllister had been steadily improving in health.

"Certainly she knows the difference between right and wrong," he told the court.

His evidence was taken in semi-darkness as the court continued to sit by oil lamp during a half-hour hydro - saving blackout. Counsel Richardson strained his eyes reading passages from heavy medical books, challenging Dr. Tenant's evidence. Scientific terms and medical phrases flew as the wrangling over the accused's state of mind continued until nearly six o'clock.

Friday's court attendance was heaviest of the trial, with spectators jamming every seat and every entrance to the courtroom. With several defence witnesses, their brief disputes with the cross-examining Crown Attorney brought brief spots of laughter from the audience. Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven sternly warned that he would "clear the court" if it continued.

"I doubt if the audience appreciates the serious business before the court," he said.

Arrest 60 In Plot had its nose tightly imbedded in the front of the street car.

Police said lack of identifying paper on the uniformed men and the evening-dressed women had made identification out of the question.

One eye-witness said the bus, only two minutes after leavin the Top Hat, apparently swerved to miss a pedestrian. It didn't miss. One of the unidentified bodies lying on the roadway following the crash was believed that of the pedestrian.

A motorist driving directly behind the bus when the accident occurred said he saw the bus swerve and then smash directly into the street car. Both the roadway and the tram tracks were wet and greasy from the light rain which had been falling for several hours.

Hear Crash For Blocks

The impact sent the big bus on its side with a crash that could be heard several blocks away. The cries of badly injured persons mingled with the screams of trapped men and women who had escaped severe harm.

The accident was one of the worst in Toronto's recent history.

Taxi driver, Roy Steinberg, one of the first on the scene after the collision, said he saw a small fire break out in the bus. But it was speedily extinguished.

The dead and the dying, the dazed and those who had been been knocked unconscious, sprawled in all directions as police and ambulance men moved among them to give first aid.

Three or four men on the street car averted a panic in the tram by ordering passengers to remain quiet. They slapped the faces of one or two who appeared to be becoming hysterical.

Police said the operator of the street car had been identified as Tom Clark. He survived the crash but was reported to have suffered a broken leg.

The bus driver was alive when extricated from the bus. His head had gone through the windshield and part of his body was inside the street car.

Door Stuck

Eye-witnesses said the emergency door of the bus could not be opened for nearly half an hour after the collision. The two vehicles telescoped and locked themselves together.

Edward Styles of Toronto, a passenger on the street car, described the moment of the impact:

"There was an awful crash and I was thrown on top of some seats," he said. "Then the lights went out. People at the back of the car started to shout, 'Keep your heads,' and in a minute or two there was no confusion. Most of us managed to get out without trouble.

Lying Everywhere

"It was awful outside. People were lying on the pavement and blood was everywhere. We could hear screams from people trapped inside the bus, and there was nothing we could do."

One dead woman when removed from the wreckage was wearing an evening dress with corsage pinned to the front.

"One soldier was thrown clear through the bus window and landed about 20 feet in front of the bus," another eye-witness said. "If he was not killed, it must have been a miracle."

Most of the injured were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at the west end of the city. There the least severely injured crammed the corridors to await their turn for attention.

Court Quashes Welch Conviction

TORONTO, Nov. 6—(CP). — The Ontario Court of Appeal on Friday quashed a conviction of manslaughter against Joseph Vernon Welch, 24, sentenced to 10 years in prison in the poison death of his 31-year-old wife, Florence.

Welch was tried last March on a charge of murder by a jury under Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven, and was convicted on the lesser count of manslaughter. The appeal was brought by Welch's counsel, C. L. Dubin of Toronto.

With Mr. Justice W. T. Henderson dissenting, two other justices, R. E. Laidlaw and F. D. Hogg, found that the trial jury had been misdirected on the law of manslaughter. They also found that the trial judge had failed to direct the jury on the difference in the elements of criminal negligence as distinguished from the law of civil negligence.

W. B. Common, director of public prosecutions, said the Crown will now charge Welch with manslaughter, and the hearing of the case is expected to take place at the next assizes, early in 1949.

Welch is now in the Elgin county jail at St. Thomas, where he escaped in a daring daylight break on July 29, only to be recaptured two days later in Toronto. A consecutive one-year term was added to his 10-year manslaughter sentence for the jail break.

Obituary

MRS. ETHEL MAY McGILL

The death of Mrs. Ethel May McGill, Millbrook, took place at the Civic Hospital, Peterborough, on Thursday, November 4, following less than two weeks' illness. Mrs. McGill was a daughter of the late Alexander Thomas ("A. T.") Armstrong, and his wife, Rebecca O'Brian, life-long residents of Millbrook in its earlier years, her mother's death taking place last June, just previous to her ninety-sixth birthday.

Born at Millbrook on September 8, 1878, Mrs. McGill was one of a family of eight children, four sons and four daughters, the surviving members being two sisters, Mrs. Harold Moncriel (Helen), of Bensfort, and Bessie Armstrong, Reg.N., of Los Angeles, California, who came home some time ago to help her sister with the care of their mother; also two brothers, Norman, of Vancouver, B.C., and Henry of Toronto.

Over 40 years ago the marriage of Ethel May Armstrong and Norman J. McGill took place, the latter predeceasing his wife by four years. Their home was first at Cavanville on the Coe farm, then in the possession of the McGill family, but the greater part of their married life was spent in Millbrook where Mr. McGill was Township Clerk for 30 years, and prominent in other positions in civic life. Mrs. McGill was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church, giving support to its various activities. Some time ago she was a member of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176, but more recently had not continued her fraternal associations.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, Park Roadway, on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., Rev. Walter Patterson, pastor of Grace Presbyterian church, having charge of the service. Burial will be at St. John's cemetery, Ida.

Ontario Cities Face Day-to-Day Cutoff Boosts

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—(CP). — The Ontario Power Commission will crack down Monday on municipalities that go over their power quotas.

Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto estimated the new regulations probably would mean daily power cuts of five hours for the province's largest city.

The regulations put municipalities on a day-to-day delivery basis effective Monday and mean, in effect, that municipalities won't get any more power than their quotas.

Officials said that if by 4 p.m. each day meter readings indicate the municipality is over its quota it will be expected to get within the figure by midnight. Mayor McCallum said there was a possibility that in Toronto this would mean power cutoffs each night from 7 to 10 o'clock in addition to one-hour cutoffs in morning and afternoon. Previously 45-minute evening blackouts—from 7 to 7:45 p.m.—had been scheduled for Toronto. Other municipalities which run over their quotas by 4 p.m. may also be in for evening cuts.

In letters to regional southern Ontario regional mangers, the Commission said consumption checks would be made daily on municipalities which had gone over their quotas the week before. In the check indicated the municipality would probably go over that day, it 'will be requested to drop a specific amount of load for a period of time to bring their consumption within. . . the daily quota."

The quotas, fixed by the Ontario Commission when increased consumption and a shortage of water at Hydro sites brought the province its second annual shortage, were cut seven per cent last week when Quebec companies were forced to reduce sales of power to Ontario.

Cities Affected

The day-to-day delivery regulations probably would affect Brantford, Belleville, Owen Sound, Peterborough, Stratford, Kingston and Ottawa, all of which have exceeded their quotas.

Effects of the shortage spread Friday to the Federal postal system.

Postmaster - General Bertrand said if power interruptions continue "the mails are going to be delayed and delayed seriously."

He said the post office "was feeling the effects of stalled elevators, dead motors in our extensive mechanical equipment and lack of lighting in our working and office areas....a one-hour cut-off may well mean 24 hours delay in mail delivery.

An alternative to the five-hour daily cuts might be a complete shutdown of business and commercial activity for one day a week, he said.

The Seconds were next in line: Howard Alton, Second in the Red Six; Wayne McNamee to the Blue Six, and Val Armstrong to the Black Six. We wish all these boys the best of hunting along the scout trail.

Trinity Pack

As the 32 members of the pack entered the darkened hall at their last meeting they found Akela, Baloo, Raksha together with Dr. Perry and Mr. Malby awaiting them. Masks were donned, and in single file the cubs went along the trail listening to the story of "Hommy's Hallowe'en Ghost." Then the lights came on and all kinds of games and pranks were enjoyed until the trail ended for home.

Factors In Dewey's Defeat

A short examination of the factors which contributed to Thomas E. Dewey's defeat may prove instructive. First, there was an apparent insincerity in the Republican campaign; all the time that Dewey was preaching foreign aid on the hustings Republicans like Bricker, Taft, Halleck, Brooks, Taber, Eaton and Wolcott were preaching isolationism in Congress and elsewhere, and the Republican majority in the House of Representatives were bucking foreign aid whenever they got a chance. The conduct of his followers spoke louder than Mr. Dewey's words. Nor can the support of Col. McCormick and his isolationist Chicago Tribune have been helpful in spreading the belief that the Republicans had had a change of heart.

• • •

The extreme caution of the Dewey campaign, also, appears to have chilled popular support. Mr. Dewey spoke with a moderation which came too near to pussyfooting, and he pointedly declined to debate with Mr. Truman. Neither man said anything memorable in his campaign, but Truman promised to "Give 'em hell", and he did so, even though it was one-sided hell.

• • •

Overconfidence among the Republicans also harmed Dewey's chances, and the now discredited public opinion polls must bear much of the blame for this cardinal political sin. Soothed by the lullabies of the pollsters the Republicans failed to work as hard as was necessary, and it has been suggested that contributions to party funds also decreased, for nobody gives his uttermost to a fight which seems to be won.

• • •

Finally, the personality of Mr. Dewey himself was a factor in his defeat. We have no wish to deride a defeated man, but it is a plain fact that the overcorrect, over-confident, superficially agreeable but essentially chilling manner which Mr. Dewey adopted repelled great numbers of people; a statesman may be an eccentric or a poseur, but he must not give the impression that he is playing the part of a perfectly ordinary, likeable fellow; he must not seem commonplace; this was precisely the fault of Mr. Dewey. His defeat does not decrease his fine record as a public servant, and no doubt his future career will be a distinguished one.

The Trek To Canada's Northern Empire

Two-fifths of Canada lies north of the western provinces. This spacious territory which is for administrative purposes divided into Yukon Territory and Northwest Territories (the latter being subdivided into three Provisional Districts) is twelve times the area of the British Isles and about half the area of the United States. It is in the twentieth century what New France was in the sixteenth—a new world for adventurers, exploiters, missionaries, homesteaders; an outpost of empire, a strategic avenue to more lush areas south of the Great Lakes, an important corner of a power-conscious world. The administrative capital is Ottawa, as Paris was to New France three centuries ago. The world rivals are Russia and the United States, not Britain and France.

This Canadian northern empire has of course become important to defence and to commerce. In the last decade hundreds of gold mining companies have been incorporated for operations in the Territories, radium has been mined, the Alaska Highway built, exploration and prospecting intensified. The army, navy and air forces of Canada and the United States have converted our Arctic frontierland into a frontier in the European sense. Nevertheless, as Mr. Mackenzie King said in the House of Commons last year: "Canada's northern program is primarily a civilian one, to which contributions are made by the armed forces".

His statement is verified by the number and variety of expeditions, apart from military and purely commercial and industrial ones, which were made into the regions bordering the Arctic Circle and north of it this summer. We have been informed by the Northwest Territories Administration that 37 scientific parties went into the area this year. Twenty-two of them were Canadian, sponsored by various Government departments (Agriculture, Health and Welfare, Transport, Geological Survey, Defence Research Board, Dominion Wildlife Services, Geographical Bureau). Many of them were jointly sponsored—for instance by a government department and a university, the National Museum, or the National Research Council. Three of the parties were American sponsored by the United States Government, nine of them were mixed, Canadian and American, sponsored by American scientific institutions.

Their objects were varied. Two groups investigated caribou, two the waterways, harbours and ice conditions, another fur animals. A group from Queen's did medical research—what do Eskimos die from, why are they old at 45? What diseases are prevalent, what absent (there is no cancer, for instance). Botanists searched for flowers, agriculturalists investigated soil conditions, one scientist studied climatology, geographers and topographers explored the magnetic pole by plane, half a dozen entomologists studied insects, finding out what bugs there are in our north and what harm and good they cause. The American Philosophical Society was co-sponsor of a geological and palaeontological party (palaeontology is the study of extinct organisms, geology the science of the earth's crust.) They operated in areas like Ungava, the Eastern Arctic, the Western Arctic, the west coast of Hudson Bay, Frobisher Bay, Southampton Island, the Arctic Archipelago.

There was but one group of tourists—a party from Albuquerque, New Mexico, who were, the Northwest Territories Administration carefully informs us, college students and not research specialists. After a dozen summers of sub-Arctic activity like the last one, we shall begin to know our northern empire.

Honours For T. S. Eliot

In his sixtieth year unequivocal honours have come to T. S. Eliot. In March, the King made him a member of the Order of Merit; on Thursday it was announced that he had been awarded the Nobel Prize for literature "for his remarkable pioneering work in modern poetry". For a decade Eliot's has been plainly the noblest voice in modern poetry. Now the distinctions which life brings to an eminent poet (if he lives long enough) are crowding upon him.

No complete consideration of Eliot's poetry could be attempted here, even if we were fitted for such a task. But we feel that attention must be drawn to the fact that the inspiration of Eliot's finest work has been religious. Many of the intellectuals of our day have sought certainty and consolation in the Church of Rome; Eliot has found his spiritual home in the markedly different atmosphere of the Church of England. From the historic Catholicism of that Church he has drawn the inspiration for his poetry and the pattern for his life. In its historical and legendary background, and in the wealth of pagan myth and symbolism which have been ingested and re-shaped by that Church he has found the archetypes which his poetic imagination demands, and with Donne, Vaughan and Herbert he takes his place among the great poets whose work has been, in the deepest sense, Anglican.

Eliot is a "difficult" poet. Simple people do not read or quote his works. The background of his thought is foreign to the mass of readers, though one of his plays, Murder In The Cathedral (about the death of Thomas a Becket) has had and continues to have a great popular success. But a poet is judged by the intellectual quality, rather than the number, of his readers.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Sir Stafford Cripps says that "it is essential to Socialism that the British Empire be liquidated". And since when did Socialism become essential?

Everything that King Midas touched, turned to gold, and so we call a financial wizard today a man who has the Midas touch. We also refer to his occupational disease as "asset indigestion".

Margaret O'Brien, the child movie star, has just paid $69,000 in taxes on her salary. Surely some psychologist will come forward to explain that a shock of this kind might permanently blight the tot's life?

It seems only yesterday that Mr. Drew had a chummy picture taken with candidate Thos. E. Dewey, at the New York Herald Tribune Forum. Do we hear a murmur of—

Diary Of A Gourmet

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Awoke to find that it was raining outside, and that the water closet in Marchbanks Towers had become plugged; a child, in a fit of wild merriment, had cast its shoes into the maw of the monster and made it costive. Oh, the bitterness of domestic life! Plumbers, like doctors, should be on call at all times, but they are not, so after some ineffectual and half-hearted groping I resigned myself to this stroke of fate.... Had a long conversation with a man who comes from Lincolnshire this afternoon; he says that the peasants in his native shire have a pretty simile to describe a baby which has just awakened; they say it looks "like a louse peerin' out o' an ash heap". It is such flights of untutored poesy as this which inspired Wordsworth.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Plumber arrives first thing and operates successfully on the patient upstairs; the atmosphere of the household brightens visibly, but the shoes are beyond reclaim. The mailman brings a single letter—a pamphlet from the Cancer Association. I shall keep this to read to a merry gathering around the Christmas fireside.... A man tells me that in Japanese universities any student who fails his year is expected to disembowel himself; if the failure is not a very bad one, or not wholly his fault, he may merely throw himself into the crater of a volcano. I think that this eminently sensible plan might be adopted here. Too many fellows get into the professions by sheer dogged persistence; they try examinations year after year until, in despair, their professors pass them in order to get rid of the sight of their vacant faces in class. Now if these dizzards were to commit the Happy Despatch at the first hint of failure, our scholastic and professional levels would rise at once, and Canada would become the envy of the world. If a knife were hung on a brass chain near every examination-list no time would be wasted.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: A cross letter in the mail this morning from somebody who accuses me of misquoting Hamlet in this Diary recently. Very likely. I am an habitual misquoter. I cannot remember anything straight, and while I am verifying the last three words of a quotation in a book I manage to scramble the first three.... Another horrid letter reaches me from a man who makes hats and does not like what I said about Canadian men's hats last week. But I shall not retract a single word. For lack of style, grace, elan, dash and je ne sais quoi a Canadian man's hat is rivalled only by the Iron Crown of Hungary. Years ago we wore fur hats in winter and nifty straw boaters in summer and we looked festive, if not positively ravishing. But of late years the expressionless Canadian hat has taken its place above the expressionless Canadian face, creating a cheerless blankness unrivalled elsewhere. This is not imagination: Americans and Frenchmen have both whispered to me about Canadian hats, and Englishmen have rolled their eyes expressively. What I shall reply to this mad hatter who has addressed me in such bitter words I do not know. I will not swallow my words and I simply cannot stomach those hats.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: In a shop today where a man tried to interest me in a special pan which poaches square eggs. Tney looked pretty on pieces of toast, he said. No doubt, but I do not think that I could ever reconcile myself to a geometrical egg; there are some things which should be left as they were fashioned by the Creator's hand. . . For years I have prepared an egg specialty of my own—a fried egg nestling in a hole cut in a slice of fried bread. I invented this, and call it Egg Marchbanks, with pardonable pride. Judge of my dismay when somebody recently showed me this recipe in a cook-book, and it was not called Egg Marchbanks at all! Either someone has stolen my invention, or I created something which was already in existence. Perhaps this device for squaring eggs provides me with a way out of my dilemma; in future Egg Marchbanks can be a square egg in a round piece of toast, instead of a round egg in a square piece of toast. This, served with Sauce Samuel (tomato ketchup liberally sprinkled with salt and pepper) is probably the Great Canadian Dish that all the tourist joints are crying for.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Meat balls for lunch today. This is a delicacy of which I am very fond. But I insist upon the True Meat Ball—prepared in an open pan and tasting of meat—rather than the False Meat Ball—prepared in a pressure cooker and loathsomely studded with raisins. The pressure cooker is all very well in its way, but there are some dishes with which it cannot cope, and the meat ball is one of them. A meat ball made in a pressure cooker has a mild, acquiescent taste—the sort of taste which I imagine that a particularly forgiving Anglican missionary would have in the mouth of a cannibal. Your True Meat Ball is made of sterner stuff, and if he tastes of missionary at all he tastes like some stern Presbyterian, who died dogmatizing.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Saw a man today walking along the street with his son and grandson; the grandfather, who came to this country over forty years ago, had a large honest English nose with an honest red blob on the end of it; the son had a lesser nose—an unremarkable nose; the grandson had an insignificant pug. I have observed upon several occasions this progressive diminution of the Canadian nose as the true British stock accommodates itself to North American conditions. Are we fated, in a few hundred years to be a noseless people? Do our noses shrink because for so many months we breathe a frosty air which inhibits growth, so that our noses are virtually in cold storage? Or is it a failure of character? Wellington, we know, picked his staff officers for their noses; a man with a wealth of a conk was, in the opinion of the Iron Duke, a man of character and a fellow who could be trusted to bear heavy responsibilities. Is it the advance of social security and cradle-to-grave pensions which have given us our timid, state-subsidized, egalitarian noses? Give me a man whose nose is like the blade of a scythe, and whose blowings are like the note of a trumpet, sounding to battle!

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: I am depressed these days by the "Visit Beautiful Britain" advertisements which I see in American magazines. In these pieces Britain is set forth in terms of thatched roofs, phoney traditions, Beefeaters, pawky Scotch gillies and kindred flummery. I am sick at heart as I read such stuff, and I feel as though I were watching Queen Victoria doing a strip-tease at Minsky's, or George III obsequiously serving a tray of maple-fudge sundaes to the rebel hordes of Washington. These are, I know, chauvinistic, foolish fancies and I should realize that America, as financial master of the world, unconsciously exacts such cringeings from needy nations. But it goes against the grain with me and I am sorry that our Motherland is reduced to such shifts. Is Britain to sink to the tourist-tickling, self-conscious quaintness of Monaco?

FLOWERS FOR REMEMBRANCE

Letter To The Editor

SIMPLIFY AND USE RELIGION

Sir: I recently read a brief news account on the stand of The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America on economic systems. It appears to be a well founded declaration which should be a step in the right direction, but in my opinion falls short of the mark when it states that there is no "Christian" economic system suitable for all situations.

Christ was quite specific in the words, "Each according to his need and each according to his ability." This does not fit Communism, nor does it fit Socialism, as we judge their accepted practice at present; and certainly it does not fit our present practice of Capitalism. That does not mean, however, that we cannot shape a course which will develop a "Christian" economic system in keeping with the above words which will not only be suitable for all situations, but will assure us of a fuller life of peaceful freedom.

When it comes to the details of our economic system, most of us are as much at sea as Alice in Wonderland. However, when we read articles such as your editorial word picture of the Berlin corridor and Occupation area, we realize that our economics can get us into a lot of trouble without our realizing what it is all about. With such a description it does not take much imagination to compare the Berlin situation to a certain group having jurisdiction over the South End of Peterborough, and saying that in that section the U.S. dollar at par would be the accepted currency while all other parts of the city were to use the Canadian dollar. If this group had to cross over the Hunter street bridge to keep their economic control going, some Peterborough citizens might declare that the Hunter street bridge was unsafe and would have to be closed indefinitely. Of course we realize that this is not all there is to the Berlin situation, but is only an example of economic crisis which we can expect to happen for some time to come.

We realize that Russia believes that our economic system is so complex and faulty that it will fail, and so is out to create all the economic crises possible. In spots such as the Berlin situation Russia sits tight while we expend large amounts of the natural resource gasoline, and the taxpayers foot the bill.

I do not believe that the Russian leaders are as dumb as some people think, and that they can be bluffed by sword rattling. They don't need any spy system to estimate what another war would cost us, and that if it was prolonged for any great length of time not only would our economic system near the breaking point, but our store of natural resources would take a terrific beating. On the other hand suppose that by some unforseen miracle we were able to win a quick decision by atomic power. If Germany and Italy are to be used as a criterion, the result would be that the defeated Russian people would then be handed a shovel and an open door to Fort Knox. For all we know they may figure that they have little to lose either way.

When we try to dig into economics with an eye to simplification, we find complexities all along the line. These are particularly noticeable in the taxation field. They all add up to a mass of complexity, which, while it has nothing particular to do with morals or religion, leads me to feel that we can do nothing constructive about it until we undergo a change of heart which is only possible through a religious approach.

I have just read a statement by Dr. Charles Steinmetz, the eminent scientist, when asked what line of research will see the greatest development during the next 50 years. As stated in The Readers Digest, the reply said in part: "I think the greatest discoveries will be made along spiritual lines . . . When that day comes, the world will see more advancement in one generation than it has seen in the last four."

Of course this is a statement which I highly endorse, as I feel that if we could really get behind our religion scientifically and simplify it so that we can correctly handle the know how, we would really go places, and do things. As you say in your editorial on "Atomized Money", it is the know how, and not the know why that is essential.

Yours truly,
RALPH G. KILBORN.
Bailieboro.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life: and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel: (Gen. 3: 9-15.)

SCENTING TROUBLE

A teacher noticed one boy in her class who always came to school very dirty, and she decided to write a note to his mother asking her to do something about it. A few days later the boy came to school just as dirty and carrying a letter from his mother, which said:

"Dear Miss—I know my boy ain't exactly violets, but I send him to school for you to learn him, not to smell him."

A BRITISH OPINION

World Copyright By arrangement with Evening Standard

MONDAY MORNING, two hunting seasons start, the deer season, and the open season on hunters, and let's hope the latter are all able to escape. It seems in recent years that a splash of white, even a handkerchief always looks like the white flag of a deer to some dimwit, or else, a crouching hunter with a red coat looks like a deer to some trigger-happy gun carrier. Of course these lame excuses are small comfort to the person who gets shot, or to his family, but every year without fail history repeats itself. In this campaign for more common sense and thoughtfulness in the handling of firearms, it seems to me there are two cardinal rules, just two, and if these were observed, hunting and shooting accidents would practically disappear. The first is "don't shoot at any target until you are sure it is a game animal". This means that a noise in the bush is not a target, but something to investigate, a flick of red is not a deer until you can see the outline clearly.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

THE OTHER RULE is don't carry a loaded gun in a car, truck, boat or have a loaded gun in the house, cottage or hunt camp. That's simple isn't it. But no, funeral bells will ring this fall for some hunter, probably a man who should know better, who hauls his rifle out of the car barrel first. Excitement and enthusiasm are desirable, and a hunt wouldn't be any fun unless a hunter did get worked up, but tell me this. Why is it when a party is driving along the highway into camp, that there must always be one muttonhead who says "I'd better pump a shell into the breech, might get a crack at a deer along here?" If I was driving that car I'd say—"Joe, you're a nice guy, but this is a passenger car, not a tank or a reconnaissance vehicle, just let that cannon alone till we hit camp". If hunters would load their rifles 20 feet from the camp door, and unload them at the same spot, then there would be fewer mishaps. It does my heart good to see a rifle in a sheath, that is where it belongs until the hunter starts for the deer run in the woods.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

MEAT PRICES are sky-rocketing, and many housewives will be happy when hubby comes marching in, and reports he knocked off a deer, but just a word of warning to the chisellers. When you buy your deer licence you get one metal seal, which must be attached to the carcass when you start to take your deer from camp. I am advised that the highway patrol this fall will be more closely knit than ever before, and no leeway will be given offenders. It takes the starch out of a hunter to have his car, rifle, and equipment as well as the deer carcass confiscated. That will happen to anyone coming out with an untagged deer. A deer licence for a resident hunter, that is a resident of Ontario costs four dollars, and if you are going to hunt only during the deer season you won't need a gun licence. If the hunter takes a shotgun into camp to use on partridge, it should be covered by a one dollar gun licence.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

CAN I STAND on a highway and shoot a deer? That is the question in a letter I received. The answer is no. The act says that shooting across the King's Highway is an offence. It is also an offence to shoot from a car. Most game wardens insist that hunters stay at least 100 feet off a highway, and even that isn't too safe a distance. There are 14 Provincial Police stationed in Peterborough county now, so hunters will have some extra supervision, and perhaps the boys won't find the Provincials too easy to fool. The senior officers of the local detachment are all veteran hunters, and if there are any hunting mishaps or promiscuous shooting along the highways, these men won't like it. In fact, the hunters will think they have stirred a hornets' nest, if motorists along highway 28 north start complaining about singing slugs. Just one more suggestion. If you must drink, do it in the evening, not in the morning, or while you are on the watch.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

DEPT. OF LANDS AND FORESTS' officials who set the deer hunting date on the Monday nearest the 10th of November appear to have made a wise move. If they had listened to those who wanted the season to open on the first Monday, it would not have worked out too well. If this mild weather continues, the date will be too early for maximum conservation of deer meat. Fred Marshall and his Kawartha Conservation gang must feel alright about this opening date, because they were all for it, so an orchid to them. By the way, a re-organization meeting of the Kawartha Conservation group will be held near the end of the month. Complete details will be given later. Hunters can shoot partridge from Nov. 13 to 23, both days inclusive, and if they happen to be in Haliburton or Hastings they can fish lake trout, too. The season re-opened on Nov. 6 (today). In Peterborough and Victoria county the season remains closed.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

A LONG LETTER from a local duck hunter suggests that the duck season opens too early. It is a first class letter, and I will deal with it at a later date when I have more space. In the meantime perhaps some other duck gunners have something to say on the subject. If they have, I would be glad to receive letters from them. The open season for duck shooting north of No. 7 highway ends on Monday, Nov 8 at sundown. The season south of No. 7 ends on Monday, Nov. 15 at sundown. It appears the ducks are more plentiful now, than they have been since the season opened, but this fog is making good hunting almost impossible.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

ERNEST TRAYNOR, a farmer living near Rockcroft sent in a news item this week, that is a bit unusual. He reports he was plowing in sod on Oct. 29 when he turned up six mudturtle eggs. Two were hatched and the other four eggs were partly hatched with the heads and two front legs of the turtle protruding. The turtles were quite frisky, despite the lateness of the season and the cool weather. Mr. Traynor says the eggs were covered with about four inches of earth.

Birth of Child To Princess Elizabeth Awaited By World With Much Interest

By HELEN CATHCART

Not for over a hundred years has the world awaited a royal birth with such interest as the coming of Princess Elizabeth's baby a week or two from now. The expected time is mid-November, the place will be a little second-floor room looking westwards over the private gardens of Buckingham Palace yet few people realize that the coming event implies the arrival of a future King George VII or a possible Queen Regnant for the British Commonwealth.

"Whether boy or girl, the child will be the next Heir Presumptive to the British Throne after Princess Elizabeth, and a boy baby has maximum chances of one day gaining the Crown, most probably, according to actuarial estimates, in the year 2009. A girl may be displaced in the line of succession if a son is born to Elizabeth later. Boy or girl, however, the newcomer is fated to be swaddled in the limelight and in the inevitable duties of royalty throughout a lifetime.

Although the Duke of Windsor was born in direct succession to the Throne in 1894, the nearest parallel lies in the birth of Queen Victoria's first child, a daughter, in November, 1840. Christened after her mother, it was the little girl's strange destiny to become mother of the ex-Kaiser, her title to the British throne being nearly extinguished with the birth of King Edward VII, in November, 1841.

Glancing back still farther in history, there was the unhappy tragedy of November, 1817, when Princess Charlotte awaited her baby "so utterly happy as to be almost afraid." Then as now the Princess was heiress presumptive to the throne and her marriage had been a love match with a foreign-born prince but the parallel takes us no farther. Charlotte died in childbirth with her infant and the nation's interest was transformed to mourning.

Today, of course, childbirth has never been so safe — mortality statistics are only 1.01 per 1,000 births—and the Princess's gynaecologist, Sir William Gilliatt, expects no complications. Nor will the first bulletin probably be issued until the Home Secretary has seen the baby and certified the birth, a custom dating from the romantic days when a changeling child could perhaps have assured a royal dynasty. Though nominally the Home Secretary is expected to be present in person at the accouchement, the custom is beginning to lapse.

When the present king was born at York Cottage, Sandringham, King George V — a stickler for etiquette — was present in the room to represent the Home Secretary, but Home Secretary Johnson-Hicks actually arrived late for the birth of Princess Elizabeth, and Home Secretary Clynes was forced to holiday at Glamis Castle for a month owing to a miscalculation over the birth of Princess Margaret.

Another unusual circumstance surrounding a royal birth was in the winter of 1864 when Princess —later Queen—Alexandra's first son arrived. Ice skating was in progress in Windsor Park and Alexandra insisted on joining in the fun. Suddenly she fell, and it is said that a lady-in-waiting acted as midwife, wrapping the infant in her own petticoat. The appointed doctors, nurses and even the boxes containing the layette did not arrive at Windsor till an hour later.

In the present instance, however, plans have been made to the last detail, and an emergency layette even accompanied the Princess on her summer visit to Balmoral in case of unexpected developments. Yet by a strange lack of foresight on the part of George V a strange problem of rank has arisen.

Although everyone naturally expects the little newcomer to be a prince or princess, an edict of George V limited the title of HRH Prince or Princess to the sons and daughters of the Sovereign and the sons and daughters of the sons of the Sovereign. King George VI must now reverse this edict, otherwise the child can only take rank through his father. Since the Duke of Edinburgh has been given no special precedence, this means that a boy would probably assume the title of the Merioneth, one of the Duke's minor titles. On the other hand, it is believed in Court circles that the event may well be celebrated by creating Princess Elizabeth's husband a Prince of Great Britain.

Nor, contrary to common belief, can a son become Prince of Wales, except when Princess Elizabeth succeeds to the Throne. This title is reserved for the Heir Apparent. In the same way a son will have no income of his own, unless Parliament grants him one on coming of age. Financially, his sole expectation is that of gaining rich revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall when his mother succeeds to the Crown—and this revenue will then have to be taken away from the Duke of Windsor!

Not that the Duke of Edinburgh has any intention of giving any child of his special privileges until well into the teen age. Names on the approved list include George, Andrew (for Scotland), Philip (after his father) and Louis, after his uncle, Lord Mountbatten. A girl baby will probably take the names of Elizabeth Mary Alice (the last after Philip's mother) but the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, like many young couples have yet finally to make up their minds.

Certainly the child will be addressed by its Christian name for years to come, and there will be no curtseying or bowing until the child understands the difference between homage to royal prestige and homage to the individual. As Princess Elizabeth once remarked, "I'm always thankful that mummy and daddy never allowed Margaret and me to be treated differently from our friends. Think how confused we would have been if a spank was followed by a curtsey!"

The question of godparents, too has been discussed and Philip is known to favor the honor for his best friend, the Marquess of Milford Haven. Princess Margaret and the Princess Royal may also sponsor the baby. I was recently privileged to see the christening robe or creamy silk and lace made for Queen Victoria's chistening and used for all royal babies ever since. Though kept in an airtight case at Marlborough House and carefully tended by Queen Mary it is now so frail that it is likely to be reserved henceforth for heirs in the direct line.

Despite adjacent bomb damage, the christening is expected to take place in the private chapel at Buckingham Palace when the baby is a month or two old, the silver-gilt lily font at which both Elizabeth and Margaret were christened being brought from Windsor for the occasion. Then the baby will be launched into the happiness of an ordinary childhood, shielded for most part from public view.

In the gardens of Windlesham Moor there is already a sand-pit for babyhood's delight, and Princes Elizabeth is thinking of installing a similar play-pit in the grounds of Clarence House. The finest plaything of all, however, stands in the garden of Windsor Lodge and is nothing less than a model house, miniature and complete in every respect, the gift of the people of Wales. Princess Elizabeth always looked after it herself when a little girl and is determined that her children — girls or boys—shall have a similar training in the household arts.

Plans for the child's wider education have been considered but have not yet, of course, been evolved in detail. British princesses have always received private education, and Princess Elizabeth's popular governess, Mrs. Buthlay, has already been asked to consider a return from married retirement when the new baby is five years old. She will be assisted by a special French teacher and a music mistress. Later, two tutors will gently lead the royal heiress to the study of constitutional history.

The education of a boy is similarly sponsored by precedent. The future mother and father agree that he can probably go to a preparatory school when eight or nine years old, perhaps to Cheam where both the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Milford Haven formerly studied. Philip's own later school at Gordonstoun, in Morayshire, is also in the running. Unlike more famous schools, it houses only 200 boys and is truly democratic in that the graded fees enable the richer to help pay for the poorer.

Its stress on physical fitness and graded responsibility too, is suitable for a future monarch in a modern world. The participation in local life, farming, riding and seamanship will similarly help to prepare such a youngster for the traditional naval career. Princess Elizabeth firmly hopes to have a son eventually, if one is not born now, and he will certainly be entered as cadet at Dartmouth, following in the footsteps of both Prince Philip and King George VI himself.

Perhaps this is looking too far ahead, even for a boy who is born to be king. Besides, there are the contingencies of history to be born in mind. If Princess Elizabeth is eventually succeed on the throne by a daughter, it will be the first such instance in British history. For two generations, too, the first son in royal line has not been crowned king. The eldest son of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandria died in his twenties, and some said that the brevity of the Duke of Windsor's reign was preordained.

Yet with each baby new hope and a new pattern of life is created afresh. Not least notable is Queen Mary's deep personal delight in the happy event, bringing four generations of living royalty, each with its separate place in our hearts.

Swain Homestead InCavan Township Has Been In Family Name 130 Years

By MRS. H. C. ARGUE

CAVAN. — The farm of Joshua Swain, the east half of Lot 15, in the 9th concession of Cavan, has been in the family name for 130 years.

In 1818 William Swain came from County Wexford, Ireland, and settled on this homestead which he obtained from the Crown. He was born in May, 1791, and died in 1888, having lived to the age of 97 years.

Two or three years previous to 1818 an adventurous Irishman who was known as "Young Richard Staples" from the same county in Ireland came to Canada and after looking at different locations decided to settle on the farm now owned by James Danforth, just west of the Swain homestead in Cavan.

He cleared some land and built a little log house and barn.

His letters home were filled with glowing accounts of this new land which seemed to be flowing with milk and honey and a strange delicious kind of sugar which was made from trees called maple, of which there seemed to be a great many in that part of Canada. His family and friends became so fired by his enthusiasm that they decided in 1818 to make the perilous journey over the sea to join him.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Staples were then over 70 years old and the voyage was so trying on Mrs. Staples that she died just as they were in sight of land. Her husband and family, not wishing to have her buried at sea, managed to keep it from the captain and when they reached land she was buried in a quiet spot on the Canadian shore.

BUILT 114 YEARS AGO, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Swain, on lot 15, concession 9, Cavan Township, stands about 35 feet from the original log home erected by the Swain family in 1818. The home has undergone many changes through the years and today is a modern equipped farm house.

They journeyed on to Cobourg and from there, walking and carrying their possessions on their backs, they made their way by enquiring and following the blazes on the trees to the Staples homestead. They were weary after their long, tedious walk and did very little for a few days.

The men of the party soon set out to find suitable locations.

William Swain choose for himself the land just east of the Staples homestead and his brother John settled on the land across the road, now owned by Wm. Nill. John was a member of Cavan Council for 26 years and when Sir John A. Macdonald visited Millbrook, he was one of the men chosen to ride in the carriage with him in the procession from the railway station to Medd's Grove, where a platform was erected for the reception and the speeches.

Either just before leaving Ireland or soon after their arrival in Cavan, William Swain married Jane, a sister of Richard Staples. They soon made a nice little home for themselves, clearing more land each year until they had most of the 100 acres of land which they owned under cultivation.

They had seven children: Robert, William, John, Joe, Richard, Jane and Hanna, who attended the first school which was built of logs and was situated on the opposite side of the road from the present school house.

The family were regular attendants at the services of the New Connection Church which was erected in 1800 and stood in the Ninth Line Cemetery. This was one of the first churches built in Cavan.

Richard Swain inherited the homestead. He and his cousin Robert, known as "the Dane," who was a son of John Swain, were members of the Cavan Blazers. This was a band of young men of North Cavan who originally formed a club to help those in need and the oppressed but sometimes their high spirits led them into mischief and often in the Fall, on crisp moonlight nights they slipped into the neighbors' henhouses and with a fat hen under their arm made their way to a nearby woods where some of the lads had a sap kettled slung on a pole between two stumps. A good fire was built under it, boiling the water in which the hens were cooked. Often they stayed around the fire singing and telling stories till the early hours of the morning.

Richard married Jane Mulligan who lived on the Seventh Line of Cavan. To them were born five children: William, who married Minnie Noble and moved to the West, living for some time in Dakota before returning to Ontario where they both died; Joshua, who married Ella Hunter of Cavan and is living on the homestead farm; Annie, who married John Sanderson and lived in Manitoba where they did some years ago; Margaret, who married Fred Staples and also went West and finally to Edmonton where they died a short time ago; and Annetta (Netty) who trained for a nurse in Chicago, where she is still residing.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swain, celebrated their golden wedding in the house which now stands on the homestead farm, in 1908. They died within a few years of each other.

This same house was the scene of another event in 1944 when the present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Swain, surrounded by their children and grandchildren celebrated their golden wedding.

A reception was held in the afternoon and evening and friends and relatives came from far and near to wish the esteemed couple many more happy years.

Mr. Swain, although an octogenarian, is still hale and hearty and able to help with the chores on the farm. His wife also is enjoying good health. They attribute this to having had "the sense to stay" on the farm among familiar surroundings, instead of moving to the city. They have brought the comforts of the city to their home where they have electricity, hot and cold water on tap in bathroom and kitchen and many labor saving farm machines.

Their son William (Will) manages the farm; another son, Clark, lives in Toronto; Fred in Stamford, Ont.; Margaret (Mrs. Harold Bigelow) in Millbrook; Myrtle (Mrs. Gordon Hill) in Peterborough, and Helen (Mrs. Eldrich Snyder) on the Tenth Line, Cavan.

Ottawa Girl, Ballet Dancer Seeks Career As Ballerina

BY PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ballet dancing is hard work, says blue-eyed Patricia Wilde of Ottawa, but she wouldn't change it for anything.

Now in her fourth year with the Balle Russe de Monte Carlo, she has won favorable comment from New York critics for her solos in a number of the company's productions.

Her real name is Patricia White. She changed it to Wilde to avoid confusion with her sister, Nora White, who was with the Ballet Russe for five years but left the company in 1947.

Her sister is now studying dancing in Paris. "I wish I were there," said Patricia.

It isn't that she doesn't enjoy her work in North America; but, like all ballet dancers, she wants to get to Europe.

"I'm very happy with the company; they are all grand people," she said enthusiastically. "I hope to keep on in ballet and eventually become a leading Ballerina."

She does solo numbers in many of the ballets, including Pas de Quatre, Gaite Parisienne, Quelques Fleurs, The Nutcracker, The Seventh Symphony and Madronos.

Of her work in Quelques Fleurs, which had its world premiere during the company's just-ended engagement, John Martin of the New York Times had this to say:

"There are variations for Yvonne Chouteau, Gertrude Tyven and Patricia Wilde, as the three perfumes, and they are all delightfully danced with especial honors going to Miss Wilde."

Patricia studied in Ottawa under Gwendolyn Osborne from the time she was five. She came to New York at 13 and studied at a professional children's school while continuing her education. She danced in Mexico with Balanchine and had one season with the ballet international before joining the Ballet Russe.

With the Ballet she has danced in Montreal and Toronto and has toured the United States every season, but she has yet to dance in Ottawa as a member of the company.

"The Ballet Russe performed in Ottawa just before I joined them, but we haven't been there since. We're going to play there next spring, though, as well as in Montreal and Toronto."

Is ballet dancing hard work?

"Yes because it is so continuous," she said. "The harder you work, the more necessary it is to work to keep your muscles in condition."

The company rehearsed every day for two hours during its New York engagement. That, along with two performances six evenings a week and matinees on Saturdays and Sundays left the dancers with little time to themselves.

Touring is especially arduous, Patricia said. "When you travel every day, it's hard to remember where you've been the day before."

Red Wings Face Toughest Games

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, facing their toughest week-end of the season, probably will realize by Monday that life isn't a bowl of cherries atop the National Hockey League.

They're scheduled to meet Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins—both out to overtake the first-place Red Wings.

Detroit invades Montreal tonight and then hurries home to meet Boston Bruins.

In other week-end games, New York visits Toronto tonight for the first time this season and moves on to Chicago Sunday night to meet the last-place Black Black Hawks.

Red Wings now hold a two-point lead for first place over Boston who are two points ahead of the third-place Canadiens.

Leafs have three wins and four losses, putting them one point behind Montreal and three points ahead of the injury-stricken Rangers. Black Hawks trail with a solitary win this year.

Reports seeping out of the Toronto camp say manager Conn Symthe and coach Hap Day are disappointed with the club's showing.

They had banked on their veterans of two winning Stanley Cup series to hold the club together while a heavy crop of rookies were broken in. But in the all-star game which the Leafs lost 3-1 it was Max Bentley, teamed with two rookie linemen and two rookie rearguards, who led the Leafs.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Got talking to a chap the other day who is keenly interested in sports. He is "Okay Bill" Sims, a Montreal sportsmaster on CKVL. Has been covering sports on the air for years and got the nickname doing the Royals' home ball games. The French announcer would give a summary of the inning and then pass the mike to his English-speaking friend with the remark: "Okay, Bill Sims." Born in Weston, Ont., Bill played ball, hockey and lacrosse among other sports, and he still does a weekly broadcast in Montreal. But he's going in more for temperance lectures now to Alcoholics Anonymous and other groups. He's here on this work for a week or so.

We're not a crank on this subject but agree that athletes should leave the stuff alone if they want to go places in the world of sports. They shouldn't dissipate in any way. Physical condition and mental alertness are highly important in an athlete. Others, of course, too, but our interest is in athletics. There is he exceptional case where a fellow becomes a great star despite bad habits, but as a general rule clean living pays off. If a guy is sincere in getting ahead in sports he should stick to training or else forget about them. A lot of noted figures in various games have dropped out long before necessary because they didn't keep in shape. Sure, any of us can name a number of them.

* * * * * *

Suggests Two Changes

Bill is quite a student of the rules and is advocating two important changes—one in football and one in hockey. Now, most of our main rules are well established and officials view with lifted eyebrows any suggestion off the beaten track. Like the time Oscar Wilde received an article for criticism from an unknown. After wading through part of it, Wilde penned the following note to the fellow: "My Dear Sir—Oh, my dear sir! Sincerely, Oscar Wilde." But Bill's suggestions have some sense to them. At least, they sounded that way to us, and he intends passing them on to the proper officials for consideration.

* * * * * *

One is to limit scoring in football to a 10-yard zone from the touchline back. Thus, your touchdowns and safety touches would count as they do now as would the field goals and converts. But no kick to deadline and no rouges unless the guy lugging the ball out was tackled right in that 10-yard strip. Bill thinks a deadline kick is a cheap point and he thinks it's not fair to make a chap take a kick away back of his own goal posts and have to try to get out all the way. It would also tend to shorten the total football field. A thought, anyway.

* * * * * *

Cut Out The Red Line

The other suggested change concerns hockey. Harder to explain in print. But draw an ice surface with two blue lines, omit the centre red line, and draw a big "X". Start your "X" where one blue lines touches the boards and run it to where the other blue line touches the boards on the opposite side of the rink. Same way with the other line. Okay? Those two side zones between the blue lines are okay for forward passes within them, and so is that other centre part from one blue line to the other. If you have the picture drawn you can see the possibilities. It brings more of the play out in front of the defence and goal, as plays building up in the side zones force a player to shoot an angle drive at the goalie, and he has more chance to save. It makes for more stickwork and more playmaking in the centre lane down the ice.

The late Lou Marsh once told Bill Sims that, playing rugby many years ago against Peterborough, big Gene Hurtubise—quite an amateur wrestler in his day, too—hit him so hard his ribs were sore all week. So in a return game, Lou trotted out on the field with some chain armor under his sweater. Slowed him down some but he didn't get hurt—it was the guys who hit him that did! We remember the old story of Gene and the Petes meeting Lou on a train as they were going somewhere to play rugby. Lou was to referee. Gene said to Lou: "I'll bet you five bucks I can tell you what the score will be before the game." Lou fell for it and took the bet. "It'll be 0-0 before the game," large Gene said. Lou no doubt got that back from others with the same gag.

Nurses and Electrics Win Lasses' Basketball Game

Two good games started off the Girls' Basketball League schedule last evening in the YWCA gym. A fair-sized gallery viewed four teams dishing up a lot of action. Nurses had to go overtime in the opener to yank out a 20-18 victory, while the second game saw the Electrics take a 17-11 verdict from Lock Co. There will be no games next Friday, owing to the Bell Singers coming here, with proceeds going to the Civic Arena.

Nurses took a 13-9 lead in the first half of their game, but Neill's came back to outscore them 9-7 in the second half to tie it at 18-all, Nurses then scoring the winning basket in the extra five minutes played. It was tight and fast all the way. Joan Plunkett, Anita Davis and Bev Pringle went best for the Nurses this game, as Marg Freeman, Jean Vass and Dot Callan stood out for Neill s.

Teams:

Neill's: F. Floyd, D. Callan 3, J. Vass 6, W. Floyd 3, M. Freeman 6, J. Caverly, J. Dunk, N. Crouter.

Nurses: J. Plunkett 9, B. Deyell, J. Smith, A. Davis 9, B. Pringle 2, M. Flowers, M. Collins, L. Coones, E. Taylor, S. Wilkinson.

Second Game

In the second struggle, the Electrics trailed 7-5 in the first half but came on strong for a 14-4 margin in the last to win fairly handily. It was a lively game most of the way but CGE had the condition and punch in the late stages. Marg Kennedy, Irene Stewart and Betty Stewart stood out for the winners; with J. Johnston, Bev Holmes and J. Wilson the pick of the Lockeys.

Teams:

CGE—B. Stewart 3, M. Perrin 2, I. Scotcher, I. Stewart 4, Marg Perrin, M. Batley, T. DeCarlo, D. Hulsman, M. Kennedy 8.

Lock Co.—J. Johnston 5, I. Harvey, B. McIlwaine 1, D. Jackson, M. Knox, J. McIntyre, S. Weese, B. Holmes 3, L. Crowley, J. Wilson 2.

Referee—H. Smith; timer, A. Neiman.

Carpetball League

Although a definite schedule cannot really be made at the moment we can report that at least 12 teams have stated their desire to enter into the league race. Some of these are new. With regard to the last two named, these are only tentative entries but both are doing their best to get organized. If any other club is desirous of entering please phone 3067 giving the name of contact man.

The first schedule will be as follows and skips are free to go ahead and make arrangements to play at once: 1 vs. 2; 3 vs. 4; 5 vs. 6; 7 vs. 8; 9 vs. 10, 11 vs. 12.

SPOT BALL

Randy Ellis Third In Scottish Loop

DUNFERMLINE, Fifeshire, Scotland, Nov. 6 — (CP).—Canadians with more than a single Scottish hockey season behind them are forging ahead in the SIHA individual scoring tables with the season three weeks under way.

Red-haired Bud Scrutton of the Fife Flyers has notched 12 points from right wing to share leadership with Johnny Evans, Dundee left-winger. Both are in their third season here. Scrutton, from Kingston, is toying with the idea of going home to turn professional. Evans, a Toronto product and now No. 1 sports hero in a thriving Scottish seaport of 250,000, likes it here and plans to stay.

Third Place

Last year's top scorer with 153 points, Randy Ellis of Dunfermline Vikings, is in third place with nine points Ellis, a centre, comes from Lindsay.

Vikings led Falkirk Lions by a point as the league passed the half-way mark in its 12-game opening competition. The autumn series is a warm-up for the Canada Cup and National League schedules to follow.

Several youngsters, making their debuts before critical Scottish fans, have already caught the railbirds' eyes. Standout newcomers include:

Hal Moreland of Fife, who learned his hockey around Orillia.

Tom La Pointe of Perth Panthers, a Winnipegger who played in the NOHA last year.

Bill Hurst, 18-year-old Dundee Tiger defenceman, who had a tryout with the Philadelphoa Rockets last spring.

Don Irons, Perth Panther goalie and a graduate of the Toronto Mercantile League.

Al Bathe of Ayr Raiders, who has seen service with Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals.

Critics Acclaim Dancer Allan McLerie

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(CP)—Canadian-born Allyn McLerie, the ingenue lead in "Where's Charley?" says "I couldn't make up my mind whether to be a dancer or an actress so I finally decided to be both."

In either capacity she's a standout.

A slender, attractive brunetter with a soft, musical laugh, Miss McLerie began her professoinal stage career at 14, as a ballet dancer with the San Carlo Opera Company. She played in Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., during a six-week tour.

But the young actress—she's in her early 20s—was lured by the footlights from infancy. She told about her theatrical progress in an interview, after a matinee performance of "Where's Charley?", the musical version of "Charley's Aunt."

"I love the play," she said. "I like the part because it gives me a chance to do everything, not just dancing—singing, acting and comedy. It's my favorite role to date."

And for her performance she's received bouquets from the critics.

Allyn moved with her mother from Grand'mere, Que., to Brooklyn when she was three years old. Her father, Allan Gordon McLerie, a First World War flier who subsequently became the first man to fly a winter mail route in Canada, died shortly before his daughter was born. Allyn took piano and dancing lessons but when she was 11 decided to specialize in dancing. Practising the piano was too boring.

Road To Stardom

In 1943, while still in high school, she danced in the ensemble of "One Touch of Venus" and once played Sono Osato's role. A year later she was understudy to Miss Osato in "On the Town". Eventually she took over the starring role—and married Adolph Green, a co-author of the musical.

After the show closed, fortune frowned. She was signed for another but it was never produced; she almost, but not quite, got into "Allegro" and "Park Avenue"; and she appeared only briefly in "Bonanza Bound" which never reached Broadway.

A year ago she was dancing with John Butler at New York's fashionable Cotillion Room and making a success of it. But she ended that engagement because "ball-room dancing wasn't what I wanted to do."

Hollywood was next—"not for any special reason; I just got tired of not working." She sang and danced with Perry Como in "Words and Music," a film awaiting release.

Hollywood brought her new Broad spot, too. It was there she met George Abbott, producer of "Where's Charley?" in which she now is playing.

Allyn's obviously thrilled by her success at the demure Amy Spettigue. No wonder. The critics called her "delightful", "versatile", "warm and graceful" —even "a sensation."

"I guess what I'm really interested in now is acting. I've done so much dancing already," she said when asked about her future plans.

CLAMPING A HEADLOCK on the runner, Joe Golding of the Boston Yanks stops the runner, Hugh Taylor, and pulls him out of bounds after he had made gain against Washington.

Postpone Bout

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 6.—(AP).—Rocky Graziano's bout here with Freddie Apostoli has been postponed from Nov. 17 to Dec. 1 because the New Yorker's nose, injured in training, hasn't healed properly. Promoter Jimmy Murray saiad the postponement had been approved by the State Boxing Commission.

Tigers Slash To 8-0 Win Over Beaches

(By The Canadian Press)

It was muddy and wet and Hamilton Tigers couldn't use the passing of fabulous Frank Filchock.

So they kept the ball on the ground and sloshed to an 8-0 victory Friday over Toronto Beaches Indians in the first of the week-ends crucial football games.

The victory put Tigers one game ahead in the best-of-three Ontario Rugby Football Union playoff series.

Western eyes will turn to Regina where the unbeaten Calgary Stampeders move in for a home-and-home series for the Western Conference title with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In the Big Four playoff puzzle, Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes will battle it out—on different gridirons — for the league's second playoff spot.

Plowing for 18 first downs, the Tigers went for a first-quarter field goal and an unconverted touchdown in the third after Beaches fumbles put them in position for both scores.

Pat Santucci kicked the 27-yard field goal and Ralph Bartolini plunged one yard for the touchdown.

Second Game

Second game of the series is Nov. 13 in Hamilton with the third — if necessary — in Hamilton four days later.

Filchock—whose passing has sparked Tigers to an undefeated season—threw only two passes. One was intercepted and the other was grounded. The Beaches threw two, both grounded.

The big puzzle is the Big Four where the second playoff post is a toss-up between Argos and Alouettes. Ottawa Rough Riders already have clinched first place.

Alouettes are in third place, one point ahead of Argos.

They beat out the winners of three consecutive dominion championships if they beat the Wildcats or Ottawa beats Argos or both teams are tied.

Argos can make it only if they beat Ottawa and Wildcats upset Alouettes.

But the scramble could wind up in a second-place tie if Alouettes lose, the Argos tie Ottawa or if Alouettes and Hamilton tie and the Argos beat Ottawa.

In the Intercollegiate circuit, the University of Western Ontario—struck by a crop of mid-season injuries—meets McGill at Western. Bob Masterson's rejuvenated University of Toronto Blues battle Queen's at Kingston.

THE HISTORIC NEWMARKET Town Plate, with all the runners ridden by women, was run at Newmarket, Eng., recently, over a distance of four miles. The race was established by King Charles II in 1666. Here Filus, ridden by Miss S. Joel, is seen winning the Town Plate.

Marlies Get 2 Straight In Shutout Games Friday

(By The Canadian Press)

The underdog Toronto Marlboros made it two straight Friday night—and both by shutouts.

Paced by Lanky Johnny McCormick, with three goals and an assist, the cellar-dwelling Marlboros blanked the third-place Kitchener Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 4-0 to earn their second straight game. They defeated the youthful Stratford Indians 1-0 Friday night.

Marlboros started the season off in bad style, dropping three straight, and eking out two ties. But with the recent signing of 36-year-old, former National Hockey League star, Flash Hollett, and line-reshuffling by Coach Joe Primeau, they show signs of the senior league-leading St. strength.

In other O.H.A. games last night, Stratford Indians walloped the senior league-leading Hamilton Tigers 7-1, while in the junior loop the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees bested the cellar-dwelling Toronto Marlboros 5-3. Windsor Spitfires, made it seven-for-seven when they bested Barrie Flyers Juniors, 3-1.

McCormick gave the Dukes a 2-0 lead in the first period and lengthened it to 3-0 in the second. Early in the third stanza, Bob Robertson blasted home McCormick's pass.

Open Scoring

Stratford, who have dropped five of their nine starts, nipped five goals in the third period as they downed the Bengals.

Dunc Daniels opened the scoring in the first period and Mickey Roth, who took top honors with three goals, got his first in the second frame. Jim Eady, Bill Walsh, and Johnny Messmer added to Daniels' third period goals, with one apiece.

Juniors trounced a Galt team 11-1 in the opener of the doubleheader.

Lawson Little, famous professional golfer, was taken ill Thursday night after leading the first round of the Hawaiian Open at Honolulu with a blazing 67. The Monterey, Calif., star was confined to a hospital Friday, but his doctor said his condition was not serious.

The National Boxing Association said Friday that it has warned Manuel Ortiz, world's bantamweight champion, that he must take on one of the three top contenders in his division. These logical contenders, the N.B.A. said, are: Guido Ferracin of Italy, Luis Calvani of Cuba or Dave Kui Kong Young of Hawaii.

"Drastic action may be expected in the future," warned the N.B.A., "in the case of champions who appear in so-called title bouts only against hand-picked opponents while logical contenders cool their heels.

Stratford clash with Hamilton in the senior loop tonight. On the junior bill, St. Catharines meet Marlboros, St. Michael's play Guelph Biltmores, and Galt Rockets clash with Oshawa Generals.

Here And There In Sports . . .

BY CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs have a promising young forward called Sweeney Schriner on their list and if he makes good he'll be playing in the National Hockey League some day. He's 16 years old, weighs 150 pounds, and looks just like his dad—ex-Leaf Dave (Sweeney) Schriner—when he's on skates.

Young Norm Schriner, who played midget hockey in Calgary last season, was sent by Leaf Scout Squib Walker this fall and will play right wing on Toronto Marlboros' Junior B club. A fellow-Canadian — Ron Stewart—will centre his line.

Western Colts unleashed one of the mightiest aerial displays ever witnessed in London's little stadium to overwhelm McMaster 61-3 in an Intermediate Intercollegiate game Friday. The Colts completed 16 of 34 pass attempts, and seven of them were touchdown tosses. Quarter-back Gord Davidson, did most of the passing, and he threw strikes all over the field, six times for touchdowns. Bill LaRochelle was the big point scorer, with three touchdowns.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association Friday announced that two Quebec golfers—Jesse Noble of Lachine and Jean Lauze of St. Eustache—have been re-instated as amateurs. Noble gave up his golf professional post in 1932 and Lauze in 1943.

Reports were current again today that the New York Yankee baseball organization is planning to move its International League farm team out of Newark where skimpy attendance figures have replaced championship teams. The Yankees have controlled the Newark farm club for 17 years and in that time the Bears finished in the first division 16 times, missing only in 1947.

The new Ontario Hockey Association Senior B Group in Brantford district likely will have eight teams, it was learned Friday night. Representatives of clubs in Welland, St. Catharines, Grimsby, Georgetown, Woodstock, Preston, Guelph and Brantford have indicated they will attend an organization meeting at Brantford Monday night.

Guelph Collegiate and Vocational Institute seniors won their W.O.S.S.A. group football championship Friday by defeating Galt Collegiate at Galt 8-1. Guelph

Happy Jack Chesbro, one of baseball's top-rating spitball pitchers, died at Conway, Mass., 17 years ago today. He led National League twirlers in 1901 and 1902 while with Pittsburgh and in 1904 with New York Yankees hung up an all-time record for games won with 41.

Lose Bike Lead

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.— (CP).— The team of Walter Diggelman and Hugo Koblet of Switzerland took over the lead early today in the 4th international six-day bike race at the international amphitheatre. They replaced the Italian-Canadian pair of Cesare Moretti and Montreal's Rene Cyr, who held the lead since the opening of the grind last Sunday.

Tweed Factory Shuts Down

The Stewart - Warner - Alemite plant at Tweed is temporarily abandoning production, and most of the female employees have been laid off.

An official at the head office in Belleville said there was no need for alarm that Tweed is losing an industry. He explained that the market in radios has fallen off badly, and the only alternative was to halt production temporarily in the plant. He said: "We are at a standstill now and our future plans for the Tweed branch have not been finalized. With the acute power shortage, there is a strong possibility that in order to stagger our hours and maintain production, we may open again before too long." It is believed that the Tweed staff will be absorbed into the Belleville company.

Princess' Message

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—(CP).—The Princess Royal, Countess of Harewood, has sent special greetings to members and veterans of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals on the occasion of "Signals Day," today, the army announced Friday. As Colonel-in-Chief of the Corps, the Princess expressed hope "that more gatherings of signallers to be held throughout Canada will maintain and arouse interest in the good work of signals welfare.

WMS Hears Talk By Rev. N. Cole

WESTWOOD, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge, president of St. Andrew's United WMS opened her home on Wednesday afternoon for a special missionary tea and social time. Nearly 40 guests and members attended.

Two letters from Scotland in appreciation of parcels received from St. Andrew's Church were read.

The missionary travelling apron which has been making the round of the ladies of the congregation was displayed and the patches opened. Verses, humorous and otherwise, enclosed within the patches were read by Mrs. Aubrey Wood, providing entertainment. Rev. N. Cole was a guest and spoke briefly on missionary endeavours.

Mrs. H. Neilson and Mrs. Morris poured tea at a lace covered table, centred with a bouquet of baby 'mums.

Transport Sails

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 — (CP). — Bound for Yugoslavia, the transport Radnik sailed Friday with 100 Yugoslav-Canadians aboard. Some are returning to their homeland for a visit, while others plan to take up permanent residence there. Also aboard were 50 United States citizens of Yugoslav origin who are making the trip for the same reasons.

To Set Up Snow Laboratories To Help Conquer Canadian Enemy

By DOUGLAS HOW.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Scientists say Canada is hopelessly wide open to an imminent sky invasion by a material that is just about as complex as any known—or unknown—to man.

But there is nothing to panic about. It is nothing more dangerous or spectacular than snow.

From a tiny start 14 years ago when the RCAF wanted to know more about aircraft skis, snow has become one of the most important subjects of study at the National Research Council. And it is a fundamental link in the many studies Canada now is making of her winter and her Northland.

George Klein, the 44-year old NRC physicist who has been in on the hunt from the start, will tell you that Canada still has a long way to go before she knows all there is to know about a substance that lies feet deep from Atlantic to Pacific for months of the year.

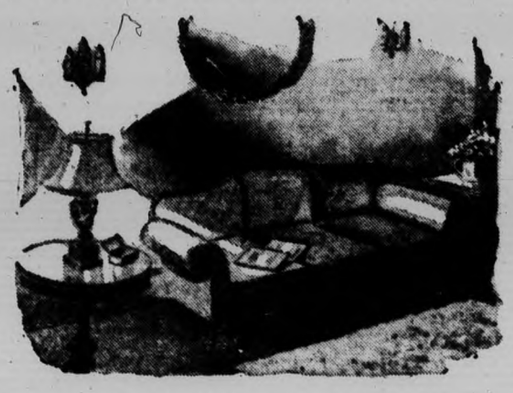
Snow, for instance, has properties which vary more than those of any other known material. Its hardness can vary 50,000-fold, its density ten fold. Its characteristics can know infinite varieties. At times 95 per cent of its volume can be air.

Canada's knowledge of it stemmed from that search for an aircraft ski, which itself had a rather ironic ending. By the time a small group of NRC workers had concluded that a long, very narrow ski was best, the Air Force interest was moving away from skis towards airports cleared of snow.

Arouses Interest

Now interest has increased so much that no less than 70 representatives of government and industry attended a snow conference a little over a year ago. The services are working on dozens of problems. Highways departments are interested in clearing roads, lumbermen are interested in better log sleds. The RCMP is trying out a new northern sled made by the NRC. Hydro firms fret about ice on their wires.

A host of data has been accumulated from tests made at weather stations and in another few years Canada should be able to tell anyone interested the type — and there are nine principal types—and condition of snow he is liable to find in any region.



The Council hopes to set up soon two snow laboratories, one in the Rockies mainly to study avalanches, the other in Ottawa to continue the study of snow's physical properties. It also is interested in such problems as improved over-snow vehicles and the structural qualities of aircraft skis.

The Rockies laboratory will be set up with the advice of a Swiss scientist, Dr. Marcel de Quervain, who has been loaned to Canada for a year and who is a leading snow expert.

The Swiss have mastered avalanches in their Alps until they can predict them with surprising accuracy. They even frustrate them by using trench mortars to set them off when they'll do the least harm.

The Dramatic Life of Job

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Job

By Alfred J. Buescher

"There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job." He was a good man, upright and God-fearing, and he was also very rich, but generous with his wealth.

Satan told Jehovah that Job would not be true to Him if he lost his wealth and his ten children, and the Lord told Satan to try Job by taking his possessions away from him.

Job kept his faith in Jehovah through these calamities, so Satan suggested that he be afflicted with boils to try him still further, but even in his agony Job was true.

Through all of his sufferings, in mind and body, Job was faithful, and God came to him, praised him, restored his riches and gave him more children.

MEMORY VERSE—JOB 37:14.

The Ascension of Old Lord

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus was parted from His disciples and carried up into Heaven.—St. Luke 24:51.

There are many who hate dogma—definite teaching. Yet every trade or profession is built up on dogma; the "simple Gospel" is only a half truth. The primitive Christians suffered fearful tortures because of the dogmas about "Jesus" that they believed in. These intellectual truths strengthened them to bear the pains. The following thoughts about the Ascension of the Lord will help your faith and strengthen your heart in the time of anxiety and death.

"Jesus was carried up into heaven". Where is heaven" Science tells us that there is no up or down. But owing to our mental limitations we must speak of up or down. "Jesus was carried up into the spiritual world that is all around us. Bu His ascension He is not limited to one place. He is near to you.

The Lord appeared on His resurrection morning first to Mary Magdalene. Note His words: "I ascend to My Father and your Father; to My God and your God". No mention of His resurrection; only of His ascension. His human soul longs to look into the face of His Father. In that upper room He makes the astonishing statement to His Apostles: 'I came forth from the Father and am come into the world. Again I leave the world and go unto My Father".

The Beloved Son takes up into Heaven that which had never been there before. He took up our human nature. The perfect Man stands in the present of the Father in His perfect manhood. He is the perfect man in the image of God the Father. His character was perfected in the only possible way, through the stress and strain of temptation and suffering patiently bourne. He chose the best and it was not easy. In His mind He saw the pearl of Great Price and He was willing to pay for it with all He had.

He stands before the Father clad in His best robe. When God created man in His own image He saw in His mind the perfect Man. The Lord wove that best robe with tears, pain and self sacrifice. If you accept Him He will cast that best robe over you and the Father will look at you in that best robe and your sins will be forgiven for Christ's sake. We are His children because the Lord Jesus is our elder brother, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh.

Time and again we are told in the New Testament that the Lord sits at the right hand of God. This is symbolic language. It is a practical truth that He sits at the right hand of God. He is not absorbed in the Divine, as Buddhism teaches. His personality is distinct from the Father to teach us that we will be distinct from God in our various personalities. As Bishop Westcott says "we will pass into another sphere of existence."

This is a great comfort to a dying man whose thoughts are on sins of omission and commission. He will be judged before God, but the God is the God Man, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, Who is not ashamed to call us brethren, and understands the stress and strain of temptation.

In these trying times let us remember that God is above and in all of us; that our manhood has been taken up into the God Head; that we are all partakers of His Divine Nature. God will never leave us or forsake us.

THE LORD JESUS SAITH: I WILL NEVER LEAVE THEE NOR FORSAKE THEE: MY PRESENCE SHALL GO WITH THEE.

NOVELTY SHOE REPAIR

SHOE SHINES

THOUSANDS OF DUCKS on Lake St. Peter, about 65 miles east of Montreal, will soon get a mass "ducking" in a last minute effort to help them continue their flight to the sunny south. Trapped by a heavy coating of oil and bilge water pumped from the tanks of a stranded fogbound freighter last week, the ducks have been unable to rise from the water. Their oil-soaked wings have made it almost impossible for them to move.

Cobourg Chemical Expert Offers To Save Wild Ducks

COBOURG, Nov. 6—(CP).—An official of a Cobourg chemical company Friday night offered to help in the dry-cleaning of 7,000 wild ducks bogged down in the St. Lawrence River by oil-soaked wings.

T. C. Jones said his company (Skelta Chemical) manufactures a cleansing agent which he said had proved successful on dogs and cats. He offered to send free all the cleanser needed by officials of the Quebec Department of Mines and Resources seeking to save the ducks trapped 65 miles east of Montreal.

Mr. Jones said the cleanser, which has a chemical base, is mixed with water and applied. He thought it might be possible to make a pool large enough for the ducks to swim in and cleanse themselves.

7,000 Affected

MONTREAL, Nov. 6—(CP)—Thousands of wild ducks, stranded and bogged down on their southward flight because of oil-soaked wings, became the objective Friday in a mass dry-cleaning job.

The ducks, estimated at more than 7,000, were trapped last week by oil and bilge water pumped from fog-bound freighters in the Lake St. Peter section of the St. Lawrence River.

Sole remaining hope for the birds appeared to rest on the efficacy of a solvent agent newly developed in the United States, supplied by the Audubon Society of New York.

Experiments on five of the ducks, brought to McGill University Thursday night, proved fruitless. Zoological and museum authorities bathed the birds and washed their wings in various chemical solutions, benzine and special soap-and-water solutions.

Not enough of the oily slime could be removed from the feathers and the birds had to be destroyed.

Friday officials of the Department of Mines and Resources, headed by Dr. Oliver Hewitt, one of the best-known bird specialists in Canada, set out for Lake St. Peter, 65 miles east of Montreal.

The party was accompanied by members of the Quebec Fish and Game Association.

Dr. Hewitt said he hopes to bring the ducks to shore by use of huge nets and then start the long task of cleaning them. If the new preparation is ineffective, the ducks will die, thousands of them.

"Many of them are so far gone they are beyond the cleaning stage," he said.

Scorched Timber To Be Salvaged

"We have approximately 200,000,000 feet of white and red pine that was damaged by fires in the northern area of the province this year," Hon. H. R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, said at the Federation of Agriculture dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel Wednesday night.

"A great deal of it has been only slightly damaged. We are faced with the problem of removing this timber to prevent insects from getting into it. It should be in the water by July 1 next. We have let contracts for the harvest of this timber. More than 1,000 men are now in the woods, and we expect to have 4,000 working there by the end of the year. This is the first time in the history of government that this large scale operation has been adopted to protect and conserve our timber resources."

Mr. Scott said he was now in the lumber business "bigger than ever," in reference to his retirement from the commercial phase of the business in Peterborough when he was appointed Minister.

Two Minor Crashes Reported Friday

There were two minor car accidents on city streets on Friday afternoon.

Gordon H. Smith, Bethany, driving west on Sherbrooke St. shortly before 3 p.m. was in collision with a car driven by George W. Hubbel, Havelock, at George and Sherbrooke Sts.

The left front fender of the truck and the right front fender and grill of the car were slightly damaged.

P.C. Howard Mesley investigated.

A total of $30 damage was caused to both vehicles when cars driven by Robert Peltz, 53 Victoria Ave., and Herbert McKay, RR 1 Indian River, were in collision at Lock and Lansdowne Sts.

The Peltz car was being driven north on Lock St. As a result of the collision the latter was spun around twice.

Damage was estimated at $15 to each vehicle. P.C. Howard Mesley investigated.

Hydro Blackout Blamed Stove Explodes

Hydro blackout was blamed for an explosion and fire at the home of Harold Hopkins, Strickland St., Lakefield on Friday afternoon.

Because the power was shut off during the afternoon, Mrs. Hopkins was using a gasoline stove to heat a kettle of water. She went to the next door neighbor for a few minutes, and suddenly the house was rocked by an explosion. It was discovered that the stove had blown up, hurling the door off the kitchen, tearing a hole in the ceiling, and setting the interior afire.

Mrs. Hopkins, a war bride who helped her husband to build the home, was also a fire warden overseas, and in a very few minutes she had the garden hose playing on the blaze. She had the fire under control by the time the Lakefield fire trucks arrived.

Chief Allan Clarke said damage was extensive because the kitchen had received a thorough scorching, but he would not put an estimate on the loss. He paid warm tribute to the prompt action of Mrs. Hopkins, and said she had the fire almost out when they arrived.

ALD. MAX J. SWANSTON said today that he would be a candidate for Mayor in the municipal elections. He has been a member of the council eight years, the last three as chairman of the finance committee.

Ald. Swanston Decides To Seek Mayoralty

Ald. Max J. Swanston informed The Examiner today that he had decided to enter the mayoralty field in the municipal elections.

"Since Mayor Ovens announced some weeks ago that he was retiring at the end of this year and would not seek re-election, I have been thinking about what I should do, because my term as alderman is running out, too," Ald. Swanston said.

"Citizens have been telling me that I should make an early decision, and as I am taking this next week off to go hunting, I felt that I should not wait until I got back. So, I wish to say that I am offering myself as a mayoralty candidate, hoping that the electors will look favorably on my service as a member of the city council."

Ald. Swanston has been eight years an alderman. During the last three years under Mayor Ovens he has been chairman of the finance committee. Previously he was chairman of the board of works one year, manufacturers committee one year, and property committee three years.

"I would like to say that I appreciate the confidence the ratepayers have placed in me in my four aldermanic elections," Ald. Swanston said. "It has been an experience that I am glad to have had, a real education in municipal administration. I like to mention also the friendly relations that have existed in the council during those eight years, first under James Hamilton as mayor, and these three last years with Mayor Ovens. Our associations in the council have been pleasant, and if I should happen to be mayor next year I would do my best to continue that spirit of harmony. I know it is a great help in carrying on the business of the city. Working with Mayor Ovens has been most agreeable, and I am sure every member of the council will agree with me. He has been so attentive to all the affairs that came before him as mayor that it will not be an easy matter for his successor, whoever he may be."

More Hunters Than Ever Survey Reveals

Deer hunters in the hundreds headed north today, into Victoria, Haliburton, Hastings and Peterborough for the annual hunt which opens Monday, Nov. 8.

From early morning, the restaurants were doing a rushing business as Americans and hunters from various parts of the province stopped off for a meal. Red jackets and red caps were very noticeable along the main street, and the parade will continue until late into Sunday night.

Hardware store managers report sale of deer licenses are reaching a new high, and the number of non-resident licenses is at least as great as in former years. It costs a resident hunter $4 for a license, and a non-resident pays $15.50.

Fitzgerald, Gordon Hancock, Harold Rehill, W. J. Garner, Charles Huffman, George Nicholls, Campbellford, and Bob McClellan.

Cochrane Hunt Club, operates from Cochrane's on the west shore of Ketchecum lake, and this group consists of Jim Wharry, Claire Collins, Herb Bradburn, Leonard Lawrence, John Currelly, John McColl, Gerald Wood, A. A party from Port Dover passed through this morning and they will hunt near McArthur's Mills, near Bancroft. The group included George, John and Tony Verhoeven, N. McBride, Sid McBride, Alex Leitch, Roy Wells, and Leslie Wells.

The Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club, oldest hunt organization in the district, also leaves today. This party has commodious hunt quarters on the northeast shore of Ketchecum Lake.

Another party which hunts north of Point au Baril includes Jim Geraghty, Joseph McGillen and Steve Elliott of Peterborough, along with four Americans. Buck Freeman is going along as cook, claiming that hunting is too tough a pastime.

It was given three readings to comply with a time requirement prior to the municipal elections.

Hatcherymen Interview Utilities Mgr.

Effect of the Hydro-Electric power cuts on hatchery operations was discussed with Ross L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, by district hatcherymen in the office of the Department of Agriculture Wednesday night.

Attendance of producers was broadly representative of the industry in this area. It was decided that the Utilities Commission and Hydro-Electric Power Commission be informed of suggested times and length of periods of power interruption that would be likely to cause least loss to the hatchery interests. It was felt that these protests would not defeat the primary object of the power authorities, the saving of electricity.

The question of current hatchery costs was also discussed. A report of this phase of the meeting was: "We believe the local hatcheries, knowing the obstacles under which their customers have been operating until recently due to the high feed costs compared with the price of eggs, are about the only industry in the district that has not made several and sometimes drastic increases in the price of their product since prewar days.

While practically all the hatcheries in the district are operating under government - sponsored hatchery approval, the local chick compares favorably in price and quality with any other hatched elsewhere in Canada. It was felt that due to higher operating costs of labor, equipment, hatching eggs, etc., local hatcheries would be forced to bring their 1948 chick prices more in line with those charged for a similar standard chick produced elsewhere. While this opinion seemed to be the unanimous feeling of all present, any action taken was left to the judgment of the individual hatcherymen."

PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

2 Big Factors In Choosing Heating Plant

Selection of heating equipment for a new house or for modernization of an old one requires careful consideration of two important factors—original cost and operating costs. Very often the cheapest heating system from the standpoint of original first cost will be the most expensive to operate.

Various types of hot water systems for transmitting heat are in use today, including hot water, steam, vapor and vacuum. The hot water system, as the name implies, relies on circulating water for transmitting heat. In the case of all other radiator systems, steam is the medium.

While hot water was formerly always circulated by gravity, the modern system may incorporate a small, inexpensively operated electric pump to speed up the flow. The advantage of this appliance is obvious when the thermostat calls for heat, the pump starts and almost immediately all radiators begin to warm the rooms . . . not merely the radiator nearest the boiler. Flexibility of hot water heating lies in the fact that water can be circulated between 75 and 240 degrees, with simple equipment.

The steam system uses steam to carry the heat from boiler to radiators. Piping and radiators are smaller than those used in a hot water system. The vapor system is a modification of the steam system. It is an air tight two pipe system, one pipe carrying the vapor to the radiators, the other pipe returning the condensation to the boiler. Radiators are equipped with vacuum type vent-valves so that once air is vented from the system and the vapor starts to condense a vacuum is created within the system.

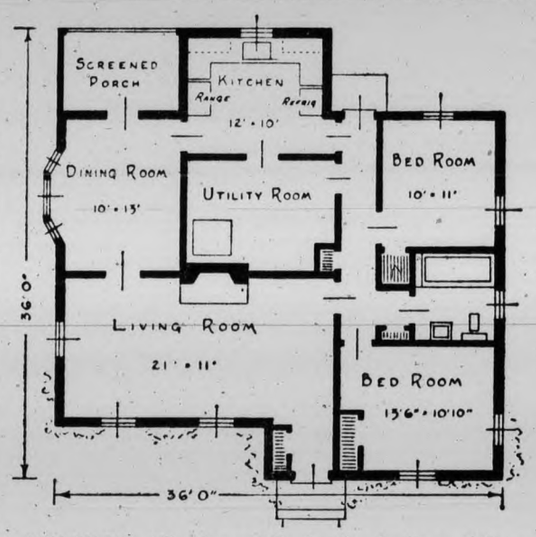
Hot Air Systems

The warm air heating plant consists basically of a fire-pot or combustion chamber in which fuel is burned, around which a hollow shell or jacket through which air circulates, becomes heated by contact with the hot surface of the fire-pot and rises as all warm air will through ducts or pipes opening into rooms of the house.

Just as the circulation of hot water has been speeded up through mechanical circulation, so can the circulation of warm air be mechanized by the use of a fan operated by a motor. Use of a blower permits a reduction in size of ducts.

Radiant Heating

Heating a home by means of pipe coils imbedded in the floors, walls or ceilings is called radiant heating. Coils may be of steel pipe, copper tubing or wrought iron pipe . the heating medium steam or hot water. A conventional type room thermostat actuates either a pump in the case of hot water or a motor operated valve in the case of steam. Early planning is imperative for radiant heating because of construction work involved for installation.



Stoker firing does away with manual labor and in addition makes possible better utilization of fuel dollars. Stokers burn smaller and cheaper sizes of coal, and through scientific firing affects further savings.

There are two types of stokers . . hopper and bin. The former consists of a hopper with a space for about 15 hours coal supply, fan for properly apportioned draft, screw conveyor from hopper to fire-box, and a small motor for power. Bin-type stokers are almost identical with the exception that a screw conveyor runs directly from coal bin to fire-box, eliminating even the need for manual filling of the hopper.

If your heating plan is to be automatic, by all means insist on a thermostat made by a reliable manufacturer. A good thermostat will maintain an even predetermined temperature throughout the house providing the heating system is properly balanced. Tests over a period of years prove that a clock thermostat that will reduce night temperatures properly, and start it up again in the morning, will save as much as 15 per cent of the fuel fill during a normal heating season.

The knowledge and skill of your heating contractor is a priceless ingredient in any heating installation. Impartial as between different types of systems, he is in a position to advise and guide ment to meet varying conditions the owner in his choice of equip-

HOUSE NO. 450—It would be hard to find a small house with more agreeable features than this one. Not only is the exterior charming from every angle, but its plan is equally intriguing. There is a tiny vestibule with coat closet, a spacious living room with open fireplace, a dining room with a wide bay window, a topnotch "U" shaped kitchen, and two bedrooms and bathroom quite separate from living area of the house. And we shouldn't overlook the splendid screened porch off the dining room. The house has no basement. Heating unit is in the utility room. Outside walls are of clapboard painted white. Roof and shutters are green, and the front steps and walk are of red concrete. For further details write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St. Toronto.

Sturges Uses 11 Rules For Film Appeal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (AP). — What's funny in the movies?

You might answer "nothing." But the question is not directed at you. I'm asking Preston Sturges, a man who gives the impression of being slightly mad as he directs and writes very funny and very successful movies ("The Great McGinty," "Miracle of Morgan's Creek," and such).

"I don't know what's funny," Sturges answers indignantly. "When a humorist tries to analyze humor, he ceases to be a humorist."

Sturges has some rules for box-office appeal, and I think you'll find they give interesting insight for films:

A pretty girl is better than an ugly one.

A leg is better than an arm.

A bedroom is better than a living room.

An arrival is better than a departure.

A birth is better than a death.

A chase is better than a chat.

A dog is better than a landscape.

A kitten is better than a dog.

A baby is better than a kitten.

A kiss is better than a baby.

A prat fall is better than anything.

Sturges will demonstrate just about all these axioms in his current film, "The Beautiful Blonde From Bashful Bend." The last truism will be well illustrated. Betty Grable will be seen in one of the most glamorous prat falls of all time.

No Excuses!

Recently I wrote a column reporting the facts of Hollywood's depression. Many movie minds protest that such news is bad publicity, fearing the public will think film quality will grow poorer because of economy. Come, come boys.

"It Happened One Night," "The Informer," "Stagecoach," and others, cost comparatively little. Few bloated epics of the war boom could hold a candle to them.

No, it's not the money that makes a movie good. It's the talent.

BRIDGE TROUBLE—This is what happened when a load proved too heavy for a light steel bridge. The bridge over Porter Hill stream at The Lodge, near St. Stephen, N.B., collapsed just as a truck pullling a bulldozer on a trailer reached firm ground on the right. Trailer and bulldozer plunged to the dry bed of the tidal stream. The driver of the truck was unhurt.

Only Two Centres Report Under Quota

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP).— Two of eight Southern Ontario municipalities for which figures are available Thursday stayed under their quotas of hydro electric power. They were Wood stock and Kitchener.

Over—Brantford 9,000, Belleville 2,967, Owen Sound 5,578, Peterborough 300, Stratford 2,000, Kingston 4,220.

Called Wrong Number

PRINCETON, N.J., Nov. 6 — (AP). — The main reason the polltakers went wrong in the United States election was their failure to predict accurately the number who would vote, Dr. Hadley Cantril of Princeton University said Friday. He defended the polls and said the difficulty of predicting the total vote will some day be solved by science.

Council Plans To Revise Building Bylaw

Study of Peterborough's building by-law and its plumbing regulations was referred to a special committee by the finance committee of the council Thursday night.

The sub-committee members are: Ald. Doug Miller, chairman, Aldermen Sands, Dodds and Raine, City Engineer A. E. Chalmers and Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral. The motion by Ald. Waddell was seconded by Ald. Anglesey.

In proposing revision of the building bylaw, Ald. Doug Miller said construction costs were higher in Peterborough than in many other cities because building requirements were stricter, and particularly in the plumbing standards.

He proposed that City Engineer Chalmers be authorized to engage some person to look into the national building code and consider the city's bylaw in the possibility and advisability of making certain amendments for the benefit of citizens wishing to build for themselves.

"Mr. Chalmers has been working on this matter for some time," said Ald. H. Dodds, chairman of the board of works, "but he is overloaded with work and he can't get around to this question as he would like to. He has a big job trying to get caught up with maintenance."

Ald. Gordon Armstrong said the national building cole, which was drafted for Canada as a whole, might require detailed specifications to suit the climate and the practice in this area.

Mayor Ovens recalled that the council had spent a great deal of time on the building bylaw "and all the rough work has been done, but we can't expect the city engineer to draft a new bylaw now."

Central Mortgage and Housing corporation are permitted to build according to the national code," said Ald. Miller, "but private builders and contractors are forced to follow the city's building by-law. I don't think that is fair."

Ald. Swanston said the council could ask Mr. Chalmers and Mr. Metheral for their ideas of any changes which might be made, and the board of works could take up the whole matter at its next meeting.

Ald. Waddell's motion took shape out of this discussion, and the special committee was appointed.

Urge Women Take Part in Civic Life

CALGARY, Nov. 6—(CP)—Roman Catholic women should be prepared to take an active part in civic and political affairs, Most Rev. J. C. Cody of London, Ont., told delegates attending the 28th anual convention of the Roman Catholic Women's League in Canada.

More than 150 delegates met for final business sessions and to elect a new slate of officers today. A series of devotional services are scheduled tomorrow and the six-day convention will end Monday.

Bishop Cody, whose appointment as the new national director of the league was announced Friday night, reminded the delegates that Pope Pius 12 had said it would become a mortal sin for citziens not to vote.

In an address following announcement of his new appointment succeeding Most Rev. William M Duke, Archbishop of Vancouver, Bishop Cody urged Roman Catholic women to study the rules of government in civic, provincial and federal spheres.

Roman Catholics should be prepared to take their place on boards, welfare bureaus, political bodies and thus combat secularism. The Bishop warned that women should not sacrifice the home for politics. Those who "serve their country must be women who are willing to sacrifice their time of pleasure for this service."

Chapleau School Described to WA

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Miss Margaret Reid, who has spent four years on the staff at the Anglican residental school, at Chapleau, gave an interesting resume of the work carried on there at the thank-offering meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church.

Handcraft work done by the chidlren was exhibited, sewing by the girls and woodwork by the boys. A number of pictures were shown of the school and the students. Salaries at this school compared favorably with those paid at other schools and the speaker said the work is very worthwhile as when working with the children one had the opportunity of guiding their religious education. Mrs. S. White introduced the speaker.

Canada is Unable to Get Best From Her Artists

Clarification of the purpose of the Canadian Arts Council and encouragement in the assurance that something is being done to better the position of Canadian artists was given here Friday by Mrs. Erma Lennox Sutcliffe of Toronto, a council member. Addressing the Women's Art Association in the YWCA she said "Art is an excellent hobby and almost everyone should have a hand in it. But, do you realize that almost no artist in this country makes a living in the profession." She could name only two who do not have day-to-day jobs with which to earn bread and butter, and use any free time for painting, sculpture, etc. "We cannot expect the best from them under these circumstances and we do not get the best from them."

The Board set up by the Council delegates will endeavor to have the situation remedied to the extent that Canadians can make their art a full time profession.

History leading to the forming of the Canadian Arts Council three years ago commenced in 1941 when a conference of all masters of the visual arts was called and about 500 gathered at Queen's University, Kingston. Several leading artists from the United States were present for an inspirational lead. Their main thought was to find a way of getting good works into the homes of the average person and have them realize their value as much as much as the connoisseur. They also desired to become more developed themselves and discussed means of bringing this about.

Out of this meeting came the continuing organization, the Federation of Canadian Artists. "This is the only body which is really pressing for development of Canadian Art today," Mrs. Sutcliffe said. A decision was made to present a survey to the government of what was needed and the 16 organizations of this type in Canada wrote out their views, and the brief was read in Ottawa in 1944. Result was the mention of a ten million dollar fund to be set aside for this purpose, but the matter has never been brought up on the floor of the House of Commons, in fact, it would appear that nothing further has been done.

The Canadian Artists' Council is a purely organizational set-up with five delegates from the 16 national bodies belonging. Membership in the Federation now includes singers, dancers, musicians, handicraft workers, architects and the lay public who may be teachers or just interested in arts, as well as painters and sculptors. Council representatives are chosen to include some from each group and the meeting is the only time that such varied artistic interests are brought together.

Particular interest in the work of community centres is shown by the Council and it hopes to have some say in how they should look inside and out too. It wants them to be open morning till night to accomodate the entire family.

One thing the Council has done is to point out to the government that there are many highly developed people being wasted in this country, and that it was a mistake to choose an outsider to design the Canadian flag and a new Canadian stamp. It plans to enforce the Artists Copyright Act for protection of Canadians. When the Canadian Appeal for Children was announced last year, some of the best paintings available were donated and sold, raising 18 thousand dollars. In the activities of community centres, it suggests that people in the community should write the plays to be produced and take interest in developing their crafts. "Recreation directors are being urged to realize people can be interested in culture even if they come from the slums," the speaker said.

Mrs. Sutcliffe was introduced and thanked by the president, Mrs. N. D. Seaton.

Announcement was made of the annual meeting of the Lyceum Club, Women's Art Association in Toronto on Wednesday, November 10, and a report from Peterborough branch will be presented.

Weaving classes under direction of Miss Nan Scott are to be started in the Dixon House Community Centre in January, with a possibility of evening classes also. The regular silver collection toward boxes for Britain was taken and Christmas boxes will be forwarded this week. In this connection, the president read a letter of thanks from Mr. Alex Redshaw who was adjudicator at the Kiwanis Music Festival early this year. A parcel was sent to his mother in England last month.

DR. JOACHIM-BERNARD BRONNY, a polish doctor, was sponsored by a committee from the village of Fairchild, Wis., population 650, which has not had a doctor in 10 years. His admission to the U.S. was arranged by the committee. Now it develops that the Wisconsin state law says clearly that it is against the policy of the state to "allow doctors who are graduates of foreign universities to practise in the state." Latest reports are that village is prepared to put the doctor through a U.S. college so that he can qualify. In the meantime, he is going on to Fairchild with his wife and child to take up residence.

Of Interest to Women

DAVID NIVEN (right) who plays the title role in the motion picture, "Bonnie Prince Charlie," and HRH the Duke of Edinburgh, have a private joke at a private party following premiere of the film at a London theatre.

DOROTHY DIX

Women's Greatest Fault Is Said to be Jealousy

What is the greatest fault of women? Jealousy. When you analyze the trouble of women, you almost invariably find that jealousy is at the bottom of them. It begins with sex jealousy, of course, for the average woman thinks that she has a monopoly on any man she fancies, and that he is a double-dyed criminal if he so much as glances at another petticoat.

Dorothy Dix

Apparently women never think of man as just a human being who enjoys looking at a pretty girl, talking to a clever one or renewing a friendship with a girl he went to school with but who has no nearious designs upon her. And certainly when a man gets engaged to a girl, or marries her, he never dreams that she thinks that she has bought him, body and soul.

But it happens. And to this column come a never-ending stream of tear-sodden letters from girls who write that their hearts are broken and that they never will know a happy moment again because they saw their fiances talking to another girl. Or because their Tom, Dick or Harry just kept looking at a pretty blonde. Or because their Boy Friends took another girl home from a party. These simple acts of courtesy the girls regard as deadly insults and proof that their Boy Friends are trifling with them, instead of naming the wedding day.

Weeping Woman

We hear a great deal about unhappy marriages, and all of us have women friends who weep on our shoulders while they sob out a story of how they are neglected by their spouses, though the poor husbands may have committed no greater offense than having read the newspaper instead of talking to them.

But when you come down to brass tacks, what most of these disgruntled wives are suffering from is just a bad case of jealousy. They can't bear it that their husbands have any interests outside of them, and that makes them blind and dumb to the fact that the quickest and surest way of losing a husband is by keeping too tight a rein on him.

Another class of women who suffer untold tortures of jealousy are mothers who run their own and their children's lives by their fierce determination to be first with their youngsters. They teach the babes in the cradle that only Mother loves them. They refuse to let the father have anything to do with rearing the children.

They will not let their adolescent boys and girls have any of the pleasures and liberties that belong to their age. And when their adults children defy them and marry, they start a campaign of fault-finding against the unfortunate bride or bridegroom. If it were not for mothers' jealousy, there would be no mother-in-law problem.

Another pitiful illustration of the unhappiness that women bring upon themselves by their jealousy is that it turns the milk of human kindness in them into clabber. We see women who have comfortable homes, who have devoted husbands and nice children—all the basic materials that go into the making of a happy life—who spoil it all by their envy of others. They are so sick with jealousy that it kills everything that is worth having in life.

What a pity!

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 7

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of a difficult and unhappy state of affairs, in which a personal trend of irritability, a sharp tongue or other expression of sharp, sensitive or injured feelings is forecast. Such impulses may incite to disagreeable conduct, with very regrettable reactions on domestic peace, on the physical condition of self and all contacted. A sarcastic and irresponsible state of mind may be attributable to stressed nervous tension. Seek relaxation, diversion.

Those whose birthday it is, may be the means of their own undoing, largely through the stress and strain of a nervous or bodily condition. This inciting to hasty, sharp, reckless and sarcatic words and acts, with unhappy and unprofitable reaction on all relations, business and private. Hasty changes, mistakes of judgment, false and curious imaginings, could bring about loss of funds, position and security, with litigation and much anxiety and disruption.

A child born on this day may be disposed to turbulent and temperamental conduct, with errors of judgment, disastrous moves and unhappy reactions on its own and family peace of mind and well being.

For Monday, November 8

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and exciting day in which a proclivity for rushing headlong into strange, curious or inexplicable ventures may be due to overwhelming feelings and emotions. Day dreams, fancies, unrealistic visions or drives may set aside all plans for practical and constructive efforts. Although ideas may be workable if soundly and energetically developed, such peculiar tactics forfeit aid from higher-ups or friends.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are confronted by a singular state of affairs, in which sound and objective ideas and abilities may be defeated by the more insistent urges to dream, indulge in curious fancies, or by the over-weaning urge to indulge in romantic, fantastic and impractical feelings or ambitions. This may be the means of forfeiting cooperation of needful support of superiors, who might be interested in workable propositions, even though moody or bizarre. Translating the subjective into the objective might prove spectacular, dramatic, profitable.

A child born on this day, although naturally introspective and a day dreamer, impelled by emotions and moods, could as well prove to have practical and progressive objectives and ideas, if regulated, co-ordinated.

Cattle Jammed In Truck; Two Pay Fines

After pleas of guilty on both charges, Leonard Gulick of Palmer's Rapids, was Friday fined a total of $30 by Magistrate Philp for overloading his truck and for causing unnecessary cruelty to cattle.

PC William Scott said he saw Gulick's truck on the afternoon of Oct. 23 being driven down Water St. with the leg of an animal protuding. When he stopped the accused on Clonsilla Ave. he examined the truck and found 14 head of cattle—four of them calves which were under the feet of the others. And one of the calves was a cripple, he said.

When the truck was brought back and weighed on the market scales, PC Scott said it registered about 1,600 pounds overweight.

Gulick admitted the overweight charge but said he was pleading guilty to the other because his wife was in hospital and he had no money for a lawyer.

He was fined $10 and costs for the overloading, and $15 and costs for the charge of causing "unnecessary suffering" which was laid on the complaint of Gerald Dunford, Humane Society inspector. Magistrate Philp ruled that half of the latter fine was to be turned over to the Society.

Newfoundland Strike A Disaster; Gander To Close

By C. E. A. JEFFREY

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 6 — (CP). — The Newfoundland rail strike, going through its 25th day today with no sign of a break, has hit at almost every phase of the island's life.

The Evening Telegram said Thursday that a national disaster is threatened by strangulation of the sole artery of transportation.

The big Gander airport probably will be forced to close down next week becaus eof a shortage of fuel. The 10 airlines operating trans-Atlantic flights through Gander—as many as 1,700 flights a month—will be forced to move to Sydney, N.S., and Moncton, N.B.

Crops in the west coast agricultural area are starting to spoil because they cannot be shipped and there is little storage space.

The mails are being seriously delayed.

Needed imports are piling up a tSydney, N.S., and other Canadian ports.

Pulpwood shipments are piling up at Sydney, N.S., and other Canadian ports.

Pulpwood shipments to mills are at a standstill.

Shipments of copper, lead and zinc ores from Buchans in Central Newfoundland have stopped.

The number of unemployed is increasing along the St. John's waterfront.

While the Government in some quarters is supported for opposing the 2,500 workers' demands for a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase, there is a growing general feeling tha tthe situation must end.

Court Reduces Assessments On Four Claims

Only one appeal remains undecided as a result of a lengthy session of the Court of Revision on Thursday night.

Nathan Fine, Toronto, who was represented by Alex Elliott, KC, appealed against a boost of $3,035 in assessment on the proerty at 440½ George St. and the ground and second floors of 141 Brock St. And he also appealed a $200 increase in assessment on the second and third floors over 440-400½ George St.

Mr. Fine contended that improvements at 440½ amounted to $700 maximum while there had been no improvements at all to the second and third floors.

Mr. Elliott criticized the assessment notice and said there had been duplication in taxation both last year and this.

The court decided to reduce his assessment a total of $745—$220 on the second and third floor flats on George St.; $125 on the most northerly store now occupied by Downeyflake; $290 on the Brock St. downstair premises now occupied by Peterborouh Paint and Glass, and $110 upstairs.

Mrs. A. Cameron's assessment on a store and apartment at 137 Benson Avt. was confirmed at a total of $4,150.

The building assessment of L. Peter Dominik, 170 Hunter St., at 165 Princess St. was reduced from $2,870 to $2,800.

Frederick S. Minns, Toronto, received a reduction of $590 on his two-storey, brick veneer on 484 Weller St., leaving him with a total assessment of $18,910.

The appeal of R. Bert Jackson, 15 Cameron St. for a reduction on his two-storyed, brick veneer house and property was turned down. He was assessed a total of $2,345.

William K. Meagher, 85 Crescent St., said that his property was boosted each year despite the fact that there were no improvements. After checking on comparable assessment the court reduced the total $100 to $2,700.

Peterborough Centre Theatre asked that the assessments of the theatre and the store to the south be listed separately. The premises at 344 George St. has been rented instead of being made into part of the theatre as it was first believed.

The court lopped $50 off an extra $275 which Roy B. Pitchford, 189 Hunter St., was being assessed on his two-storey seven-room home. The total is now $2,350.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

POINTS WORTH SAVING

FEW PEOPLE ever think that being a lightning calculator is of value to a bridge player. But it surely is, in many situations. To take one, suppose you have learned enough about your partner's hand to make you feel sure there is a grand slam in the cards, and you are ready to bid it. Right at that stage, with the last bid of your side at 5-No Trumps, suppose one of the defenders tries to have some innocent fun by doubling you. Are you going to redouble, in fury at his temerity, or will you go ahead and bid the grand slam in spite of him? Figure out which pays better.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2♣	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♥	Pass
5 NT	Dbl	Pass	Pass
Rdbl

As soon as South heard North's Blackwood response of 5-Hearts to show two aces, he could count thirteen positive tricks at No Trumps, with seven in clubs, three in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds. He was ready to bid the grand slam at once in either clubs or No Trumps, preferably the suit because of the honors. But he decided to have some fun first, like a cat playing with a mouse, and so bid 5-No Trumps to temporize.

When West doubled that, he too sounded as if he were just having some fun, as he clearly expected a grand slam now to be bid. South decided he would stand for no such tomfoolery, so redoubled instead of bidding the big slam. South naturally took all thirteen tricks, and chortled until West showed how he had put one over.

West was not fooling when he doubled that. He knew his scoring, and by his act tricked South out of 250 points. Making the 5-No Trumps redoubled counted 640, two extra tricks at 400 each added 800 and 50 for making contract brought the total to 1,490. South, however, by bidding the grand slam in clubs, could have made 1,500 slam bonus plus 140 for tricks, plus 100 for honors, a total of 1,740. Of course the value of the game was not altered in either case.

If such a decision as South's confronts you, please stop and figure out the relative scores before making your verdict.

Your Week-End Question

If your partner bid hearts first, then diamonds, next rebids his diamonds and after that rebids the hearts, what has he told you about his suit-lengths?

Dead Three Days Woman's Body Found In Home

COBOURG, Nov. 7—(ENS)—Apparently dead since Tuesday night, the body of Mrs. Garvin Waters was found in her bed in her Church St. apartment on Friday afternoon. Police think she died of natural causes but an autopsy will be performed today by Dr. J. B. McKay of Belleville, pathologist.

Mrs. Walters was seen doing her shopping on Tuesday and at that time her condition was to all appearances normal. She was known to remain in her apartment where she lived alone, for a day or two at a time but she usually picked up her mail at her apartment door. When her mail and newspapers were not collected during the past three days, other tenants in the apartment building became alarmed and notified Mr. and Mrs. David Dick, friends of the deceased, who investigated and found Mrs. Waters dead in bed. Chief W. J. Carey was called and made an investigation.

Another point which aroused some apprehension on the part of others in the building was the fact that the kitchen light in her apartment had been left on for the past three days. Mrs. Waters was lying in bed with her night clothing on. The telephone set was lying on her bed, receiver in place and her bedroom was in order.

She is survived by two sons, Lieut. John Waters on the east coast and Lieut. B. M. Waters, on the west coast, both in the RCN.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Auction Sale Of O.O.F. Herefords Saturday, Nov. 13 Outstanding Rural Event Here Next Week—Poultry Producers of District Report Foxes Serious Menace—Second Farm Radio Forum Broadcast Monday, Nov. 8 At 8:30 p.m.

The first auction sale of Old Orchard Herefords Saturday November 13 is the most interesting agricultural event of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Jr., are offering females, that trace directly to the celebrated Wyoming Hereford Ranch In the number and quality of these animals it can safely be said that this is the most important sale in the beef breed that has ever taken place in this part of Ontario.

Farmers interested in beef cattle and particularly in Herefords, those who may be thinking of herd foundation, should get a copy of the sale catalogue. This attractive booklet provides complete information of each animals in the sale, with a half page photograph in each instance, and with further reference details to the major sires at Old Orchard Farms.

Most of the animals that are being offered to the public have been bred by Mr. Stuart. Of the few exceptions three are polled Herefords owned by Mrs. Stuart. Apart from these exceptions, also, they bear the new family name of Old Orchard.

It is expected that this sale will attract American and western Canadian breeders, especially those who are coming to the Royal Winter Fair during the week immediately following the sale. Exhibitors at the Royal are required to have their cattle in the barns at Toronto on Monday Nov. 15, and it is altogether likely that many of them will come on to Peterborough.

District farmers know in a general way the story of the foundation of Old Orchard Herefords at the Stuart place east of the Lift Lock. The breeding plan behind it is mentioned in the catalogue, and is worth repeating.

✦ ✦ ✦

BOUGHT THE BEST

"When Old Orchard Farms founded its Hereford herd, we felt that the best seed stock was what we should try to obtain. In our judgment one of the best places to go was Wyoming Hereford Ranch. We have since become so convinced that we were right that we have stuck solidly to their blood lines and herd sires. The demand for our cattle, our show ring performances as well as the ever increasing popularity of Old Orchard cattle have confirmed our judgment.

We have followed the constructive, productive breeding practices of the large famous ranch where our foundation came from. You will note the large number of Register of Merit herd sires represented in our pedigrees."

Th reference to WHR Monarch 60th, calved Sept. 16, 1940, one of the sires that is being retained by Mr. Stuart, is as follows: "The 60th's Get of Sire has been first at all major shows since the war, and had the distinction of winning 1st at the 1946 Royal Winter Fair, and 1st and 3rd at the 1947 Royal. A son, O. O. (Old Orchard) Monarch 13th was champion at 1946 Royal, a daughter "O. O. Starlette 2nd" was champion at 1946 Royal, and 1947 C. N. E. His daughter O. O. Dorothy 2nd was reserve champion 1946 C. N. E., and champion at 1947 Royal. She also won 1st place in the National Western at Denver 1948, beating the heifer that was champion at Kansas City and San Francisco. His daughter O. O. Shirley 2nd was reserve champion at 1947 Royal and 3rd at Denver."

The sires that are included in the catalogue only for reference are WHR Proud Mixer 12th, W. H. R. Monarch 60th, O. O. Monarch 24th and O. O. Arthur.

The Hereford bulls for auction are: O. O. Proud Mixer 3rd, O. O. Proud Mixer 8th, O. O. Proud Mixer 9th, O. O. Cavalier, a year old bred by Elmac Hills Ranch, Gaylord, Mich., a son of W. H. R. Cavalier; O. O. Axtell bred by Stoney Acres Farm, South Lynn, Mass., whose WHR lines is found on the maternal side: Also, O. O. Proud Mixer 12th; O. O. Proud Mixer 11th and O. O. Proud Mixer 10th.

Many of the Old Orchard heifers are in calf. Catalogue notations refer to some of the exceptional features of individual record.

For example, lot No. 10, is O. O. Hazel Girl, born Sept. 4, 1946, by John Stuart, Jr., was member of the 1947 and 1948 show herd. Won her class at the 1947 Royal Winter Fair as senior calf, and was only defeated for reserve grand championship by her half sisters. She is in calf to O. O. Monarch 24th, July 27, 1948. Her sire is WHR Monarch 60th and dam WHR Hazel.

Lot 21, O. O. Judith 2nd, born April 24th 1946, bred by John Stuart, Jr. She has a full brother that is herd sire for E. L. Sunderland, Quill Lake, Sask., indicating the transfer of Old Orchard offspring into the Canadian west. This heifer is bred to O. O. Proud Mixer 3rd.

Those are a few samples of the particular information set out in the catalogue.

The chief fact in this auction is that John Stuart has established in Peterborough one of the outstanding Hereford herds on this continent, and has accumulated many junior animals which he can offer for sale without affecting his breeding plans. The sale begins at 1 p. m.

✦ ✦ ✦

JUNIORS' NEW YEAR

Retirement of Don Milburn as president of the Junior Farmers Friday night invites approving comment on his active leadership and example. His experience has equipped him with confidence in facing and speaking to an assembly of youth and adults. Other officers and members have made similar gains in self-development through the affairs of their association. The development includes awareness of the right thing in the right place, the sensible approach combined with unembarrassed thinking. This is one of the intangibles that fits them for the place of which their elders have been frequently reminding them, the place of succession to their parents, especially in their communities.

The new Junior president, Ron Frankish, assumes the responsibility of leadership, and that means, in part, getting expression in word and act from his associates. They have an important place in the county, preparing themselves for the opportunities that inevitably await them. Perhaps they cannot see it now, or visualize it, and possibly they may not recognize it when some day they have already attained that place.

The first thing that is required of them is to be regular in attendance at their meetings and to take a helpful part in them and to support their president because they put him there.

The four Juniors who were assigned speaking parts at their annual meeting, Mr. Milburn, Mr. Frankish, Allen Drummond and Miss Alberta Anderson did exceedingly well. Possibly this ability is fairly general, but the groups as a whole may be properly reminded that their public speaking night last fall at the Normal School brought out too few aspirants.

These county affairs are approaching again, and occasion for thought and address That might be a first job for Mr. Frankish, rounding up more candidates from Peterborough's rural youth for the provincial title.

Junior Farmers of Hastings county are holding their public speaking and amateur entertainment meeting in Ivanhoe township hall last night. The district contest will come later and Prince Edward. That is followed by the zone competition, and in January the provincial finals at the Federation of Agriculture annaul meeting in Toronto.

As was said to the Black and White show, this is one of those contests in which every participants wins,— something, and in proportion to the effort put forward.

NORWOOD SHORT COURSE

For the special benefit of 20 young men who saw service in the war and are now taking advantage of features of the Veterans' Land Act, a short course in agricultural subjects has been arranged by Frank C. Paterson to be held at Norwood Dec. 7-10 inclusive.

"It is specially for veterans," Mr. Paterson said, "but we would like farmers to know that they are welcome, and we are hoping to have them attend. I'd be glad to have up to 50 or more come along with us. There will be a series of lectures and demonstrations and motion pictures. The meetings will be held in the town hall, from 10 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. daily.

Subjects will deal with farm management, soils and fertilizers, livestock, field crops and pasture. Several practical farmers have promised to give their help, and we are having two men come from the OAC.

Norwood board of trade and the council are helping, and we feel that we can make this an interesting course. Selected films will deal especially with the subjects we are going to take up."

LET'S GO FARMING

"Let's go farming" is the subject of the second Farm Forum broadcast of the new season, Monday, Nov. 8 at 8.30 p.m.

The importance of this rural radio enterprise was impressed upon the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture dinner company this week by Wm. McCarthy of Dufferin county, guest speaker. It has been developed during the last seven years as a Canadian accomplishment that has been made possible by the Canadian broadcasting system, and is envied by farmers in the United States and other countries.

The Farm Radio Forum is designed to stimulate thought and action in rural communities. Ontario has 600 participating forum groups with a membership of 15,000. Mr. McCarthy suggested that although this is substantial achievement, its membership represents only a small fraction of Ontario's rural people. The simplest way to form a forum was for a farm household to invite a group of neighbors to their home on the Monday forum nights, turn on the radio at 8.30, listen to the broadcast and then discuss the subject as it was presented.

Mr. McCarthy told of one group in Dufferin that was organized only a week ago by that trial or test plan. "After the discussion those present were asked whether they wished to continue the radio series. They were all in favor of it, and we can count them a new forum."

CANNING CROP TALK

Tom Sirett of Brighton, representative on the Ontario Vegetable Growers' marketing board, is meeting local members of the association Monday at 2 p. m. in the office of the Department of Agriculture. It is understood that one of the topics for discussion will be the canning crop contracts for next year. Several weeks ago a rumor suggested that the pea acreage might be reduced in 1949. It did not come from packing sources, but there was some opinion that accumulated stocks might advise a smaller acreage.

W. R. REEK IN BRANT

Ontario farmers are under a moral obligation to maintain the fertility of their soil, Mr. W. R. Reek, president of Ontario Agricultural College, declared this week at the annual dinner of Brant County Federation of Agriculture.

"Soil fertility is the most pressing problem our farmers have to face. This province has a great farming future, but its land must be maintained at peak efficiency."

Mr. Reek said that in the next 14 or 20 years Ontario would be called upon to increase its agricultural production to a point where it would be the greatest food producing unit in the Dominion. He referred, as an example of what could be done, to O. A. C. fields which had not produced a crop from 1915 to 1945.

In 1946 they were plowed up, fertilized and sown with a pasture mixture and oats at a cost of $25 an acre. In 1947 twenty steers were pastured on them from spring to November. When sold that fall they returned not only the $25 an acre expended in reconditioning the land, but $30 an acre besides.

Mr. Reek said he was amazed at the progress made by different farm organization of the province in the last 15 years, and doubted whether this advance was paralleled in any other country.

FOXES INCREASING

Foxes are causing increasingly serious financial losses to farmers and poultrymen in Peterborough and neighboring counties.

They are apparently flourishing, it was reported at the meeting of district hatcherymen here this week. G. A. Brethen of Norwood told The Examiner that some poultry producers have suffered individual losses of several hundred dollars in one season from the ravages of foxes. Opinion of the hatcherymen was that the menace of the fox has become worse than that of wolves and wandering dogs. In fact, that was expressed as a certainty.

"It is believed that the fox population has become vastly increased," Mr. Brethen said. Low price of pelts, especially during the season when the most damage is done, does not offer remunerative inducement to hunters and trappers.

Hatcherymen decided to get definite information about regulations regulating to the shooting of foxes, and generally to try to take some effective steps to curb the threat to flocks and poultry profits.

LIVESTOCK DECREASING

The number of hogs in Canada at June 1 was estimated at 4,463,100 or 18½% less than a year ago. Cattle were down 2.6 per cent at 9,470,300. Horses on farms were 6.3% fewer, and at a total of 1,904,000 had dropped below the 2,000,000 mark for the first time since 1906. The number of sheep decreased substantially to 2,250,800, almost 17% below the estimates at June 1 1947.

FARM CLOC VOTE

One result of the election triumph of President Truman this week may be a revival of the international wheat agreement which had received Canadian support through the national Federation of Agriculture.

Herb H. Hannam, Federation president, had been one of the most active advocates of the proposed agreement as a means of trying to bring about price stability among the cereal nations. Its rejection by the Congress of the USA, dominantly Republican, appeared months ago to be a fatal defection. President Truman had shown his sympathy to this project, and in four of the central grain States he gave it prominence in his campaign.

Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio and Iowa swung their electoral votes to Mr Truman, indicating that many thousands of normally Republican farmers deserted their party.

The Federation of Agricultural Organizations (FAO) are meeting in Canada next year, at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. By that time the wheat agreement may be up and around on its feet again. But, it still would require more than the possible acceptance which it might receive from the new Democratic administration in the United States.

RECOMMENDS SALE

It was characteristic of Everett Birdsall both in spirit and quiet manner to recommend district farmers to see the quality of Herefords in the John Stuart herd at Old Orchard Farms.

Col. Birdsall is himself a Hereford breeder, as was his father, the late Col. R. E. Birdsall, for many years.

Fight Eight More Years Chiang Says

Will Not Make Peace With Communists; Pledges Extermination

NANKING, Nov. 8—(AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek, far from down and out, warned China today to get ready for eight more years of war on the Communists.

China's President said he will not make peace with the Communists. China's only chance for peace, he said, is to exterminate the Communists on the field of battle.

The statement was made to 1,000 Kuomintang (party) members and legislators.

Current peace rumors are Communist-inspired, said Chiang.

He apologized for the failure of economic and currency reforms and said new measures to bolster the situation are being drawn. Likewise, he declared, new life is being put into the country's armies.

Bar Public From Trial

KITCHENER, Nov. 8—(CP) — The public, including the press, were excluded from the trial of Mrs. Flossie Humphrey, in county court today on motion of Crown Attorney W. P. Clement.

Mrs. Humphrey is charged with unlawful use of the mails for scurrilous and indecent purposes.

G. H. Lochead, defence counsel, concurred in the Crown's application for an in camera order from the bench.

The crown contended provision is made in the criminal code for in camera hearing of criminal cases where it is found an open hearing would be detrimental to public interest. He maintained the evidence to be brought out in the Humphrey cases was of such a nature.

"You are asking for the exclusion of the press?" asked Judge E. W. Clement.

"I am," the crown attorney replied.

Shortly after the hearing began with the public excluded, the court was adjourned at the request of the crown to permit further investigation.

The case involves certain letters and parcels alleged to have been sent through the mail by the accused.

Truman Enjoys Florida Holiday

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 8 (AP)—Harry S. Truman shed the cares of state today to frolic in the Florida sunshine.

The president of the United States started a vacation at this naval submarine base in the company of a small group of White House friends.

Many decision involving changes in his administration may be made before Truman returns to Washington two weeks from now. But for the present, he is in no hurry to act.

It is known that he is looking around for a new Secretary of Defence to replace James V. Forrestal when the latter steps out, and, so the official story goes, he will not press Robert A. Lovett to stay on as Undersecretary of State.

Intimates of the president are speculating whether he will name Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington State to an important post.

There likely will be lengthy discussions before the vacation is over on the State of the Union message Truman will send Congress in January. Without question it will embrace a new demand for civil rights measures which stirred controversies within the party in the South, but failed to rob Truman either of re-nomination or re-election.

Remand Woodcox On Murder Charge

LINDSAY, Nov. 8—(CP)—Herman Woodcox, 29-year-old bushman of Tory Hill, Monmouth township, Haliburton county, charged with the murder of 21-year-old Arnold Gill on Hallowe'en eve, appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee thism orning and was remanded for one week.

Woodcocx, short and athletic in appearance, was represented by I. E. Weldon, K.C., of Toronto.

Report Russ Crash

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 8—(AP).—The newspaper Berlingske Tidende says today that a Russian military plane has crashed in northern Greenland. The newspaper, in a London dispatch, quotes unidentified United States sources as saying the crew of a United States reconnaissance plane sighted the wreckage last Wednesday while on a routine flight from a base on the west coast of Greenland.

Bunkhouse Boss Detained In Man's Death

ST. JOACHIM RAPIDS, Que., Nov. 8 — (CP). — Police today detained a 58year-old bunkhouse proprietor for questioning in connection with the death of Leo D. McLennan of St. Andrew's West, near Cornwall, whose body was found Sunday sprawled over a cot in the ramshackle building.

Officers said the proprietor, Paul Beliveau, had been located on the Ontario side of the Ottawa River as he was preparing to take a train to Montreal. They added that he was being held on an open warrant.

Mr. McLennan's body, several deep wounds in the head, was found Sunday morning by A. Laframboise, Quebec liquor inspector, during a routine check of the Beliveau premises. He said the body was twisted in an awkward position on the bed.

Police said the wounds in Mr. McLennan's head might have been caused by a sharp instrument or a pointed rock.

They added that he had been drinking heavily for some days past and had been discharged from the Des Joachims power-project October 21. He was known to have had a considerable sum of money, but none was found on the body.

No charge has been laid against Mr. Beliveau, owner of the primitive hunkhouse where McLennan had been staying for some days prior to his death.

Begin Wide Search For 4 Missing Hunters

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Nov. 8. — (CP).—An extensive search is under way in this area 160 miles northwest of Port Arthur for four men missing since Friday on a hunting trip.

The men are Peter Serson and William Evans of Sioux Lookout, Rev. Earl Serson and Fred Besley of Stateboro, Ga.

They left here Friday morning in an outboard motorboat expecting to return by noon and taking only a few sandwiches along. In the afternoon, search parties were organized.

Ontario provincial police are planning an aerial search Monday to augment ground forces.

Manslaughter Verdict Is Returned

Will Sentence "Jane" On Wednesday; Jury Urges Leniency

By BOB BUCHANAN

LINDSAY, Nov. 8—(Staff)—Verdict of the jury hearing the murder charge against Mrs. Jane Kelly McAllister was "guilty of manslaughter" Saturday. It took less than two hour to reach the decision on the lesser charge. The jury added "a strong recommendation of mercy". The five-day trial before the fall assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario sitting here included evidence of John McAllister's treatment of his redhaired, 25-year-old, sick widow.

It was evident from the jury's questions to Mr. Justice W. R. Treleaven that the accused's own story of her life with the shooting victim was the factor which cut the conviction from the capital to the lesser offence. She will be sentenced on Wednesday.

The jury returned twice to the courtroom to ask further direction on the law from His Lordship. The tension created by the two appearances added to the strain which was apparent on the accused, who had been able to keep a fairly steady control of herself through the week.

A sudden attack of illness Saturday morning resulted in a brief court recess as the accused was led from the box, leaning weakly on the matron's arm.

Smiling Slightly

There was no flicker of emotion on Mrs. McAllister's face as the verdict was read. A minute later, her face white and tightly drawn, she bit her lip and smiled slightly as other war brides clustered around her.

A concerted outlet of breath was the reaction of the packed courtroom, where several hundreds had remained while the jury was absent. Before the verdict was delivered, Mr. Justice Treleaven warned that he would regard as contempt of court "any demonstration whatever."

The crowds, which had steadily increased as the trial reached its climax, was heaviest of all week on Saturday. Doorways and corridors off the jammed courtroom were filled with people, whose sympathy for the accused was evident throughout.

"Great Provocation Here"

"I am satisfied that there was great provocation here, and your recommendation for leniency will certainly be consided by me in the matter of the sentence."

Through the addresses of the counsel and presiding justice to the jury, Mrs. McAllister seemed almost beyond caring Saturday. Several times, she leaned forward in the prisoner's box, head in her hands, then looked up again to follow the trial with lack-lustre eyes.

MANSLAUGHTER

ABANDONING AN ATTEMPT to ride the weird underwater balloon into the ocean depths Auguste Piccard, who once set a world altitude record, has given up a dream of 40 years and his huge bathyscape is being towed back to land.

Piccard's Expedition Ends After 4,600-Foot Dive

By HENRY GHYSSELS

ABOARD PICCARD-COSYNS EXPEDITION MOTHERSHIP SCALDIS, AT SEA OFF ST. JAGO ISLAND IN THE CAP VERDE ARCHIPELAGO, Nov. 8.—A dream of 40 years fizzled and died today when Auguste Piccard and Max Cosyns decided to abandon their attempt to ride the weird underwater balloon they had created down to ocean depths of perhaps two and half miles.

The decision followed a 21-hour operation during which the bathyscaphe went down empty to 4,592 feet. It was made difficult by heavy swells and strong undertow in an area poorly protected by land.

After the bathyscaphe returned to the surface, it was found impossible to pump the gasoline from the float back aboard this freighter without needlessly endangering lives. Since it was not possible to haul the craft back aboard without emptying it, it was decided to jettison the gasoline. This was allowed to empty out into the sea.

The expedition is putting about for Dakar, French West Africa, on the first leg of the return trip.

Name Campbell Manitoba Head

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8—(CP)—Manitoba's coalition government, obstacles to its continuation smoothed over by the concessions to Progressive Conservatives, is expected to undergo a reshuffling of at least some cabinet posts under Premier-elect Douglas Lloyd Campbell.

It took a caucus of coalition members two days to choose 53-year-old Mr. Campbell—Liberal-Progressive and the province's minister of agriculture since 1936—as successor to Premier Stuart Garson. Mr. Garson is expected to resign within a few day to contest a by- election in the federal constituency of Marquette.

The long-drawn-out negotiations between Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Independent members of the eight-year-old coalition almost foundered over the insistent demands of Progressive Conservative for greater representation in the cabinet.

Hunter Drowns In Victoria, First Fatality

LINDSAY, Nov. 8—(Staff)—William James Chisholm of Sadowa, Ont., was drowned Saturday in Bear Lake, north of Coboconk. He was on a hunting trip in that area, which is the northern tip of Victoria County.

The drowning happened when Chisholm was crossing the lake in a small boat. With him at the time were his son, Thomas, also of Sadowa and Harold E. Snyder of Chicago.

Provincial constable Lloyd Lyle of Fenelon Falls flew into the area this morning in an airplane of the Department of Lands and Forests. An effort is being made to remove the body from the lonely locale of the fatality—the first in the district this season.

Italian Ambassador Presents Credentials

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP).—Mario di Stefano presented his letter of credence to the Governor-General today as the new Italian Ambassador to Canada.

He was accompanied at the Government House ceremony by Mario Majoli, first secretary of the Italian embassy, and Pietro Migone, commercial attache.

Mr. di Stefano, who arrived in Ottawa last week, formerly was Italian Minister to the United States.

Timoshenko Asks 'Preparedness'

MOSCOW, Nov. 8. —(CP). — Russian war hero Marshal S. K. Timoshenko says "the peace loving policy of our state is meeting resistance from Anglo-American war-mongers." He spoke Sunday as the 31st anniversary of the Russian revolution was celebrated.

Speaking atop Lenin's tomb as the might of the Red army paraded in front of leading Soviet politicians, foreign diplomats, military observers and cheering crowds, Timoshenko urged preparedness. But, he said, the growing forces of peace "will not allow a new war."

Prime Minister Stalin did not take part in the ceremonies in Red square. He was said to be on his annual vacation. Timoshenko was flanked by Foreign Minister V. M. Moltov and Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, Minister of Armed Forces, in reviewing the parade of troops, tanks, vehicles and planes.

Observers noted the emphasis on aviation tthis year. Jet fighters and four-engined bombers were conspicuous.

Entire US Uranium Reserve Exhausted in 30 Years Research Scientist Believes

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (AP) — A research scientist believes the rate of atomic bomb production in the United States threatens to exhaust the country's entire uranium reserves in 30 years. The rate of bomb production, he states in an address prepared for delivery to a group session of the American Petroleum Institute, is "a reason for pessimism" in considering the future of atomic power for industrial use.

Eugene Ayers, chief chemist of the Gulf Research and Development Company, Pittsburgh, said the world supply of recoverable uranium "is believed to be about 10 times as great as that in the United States." Thorium, another fissionable element that might produce industrial power, is present in about similar quantity, he added.

"Our annual production of uranium now is said to be more than 1-30th our entire reserve," he said. "If the rate of production is constant over the next 30 years, we shall have no uranium left; for, unlike petroleum, there is little likelihood of extending our uranium reserve by large discoveries."

Must Be Change

Because the world's supply of fissionable materials is "definitely limited" he said, the kind of atomic energy now understood "cannot be regarded as the predominant energy source of the future."

"If Uranium were used to produce as much energy as petroleum," he said, "it would become a very rapidly vanishing resource."

He said it has been estimated that petroleum is 100,000 times as abundant in the United States as are uranium concentrations running down to 1-10th of one per cent.

Thus, he added, atomic energy "is unlikely to become important except for the limited uses demanding the highest energy potential."

Gov't Charges House Chairman With Defrauding

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP).—J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., NJ), chairman of the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities, today was indicted on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Government.

Three charges of false claims also were contained in the Federal grand jury indictment. He was accused also of 34 "overt acts."

Indicted with him on the conspiracy charge was Helen Campbell, his former secretary.

This charge alleged a conspiracy "to defraud the United States of its money and property."

Maximum Sentence 32 Years

Court officials said that, if conviction were obtained, maximum sentence in the several charges against the member of Congress could be 32 years' imprisonment or $40,000 fine, or both.

Thomas was re-elected to the House in last week's election.

The grand jury charged a conspiracy to pad the payroll of the Congressman's office with two employees who were not "bona fide."

The two employees were named as Myrr Midkiff and Arnette Minor.

The grand jury investigated published charges of irregularities in operation of the Congressman's office.

The New Jersey Republican was called before the grand jury last week but declined to testify.

The indictment said the conspiracy ran five years—from Jan. 1, 1940, to Jan. 30, 1945.

Montgomery Begins First Military Talks

HEREFORD, Germany, Nov. 8—(AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Sunday night began the first of a series of military talks designed to weld the armies of Western Europe into a unified force.

It is reliably understood that plans for the interchangeability of men as well as weapons will figure largely in the conference. The problem before the military leaders of Western Europe is how to make soldiers of different nations work together down to the lowest command levels.

Lay Off 2,000 Men At Oshawa Factory

OSHAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Some 2,000 workers at the Oshawa plant of General Motors were laid off for 24 hours today due to a temporary interruption in the supply of parts to the factory, a company official said today.

The plant shut-down today followed a three-day closing in the first half of last week which kept some 3,500 workers from their jobs. The interruption last week was also caused by a shortage of parts resulting from the recently-settled 15-week strike at McKinnon industries at St. Catharines, a GM subsidiary which supplies parts to the company's Canadian factories.

De Gaulle Wins 40 PC Of Seats

PARIS, Nov. 8 — (AP). — Almost complete returns to-day gave Gen. Charles De Gaulle's anti Communist Rassemblement du Peuple Francais (RPF) a sweeping victory in yesterday's elections to the Uper House of the French Parliament.

Th Communists, present majority party in the Council of the Republic, lost more than four-fifths of their seats and will be a low-ranking party in the new Council.

The elections were national in scope, but the balloting was done by local electoral colleges instead of directly by the people.

The returns showed that the RPF, taking part in a legislative election for the first time, will have about 40 per cent of the 269 seats at stake yesterday. The colonies will elect another 51 members next Monday, bringing the new Council to its full strength of 320.

With 7 seats missing Interior Ministry figures said this was the divisions of the Council seats:

RPF 99, Radical Socialist (Conservatives) and Affiliates 50, Socialists 48, Independents 21, Communists 16, Popular Republicans (MRP) 15, others 12.

Of the RPF's 99 seats, 55 belong to the party outright and the others are from affiliated groups.

The Communists now hold 84 seats. Their drop to 16 occurred largely because of a change in the voting system that permitted all non-Communist parties to form Coalitions against them.

The smashing victory may prompt De Gaulle to hasten his campaign for return to power.

De Gaulle wants the Assembly to dissolve itself and call for general elections which, he claims, will give him a mandate from the people to take over the government.

His party has no explicit social program. Its chief plank is anti-Communism.

Korean Riots Take 6,000 Lives

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 8—(AP)—Home Minister T. Y. Yoon of the South Korean republic today reported that mass uprisings in Russian-controlled northern Korea have cost upwards of 6,000 lives in the last few days.

A spokesman for the United States army in South Korea said no confirmation of Yoon's sensational statement, made to newspaper men, had been received at headquarters.

Yoon said he believed the attempted revolt occurred in eight northern cities, including Pyongyang, the capital of north Korea.

His information, he said, was that the revolt had been put down. However, another cabinet officer who declined to be quoted by name said he had information the fighting was continuing and that an estimated 150,000 men were involved.

Can't Discover Cause Of Bus Crash

TORONTO, Nov. 8.— (CP).—The toll of the week-end's trambus crash still stood early today at six dead and 50 injured and police said the cause of the worst traffic accident in Toronto's history may never be known.

They said that if Frank Rowe, driver of a Hamilton bus which smashed into a Toronto street car on this city's western outskirts, manages to survive, it is possible he will not remember what happened in the split second before the bus swerved into the path of the stream-lined street car.

A memorial service will be held at the Hamilton armories Tuesday afternoon. By request of the families, no military funerals are planned. Funds to assist families of the victims have been opened in Toronto and in Hamilton.

Inspector Vernon Page of the Toronto city police said investigation had shown there was no substantiation for an early theory that the bus driver turned toward the red-and-yellow street car to avoid striking a pedestrian on the highway.

Investigation also dashed a belief that the rain on Friday night made the highway dangerously slippery.

Remanded One Week

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—Victor Vendette, 38, of nearby Limoges, was remanded for one week when he appeared in county court today on charges of starting a fire and with breaking and entering and theft in connection with a fire which destroyed two Jewish-owned hotels at Carlsbad Springs, last week.

Ottawa To Give $65,000 Train 55 Doctors, Nurses

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Health Minister Martin announced today the Dominion will contribute $65,000 for the advanced training of 55 doctors and nurses for public health work and nursing in Ontario. The contribution will be made under the new national health program and will represent more than one-third of Ontario's shareshare of the professional training grant.

The grant is to assist persons anxious to enter public health work and to aid those already in it to take further training. In each instance, persons to be trained have been nominated by the Ontario Health Department.

The plan will enable nine doctors to take diploma courses in public health, five veterinary surgeons to take diploma courses in veterinary public health, two dentists to take diplomas in dental public health and one graduate in science to take a M.Sc. degree. All are enrolled at the University of Toronto School of Hygiene and on graduation will take new full-time positions in public health or return to their former posts.

Thirteen graduate nurses will take certificate courses in nursing education and two will take course in clinical supervision on graduation, they will become teachers in approved schools of nursing.

Seventeen graduate nurses will receive financial aid towards obtaining a certificate in public health nursing, and six are being assisted in taking an advance course in administration and supervision.

The nurses are all enrolled at the University of Toronto School of Nursing and on graduation will enter municipal or health unit service either as nurses or supervisors.

Britons Believe Royal Birth At Weekend Mass Of Gossip, Fancy Being Circulated

LONDON, Nov. 8 — (AP). — Britons generally believe Princess Elizabeth's baby probably will arrive at Buckingham Palace Saturday or Sunday.

They arrived at that calculation from a mass of gossip, fancy and information available in London as world-wide interest in the impending arrival of the second-in-line heir presumptive to the throne rises to a crescendo here.

The Princess is in excellent health and spirits. Some of the excitement, attendant to the birth of her first child, has penetrated the palace to the evident amusement of Princess Elizabeth.

"Why does everyone make such a fuss?" she laughed. "I'm not the only woman who is going to have a baby."

Newspapers here are grinding out columns of "authentic" information about what actually goes on in the Princess' private suite. Some of it is fact but much is what the most authoritative source flatly says is "pure fancy."

Newspapers virtually have agreed that Sir William Gilliatt, the Princess' obstetrician, will use the pain-killing drug, trilene, at the birth. They report an automatic inhaler for administering this drug has been delivered to the miniature "hospital" in the palace which will be used as a delivery room.

Mackenzie King Home, Prepared To Leave Gov't

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King will meet with his successor early this week to lay plans for his official withdrawal as leader of the government in power.

A spokesman close to Mr. King said the meeting with prime minister-designate Louis Stephen St. Laurent may take place today if Mr. King feels well enough.

Otherwise it will be held during the next few days either at Mr. King's residence at Laurier House in Ottawa's Sandy Hill district or in the east block of Parliament Hill where the 73-year-old Mr. King has reigned as prime minister for an unprecedented 21 years.

Expectation was that he would resign as head of the government this week.

In the meantime, Mr. St. Laurent, who has been acting prime minister in Mr. King's absence overseas, assumes the role of acting justice minister.

Traces of Illness

Mr. King returned to his residence Sunday from his mid-September trip overseas. Traces of the illness that caught him while in London still showed.

As he stepped out of the rear platform of his private railway car, a crowd of less than 50 greeted him. Some were government officials and members of parliament.

Mr. King had asked that there be no official reception. Members of the diplomatic corps were not present. Neither were many of Mr. King's colleagues in the House of Commons.

"I'm so glad to see you all here," said Mr. King, after he had doffed his black homburg and smiled. He moved slowly to his limousine. As is customary, he carried his black, gold-ringed cane and used it to steady himself.

Observers who had seen Mr. King when he landed in New York Saturday aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth said he looked much better."

Mr. King himself added: "I haven't felt better since I left Canada."

U.N. Political Committee Votes To Condemn Three Balkan Countries

Greek Government Responds To Plea To Postpone Seamen's Executions; Evatt Says They Seriously Hamper Parley

PARIS, Nov. 8—(AP).—The United Nations Political Committee voted today to condemn Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for helping the Communist rebels in Greece. It was the strongest action thus far taken by any United Nations Assembly body in the Balkans dispute. By a vote of 47 to 0, the committee approved a paragraph in a four-power resolution declaring that continued aid given by the three Slav countries to the Greek guerrillas endangers peace in the Balkans and is inconsistent with the principles of the United Nations charter.

The vote followed hours of wrangling, during which the Slav bloc fought to stall the proceedings and drew repeated tongue lashings from the committee chairman, Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium.

Overnight, the Greek government has responded to a plea from the president of the Assembly by postponing execution of 10 seamen, scheduled to die today.

The six Slav states refused to vote on the condemnation paragraph. They served notice they would vote against the whole resolution when it comes up, perhaps later today. The veto does not apply.

Four countries were absent when the vote was taken and El Salvador abstained.

The assembly last year refused to accept a proposal condemning the three Balkan countries in the Greek dispute. It merely called on them to do nothing which could furnish aid and assistance to Greek guerrillas. This time, however, the Western Powers are insistent upon a specific condemnation. Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, asked postponement Sunday in cables to King Paul and Premier Sophoulis of Greece.

Evatt said the executions would seriously interfere with attempts he is pushing here for a "Balkan peace conference" in which the Greeks would sit down to negotiate with Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria.

The appeal came in the midst of a Greek domestic political crisis. Sophoulis said today he will resign as soon as the Greek debate in the UN has been completed.

The postponement was announced Sunday night in Athens by the Greek Ministry of Justice, which gave no indications of what future action might be taken in the case.

Convicted Last Week

The 10 seamen had been convicted of subversive activity by a Maritime Tribunal last week. They were charged with collecting money from members of the merchant marine to be sent to support Communist leader Markos Vafiades and his rebel guerrillas.

At the outset of today's political committee session the delegates voted overwhelming rejection of a Yugoslav demand for censure of the U.N. special committee on the Balkans.

Dr. Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia shouted that the committee had insulted Yugoslavia and cried "shame."

Belgian premier Paul-Henri Spaak, chairman of the committee, called for order and told Bebler to sit down. He declared he would not tolerate insults to the delegates.

The committee then began consideration of a four-power western resolution approving the Balkan committee's report.

Protest Executions

Mass executions in Greece were protested earlier this year by Britain, France, Russia and Denmark, but the Greek government rejected the protest.

After 213 prisoners were reported executed during the first week in May, Press Minister Michael Alianos said 1,320 persons had been executed between June, 1946, and May, 1948.

Industrials, Oils Edge Ahead Slowly

TORONTO, Nov. 8. (CP)—Industrials and Western Oils edged slowly ahead as trading slackened on the Toronto Stock Exchange today from last Friday. Golds moved quietly easier and base metals held steady on mixed gains and losses.

Key industrial issues advanced on fractional gains as trading quietened down. Utilities brightened and papers showed a slightly easier tone. McColl Oil, Imperial Oil and B.A. Oil firmed in refining oils and Goodyear was strong in the miscellaneous industrials following a dividend announcement.

Base metals mixed gains and losses o na slightly easier trend.

Manslaughter

In his hour-long address to the jury (which was interrupted by the accused's departure from the courtroom), Defence Counsel H. E. Richardson told the 12 men that "God alone knows what was in this girl's mind."

Recounting the life of the accused, as told by herself and other witnesses, he spoke of her meeting and marrying navy veteran John McAllister in Scotland.

"There was the illusion of almost a promised land across the sea for her, where the experience of war and poverty would be over. It was another incident of the unhappy war marriage."

This was not realized, he said. Instead, there was the loneliness and sickness which marked her life in Canada and the treatment —loss of love, contempt—which her husband began to use towards her.

"Then came the final blow," he said, "the knowledge that she could never have a child on whom she could lavish the love which her husband no longer supplied."

Loveless Home

"Can there be any doubt, from the evidence, that only Jean was trying to keep this already-wrecked marriage from going to pieces—trying to keep together this loveless home? Only one person was responsible for that drifting-apart—John McAllister."

Crown Attorney Jordan impressed upon the jury their duty to let "your head, not your heart, guide you. The heart must temper the head, not rule it. Sympathy is a wonderful thing, a part of our makeup, but remember there is a war veteran no longer alive."

The operations on the accused were "regrettable," he said, but only significant if they affected the accused's mind at the time of the shooting.

"If she knew the meaning of what she did, then she knew the reason why she reached for the gun. That is for you to judge."

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Treleaven outlined the legal implications of "provocation" reducing murder to manslaughter. He said that the jury must judge whether the accused's story of John's words to her that night—taunting her childlessness and threatening to "start running around with other women"—were true and consistent with other evidence of his conduct. If so, did those words constitute sufficient provocation to make the accused lose the power to act reasonably?

Mother Not There

While the final hours of the trial came, Mrs. Emily McInerney, Scottish mother of the accused, was already flying back to Scotland. The strain of the trial had proved too much for the little woman, who had flown here more than a month ago to be near her daughter. On advice of doctors and those aiding her, it was felt that there was no other course but to have her return. Her burden had been increased by news of a personal nature which she said was "bad."

On Saturday morning, she had been taken to Toronto and she flew from there Saturday afternoon, arriving in Scotland Sunday morning. News of the verdict reached her by radio on the way over.

It is not certain whether Mrs. McAllister will remain in Canada after her sentence is served. Earlier, she had indicated a desire to return to her native Scotland, but Salvation Army officials who have been assisting her, said that apparently she wants to remain in this country.

Following the verdict and remand for sentence, the prisoner's box and courtroom centre was filled with people trying to get near the accused and her young counsel to offer their congratulations. With the strain over, both appeared satisfied with the verdict.

Jean told a Lindsay war bride: "This was not so bad. I was terribly afraid it might have been worse."

The war bride, one active in helping Mrs. McAllister and her mother, commented later: "It's about the first time life has given Jean an even break."

Martin Chenhall Is Given Purse

Members of St. Paul's Presbyterian congregation, on Sunday night after the evening service, gathered in the Sunday School auditorium to honor Martin B. Chenhall, ARCO, recently retired organist and choirmaster. Mr. Chenhall for 27 years led the choir and played the organ in the church. Along with Mrs. Chenhall and family they contributed much to the work of the congregation and the organizations. Dr. C. M. Lawrence, a member of the music committee presided, read an address and presented Mr. Chenhall with purse of money. To Mrs. Chenhall who was not able to be present through illness, a large bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Adam Sands for her mother.

R. M. Glover spoke for the congregation and George Coleman Jr. one who started as a boy with Mr. Chenhall, and came up through the years to be one of Peterborough's outstanding baritone singers sang on behalf of the choir Handel's "Where E'er You Walk." Rev. C. S. Boyd expressed his appreciation of the work of Mr. Chenhall and paid tribute to the manner in which he led the service of song on Sundays.

Mr. Chenhall fittingly replied to the tributes paid and gave credit to the choir and the support which the various organizations had given him in every effort attempted.

The evennig closed with refreshments being served by the Ladies' Aid.

FEW SMITH TOWNSHIP APPEALS

According to Smith township records this year there were fewer cases coming before the Court of Revision than ever before. Only two taxpayers appealed their asessments. One was R. Rose who owns a summer cottage on Clear Lake (part of lot 39, concession 12). His assessment was reduced to $150 on land and $300 on buildings. Less fortunate was V. J. Montgomery who had the assessment on his property at Barnardo Ave. and Bellevue St. confirmed at $200 for land and $700 for buildings.

Report Israel Conducting Peace Talks

TEL AVIV, Israel, Nov. 8—(AP).—Sources close to the Israeli foreign office said yesterday that peace talks are under way between the Egyptian and Israeli governments.

(A member of Egypt's delegation to the United Nations in Paris denied the report, while Israeli informants in Paris would neither confirm nor deny it. Authoritative U.N. sources said they had no knowledge of such negotiations).

The Jewish sources said the conversations have been in progress for several days, either in Paris or Geneva.

They said Israeli foreign minister Moshe Shertok was en route to Paris and had undertaken the trip more because of the peace talks than because of scheduled U.N. Security Council and political committee session on the Holy Land.

A peace between Israel and Egypt would involve only southern Palestine. A Jewish offensive last month pushed the Egyptians back into the Negev desert and Jewish forces still surround several thousand Egyptian troops in isolated pockets. The U.N. Security Council is trying to get the Jews to withdraw to positions occupied before the offensive.

(A Cairo newspaper yesterday reported King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan had suggested a separate peace between his country and Palestine, but Trans-Jordan officials in Cairo denied that report.)

(Brig.-Gen. William E. Riley, chief of the U.N. Truce Mission in Palestine, was reported to have told Arab representatives in Paris their military positions in the Holy Land were hopeless and that their governments had better make peace with the Jews.)

Find Target Practice Expensive Business

BRANTFORD, Nov. 8—(CP).—Target practice with a shotgun last Oct. 13 proved expensive for five Burford township youths when they appeared before Magistrate R. J. Gillen here this morning.

They were charged with damaging rural mail boxes by shooting at them with shotguns and were each fined $16.50, including costs.

Joseph Mustos, RR 2, Scotland, admitted owning the weapon and said he was driving the truck while four youths shot at the boxes. Pleading not guilty, he was convicted and given two weeks in which to pay the fine.

The other youths were Kenneth Donovan, William Makarchuk, and Clayton Good, all of RR 1, Hatchley, and Louis Mustos, RR 2, Scotland.

Pair Charged Stealing Ducks

OSHAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—In a sequel to a report of a Hallowe'en "shooting feud," Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Marnien have been charged with stealing ducks from the J. J. Fleming farm north of here. They will appear in court Tuesday.

Earlier, farmhand Clarence Smith, 18, and Cecil Winacott, Marnien's 16-year-old brother-in-law, told police the farm premises were invaded by prowlers who fired small-calibre rifles. But later they admitted the story to be a fabrication, pleaded guilty to a charge of creating a public mischief and were remanded for sentence.

Marnien, manager of the farm, at the time the youths put forward their shooting claims reported that 50 ducks had been stolen from the farm.

HASTINGS, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Charged with speeding doing 80 miles per hour on the Cobourg Road and also with having liquor opened in a car, Lawrence Cosgrave of 25 St. Joseph Street, Toronto, appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter in Hastings Police Court. On the first charge of speeding, Constable A. Kellogg, O. P. P. testified that the accussed passed him just outside of Baltimore going at a great rate of speed. Constable Kellogg gave chase, doing 80 miles per hour, but he could not stop the accused. He next saw the vehicle stopped at Bridge Street in Hastings. Mr. J. P. Bassel, Toronto, the defending lawyer questioned Kellogg, saying there was no evidence as to who was driving the car, no evidence that it was a police car and also that there was no evidence as to when the speedometer had been checked. Magistrate Baxter then asked the constable if it was a police car. He replied, "No, it was not." The magistrate then dismissed the charge of careless driving saying that he had no other alternative. On the second charge of having liquor opened in a car the accused pleaded not guilty. Constable A. Kellogg gave his evidence that he found the liquor opened in the accused's car. Mr. J. P. Bassel, the defending lawyer, said there was no evidence that it was beer or who owned it. The magistrate found the accused guilty, fining him $50 with $2.50 costs.

HASTINGS, Nov. 8—(ENS).—Thanksgiving anniversary services of Trinity United Church were held Sunday, with capacity audiences.

The Rev. F. W. Newell, of Fenelon Falls, formerly of Hastings, preached at both services, with Rev. N. Cole, pastor of the church, being present at the evening service.

Musical selections were under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Baker, with Howard Shae, Warkworth, singing a solo and a male quartet of R. R. Burnham, Leslie Scriver, Clifford Scriver and L. W. Humphries.

The thankoffering received was a record since pre-war days.

Test Atomic Defences

LONDON, Nov. 8—(CP).—The Royal Navy's defences against atomic bombs will be tested in exercises off the south coast when the home fleet returns from a cruise to South Africa and the West Indies early in December. Bombs which produce a brilliant flash on explosion will simulate an atomic attack. Referees of the mock battle will assume the bombs are destructive over a wide area of the sea.

J. Gellner, RCAF Officer, Declares War To Be 'Inevitable'

COBOURG, Nov. 8—(ENS).—"War is inevitable. It will come when Russia thinks it is strong enough for it. It is up to us to keep strong economically and militarily, so that war will be averted indefinitely.

This was the conclusion of John Gellner, squadron leader of the RCAF in a talk to the weekly luncheon here of Cobourg Rotary Club. He is a veteran of the last war, having served in the Czech army and also in the RCAF, receiving decorations in both. He is now in the special legal branch of the RCAF. SL Gellner was born in Trieste.

When war came again, whether it was in the time of the present generation or later, Canada would, by reason of its geographical position, be on the receiving end of air attack or invasion. In the face of that fact, it was up to Canadians to exert themslves so as to be prepared, the speaker declared.

In the days of ancient Rome and Greece there were five ideologies in the world but now the number has been narrowed to two, Capitalism and Communism. Democracy, being tolerant, could live side by side in peace with the other ideology but Communism, by its very make-up could not live in peace with democracy, nor could a Communist exercise peace and tolerance and still conform to the principles of his party. The Marxists, continued the speaker, see the ideal state in the survival of Communism after a world revolution to exterminate capitalism.

"The Communists feel that capitalism and Communism can live in peace together for some time yet but only Communism is strong enough to take over. They say to the democracies to surrender militarily and economically and if we do not, they call us war mongers," said SL Gellner.

Right now, the military power of the democracies was greatly inferior too that of Russia, he continued, and western Europe must be organized because without their support from a military standpoint, the democracies were hopelessly outnumbered. Millions of friends to the democracies had been lost in Czechoslovakia, Poland, France and Greece and in China the Communists were rapidly taking over.

Russia was strengthening herself behind the iron curtain and as her satelite nations were dependent on her, they had been consolidated under the Communist banner. Tito, who was not a puppet or stooge of the Soviet but more or less independent, was the only exception among the satelite nations of Russia, he said.

Speaking of strikes, he declared that labor was entitled to organization for fair treatment but unfortunately many strikes, such as the mine strike in France and the McKinnon Industries strike got labor nothing and was a blow at the country's economy. The French strike occasioned great loss to France, offsetting the aid received under the Marshall plan.

"The picture is not entirely black," he said. "The people of western Europe are edging gradually away from Communism. They realize that once a Communist's nationality clashes with Russia, he drops his nationality and his allegiance to Russia is revealed. There is a new-found unity among the democracies, based on a common fear of Communism."

Rob Injured Driver

HAMILTON, Nov. 8—(CP).—A thief struck during the week-end at the home of Frank Rowe, bus driver critically injured in Saturday's bus-tram collision in Toronto. Rowe's wife reported that while she was visiting her husband in a Toronto hospital, a thief entered her home through an unlocked rear door, ransacked the front bedroom and stole a German automotic and a number of foreign coins and bills.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

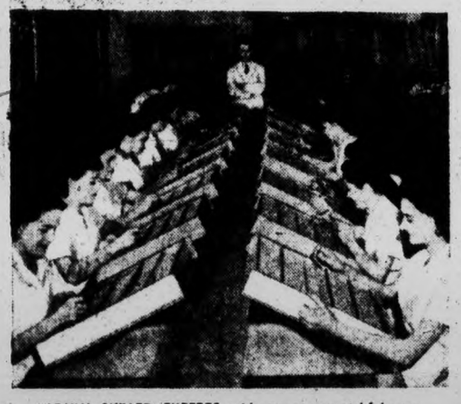
YOU CAN SAVE ELECTRICITY

The tremendous post-war growth of Ontario's industries has resulted in unprecedented demands for hydro-electric power. To keep these industries producing, every one of us must cut down our use of electricity. You can save power by turning off all lights in rooms not in use . . . by switching off electric stoves and other appliances as soon as you are finished with them. Use electrically heated water sparingly . . . do not use electric heaters or grates. Save all the electricity you can . . . in your home, your office, your shop . . . and prove your "Good Citizenship".



You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

The Republic Of India

Pandit Nehru, Prime Minister of the Dominion of India, said in Cairo on Thursday that India would become a republic, independent and sovereign. Last winter King George ceased to be Emperor of India; next year he will not even be recognized as King of India in the sense that he is King of Canada. India will have a President and will not be linked to the Commonwealth by nominal allegiance to the Throne. In New Delhi the Constituent Assembly of India is in session to consider the drafting of the constitution of what will soon be the Republic of India.

• • •

The voice of Eire seems to have been more persuasive than the voice of Canada in Pandit Nehru's ears at the recent conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers. Indian nationalists have, of course, long cherished a hope of severing the British connection, and as in Ireland the slogan of independence has been politicians' stock-in-trade. Since last year India has been free to make its own decisions; the decision to become an independent republic is not unexpected. Other Commonwealth countries will regret India's departure from their midst, for it will be a departure even though Pandit Nehru says that the relations between India and the Commonwealth Dominions will remain unchanged. Eire, an economic and geographical appendage of Great Britain, is virtually outside the fold (though we still allow southern Irishmen to come to Canada on the same terms as British subjects). India, thousands of miles removed, with different languages, creeds and skins, will, as a Republic, be less likely to share Commonwealth benefits than Eire. Canada must henceforth consider Indians as aliens and treat them as foreigners, for that is the way India has chosen.

• • •

We regret this, and we cannot but think that their loss is greater than ours. It seems to us that India is not the kind of nation which should be a Republic. As the Indian law minister, Ambedkar, said recently, "Democracy in India is only a top dressing on Indian soil which is essentially undemocratic".

Life In The Old Dog Yet

We have received a pamphlet from the Deputy Minister of Labour which praises the qualities of older workers, and urges employers to think carefully before they retire a man whose only fault is that he has reached an arbitrary retirement age. We do not need this pamphlet, for we are already convinced of the truth of what it says; we are glad to receive it, however, for it gives us an excuse to add something to what we have already said editorially on this subject.

Not long ago we made the acquaintance of a bricklayer who, at 74, was still doing an expert job; one afternoon, between one o'clock and five, he laid 650 brick himself in order to complete a necessary piece of work. Many a younger man would find it hard to equal that afternoon's work; the older man had the skill and the sense of responsibility needed for it, and he finished his day with a feeling of pride that he had done what no other man on the job could do.

Would it not have been stupid to retire that man at 65? When a man spends his life learning to do a job well, his skill does not desert him until his strength goes, and his strength may last until he is eighty.

Early retirement ages are sometimes defended in the name of efficiency. Frankly, we feel that a lot of nonsense is talked about efficiency. How many of us work at top speed all day long? How many of us are called upon to exert our utmost effort, hour after hour? The most that an employer expects is that a man should do a decent day's work, and that he shall give an extra burst of speed when circumstances make it necessary. There are thousands of workers over 65 who can do this, and who would rather work than be idle. And these are the men, in many trades, whose skill and steadiness give them an actual advantage over some of their younger companions.

Mr. Truman Will Do The Reorganizing

One of the commonly-made minor predictions before the United States Presidential election, when the election of the Republicans was practically conceded, was that the defeated Democratic Party would be thoroughly reorganized. These predictions were popular in the Southern States which backed the "Dixiecrat" ticket, and the opponents of the civil rights program intimated that they would direct the refashioning of the party. They further intimated that it would be refashioned along lines suitable to them, and that the South would in future play an even more dominant role in the guidance of the national party.

Part of the prediction will probably prove accurate; there will likely be a reorganization of the Democratic Party. It will be directed, however, by Mr. Harry Truman, the candidate rejected by sections of his party, and for whom still other sections sought to find a "stronger" substitute. Under the circumstances, the election of Mr. Truman and Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, as Vice-President, gives these two men almost dictatorial power over the reorganization of the party. With a few officials of the national party, they were the only ones who believed in a Democratic victory; more than one state executive was lukewarm about the Truman-Barkley ticket.

It will be interesting, therefore, to follow the course of reorganization of the United States Democratic Party. Mr. Truman has proved that the Democrats can win without the "Solid South"; he has also proved that the Democrats can win northern and western states usually conceded to the Republican column. Furthermore, he has proved that the Democrats can win without the support of the extreme leftist vote which was once considered an important factor in elections. These "discoveries" will undoubtedly influence the pattern of party reorganization. It will also be interesting to see if Mr. Truman takes advantage of his unparalleled opportunity to even a few old scores made against him by party opponents and, if so, how far such a development will go. The manner in which Mr. Truman uses his opportunity, or refrains from using it, may either add to or detract from the political stature he gained as a result of his election victory. He could hardly be criticized for insisting on some measures of party discipline, but by refraining from vindictiveness he might be able to bring about greater unity in the Democratic Party than it has known during the uneasy years when conflicting views of the North, the South, Labour and the Left heavily influenced party policy and choice of candidates.

A Name To Conjure With

Once again the press is making fun of that village in Wales which possesses the interesting name of Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandysiliogogogoch. Possessing a smattering of Welsh, we do not find this name particularly amusing, though we admit that it is long. So far as we can determine, it is more in the nature of a topographical description than a mere name; it begins with the perfectly ordinary Llanfair, which means "St. Mary's Church", and which is born by half a dozen other Welsh towns, all of which possess some qualifying name to indicate which St. Mary's is meant. In the case of this little town with the long name the qualification consists of a description of some landmarks near St. Mary's, including a bridge, a red bank, and another church dedicated to the Welsh saint Tsilio. If we are wrong (which may well be) let some learned Welshman correct us.

We must point out, however, that the town is usually called Llanfairpwll, pronounced roughly Clanvyerpoolth. The Welsh, who are such accomplished spellers, are also good at abbreviations.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Henry Wallace says he will continue to build up his party in spite of what he refers to as "a poor showing". Not too bad, though. Look what happened to the vegetarian candidate.

"Of Cabbages And Kings"

By PETER ELIOT

IN Diplomat Between Wars, the genial American diplomat, Hugh Wilson, tells of a meeting with a Polish diplomat that inspired his interest in Poland.

"I persuaded Fred Dolbeare, a colleague, to take me to Montreux to make the acquaintance of . . . Perlowski. We sat on a terrace and looked over lake and mountain while I began to get my first insight into the mind and aspirations of the Poles. Perlowski, later to become Polish Ambassador to Madrid, was a man of exceptional charm. He spoke numerous languages with meticulous accuracy and pronunciation. Tall and slender, beautifully dressed, a drooping blond moustache, he was the Polish gentleman of fiction. Himself a classicist, he had a fund of citation and anecdote from the literature of all countries.

◇ ◇ ◇

"IT was at that interview that I first heard the famous story about the Polish student. Perlowski attributed it to Heine. Perlowski was expounding the devotion of Poles the world over to the fate of their nation, how the preoccupation of Polish freedom coloured their whole existence. He told the story and it sets off the Polish attitude toward the universe so admirably that I shall repeat it even if you have heard it before. Here it is: a prize was offered in the University of Paris for an essay on The Elephant. As the prize was of some magnitude there were numerous competitors, among others, an Englishman, a Frenchman, a German, a Pole. The Englishman set out to Africa with a case of rifles, killed a lot of elephants, returned to Paris and presented a book called Hunting the Elephant. The German plunged into the public library and did not emerge for months, when he did it was to produce a book in 3 volumes called The Elephant—His habits and Habitat—a Handbook for Those Who Know, or Desire to Know, the Elephant. The French student, on the contrary, waited until the last moment. Then he strolled out to the zoo, watched animals with some amusement while he smoked a cigarette, noted some of their peculiar social manners, returned to his desk and wrote a delightful paper entitled l'Elephant et ses amours. The last competitor, a Polish student, climbed the five flights to his attic (he was poor like all Polish students, and of course, lived in an attic) seated himself at his table, picked up his pen and wrote the title for his essay, The Elephant and the Polish Question.

◇ ◇ ◇

I LOOK BACK is the title A. Compton-Rickett gives an interesting account of his Fleet Street experiences.

"On one occasion," he writes, "Fletcher (the famous London editor) asked me to get hold of a well-known writer on social subjects. I saw the man. He was stupendously drunk, the air around him was so charged with spirituous fumes that one would have felt nervous at striking a match in close proximity. I told Fletcher: 'No good; I am afraid he is quite drunk.' 'Good!' remarked Fletcher brightly. 'He can never write except when he is well soaked. I was afraid you were going to say he was sober!' Fletcher was right; the article was written and was first-rate. The man was a well-known figure in pre-war Fleet Street, and everyone prophesied he would die soon of D.T. But he defied all prophets, and lived on for many years, never inffective except in his sober moments.

"His case reminds me of another journalist (Compton-Rickett continues)—a well-known art critic who did his best work on absinthe. Absinthe, however, is swift and deadly in its retribution, and before long he became a wreck. I remember seeing him coming in of an evening to the Cafe de l'Europe, Leicester Square, a miserable figure with twitching features and trembling hands. The absinthe was ordered. After a moment or so the glazed eyes brightened, the features became tranquil and the hands ceased to tremble. Then he would take out a pen and paper and begin to write."

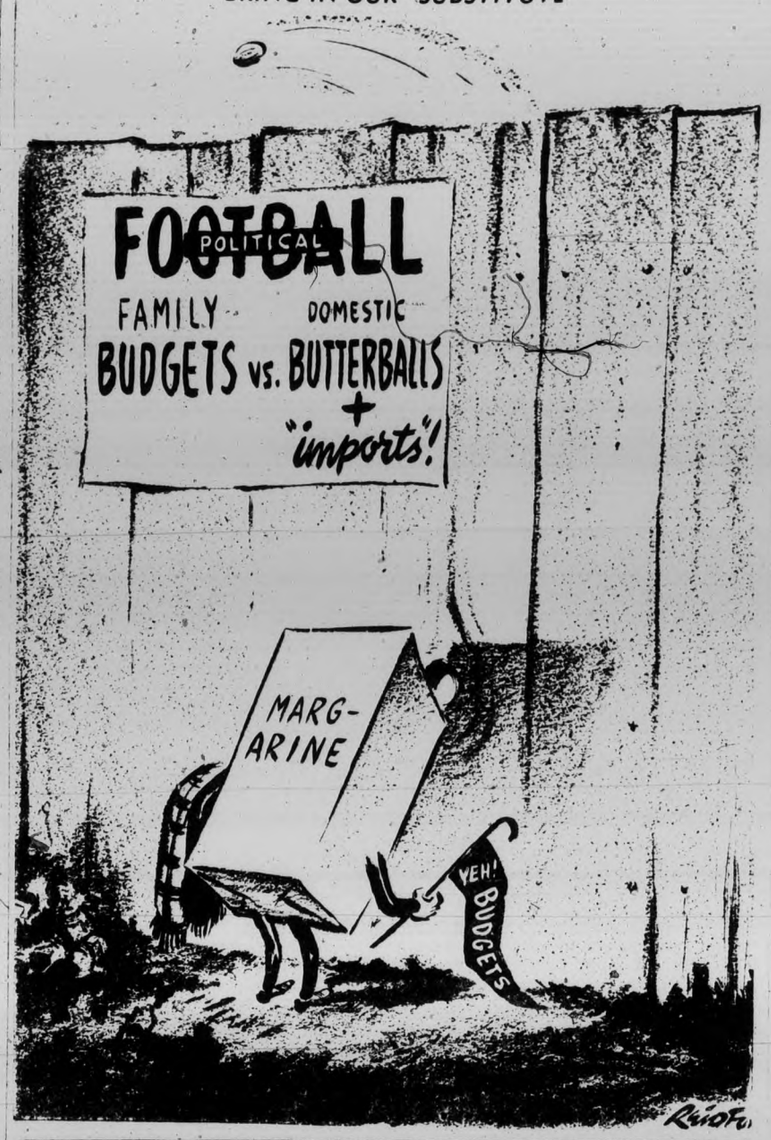
WHEN Huck Finn was flung out of the Concord Public Library twenty-one years ago, Mark Twain received many letters of sympathy and indignation, mainly from children, he confessed in his Autobiography. He admits keeping some of them to reread and then apply them as a salve to his soreness. He quotes one from a little girl who resented the Library's treatment of Huck, but went on to give him something more of a dig than even the library had done:



"I am eleven years old and I live on a farm near Rockville, Maryland. Once this winter we had a boy to work for us named John. We lent him 'Huck Finn' to read, and one night he let his clothes out of the window and left in the night. The last we heard from him he was out in Ohio; and father says if we had lent him 'Tom Sawyer' to read he would not have stopped on this side of the ocean."

◇ ◇ ◇

"DURING the 1890's", recalls Laurence Housman in The Unexpected Years, "many books of verse were published; and out of them many mushroom reputations were made. John Lane had what he called his 'nest of singing-bird', of whom I imagine, only Francis Thompson would now count as important. In 1895 I became one of the ruck, and he published my first book of poems Green Arras with illustrations. Before submitting them, I sent them to my brother Alfred for criticism; and his long critical notes which I still cherish were both kind and caustic. Thanks to him I left out several poems which I am now glad to have left out; had I accepted his advice without question, I should have left out a few more. I was just then designing book-covers for John Lane; so naturally I did what I thought an extra good one for myself: it was, at all events, very rich and elaborate. Alfred had not at that time published his own poems, but, without having told us, was then writing them. Some years later I received from him a letter telling me how at a dinner his next-door neighbour thought to interest me by talking about you and your poems. He said that he liked Green Arras; he added that a Shropshire Lad had a pretty cover. I am your affectionate brother A. E. Housman. P.S.—He did not say that the Green Arras had a pretty cover—nor has it. P.S.S.—I was just licking the envelope when the following envenomed remark occurred to me; I had far, far rather have my poems mistaken as yours, than your poems mistaken as mine.'

"As by that time we were constantly being taken for each other, I had other letters from him of a like kind. Without malice he much enjoyed putting me in my place, though I was already sufficiently aware of it."

BRING IN OUR "SUBSTITUTE"

Myth Of The Mounties

FROM THE R.C.M.P. QUARTERLY

THE late Gen. John J. Pershing once cooperated with the Mounted Police in a matter that subsequently grew into one of those fabulous tales about the Force. While stationed on the frontier at Fort Assiniboine, Mont., he escorted some Cree Indians to the border and turned them over to the Canadian authorities. The legend emanating from this transaction has several versions, but in all of them a solitary N.W.M.P. constable receives a mob of hostile Indians nonchalantly. "I've come for the Indians", he announces. Asked where his regiment is, he says "Beyond that hill washin' the fry pan" or merely "I'm the regiment"—with appropriate comment from the incredulous American.

This bit of folklore is based on a yoking together of two different sets of facts. In 1896 "Blackjack" Pershing, then a lieutenant in command of D Troop of the 10th United States Cavalry, did escort a band of Crees to the Canadian border. He was met at Courts, in what is now Southern Alberta, by an officer of the Force with a small escort. There the matter ended, and happily.

Fourteen years before, however, Reg. No. 581 Cst. Daniel "Peaches" Davis escorted several hundred Assiniboines from N.W.M.P. Headquarters at Fort Walsh, which was some seventy miles from the boundary, to reservations allotted to them further north. The United States military did not enter the picture. Constable Davis, unaided, left with his charges on May 23, 1892, and arrived at his destination near Battleford twenty-five days later. Similar responsibilities were discharged by members of the Force in their stride and were not considered unique. In this case Peaches was available, knew the country, and could drive a four-horse team. The way his comrades looked at it, so long as the tobacco rations lasted Davis' Indians would string along with the grub wagons.

Time has merged the separate incidents into one, and popular fancy, abetted by a ready journalism, has inflated that one until Davis' tour of duty has lately been likened to Gideon's defeat of the Midianites. The tall-tale teller likes to picture a thousand renegade Indians being handed over by its powerful American escort to a lone l. .c constable, whose wits and dare-dev.. courage carry him through a perilous trek that all but changed the nation's destiny.

Letters To The Editor

IS A HOME A CASTLE?

Sir: As a reader I would like to ask about the case of this man up north—hooey—I believe his name.

This man was protecting his home. Or was it his home?

Anyway, he was attempting to prevent some drunken hoodlums from entering.

He killed one man or the man died from the effects of the stabbing.

But what would or should a man do. Should he stand idly by while his wife or daughters are raped or are forced to listen to possibly drunken, filthy talk.

I always understood that a man's home was his castle, and it was his right and duty to protect it. This man received a penalty of 5 years—was this justice?

Thanking you,

A READER

DON'T SPOIL OUR PARKS

Sir: It seems to me that building that unsightly high board fence along the river bank at Riverside Park is a mistake. Why shut out the beautiful vista of river from the ball fans, and the view of the park from the bridge.

I have always cherished the hope that successive councils would do all in their power to reclaim some of the early beauty of the riparian strips on the Otonabee instead of making them more of an eyesore than they are. I might go a step further and ask why are all these organizations allowed to clutter beautiful parks. It is true these swimming pools and play enclosures are useful to a point, but why spoil the appearance of a park with them. Would it not be better to acquire other properties and maintain the parks in their natural beautiful state.

The high fence might stop a few right-field flies from going into the river, but that is all, and as there are policemen at every ball game, I don't see that not having a fence along the river would reduce the revenue. A few boats might come alongshore and anchor, but these would not represent more than a dozen people, and if the practice was abused steps could be taken to correct it.

By all means cover that west shore dump with topsoil and seed it, and take that high board fence down along the river at the park.

Let's get a chance to enjoy that Otonabee river, few cities have such a natural asset of beauty.

A TAXPAYER

ECONOMIC HERESY

Sir: In a letter which appeared in your Saturday paper Mr. Kilbon of Bailieboro attributed to Christ the words: "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." These are, of course, the words of Karl Marx.

I wonder when people are going to get over the childish idea that the first duty of a religion is to make everybody prosperous, and that prosperity will save the soul. The reason that economists are all damned is that their thoughts and wishes cannot reach out beyond this world; their heresy is a belief that material comforts will bring spiritual betterment in their train. It is sad to think that they will all go to hell for this.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars. And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads.

And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

And the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth. (Rev. 12: 1, 3, 7-9, 15, 16.)

◇ ◇ ◇

So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him. (Isa. 59: 19.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The teacher had a lot of paper work to do, so she placed her hat in front of the class to write some sentences about it.

The class was silent for about five minutes. Then came the voice of little Edward: "Please, teacher, are there two b's in 'shabby'?"

◇ ◇ ◇

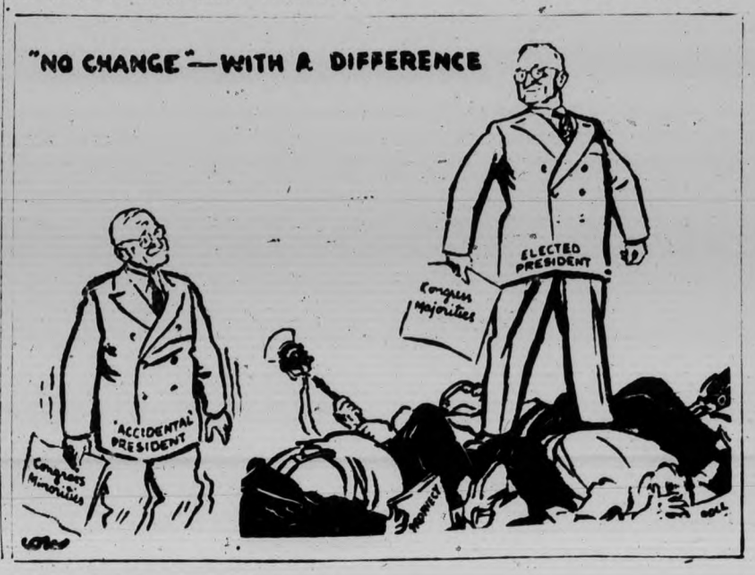
The mental patient walked up to the new superintendent. "We like you much better than the last fellow," he said.

The new official beamed. "Why?" he asked.

"Oh, you seem more like one of us."

◇ ◇ ◇

The two tramps sat with their backs to an old oak tree. Before them was a rippling stream. The day was delightful, yet one of them looked disconsolate.



"You know, Jim," he mused, "this business of tramping your way through life is not what it's cracked up to be. Think it over. Nights on park benches or in a cold barn. Travelling on goods trains and always dodging the police. Being kicked from one town to another. Wondering where your next meal is coming from. Wandering, unwanted everywhere, sneered at by your fellow men."

His voice trailed off as he signed heavily. His companion smiled slightly.

"Well," said the second tramp, "if that's the way you feel, why don't you go and find yourself a job?"

The first sat up with a jerk.

"What?" he scowled. "And admit I'm a failure."

NEWS OF HER HUSBAND'S ILLNESS in Scotland and gossip caused emotionally distraught Mrs. John McInerny to start home from Lindsay before the trial of her daughter, Mrs. Jean McAllister, ended Saturday. The mother wasn't present when her daughter was convicted of manslaughter in the death of her husband, John McAllister. Here Mrs. McInerny says good-bye in Lindsay to Col. Wallace Bunton, Salvation Army.

Say Small Town Gossip Drives Mother Back Home

LINDSAY, Nov. 8.— (CP).— What was described by friends as "small town gossip" drove Mrs. Emily McInerney home to Scotland before she heard the verdict of a jury which convicted her daughter, Mrs. Jane McAllister, 25, of manslaughter.

Mrs. McInerney left nearly $300, donated by district sympathizers, untouched in a bank here.

"Dinna talk tae me about money," a friend quoted her as saying. "All I want is ma hame. I canna help Jeannie now."

She was booked to fly from Montreal Sunday.

The little woman from Greenock was emotionally upset by the nervous strain of the week-long murder trial of her daughter, accused of shooting her husband, John McAllister. Mrs. McInerney was further distraught by news that her husband was ill in Scotland.

Some of the war brides who rallied to help her and her daughter told her that her most private business was being discussed in shops, on the streets and in public meetings.

She told friends she was more than grateful for all that had been done for her, including the raising of $1,000 for a trust fund. But, everywhere she went, she was stared at and she felt that everywhere in this town residents were talking about her.

"Take me hame," she sobbed. "I canna stand it any longer."

Boredom Said Real Killer In Shooting of Arnold Gill

By FRANCIS HENRY LOVE

The real killer of Arnold Gill, 22, in Tory Hill Saturday night when he was shot on the main street during a Hallowe'en row, lives in almost every Ontario village and hamlet. His name is boredom alias ennui. Up in Tory Hill when a man begins to show the signs of boredom we say he is getting bushed. But you don't have to live in the bush to get bushed. You can do it in Toronto or Montreal.

When a lumberjack, working back in the deep bush begins to feel the inroads of the disease he goes to the boss and draws his pay. He heads for the nearest bootlegger and takes on a load of "Jungle Juice." He doesn't remember much of what happens after that, but when he wakes up his mouth tastes like a stable floor, his head feels as if someone had hit him with an axe and he realizes that he will never again enjoy a meal.

But he goes outside and sticks his head in a horse trough and a strange thing has happened. He is no longer bored. Looking back he realizes that he has had the time of his life. He remembers that all the women he saw were beautiful, that they were dressed in bathing suits or less, that they were kind, considerate and loving and that they all thought he was a hell of a swell fellow. In fact, it seems as if everybody had taken him for the King of Swat, even to the kids he had given nickels to. He has something to talk about for the next month or two.

No Emotional Outlets

Of course that kind of thing is passe nowadays. People are expected to act civilized. And yet in these remote villages there is no emotional outlet. There are no recreational facilities at all. There are no clubs except the Hot Stove League that gathers in the village store of a Saturday night but that is restricted to the older people of the male sex.

What do the kids do on a Saturday night? Well sometimes there is a dance within ten or twenty miles so those old enough to go pile into a hot rod and head for the dance. There they meet the gang, maybe one of them has a bottle and it is passed around. With a couple of slugs under his belt he loses his awkwardness and joins in the squares and sweats off most of his excess exuberance. Sometime that isn't enough, so one of the boys takes an extra slug or two and starts a fight.

A couple of guys get a nose bleed, somebody loses a tooth or two, another goes out looking for a steak to put on his eye. The dance breaks up and everybody goes home happy. They have something to argue about until the next dance.

Wanted To Go To a Dance

After two weeks in the deep bush, working from dawn to dusk, that is the outlet that Arnold Gill had found. He had taken his mother to the store to do her shopping, he was in a hurry. He was anxious to get his mother home so he could have the car to go to the dance at Gooderham. He had just carried the groceries out to the car when he was felled by a shotgun blast in the middle of the road.

But what about the forty or fifty younger boys who are too young to go to the dance? They gather in front of one of the stores, a leaderless mob. In the darkness one boy gooses another and ducks. The goosed boy turns around and punches the wrong one, they grapple. The other boys start a hubbub. The storekeeper comes out and chases them.

The boys go down the street and they find a truck parked in the darkness beside the road. For they let the air out of the tires, lack of something better to do. Maybe there is a pick and shovel lying on the bed of the truck. They take them and hide them in the bushes.

Further down the road they stop to tear up a road sign or to move it to a new position to confuse the tourists. They gather in front of another store, and Bill Smith's hound wanders onto the scene. They tie a few cans to his tail and send him home.

A girl comes out of the store and a few snide remarks are passed. Perhaps one of the older boys reveals his weakness for her by telling them to shut up. Immediately he becomes the butt of their jokes. If he doesn't get mad they drop it, but if he can't take it they keep it up until he becomes frenzied, catches one of them and beats him up. This may result in a free-for-all that looks like a football scrimmage. Again a storekeeper breaks it up and they are one the loose again.

Herman Was Vulnerable

The night of October 30th was just such a night in Tory Hill except that it was Hallowe'en. About six months before Herman Woodcock, aged 33, had moved into the village to reside with his cousin Dave. The boys soon discovered that Herman was vulnerable. Perhaps because of his small stature he had a sense of inferiority. Perhaps it was because he was no match for a grown man that he liked to tussle with small boys. It probably gave him a sense of power to be able to wrestle somebody.

It was inevitable that the boys should pounce on Herman the blackneck on Hallowe'en. He went and got his newly purchased gun and fired a shot into the air. But he couldn't bluff the kids, they knew him too well. Only this time Herman wasn't bluffing.

A bang-up Hallowe'en party in the church hall would have prevented the whole thing.

Bombers Take Group Title Over Panthers By 18 Points

Beating the Panthers 15-5 in Orillia on Saturday, the Bombers won the ORFU intermediate group title by 18 points, and now meet Cobourg Ghosts in provincial playdowns. Down eight points from the first of the home-and-home finals, Gord Young's gang staged a hard drive in the first quarter Saturday on the hilly Orillia gridiron but lacked the payoff plays in close. Orillia went ahead 7-0 in the second quarter and added eight points in the third, a fourth-frame rally by the Panthers clicking once but falling far short of the needed points.

It was another hard-hitting struggle, fairly even on play over most of the distance, but Orillia had the edge in experience and payoff plays. They cashed in on a few bad snaps by Panthers, as well as some visitors' fumbles, and they intercepted several forward passes, one leading to a touchdown. Panthers went down fighting hard but were beaten by a better club. Right at the end a near free-for-all between rival players broke out as they fought for the ball as a souvenir, and the referee took possession in order to stop the donnybrook. He later turned it over to Harry Yudin of Panthers, as they were last in possession of it.

Worked Hard

All the linemen worked hard and some good tackling was seen. Of the Panthers' backfield, Plunkett, Jim Conlin, Scriver, Middleton and Hodson caught the eye frequently, and the others battled all the way. Milligan, Bond, D. Ross, O'Brien and White turned in a starry game for the winners. Bond had the longest run of the day. Spike Matthews was an absentee through illness.

All play in the first quarter was well into Orillia territory. A short kick, a buck by Conlin and Panthers were in position but a placement missed. Later a Conlin-Garvey forward set them up again but they lost on a fumble. Scriver went 15 on a lateral but a penalty pushed them back and the kick was out. John Conlin's buck and Middleton's end run started them strongly again in the second but a placement missed, and Orillia drove. Two forwards clicked and Milligan went over, not converted. Shortly after, another long forward paid off and Milligan kicked a point. Near the half, they intercepted a pass, and O'Brien booted a point.

Intercepts Pass

Panthers blocked a kick in the third but lost on downs. A Middleton from Plunkett runback helped but Caldwell intercepted a forward and ran 10 yards to the 30. Burns tackled for a loss and Scriver got the kick out but they fumbled and Milligan kicked a field goal. Later, Bond intercepted a forward as Panthers were pressing and raced 60 yards to the 10-yard chalk. D. Ross plunged over, not converted. The visitors turned it on in the last quarter. Middleton recovered a fumble and twice Scriver got through for yards. Hodson and Jim Conlin moved the ticks and a booted point was called back. But they kept digging to get in close again and Plunkett got a major five yards out on a reverse. The convert missed and Douglas came off hurt at the finish.

The teams:

Panthers—Flying wing, Trimm; halves, VanAllen, Jim Conlin, Plunkett; quarter, Garvey; snap, Fraser; insides, Coughlin, Curtin; middles, Beatty, Lech; outsides, Davidson, McGillis; alternates, Hodson, Middleton, Scriver, John Conlin, Magee, Delaney, Douglas, Fitzgerald, Farr, Spencely, Burns, Berardi.

Chipper Wins Russel Trophy

OTTAWA, Nov. 8. — (CP).—Eric Chipper, 33-year-old star outside wing of the Ottawa Rough Riders, is winner of the Jeff Russel memorial trophy for outstanding sportsmanship and playing ability in the Big Four.

Outside winger Keith English of the Montreal Alouettes, playing his first year in senior football, is holder of rookie of the year award, held by the Riders for the last two years.

These two selections, Chipper and English, followed voting by 17 officials and five governors of the Big Four. They were announced by D. Wes Brown, secretary of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, last night.

The award to Chipper, outstanding placement kicker, followed his brilliant win for Ottawa Saturday when his placement kick in the final seconds of the game gave the Riders a 14-12 victory over the Toronto Argos.

Captain of the Riders, top dogs in the Big Four, Chipper joined the team 10 years ago after one season in junior football in the Junior City League.

Chipper wound up the schedule with a total of 37 points.

PCVS Juniors Get Lead Of 10 Points

Peterborough Collegiate juniors defeated Oshawa 16-6 Saturday on the latter's home field in the first game of a home-and-home series (points to count) for the right to meet the Quinte winner. The return game will be played at the Oval on Thursday, November 11.

PCVS took the lead at the seven minute mark in the first as Brian Young passed to Ted Evans on the Oshawa 25 yard line and the latter carried over for five points, but the convert failed. Both teams battled hard for almost two quarters of scoreless play with PCVS line having an edge over Oshawa who were also good, thwarting repeated PCVS attacks. Young had a margin in the kicking exchanges. Near three-quarter time, Oshawa tied the score as a pass brought play into PCVS territory and Fry plunged 10 yards to score. Mozewsky's convert from placement gave the homesters a one point lead, but Young hoofed a single to tie the score early in the fourth from 15 yards out.

A Neat Pass

The turning point came at the 12 minute mark in the finale as Evans took a great pass from Young to score, following a strong line drive into Oshawa territory by Coach Londry's fighting line. The convert failed but with seconds to go, Roy Armstrong plunged through for another major (though previously injured) following an interception and a 30 yard run by Evans, another by Warren Brown and a plunge by Young to the Oshawa two.

Ted Evans played a great game for Peterborough, closely rivalled by youthful Brian Young and big Roy Armstrong, while Burns' great trackling featured throughout. The line as a whole played a strong two-way game with every player doing his best. For Oshawa, Fry, Mozewsky, White, the Beatons, Mazoris and Harrell looked best with every man good.

PCVS Juniors— Flying wing, Evans; halves, Brown, Armstrong, Gandy; quarter, Young; snap, Frise; insides, Grant, McIlraith; middles, Jopling, Knox; outsides, Burns, Jensen; alternates, Howe, Wood, Langhorne, Foster, Braund, White, Heard, Ackford, Bigford, Cruickshanks, Facendi, Fowler.

Oshawa— Flying wing, Corse; halves, Mozewsky, Mazoris, Harrell; quarter, Fry; snap, White; insides, Beaton, Bilsky; middles, Donovan, Cooper; outsides, Hinks, Mackness; alternates, Clayton, Forde, J. Beaton, Bak, Simkin, Jeffs, Oldfield, Langmaid, Dolby

Referee, Doug Gerrard; umpire, Jas. McNabb.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Trying to tame the beard that walks like a mountain—the 320-pound Ben Morgan—tall Hi Lee, scaling 300, will show in the main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena this Wednesday night. The huge ex-cowpuncher from down Texas way had to give up his job on account of he got too heavy for the broncs and also his long legs kept tripping them on the range. But he's doing okay in the grapple game, and should be a match for the mighty Morgan. Myron Cox clashes with Pat Flanagan in the semi-windup, while Ralph Martin and Charley Green mix in a prelim. There's an extra prelim, too, this week between Nick Futa and Peterborough's Nick Vicchiarelli. Sounds like quite a wrestling card.

Panthers' grid titular hopes were buried Saturday afternoon in the rolling sward Orillia calls a gridiron. It's so bad that the Bombers themselves don't use it for practices. But it wasn't the terra unfirma which beat Gord Young's gang but their own finish or lack of it in scoring position. Bombers earned the duke in a good game, and Panthers had about as much of the play—outplaying 'em in the first and fourth, but trailing in the second and third. Had half a dozen good chances but only clicked once. While Orillia cashed in on Panthers' mistakes, the odd bad snap or fumble and several intercepted passes, to win the group title. And now they meet the Ghosts of Cobourg in the next round.

Didn't And Weren't

All the Panthers worked hard and, had they clicked a few times when deep in paydirt early in the game, things would likely have been different. They didn't and they weren't. So they wind up another season in the hole but all set to go back next year. They did okay after dropping their first two tilts. Won the next four and made a fair show against stiff opposition in group playoffs. It usually takes about three years to build a good ORFU team. Our bunch didn't win a game last year, showed pretty well this year, and by next season—with the added experience and some strengthening—should be about set for a championship. A good outfit, officers and other ranks, and it was a pleasure to travel with them.

Senior PCI-ers downed Pickering College 40-24 in a rugby exhibition here Saturday as open as the Grand Canyon. It was clean and speedy, with the visitors giving Bev Goulding's strong squad plenty of work. Good crowd saw the joust on a slippery surface, with the visitors opening the tallying and going on for two dozen points, though the homesters garnered enough to salt it away safely. Their aerial attack was okay and the whole crew clicked well. Maybe an exhibition for 'em here this week-end. And they'll go into COSSA playoffs Nov. 20 with six straight wins.

Juniors Are Ahead

And Alex Londry's PCVS juniors hold a 10-point lead over Oshawa in their group finals, winning 16-6 in the Motor City on Saturday. Minus Griffin, they finished strong after a hard-fought fray with two late touchdowns. Ted Evans, young Brian Young and Roy Armstrong stood out all afternoon for the winners, and Burns got in some neat tackling. Line went good as a whole, and Oshawa really made it a battle. The return game is at the Oval this Thursday—on Remembrance Day—but we're not sure of the time yet. And it might be quite a battle before the scrappy Motor Citizens bow out of the picture. Winner meets Belleville.

Pete Campbell Dies

Sorry to hear of the death in Toronto of Pete Campbell, president and general manager of the Leafs' ball club. Formerly of Peterborough, Pete was one of the outstanding gridders to go out of here, besides being a good hockeyist. These games, and baseball, were his big interest in sports, and only last spring he tried to put Class "C" professional baseball into Riverside Park in the Border League. Came down several times and offered to give $10,000 toward putting the park in proper shape, but the deal fell through. His own playing career in Toronto terminated when he went overseas in the first div. in the First World War. He was wounded and received the Military Cross. A colorful character and a volatile but likeable chap, the world of sport will miss him.

PCVS Seniors Take Win Over Pickering

By FRED MAYBEE

Wide open football featured Saturday's thrilling game between Pickering College and the local PCVS senior team who downed the visitors 40-24 in a clean, keenly contested exhibition before a fine crowd. Soft footing caused several slips by both teams and a few minor injuries, in possibly the hardest game of the senior season to date.

Pickering opened the scoring t the 10 minute mark as Wilson snatched a fumble on his own five and took it all the way on a great run but failed to convert. Graham and Thomson gained 20 two minutes later, as PCVS steamed up and Green tossed to Northcott for 35 more to the visitors' four, then lateralled to Graham on an extension over right end to click for a major score—converted with a similar pass. Early in the second, Thomson tossed a beauty to Green from the PCVS 35 and the latter scored standing up and converted from placement. Thomson himself crashed over mid-way in the period as a bad kick from Pickering 12 and a plunge by Graham carried to the visitors' five. Conversion failed. Near quarter's end, a local fumble enabled Pickering to score as Whiting tossed a forward to Wilson across the line from PCVS 18 and Adams drop-kicked the convert to make it 17-11 at half time.

Got Another

Al Payne plunged over early in the second half to score as the PCVS line continued to block in great style and passes and plunges carried to Pickering's three. Green converted. Seconds later, he pulled a neat reverse to right end and ran 20 yards again to score but the convert failed. Pickering fought back and a 65 yard run by Heslop was followed by a 30 yard gain by Sumner to the local two from whence Umphrey plunged over and Adams converted, late in the quarter. A Green to Swanston pass on a fake drop-kick formation on the visitors' 22 at the six minute mark in the fourth, clicked for five more and Green converted from placement. Next, Payne plunged 18 to Pickering's 20 and Northcott scored as he took a 25 yard pass from Green who converted to Thomson with another neat peg. Taking to his legs again, Green ran the kick-off through the entire Pickering team, only to have the score nullified by illegal blocking by his mates outside the 10 yard limit. Pickering scored the final touch of the game on a sleeper play as Umphrey tossed to the uncovered Bull on the PCVS 18 at the 12 minute mark. Heslop converted.

PCVS tried 11 passes with seven good, three resulting in major scores and two good for converts while the visitors obtained two tries via the aerial route but clicked on but four of 10 passes. For the locals, Thomson bore the brunt as Graham suffered injury in the third and played a powerful game at centre secondary, while Green, Payne, Swanston, Grainger, Robinson, Hempstead, Northcott, Coon, Killingbeck, Lowes and Beavis all looked very good. Graham played his usual good game despite injury and the others gave their best. Whitney, Wilson, Adams, Bull, Heslop and McIntosh were best for Pickering.

PCVS Seniors — Flying wing, Coon; halves, Northcott, Graham, Thomson; quarter, Green; snap, Killingbeck; insides, Hempstead, Buck; middles, Lowes, Beavis; outsides, Swanston, Grainger; alternates, Welsh, Fitzpatrick, Lane, Wright, English, Hamblin, Woodcock, Payne, Robinson, Ward, Sergeant.

Pickering College — Flying wing, Sumner; halves, Chaput, Bakes, O'Neill; quarter, Whitney; snap, Lawrence; insides, Renness, Lanier; middles, Daboll, Reynolds; outsides, Wilson, Bull; alternates, Dobson, Mencik, Umphrey, Adams, Timmins, Mould, Richardson, Bunce, Heslop, McIntosh, Lubarsky.

8 Canadians Make Debut On Paris Team

By ALAN HARVEY

PARIS, Nov. 8.—(CP).—When eight youthful Canadians made their 1948 hockey debut with le Racing Club de Paris, French newspapers devoted more space to their accents than to their stick-handling abilities.

Particularly intrigued was Le Figaro. It said that the French spoken by Jerry Genest of Otterburn, Man., a Racing Club forward, was the kind one doesn't hear around Paris any more.

Parisian French or no, Racing Club won its opening game 9-3 against a London all-star teams. Playing before a slim crowd of 2,000 in the Palais des Sports, the Paris team thus took up where the 1947 club left off.

Last year, sparked by such veterans as Ossie and Herbie Carnegie, negro stars from Northern Ontario, Racing Club defeated all European competition with ease. The Carnegie brothers are missing this season, but Le Figaro predicts Racing Club will be "tres dangereus rivaux" nevertheless.

The eight Canadians, recruited principally from Winnipeg and Sudbury, live in a small hotel in the Victor Hugo district of Paris. They are billed as amateurs and will play most of their games in the Palais, a dimly-lighted auditorium whose ice surface isn't up to the standard of most Canadian rinks.

The Racing Club directorate, which decides what teams will meet the Canadian-dominated squad, includes Charlie Michaelis and Jo Longmans, well known in Parisian sporting circles. Playing coach is Pete Bessone of Boston, one of two Americans on the team.

Wage Increase

HAMILTON—Canadian Westinghouse Company here has granted its workers a general wage increase of 13 cents an hour in a new working agreement with the United Electrical Workers (CIO). The new basic rate was not given.

Morgan Tackles Lee In Main Go

An outstanding wrestling card with an extra match (four in all) will go in the Brock Arena ring on Wednesday. The enormous matman Big Ben Morgan hooks up with another grappling colossus in Sky-Hi Lee the Ozark Giant. Lee now weighs around the 300-pound Viccharelli mark himself but has none of the beefiness of the 320-pound Morgan.

Sky-Hi has been hearing of the success of the bearded Morgan in these parts and is eager to test his rival in the super-dreadnought division. It should be a mighty clash.

In the semi-final Pat Flanagan will test Myron Cox, the toughie from Lodi, California. Cox is new to local mat fans.

In the third bout Ralph Martin meets the English grappler Charlie Green. Green made a decided hit in his first appearance here.

Nick Viccharelli the local star takes on the man that beat him last year, Nick Futa.

Wings Plaster Bruins 7-3 To Hold NHL Leadership

By The Canadian Press

Beaten 2-0 by Montreal Canadiens Saturday night, Detroit Red Wings soared back Sunday to plaster Boston Bruins 7-3 and protect their first-place spot in the National Hockey League.

Montreal's win—Bill Durnan's third shutout this year—moved Canadiens into a second place tie with Boston, four points behind Detroit.

New York Rangers battled Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3-3 draw Saturday and then dropped a 4-2 decision to Chicago Black Hawks. That game put Rangers and Black Hawks into a tie for the cellar position with four points each, three behind Toronto.

Seven men scored Detroit's seven goals as Red Wings finished their toughest week-end this year by polishing off Bruins.

Ted Lindsay, Jerry Couture, Jim McFadden, Pete Horeck, Bill Quackenbush, George Gee and Bud Poile got them.

Grant Warwick got two goals for Boston before being banished in the final period for fighting back at Gordon Howe.

Makes 26 Saves

Harry Lumley made 26 saves against Canadiens in the Saturday game, but it wasn't enough to stop big Butch Bouchard. Bouchard, who scored only four goals in all of last season, scored twice in less than a minute of the first period.

Although the week-end left Red Wings four points ahead, Montreal had one and Boston two games in hand

Bill Moe, just nicely recovered from the pre-season car accident that badly crippled the Rangers, was carried from the ice Sunday when Doug Bentley inadvertently broke his stick across Moe's mouth, loosening six teeth.

Gets 2 Goals

Bentley potted two goals as the Hawks got their second win this year, with Bill Mosienko and Jack Stewart each getting one. Edgar Laprade got both of them for Rangers.

Against Toronto the night before, certain victory was snatched from the Rangers with 54 seconds remaining. Trailing 3-2 with less than two minutes to go, Coach Hap Day pulled goalie Turk Broda and sent six men against Chuck Rayner. After two faceoffs in Ranger territory, Ted Kennedy pushed the puck home.

Rookie Clint Albright, Don Raleigh and Pentti Lund scored for Rangers with Harry Watson getting Toronto's other two goals.

Argos Eliminated From Big Four Football Playoffs In Last Game

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Argonauts came within 12 seconds of beating Ottawa Rough Riders—but even a victory wouldn't have put them into the Big Four football playoffs.

Their chances were killed by the 26-9 beating Montreal Alouettes gave Hamilton Wildcats.

By half-time Argos knew they were out of the picture after three consecutive years of winning Dominion titles. But they died with their boots on.

Trailing 11-0 at the start of the last quarter, they fought back into a 12-11 lead. Then, with 12 seconds left, Eric Chipper kicked a 35-yard field goal to give the Rough Riders a 14-12 victory.

In the Western Conference, Saskatchewan Roughriders halted the mighty Calgary Stampeders with a 4-4 tie, leaving the Western title hanging on the outcome of the second game of the two-game total-point series. The game is in Calgary Thursday.

Win 27th Game

The University of Western Ontario set a Canadian record by racking up their 27th undefeated game, a 34-9 victory over McGill. In the other Senior Intercollegiate game, a 34-9 victory over McGill. In the other Senior Intercollegiate game, Bruce Cummings kicked the University of Toronto to a 4-0 win over Queens.

Ottawa and Alouettes open their Big Four playoff round in Ottawa Thursday. The second game of the total points series will be in Montreal Saturday.

In the Ontario Rugby Union, unbeaten Hamilton Tigers hold a one-game edge over Toronto Beaches Indians. Hamilton won the first game of the best-of-three series 8-0 in Toronto Friday with the second game due Saturday in Hamilton.

Bob Paffrath had shot the Rough Riders into a second-quarter lead by going five yards for a touchdown that Eric Chipper converted. Brian Lynch snared an Argo lateral and went 16 yards for another major in the third.

Then Argos fought back. Jack Wedley broke through to block a kick and Royal Copeland dove on the bouncing ball as it skittered across the Ottawa goal line. Joe Krol converted. Minutes later Rod Smylie blocked another kick and two plays later Copeland hurdled the Ottawa line for another major that Krol converted.

Last-Minute Blow

The game looked in the bag after Krol sent a towering punt deep into the Ottawa end zone. But little Wilf Tremblay, who appeared hopelessly trapped, ran it out to his own 30. With little more than a minute to play, Ottawa rolled down the field to set the stage for Chipper's game winning placement.

Rolling for 19 first downs and 235 yards rushing, Montreal completely smothered Wildcats, leaving Hamilton with only one win at the end of the season.

Virgil Wagner of Alouettes Wildcats and Keith English—went for two touchdowns against winner of the Big Four rookie award this year—and Bob Cunningham each went over once. Steve Nemeth converted all four of them and Fred Kijek kicked two singles.

Bill Myrmylyk kicked a field goal and converted Bill Damiano's touchdown for Hamilton.

Although six Mustang regulars were out of action, Western put on its greatest offensive of the season as Jack Parry scored three touchdowns and three converts against McGill. Doug Gray got two touchdowns and Blake Taylor added the other.

Quarterback Rocky Robillard converted his own touchdown and kicked two singles to account for eight McGill points and Doug Heron booted a single that Parry couldn't run out.

Bruce Cummings booted a field goal and a single in the first quarter as Varsity and Queen's battled knee-deep in mud. In a third-quarter drive the Gael's battled right to the one-yard line but failed to dent the Blues' line.

Steve O'Neill, who gave Detroit one world championship and three American League runner-up clubs in his six-year stay here, was fired Saturday as manager of the Tigers. He was the seventh major league pilot to lose his job this year.

One of the other six, Stanley (Bucky) Harris, deposed New York Yankees manager, has been rumored as a likely successor to O'Neill.

An announcement from Detroit's general manager, Billy Evans, said no successor has been chosen. It said O'Neill's contract is not being renewed for 1949 because of a belief "that a change in field management would be desirable."

Steve Levantis, 32-year-old veteran Toronto Argonaut lineman who has played with five Dominion championship football teams, Saturday announced at Toronto he is hanging up his playing togs for good. The burly middle-wing was assistant coach this season, supervising line duties under Edder Morris.

Herbie Burron of Winnipeg, who played with St. Boniface, Man., Seals when they won the Memorial Cup in 1938, has been appointed coach of Winnipeg Canadiens Junior Hockey club, it was learned Sunday night at Winnipeg. He replaced Hugh Millar who was unable to obtain his release from Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League to coach the Winnipeg club.

President Clair Warner of the Western Football Conference announced Sunday night at Regina that Hec Crichton of Toronto will officiate at Thursday's game in Calgary when the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders meet to decide the West's Grey Cup football entry.

Henri Rochon, Canada's ranking tennis player, Saturday moved into the quarter-finals of the Mexican National Tennis tournament at Mexico City. Battling from behind, Rochon defeated Rafael Ortena, Mexico, 2-6, 3-6, 9-7, 6-2, 7-5. In the critical third set, with the game score 2-5 against him, the Canadian defended against match points three times.

Jack Cowan, University of British Columbia soccer star, has received a fat contract to play with Dundee United of the Scottish second division. He said Sunday at Vancouver he will receive $8,000 for signing a contract, all expenses to the British Isles and a regular salary during the playing season.

At Johannesburg, Freddie Mills, world light heavyweight boxing champion, Saturday night knocked out Johnny Ralph, South African heavyweight king, in the eighth round of a scheduled 12-round non-title bout.

Walter Diggleman and Hugo Koblet, the Swiss tandem, won the six-day bike race at Chicago's International Amphitheatre Saturday night. The veteran Belgian team of Roger de Corte and Andre Maelbranque were second. They matched the winners on laps which totalled 2,401 miles but trailed 1,113 to 849 in points based on sprints.

Three Bargains In Line For Horse Title

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Canada's 1948 racing season ended at Dufferin Park here today, leaving three top-flight candidates for the title of "Canadian Horse of the Year"—Winnipeg-bred Victory Gift, Oshawa-bred Canada's Teddy and Last Mark, King's Plat winner owned by Jim Fair of Cainsville, Ont., and each was a bargain-basement pickup.

The award won't be decided on the track but "best-horse" dicussion will probably add zip to annual arguments between loyal east and west sport fans.

In purse earnings for the season, Fair's colt has an edge of $170 with a $21,570 total against Victory's Gifts $21,400. Canada's Teddy is a poor third with only $15,705.

But Teddy fans points to the four-year-old's won-and-lost column which showns nine firsts in 12 stars—he was an "also ran" in the others. Victory Gift came up with seven victories, three seconds and an also ran in 11 starts while Last Mark's record showed the bay colt with five firsts, three seconds and five times out of the money in 13 calls to the post.

Rags-to-Riches

Apart from their records, the case history of each is a rags-to-riches story.

A few years ago Scotty Kennedy of Winnipeg bought Omar's Gift from his friend, R. J. Speers, for a token of 37 cents—all the money he had on him at the time. Victory Gift is the first foal from the 37-cent horse and rates about the greatest bargain in Canadian racing.

Right behind comes Canada's Teddy, now owned by Morris Fishman of Toronto. Teddy's dam, Wee Toddle II, was won for $1 by an Oshawa man in a raffle. The owner took the mare to R. S. McLaughlin's Oshawa stable and was given a service, free of charge, to Teddy Wrack. Result of the mating was Canada's Teddy.

Jim Fair paid $215 for his colt's parents—$50 for the sire, Koenigsmark, in 1933 and $165 in 1922 for McTab, the mare that foaled Last Mark when she was 25.

Muddy Queen's Squad Whips McGill 12-5

MONTREAL, Nov. 8—(CP)—A mud-spattered Queen's University squad mucked their way over a mud-covered gridiron to a 12-5 victory over McGill Redmen here Saturday in an intercollegiate intermediate football league game played before empty stands.

Queen's broke into the scoring column mid-way through the first quarter after they had sloshed through to the Montreal eight-yard line. Pryor slid the rest of the way for the touchdown.

The convert atempt failed when Queen's Bolton kicked a mound of mud instead of the ball.

In the second quarter Montrose ploughed across the McGill line for Queen's second major. Jack Cuddy's placement was good for the convert point.

The visitors earned an extra point when McGill's Don Wilson was rouged on Parkinson's kick after slipping on his own goal line.

The Redmen came through late in the third quarter for their sole touchdown which came after Jack Dannaher picked up a blocked Queen's kick at midfield and skidded the rest of the way to paydirt. The convert failed.

Hamilton Tigers Bounce Back, Wallop Indians

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Tigers came right back and walloped Stratford Indians 7-0 Saturday night, after the Indians overpowered them 7-1 last Friday.

The Senior Ontario Hockey Association league-leading Tigers had little trouble disposing of the Indians. They came out of a scoreless first period to count four goals in the second and three in the third.

In another O.H.A. senior game, Toronto Marlboros grabbed the third-place position by defeating Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 2-1.

In the junior loop, Oshawa Generals moved into a third-place tie with Barrie Flyers as they downed Galt Rockets 7-1 in the junior loop; Toronto St. Michael's College juniors downed the fourth-place Guelph Biltmores 6-1 and the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees defeated the cellar-dwelling Toronto Marlboros 5-3.

The famous old Conick, Shillington and Brady trio led the Tigers to victory, the former with three goals and an assist. Shillington notched a goal and two assists while Brady was credited with three assists.

Breaks Deadlock

Toronto, led by shifty Johnny McLellan, broke a 1-1 deadlock early in the third period. McLellan blasted the puck into the open corner of the net that Pelletier didn't see.

Marlies jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first period when Bill Johnson scored on a goal-mouth scramble. Fleet Leo Curik clicked for Kitchener when he beat Howie Harvey on a hard, long shot.

Led by Ted O'Connor with two goals, Oshawa Generals easily downed Galt. Galt had little to offer on the attack and it wasn't until the last 30 seconds of regulation play that Bouycoff slapped in a pass from Pete Tkachuk to rob netminder Stew Hendry of a shutout.

Ron Stephen and Dick Gamble put Oshawa into a 4-0 lead in the second period. Third period goals by Hal Hooper, Chuck Blair and Stephen clinched the game.

St. Michael's took an early, first period lead, Joe Decourcy scoring when the game was less than two minutes old. Guelph roared back and Ron Plumb got the eqalizer minutes later. Gord Hannigan put the Irish back in the lead on a lone rush before the period ended.

St. Michael's came out of a scoreless second period and notched three goals in the final frame—Marshall, Hannigan and Bonhomme taking the honors.

Take Lead

St. Catharines took a 2-0 lead in the second period on goals by Bud Evans and Fred Hilderbrand. Toronto drove back and tied the game up shortly after—Neil Grenke and Moe Garland scoring. But Gerry Toppazzini drove back to St. Kitt's and got the extra goal for Teepees.

Hildebrand counted early in the third period to give St. Catharines a 4-2 margin on a three-way play with Toppazzini and Bill Bushlem. Minutes later, George Armstrong cut the lead down when he counted for Marlies. Marlboros pushed hard to get back in the game but a goal-mouth scramble netted St. Catharines one goal with 25 seconds remaining in the game.

Only one game is slated in the O.H.A. tonight. Owen Sound Mercurys clash with Stratford seniors.

Colorful Sports Figure Campbell of Leafs Dies

PETER CAMPBELL

TORONTO, Nov. 8— (CP).— The man who took over Toronto's baseball Maple Leafs and lifted them in two years from the International League cellar to the pennant died in hospital yesterday.

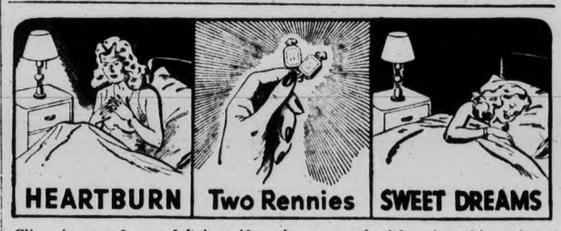
He was Peter Campbell, 56, president and general manager of the club and one of Canada's most colorful sports figures. He had been ill since mid-September with pneumonia and heart complications.

Himself a noted hockey and football star in his youth, he was one of the founders of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Mr. Campbell and a group of associates took over the Leafs in 1941 when the team's fortunes were at the lowest ebb in history and talk of moving the franchise was rife. Two years later, Leafs won the International League pennant. They had won only one in the previous 16 years.

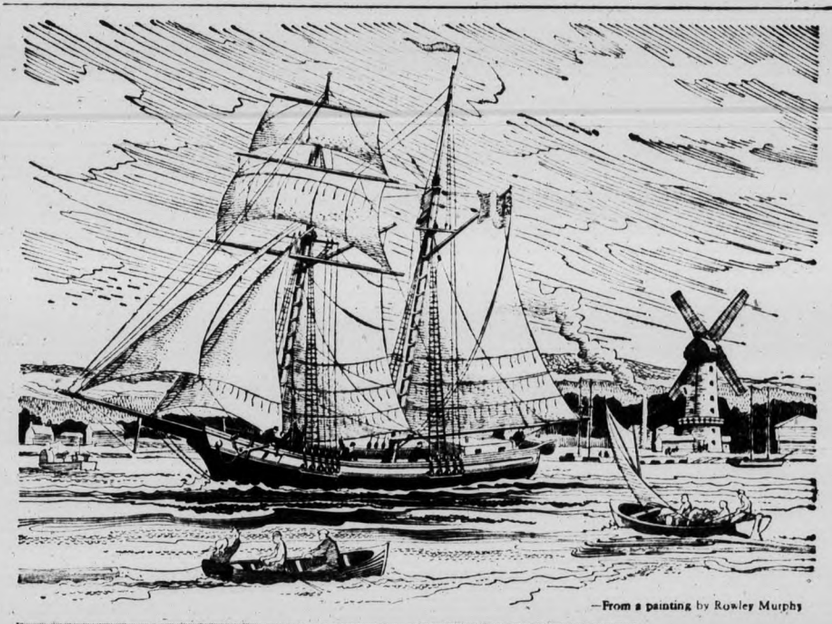
Mr. Campbell never won a Little World series nor another pennant. But he put the club on a sound financial basis.

Youth in Peterborough



He was born at Petrolia and spent his youth in Peterborough.

At Trinity College School, in which he never lost interest, he captained both football and hockey teams. Serving overseas in the First World War with the 48th Highlanders, he won the Military Cross.



Mr. Campbell was unmarried and is survived by a brother, Allan.

After the war, he helped form the brokerage film of Campbell, Stratton & Company and later joined the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Mr. Campbell battled for everything his club achieved. Once he stormed into an International League meeting, demanding the other clubs sell him players so Toronto could quit the cellar. He got them.

The year was 1840...

. . . the month, May—an historic cargo was aboard the schooner "Fly" when she stood out from Gooderham & Worts wharf.

As her master, James Gooden, felt the lift of Lake Ontario's swells, it is unlikely that his thoughts went beyond the shipmaster's routine concern for his cargo's safe delivery. But this was no ordinary cargo—for the "Fly" carried the first recorded shipment of manufactured goods from Upper Canada!

The "Fly" sailed only to Montreal. Today, 108 years later, by ship and train, truck and plane, Canadian goods go to every part of the world. The enterprising men who led Canada to its present position as a great trading nation were nourished by the freedom of thought and action won for them at the polling place.

When you cast your ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked, and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Legion Takes Soccer Go And Ovens Cup

Canadian Legion climaxed a successful soccer season Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park, when they defeated the O'Halloran eleven by a 2-0 count before a fair attendance in the final of the Mayor Ovens injured player's cup.

Captain Tom Foster, Sr., accepted the trophy on behalf of the winners from the donor of the cup; while Harry Pyle, O'Halloran's complimented the winners.

O'Halloran's took the intiative to pepper the Legion goalie, who responded with spectacular saves. To off-set the pressure, Legion half-backs kept swinging the ball from wing to wing in an endeavour to get within scoring position. At this point, Bert Grant and Harry Pyle collided and had to receive medical attention but returned later in the game with bangaged heads. Pyle, at centre-half for O'Halloran's outplayed the opposition with accurate tackling backed with perfect positional play to keep Jones, goalie, busy saving his charge. Quickly Craig inaugurated a close-passing style of play that gave the Legion the necessary punch through George and Jack Downer on the left wing. The former was injured in blocking a shot but the ball travelled over to Newt who tapped the ball into the twine. Legion 1, O'Hallorans 0.

Keen Tactics.

On resuming both elevens had a re-arranged attack in an endeavor to break the close-passing and combination prevailing. Nothing tangible transpired for the next half-hour except dangerous raids on goal. In the last 15 minutes, Duffus arrived to strengthen the loser's attack; while Craig, Legion kept plying the ball up the centre where Jack Downer evaded two men quickly to centre over to Henry Foster who picked the corner of the upright for a second counter. During the rest of the period Art O'Halloran tested Jones with terrific drives in a last-minute drive to score but without success.

O'Halloran's— J. Chamberlain, goal; W. Denisen and Art Downer, full backs; D. Gray, H. Pyle and C. B. Smart half backs; E. Boon, A. O'Halloran, A. Featherstone, W. Cribbis and S. Seabrook forwards. Subs —H. Coyle, T. Scott, J. Duffus.

Canadian Legion— A. Jones, goal; T. Foster, jr. and Al. Downer full backs; B. Grant, J. Craig, and C. Murduff half backs; H. Foster, A. Dunn, N. Downer, G. Downer and J. Downer forwards. Subs—A. Broomley, B. Woodcock.

Referee— T. Garland. Linesmen —J. Hennessy and E. Lane.

Autumn Season Discouraging On Broadway

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(CP)—Theatre addicts who took a look at the status of the New York stage after two months of the Fall season found the situation a mite discouraging for hopeful playwrights and producers.

Only nine of the 18 stage shows launched on Broadway between Sept. 1 and Nov. 1 are still running. In sporting terms that represents a 50-50 batting average.

The stayers include such box office successes as "Love Life," "Magdalena," "Life With Mother," "Summer and Smoke" and "Where's Charley?"

Gets Fridolin Play

Theresa Helburn, co-administrator of the Theatre Guild, has obtained the United States rights to "Tit-Coq" ("Little Rooster"), a play by Fridolin, French-speaking actor celebrated in Quebec province. "Tit-Coq" was a success in Montreal when it played there recently.

Quick Demise

Last week's only opening — "Minnie and Mr. Williams" — waited for 25 years before being brought to the stage. Despite the top-billed Eddie Dowling and Josephine Hull, it lasted only three nights in its Broadway environment.

"Minnie and Mr. Williams" concerned a dour Anglican clergyman (Dowling) in a Welsh village at the turn of the century, and his amiable but not-too-bright wife (Miss Hull), handicapped by a wooden leg but certainly not stricken dumb.

Into the household arrived an emissary of Satan in the form of a little girl, played with diabolical charm by Elizabeth Ross. The powers of evil worked a miracle in giving Mrs. Williams a new leg, and from then on things became exceedingly abstract, along the lines of: If good comes out of evil can it really be good?

Miss Hull was at her best in the role, complete with Welsh intonation, but was unfairly handicapped by a lot of rather unnecessary slapstick concerning the leg. Dowling, always good as a beside-the-stage narrator, unfortunately sounded almost exactly the same in the active part.

Aisle Jottings

"Harvey" celebrated its fourth birthday on Broadway last Monday night. The anniversary performance of the Mary Chase comedy about an invisible rabbit was the 1,688th. Currently Joe E. Brown is playing the role of Elwood P. Dowd, the rabbit's pal.

THE TROLLEY CAR, bearing home night workers from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber plant, carried 80 persons, 17 of whom were injured early Saturday morning when in collision with a Hamilton bus. It was not until some time after the crash that the two vehicles, welded together by the terrific impact of the crash, could be separated.

Been Studying Snow Problems For 14 Years

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Canada has at least one snowman who never melts, and he's been under exposure for 14 years.

His name is George J. Klein and he is a small and pleasant man. He was born in Hamilton and went to the University of Toronto, but it wasn't until he came to Ottawa that he became a showman.

A physicist with the National Research Council, he started in 1934 when the RCAF asked the council to find the best type of ski for aircraft. Mr. Klein and his aides eventually concluded that they had first to have a fundamental knowledge of snow.

From scratch, he's been working on snow and problems arising from its presence ever since. At 44, he's as enthusiastic about his job as ever and is looked upon as the Canadian expert on the subject at a time when Canada is studying her winter problems as never before.

Being a snowman has meant exposure to Winter's meanest efforts in open fields year in, year out, but Mr. Klein says he can still look upon the aesthetic side of the season, that he has never come down with a serious illness — he wears airmen's clothes — from it, that he has no very strong opinions about the merits or demerits of cold weather.

He still like to ski and his six-year-old son George, Jr., has been on skis since the age of three. Some of his best leads in the study of snow came from chewing the rag with other scientists on week-end skiing jaunts.

He builds snowmen for his two children in his frontyard, and on a trip to the winter experimental base at Churchill, Man., he took a busman's holiday and learned how to build an igloo. He can't build one this far south, though, because the snow isn't right.

Fisherman Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Roy Sykes Van Vlack, 68, noted Canadian marksman and fisherman, died in hospital Saturday. He had been in ill health for several years.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN, during a stop-over at St. Louis, en route to Washington, holds up for the benefit of the throng that turned out to greet him a copy of "The Chicago Daily Tribune," which was published early on election night with the headline, "Dewey Defeats Truman." The President's smiling commentary was, "That is one for the book." At the left is Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann, of St. Louis.

20 Million Dollar Super Highway Opens New Wealth For Chicoutimi

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT.

QUEBEC, Nov. 8 — (CP). — For the settlers of Quebec's wooded kingdom of the Saguenay, times are fabulous. In 10 years new industries, radio stations, cinemas, modern stores, new parishes, and a new diocese have sprouted in the rock and timberland.

Last week a $20,000,000 superhighway that promises to make the land the gateway to rich North eastern Quebec opened after four years' building. It cuts the travel time between Quebec and their "big city"—Chicoutimi—to a two-hour drive.

To the people of booming Chicoutimi it seemed almost too good to be true. During the last week, they travelled in 30 hired buses to view the new road, and some 2,000 autoists glided over its 103 miles, a government release said.

Oldtimer agreed "la route" had put an end to the Saguenay's traditional handicap—poor communications.

For years the Saguenay region was colonization territory. Before a rail line linked Quebec and Chicoutimi at the turn of the century, it was more than a day's trip by boat.

Used Rough Road

Twenty-five years ago when Chicoutimi's population was 8,937 a rough, bouncing 200 mile road was cut through. Later a slightly better road reduced the distance to 150 miles from Quebec City.

The war and hydro expansion at Shipshaw in 1943-1943 started the present boom.

Chicoutimi's population, 16,000 in 1941, soared. The same was true of the nearby aluminum town of Arvida.

In 1944, the Quebec Government launched the road project after engineers' parliamentary estimates figured the cost at $6,000,000.

To do the job Canada's two biggest road construction firms were hired and $5,000,000 worth of equipment was brought in. Hundreds of men were set to blasting away at rock mountains, draining swamps, and levelling valleys.

In one spot three power transmission towers had to be moved. At another engineers altered the course of winding Montmorency River.

Swamp drainage involved dredging to a depth of 40 feet through large areas. Gaping holes had to be filled with stones and sand.

The project came into public prominence last winter when the Liberal Opposition in the Quebec Legislature attacked the Union Nationale Government for what it called "waste" on the Chicoutimi road.

The Government pointed to engineering difficulties and argued that the future of the region justified the project.

The road was a political issue during last summer's provincial election campaign and charges and counter-charges flew from the hustings.

2 Cars Wrecked 6 People Hurt In Six Mishaps

Six persons were injured, two cars completely wrecked and several other cars and vehicles damaged in weekend accidents in the city.

Most serious was a two-car crash on Lansdowne St. shortly after Saturday noon. It was followed, 15 minutes later, by another mishap when an oncoming car struck and injured two persons in the large group of spectators attracted by the first collision. Injured were: Miss Eleanour Mack, 181 Edinburgh St. and Fred Wilkenson, 604 Stewart St., both 21 years old. They were hit by a car driven by John W. Corkery, 465 Gilmour St., unable to stop in time to avoid running towards the crowd.

Involved in the original collision were the cars of John D. Baldock, RR 11, Peterborough and Beverley Bruce of 138 Rubidge St. Both cars were smashed by the crash. Lewis McIlmoyle, owner of the car driven by Bruce, and a passenger in it, had a severe cut on the nose and Mrs. Baldock, driving in the other car, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment for a blow on the head.

More than 200 persons clustered around the collision, despite police efforts to restrain them. PC C. J. McGillen, investigating officer, shouted a warning when he saw the Corkery car approaching the crowd, but Wilkenson and Miss Mack, standing on the pavement, were both hit. Miss Mack was knocked unconscious and had cuts on her head and one foot. Wilkenson had cuts and bruises on his legs.

The Corkery car continued on, striking the already-wrecked Baldock car.

Mrs. J. Morrow, 225 Euclid Ave., a passenger on a city bus, received back injuries Saturday evening. She was thrown to the floor of the bus when it was in collision with a car driven by James Moffat, RR 9, Peterborough. Bus drive was Jack Knox, 507 George St. Both vehicles had some damage done. PC D. J. Farthing investigated.

Sixteen-year-old Leona Lucans of 513 Albert St. was injured under the chin, requiring stitches, when she was knocked from her bicycle at Park and Rink streets. The bicycle was in collision with a car driven by Allie E. Watkins, 545 Bethune St. The car's rear fender caught the bicycle and threw the girl to the pavement. Neither car nor bicycle was damaged.

Minor damage to both vehicles was caused in a collision at Charlotte and George streets between cars of Marshall Keast of Cordova Mines and Bernard Allan, 465 Bolivar S. PC Louis Rodrique investigated.

A total of about $100 damage was the result of a traffic tangle on No. 28 Highway about a mile north of Peterborough. Three cars and a Ferguson Bus were involved. Bus driver was Elwood Manley, 30 Edgewater Blvd. Drivers of the cars were: Ben Epstein, 257 O'Carroll Ave.; John J. Brethour, Galt and E. Whitley, 611 Weller St.

Investigating were Provincial Constables Harry Cooke and Bell.

THIRTEEN MEN FROM MALTA, four wives and one child, are residents of Peterborough. The men are all employed at the CGE, and National Employment Service officials report that they are good workmen and citizens. Some of the group living at 139 James St. are, Left to Right, Anthony Abela, Mrs. Michael Camilleri, her daughter Jane, her husband and William Debattista.

Maltese Await First Snowfall With Eagerness

There are 18 Maltese citizens living and working in Peterborough at the present time and when the acute housing problem is lessened, more women and children will come out to join their workmen husbands, all of whom are employed by the CGE. The first group of nine arrived in June followed by four more in July and four wives and one child arrived within the last two weeks.

Typical of this group from one of Great Britain's oldest Crown Colonies, interviewed by the press on Friday evening at their James St., boarding house were Mr. and Mrs. Michael Camilleri, their year-old daughter Jane, Anthony Abela and William Debattista. They are happily settled, though crowded, and each one wonders what their first Canadian winter will be like. The only snow they have seen is in the movies and they are wondering how they will stand it.

Their experiences on the heavily-bombed island home in the Mediterranean during World War II was the main topic of conversation which the men told about in very good English with a slight Italian accent. They were among the 25,000 Maltese citizens who worked in the large naval dockyards. This area was subject to almost continuous air strafing and bombing by the enemy for nearly three years. The men, like many generations before them, apprenticed to trades in the dockyards at an early age. Camilleri had eight years service, Abela 20 and Debattista 17 years in their trades of engine artificers and all worked together. Until a year ago, they were installing new naval apparatus in submarines.

Shops Underground

The Naval repair shops are installed in soft rock caverns from 25 to 75 feet underground and during the constant air poundings, they were too far from the surface to hear what was going on. Air raid warnings were sounded to keep them underground and on one occasion Camilleri was "bombed in" with all surface exits closed with rubble for five days. He and his companions had neither food nor water during this time and were trapped until rescue squads dug them out. With everyone in Malta on the front line, Mrs. Camilleri worked in the stores department underground for two years. The population was dispersed out of the congested target area of the capital city Valletta, to the country where anti-aircraft batteries were located every quarter of a mile.

They worked for very small wages, according to Canadian standards, and there was little or no recreation. A grim relief during their off-shift hours was to watch aerial dog fights and they recalled seeing the late "Buzz" Beurling, Canadian combat ace, in action many times.

Anthony Abela is working steadily toward bringing his wife to Peterborough by spring and has purchased a house on Albert St., which he hopes to be able to move into by that time. He has no children and, unlike William Debattista, who has three, will find it an easier task to get settled.

Five hundred Maltese immigrants have come to Canada this year, they said. The men are directed to manning pool barracks at Fingal, Ont., and distributed from there to manufacturing centres that can absorb their trades. They are all of the Roman Catholic faith and all have found help from church organizations in whatever parish they happen to be located.

Besides the people interviewed, their following countrymen are located in various parts of the city, two couples at Chemong; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Serra, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Porter, Anthony Rizzo, Mr. and Mrs. Salvo Fenech, Vincent Camilleri, Alfred Attard, Joseph Zammitt, George Gatt, Emmanuel Grech and Orenzo Galea.

11 Dogs, 10 Cats Die In City Accidents During October, Humane Society Reports

During October 51 dogs, 58 cats and two pigeons were painlessly killed by the Peterborough Humane Society, the society reported at its monthly meeting.

In that period 11 dogs and 10 cats were killed on city streets by motor traffic. Through the efforts of the society six cats were placed in homes and 14 dogs returned to their owners.

Inspector Gerald Dunford said in his monthly report that two trips were made to farms investigating possible cases of cruelty to animals. At one farm on Highway 28 a collar was ordered off a horse when it was discovered that the animal had a sore neck.

The inspector was informed that at the other farm the stock had no water to drink. It was learned that the farmer was reparing his pump and the situation was only temporary.

Civic Arena Fund $34,800 Finish Interior By Nov. 25

A double shift of carpenters and laborers is engaged this week on the interior of the Civic Arena as the contractor has speeded up work to meet the deadline of November 25, Dick Ouimet, general chairman, reported today.

The exterior of the building is complete and it remains only for the crews to build the seats, lunch counter, and dressing rooms. The city water main and sewers are finished, and the only missing link appears to be a wide sidewalk from Park St. to the front entrance.

Total donations to the fund, both in cash and pledges, now total $34,840. Sizeable gifts received recently include: Peterborough Canoe Co., $150; W. A. Richardson, $50; Conroy Delivery Service, $25; Jack Steinkrauss, $50; Industrial Staff, London Life, $25; Peterborough Lock Co., $250; Weston's Bread, $25; Sealtite Insulation, $25; Archibald and Richmond, $25; Tip Top Tailors, $20; Fred Pulver Ltd. $25.

More than 30 canvassers will start work in one of the four uncanvassed divisions in the north end of the city tonight. In this way they hope to finish one division each night. These areas are north of Parkhill Rd.

24,000 Poppies Sold By Vets; All-Time Record

The sum of $1,754.75 is the amount so far counted from Poppy Day, with returns still to come from the Outboard Marine, Brinton Carpet, De Laval and the Canadian General Electric.

Breaking all previous money records, 60 children started at 7.30 a.m. and finished the job at 7.30 p.m. Saturday night. Almost 24,000 poppies were sold during the day, with many requests for poppies from outside districts having to be refused. Several veterans also helped.

The clubs which helped to make Poppy Day a success, with the Canadian Legion were: the Ladies' Auxiliary, Ladies' Branch No. 452 and Hasty Pees.

Hot chocolate and doughnuts were served to the children at the Legion, while each one received a theatre admission ticket for their hard work. Two men from the Bank of Montreal came to the Legion to roll the coins and make deposits.

At 3 p.m. in the afternoon the men of the Legion discovered they had exhausted the supply of poppies, but after searching in every nook and corner ran across 2,000 more which the children sold.

Word from Lindsay at 11 a.m. Saturday wanting some poppies, showed their day was a success. A complete report will be ready by Tuesday night of the funds taken Saturday.

Pete Campell Died Sunday, Former Resident

Peter Gordon Campbell, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club, who died in Toronto General Hospital Sunday afternoon, was one of the cleverest rugby football players Peterborough could claim as one of its own sons. He was quarter-back of one of the great University of Toronto teams prior to the first world war, starring with Jack Maynard, Charlie Gage and a squad of other fine players who brought intercollegiate and Dominion championships to the U. of T.

Born in Petrolia he came to Peterborough as a boy with his parents when his father, the late Peter Campbell was transferred as manager to the local branch of the Bank of Toronto.

The Campbell home was on Water St., opposite Victoria Park, and young Campbell attended nearby Central Public School. When he passed his entrance examinations he went on to Trinity College School, Port Hope, where he learned his football, and also hockey, in the Little Big Four League, comprising Ridley, St. Andrew's, Upper Canada and T.C.S.

Campbell and Maynard played together on second and first teams of the school at Port Hope, and when they later went on to the University of Toronto together they were naturals for the back division of the Blue and White. Neither of them had any size to speak of, but whatever they lacked in brawn they made up for in intelligence, speed and in football skill of deception. Pete Campbell will always be remembered as one of the all-time brilliant quarters and field generals of the Universityt of Toronto teams.

Dr. R. A. Sheehy of this city was a team mate of Campbell's in 1913-14. Others of the U. of T. at that time were Gage, Laddie Cassels, George Blackstock, Storms, Lindsay and so on, a great team.

Dr. Sheehy began his football career with Ottawa College, around 1908 and 1909, when Silver Quilty of Ottawa was one of its outstanding players and Phil Cornellier, since then for years in the priesthood, was its famous kicking centre half.

Ottawa and Toronto played off for the Intercollegiate title at Rosedale field, Toronto in 1911, U. of T. winning the championship. Dr. Sheehy attended U. of T. in the two following years and played left half with Pete Campbell as quarter.

Frank Heffernan of Peterborough was on the Ottawa wing line when Dr. Sheehy was with that team. Previously John R. Corkery, K.C., played centre half of Ottawa, a forgotten period of his youth. It is also worth mentioning that when Campbell retired from the Toronto team he was followed as quarter by another Peterborough boy, W. W. Stratton.

"Pete Campbell was a grand fellow in every way," Dr. Sheehy said today. "He had all kinds of courage, and was a master of football tactics. That news Sunday was a deep shock to me."

Mr. Campbell's interest in Peterborough was manifested during the last year in his plans to establish pro-baseball here in the international league including Ottawa, Kingston and New York State clubs.

Smith Native Dies In West

Arthur Edward Rosborough, brother of Wilbert Rosborough of Smith township, died a week ago in Edmonton where he had been prominent in secondary educational work for nearly 35 years.

He was a graduate of the University of Toronto, University of Alberta and Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

The following is a report of his death and of his professional work in the west, quoted from an Edmonton paper:—

"Veteran Edmonton high school teacher and principal of University High School since 1946, Arthur Edward Rosborough of University Ave., died Monday night.

Mr. Rosborough had been teaching in Edmonton high schools since 192. He was graduated with honors in mathematics and physics at the University of Toronto, then came west to take his master's degree in both arts and education at the University of Alberta.

For seven years he taught at Mount Royal College in Calgary before being appointed to the staff of Strathcona high school here in September 1932.

He taught mathematics at Strathcona until 1942 when he was named head teacher at the University high school. In 1946 he was appointed its principal. Mr. Rosborough gained considerable recognition throughout the west for his work in the field of education and was past president of the Edmonton Education Society. He was interested in many phases of sports, particularly in connection with the school, and was a member of the Granite Curling Club.

Mr. Rosborough was also a member of Metropolitan United Church and at the time of his death was chairman of the building committee of that church. He leaves his widow, two daughters, Elaine and E. Louise, and son Robert; a sister Mrs. E. Naylor, and brother Wilbert."

Mrs. Rosborough was an outstanding student of Peterborough Collegiate Institute. He won two scholarships in his last year which paid his tuition at Victoria College, University of Toronto. His wife was Irene Brumwell, daughter of the late John Brumwell of this city. Their home was at the north end of Water St., in the vicinity of the Hilliard farm. She was also a teacher, and was engaged for some time at S.S. No. 4, Smith.

PARTRIDGE SEASON

The second partridge season of the fall opens on Saturday, November 13 and extends to Tuesday, November 23, both days inclusive. This season applies only to areas where deer hunting is permitted.

Sense of Values Reversed Minister Tells War Veterans

Nearly 400 Legionnaires of Branch 52 and Branch 452 (Elizabeth Smellie) as well as the Women's Auxiliary attended the annual Canadian Legion church parade held on Sunday at All Saints' Anglican Church.

The long column of war veterans marched through the city streets led by the Peterborough Pipe Band.

A color party marched down the main aisle and into the sanctuary for the presentation of the colors. This ceremony was followed by the National Anthem.

"Today we are putting our faith in the future in armaments and atomic bombs," said the Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite of All Saints' Church. "The lessons of history have not come home to us. Any nation that trusts to these is doomed."

He told the veterans that many ancient civilizations boasting great armies and armaments had been completely wiped out.

"They trusted for their survival in the might of their arms," he said. And he added: "The only way men can control these weapons is by learning to control themselves."

The desire for peace has not been strong enough, he contended. "No one has really tried. We have not been putting our hearts and souls into getting peace. If we want leadership in our human affairs we must turn to Jesus Christ and He will be the way, the truth and the life."

Mr. Kibblewhite spoke of the hopes and aspirations of those who worded the first Armistice Day proclamation 30 years ago. These were shattered nine years ago, he said. And now, only three years sinc the ending of the Second World War war clouds seemed threatening again.

Old Men Make Peace

"Sometimes we feel bitter over the way the world has turned since the peace of 1945," he said. "Some would say that the sacrifices of those who laid down their lives were wasted.

"One of the troubles of war is that the survivors always make the peace," said Mr. Kibblewhite. "The old men once again make the peace.

"We know to-day that we have let them down," he said. "The sacrifices seem to have been wasted and the enthusiasm that went into winning of the war has been dissipated."

He said that to gain victory two things were necessary: Discipline and the desire for victory.

"Surely if we want to make peace a reality we must have thse two qualities," he contended.

"It seems that we have our sense of values upside down. Everyone is thinking of himself," he said. "It has been a case of every man for himself and the devil take the hindermost."

Mr. Kibblewhite told his war veteran congregation that in his belief it was this same spirit of selfishness that was responsible for the high cost of living.

He paid high tribute to those who had made victory possible in both the First and Second World Wars.

"How easy it is to forget the past and live only in the present," he said. And he told them that too many people are inclined to forget about the sacrifices that were made in the two conflicts.

Rev. Walter J. Gilling assisted Mr. Kibblewhite in conducting the special service.

PAINTING ARMOURY

The A and T staff of the 50th Heavy AA Regiment aren't too happy over the fact that the drill hall is getting a coat of paint—from spray guns. This means the guns and other vehicles have to be hauled out of doors to escape the spray falling from the overhead scaffolds. The painting is being done by L. T. Brunton and Co. of Lindsay.

20,000 Ducks Die In Oil

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 (CP) — 20,000 ducks, rendered helpless by oil in Lake St. Peter, have been killed, government game officials estimated today, adding that probably not more than five per cent of the flock which uses the lake as a stopping place on the way south are now alive.

Of the number destroyed it was believed some 15,000 died in the water and had drifted to sea or onto shore. The rest died when taken into captivity by lakeshore residents.

The oil which came from lake-travelling ships, was so heavy it coated the ducks' wings and made them unable to raise themselves from the water.

Birds who managed to survive were getting a "dry cleaning" today from two United States government chemists who arrived at Three Rivers, Que., yesterday with a new-type chemical.

Officials of the Audobon Society in the United States were due in Three Rivers late today to look into the situation, hoping to gather information that would be helpful in avoiding a similar occurrence in the future.

AN HONEST MAN

Capital Taxi has perhaps 24 taxi drivers, and among them is one, who might qualify for the orchid of the week. This driver took a fare to Douro street on Saturday, and in the darkness the woman tendered a $1 bill in full payment. It was dark in the cab, and the woman just said "here's a dollar". The driver pocketed the money and drove away. Within an hour he had returned, found the woman, and gave her four dollar change. She had given a five-dollar bill in mistake and was unaware of it until the taxi-driver returned.—McG.

Girl Injured Car Leaves Road

APSLEY, Nov. 8.— (Staff).— An accident on No. 28 Highway, four miles south of Apsley, sent a car off the road on its side and caused slight injury to a passenger. Miss Joyce Haynes, Thomas St., Peterborough, received a cut on the face from the broken windshield.

Ronald D. Hardie, 558 Weller St., Peterborough, was driver of the car, which received about $150 damage. The accident happened Saturday night. Provincial Constable Bert. Howden of Apsley, investigated.

DOUSE SMALL RUBBISH FIRE

An alarm was sent into the Fire Department shortly after 3 p.m. on Sunday when smoke was observed coming from a shed at the rear of the residence of Miss Minnie McAuliffe, Aylmer St. It is believed that a match was dropped there after some wood was collected from the shed and it ignited some of the wood shavings. No damage was reported.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

Pallbearers at the funeral of Ella Detcher Saturday were: Messrs. G. Reader, A. Simmons, J. Curtis, C. Parrington, C. Benson and J. MacKay. The service was held at the Kaye Funeral Home.

City police are wondering what young citizen is mourning the loss of his brand-new tricycle. It's waiting at the station for him, they say. It was picked up over the week-end, abandoned on a street.

FOUR ARCHERS ON HUNT

Four members of the Hunting and Field Archers of Ontario passed through the city today en route to the Haultain area to hunt deer with bows and arrows. They are Leslie Payne, Gordon May, Mel. Toumino, and Bert Mason. All are from Toronto.

Four Smith township men intend to take full advantage of the deer hunting season. Harry Gill, Charles Heard, Nelson Coons and Ralph Beavis left on Saturday for a two-week hunt at the Porcupine Inn Hunt Club in the Parry Sound district.

STILL SOME FLOWERS GROWING

It's not yet time to bid autumn good-bye; at least not in the Cavan district. A resident has written to the Examiner with the information that marsh marigolds are blooming just east along the tracks at the junction of Highway 7A and the CPR.

UNDER POWER QUOTA

Just for the record, Peterborough's electric power consumption over the week-end was 212,000 kwh Saturday and 146,000 Sunday. However, those days are outside the quota period from Monday to Friday, inclusive. The average last week was 224,800 kwh. as compared with 229,700 kwh., the Hydro quota.

IT TAKES ALL KINDS

Someone in the city apparently feels the necessity of showing his patriotism without paying much for it. Members of the local legion, checking the proceeds of Saturday's Poppy Day, found a metal slug among the donations for poppies. And if that doesn't set a new low for meanness, then there isn't any such thing.

ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT

Quirt McKinney, Peterborough, was elected a vice-president at a special meeting of the eight-months-old Administrative Council of the Ontario Recreation Association. The meeting was held at Toronto, Saturday. E. H. Devitt of Waterloo is president, and R. MacArthur, Waterloo, is secretary.

Parking Regulations

The attention of all motorists is called at this time of year to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic by-law regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on the city streets.

Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on a city street for longer than six consecutive hours.

The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police will be made necessary with the first snow fall, in order that city workmen may proceed with their work of removing snow from the streets.

Margarine Ban Decision Expected Within 10 Days

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Within the next ten days, the Supreme Court of Canada is expected to bring down its decision on the validity of the 62-year-old ban on the manufacture, sale and importation of margarine.

It now is a month since the court heard argument—both for and against — on the constitutionality of the prohibition, which seeks the butter substitute from Canadian dinner tables.

A decision had been expected before this, but intervening cases have kept the count from delivering judgment.

The margarine issue was referred to the court by the Dominion Government at the request of the Senate. The Senate, which several times has rejected legislation aimed at legalizing the substitute adopted a resolution at the last parliamentary session calling for a Supreme Court reference.

In the three-day hearing, legal representatives of the Dominion, Province of Quebec, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Canadian Consumers Association and other groups appeared before the seven-man bench to argue the case.

Legislation

Wilfrid Lacroix, Liberal member of the Comomns for Quebec Montmorency, plans to make another attempt at the next session of Parliament to outlaw the Communist Party in Canada.

He will sponsor a bill somewhat similar to the one which got nowhere at the last session of Parliament. In that bill, Mr. Lacroix called for Criminal Code changes which would outlaw the Labor Progressive Party, the Communist Party, and any other organization which advocated overthrow of the government by force.

Other members of Parliament also are preparing to sponsor measures during the session which likely will open in January.

Bona Arsenault, Liberal in the Commons for Bonaventure in Quebec, plans to submit a resolution urging that the next Governor-General be a Canadian citizen. Last year, Mr. Arsenault suggested that Prime Minister Mackenzie King be appointed Governor-General after he retires from active politics.

Mr. Arsenault also plans to sponsor a bill which would substitute "National" or "Canadian" for the word "Dominion" wherever it appears in Government laws or titles. For instance, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics would become the Canadian Bureau of Statistics.

Tours Maritimes To Learn Problems

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 8—(CP)—George Drew, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, arrived here Sunday night on the first lap of a tour of the Maritime provinces.

In a brief interview as he stepped from a plane at the Charlottetown airport Mr. Drew said he had come to the Maritimes to learn at first hand the problems of the people.

The 54-year-old former Ontario premier said he will undertake a tour of other provinces as soon as time permits. Meantime, he will campaign in the Ontario constituency of Carleton where he will seek election to the House of Commons Dec. 20.

Hold Euchre Party

HASTINGS, Nov. 8—(ENS)—Mrs. S. Stevenson, Front Street, entertained on Wednesday evening with a euchre party. Mrs. J. Mulholland won 1st prize; Mrs. L. Humphries, second, and Mrs. L. Lockhart the consolation prize.

Mrs. A. Thompson invited the ladies to hold their next euchre at her home on Albert Street.

THERE'S STILL A SMILE on New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey's face as he settles down to his governing job in Albany, in spite of his startling defeat in the U.S. presidential election. An aide hands him some papers and Dewey knows that win or lose in the presidential election, he's still got a lot of state business to take care of.

Plan New Methods Of Fighting Problem Of Mental Illness

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—New methods of fighting the problem of mental illness at its roots are being planned by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

Dr. J. D. M. Griffin, medical director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, said Saturday that his group planned to organize community leaders and others as a section of the Health League of Canada. He told the Health League that 50,000 Canadians now are in mental hospitals and 12,000 more are added each year.

First tasks of such a group would be to wipe out the misconceptions that mental illnesses are hereditary and that they are due to sexual excesses. An attempt also would be made to dispel the feeling that mental illnesses are a disgrace and attach a stigma to a family.

Dr. Griffin said mental illness was "just like any other sickness" in many instances could be stopped and eliminated like other ailments if caught in its early stages.

John R. Seeley, executive officer of the committee, said a great many more persons suffered emotional stress than it was generally believed. He said a campaign to discover the number of mentally ill persons and to devise means of curing them must include co-operation from families, schools, vocational organizations, educational and cultural groups and churches.

Ford Brand, secretary of the Toronto District Labor Council, urged periodic blood tests and X-ray chest examinations for all Canadian workers. He said the tests and examinations should be arranged by the employers.

"Management is becoming steadily more aware that good health is paying good dividends on employers' investments," he added.

Plan Bazaar Nov. 20

BETHANY, Nov. 8—ENS)—Members of St. Paul's Church Women's Association met at the home of Miss Winnifred Nesbitt, Thursday. Mrs. Hamilton, the president, gave a report on the recent Victoria Deanery, giving a detailed account of the work of the Bishop's Mesesngers of St. Faith's and it was decided to send them a small gift of money. Final arangements were made for the annual bazaar, in Bethany Town hall, Saturday, Nov. 20. Some very lovely work was brought in for the sale. Rev. T. S. Gault gave a short address on the Lambeth conference. Tea was served by the hostess and her committee.

Drowning victims were Gordon Ryder, 23, of Norwich, Ont., spilled into Cranberry Lake near Parry Sound when a canoe capsized; and Francis Cirtwell, two, who fell into the St. Lawrence river near Brockville, Ont.

Paul Courier, a hunter from Dorchester, Mass., was fatally shot near Milford, N.S.

Archibald Kyle, 56, was found dead beneath a bridge in East-Central Toronto. A coroner said he believed the man took his own life.

Find Drowning Victim

ATHOL SPRINGS, NY, Nov. 8—(AP). — Lake Erie has yielded the body of one of four Buffalo men whose fishing boat capsized in a storm three weeks ago. Boys found the body, identified as that of John Koniarzyk, 34, on a beach near here on Sunday.

Fined Over Minors

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Louis Fox, president and general manager of the new Jolly Miller Hotel here, was fined $1,000 today for allowing three minors in the beverage room of the hotel. The waiter, Jacob Smokler, was fined $10 for selling beer to the minors, and the three youths were fined $25 each, or 10 days for consuming beer.

Fined For Indecency

Ronald Tripp of 580 King George Street, pleading guilty to committing an indecent act on Simcoe Street, was fined $15, and $2.50 costs, in Police Court today. Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, was told by PC Louis Rodregue that the accused had exposed himself to two women on the street and had laughed.

In his own defence, Tripp said that "I guess I was intoxicated."

THIS DEVASTATION RESULTED at Lambton, Que., when an autobus travelling down a slight grade (right) overturned and crashed into a service station's gasoline pumps. An explosion followed, and fire spread from bus through service station and to a general store and a private home. Four persons lost their lives and 13 others suffered burns.

Honor Newlyweds

BETHANY, Nov. 8.—(ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Noel Woods, recent newlyweds, were pleasantly surprised at a community gathering in the town hall, Bethany, on Friday evening when they were given a handsome occasional chair from the assembled friends. Mr. Robert Reid and Mr. Mansell Wright presented the gift. Creighton and Marie Carr sang two duets, "Our Best to You" and "My Happiness." Rev. T. S. Gault led in a community sing song. Bazaar Stalls and Draws Feature Annual Fall Tea

Glittering horns of plenty, spilling luscious fruits unto the tea table, made a most attractive conversation piece Saturday afternoon as delightful refreshments were served. It was at the annual fall tea of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kawartha District Police Association, held in the Green Room of the YWCA. Golden brow leaves had been gathered in with grapes, apples, oranges, bananas and nuts, and the abundance lay on the white linen cloth with flanking yellow candles in low silver holders. From silver tea services placed at each end Mrs. Andre Dalton and Mrs. Jack Morrow, past presidents of the Auxiliary, filled the tea cups.

The guests were served by Mrs. H. Mesley, Mrs. J. Rogers, Mrs. G. Henderson and Mrs. G. Langton, and Mrs. G. Trennum replenished the plates.

Turning to the bazaar stalls, unique Christmas gifts for all the family were being offered at very reasonable prices. Fancy contriving with knitting needles and pastel shades of wool had made up the cutest little dolls that any small girl would love. For the very youngest there were softly covered rattles with fancy knitted jackets. Hot water bottle covers were made up in plain and plaid flannel to look like small shirts. Rainbow crochet cotton, with deft handling, had become an unusual table centrepiece with stiffened frilled edging. And for the small boy there was a handsome two piece suit of blue and white wool. Mrs. W. Scott and Mrs. D. Farthing were attending this table.

Home baking in tempting array, was for sale by Mrs. W. Aggas, Mrs. W. Amos, Mrs. L. McClure and Mrs. L. Murphy and many baskets containing home made candy were attended by Mrs. J. V. Wilson and Mrs. V. Donoghue.

A hamper of groceries that appeared to contain almost everything for a pantry shelf was being raffled and tickets were for sale by Mrs. G. T. Puffer and Mrs. E. McDonald. The winning ticket was drawn by Mrs. W. Addyman and the holder is Mrs. V. A. Wood, 259 Engleburn Ave.

Another draw was on a tiered Christmas cake, beautifully decorated with icing, and Mrs. Jas. Reid and Mrs. Ernie Beatty were selling tickets. Mrs. W. R. Philp selected a ticket and the winner is Everett Douglas, 330 Water St.

On entering the tea room, guests were greeted by Mrs. Garnet Samis, the president, and Mrs. Price Morris, who was bazaar convener. Tea conveners were Mrs. Allan Edmison and Mrs. Joe Hanson. The tickets were taken by Mrs. Wm. Johnston.

Housework Centre Releases Wives for Outside Jobs

By THOMAS HARRIS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8 (Reuters)—A brains trust to find means of reducing the work of housewives has been appointed by Gustaf Moeller, Sweden's minister of social affairs.

Including architects, housing officials and other experts, the brains trust is to draft plans for concentrating such household tasks as cooking, cleaning, and even bathing the baby in a central building—known as a "help centre"—around which apartments would be built.

The central buildings will have community restaurants where cheap nourishing food can be eaten or taken home ready for the table. They will have corps of cleaners to wash paintwork, polish floors, vacuum-clean carpets and dust for a moderate fee.

Family linen will be brought to the laundry to be washed by modern machinery at low cost.

There will be nurseries and kindergartens for children below school age so their mothers can go to work.

A few help centres already exist in Sweden, but they have been created and maintained by private enterprise. Following a question in parliament by Mrs. Disa Vaestberg, president of the Social Democratic Women's Association, the state announced it is taking steps to set up many more centres.

Factories Need Women

Mrs. Vaestberg said industry needs more women but that nothing had been done to make it possible for women to work and run their homes easily at the same time.

"If one excludes women employed on farms," she said, "one finds only 21 per cent of childless married women are working in Sweden. Of women with one more children, the percentage for the whole of Sweden is only 15 per cent.

"Once let these women, who prefer to stay at home, know that they will not come back to dirt and disorder and badly-cared-for children after a hard day in office or factory, and you will find that they will come out of their shells and help us to increase production."

Dr. Yngve Larrson, building expert and chairman of the brains trust, says the help centres will help old people and hospitals as well as housewives.

"Many old people are unable to fend for themselves in our present type of flats," he said," and are forced to go into hospitals or homes for the aged.

"If they can have most of the cares of running a home taken off their shoulders, they will much prefer to have their own flats. Both they and the community would benefit."

To Support Drive On Communism By Education

CALGARY, Nov. 8 — (CP) — The Roman Catholic Women's League in Canada is on record today in support of an education drive to eradicate the "ever-increasing menace of Communism."

National administrative and executive meetings under the chairmanship of newly-elected League President Mr. T. E. Durocher of Windsor, will today wind up the six-day convention that opened here last Wednesday.

The resolution on Communism recommended study, by students, of the principles of social economy as taught by the Roman Catholic Church. This study, delegates said, would give students an "intelligent understanding" so they "may become apostles of Christian social justice which is the greatest safeguard against the evils of Communism.

Delegates also voted to ask the Federal Government to permit manufacture and sale of margarine in Canada. The Government also will be asked to widen the scope of family allowance regulations to include children in institutions who are not Government wards.

Other resolutions asked that all flags be flown at half mast in Canada on Good Friday; that parents be allowed to deduct their children university fees for income tax purposes; that a radio committee be formed in each CWL subdivision to check programs; and thta the league continue its crusade of prayer for the conversion of atheists, nations and world peace.

News Clippings Valuable Library Employees Told

Value of newspapers in Library reference work was discussed in the Sunday afternoon sessions of the Reference Workshop fall meeting held in the city this week-end. Miss Grace Schumacher of Kitchener Public Library staff, told members how clippings from local and leading newspapers are filed and provide information to the public on such varied subjects as trips and cruises, with times and dates, drama criticisms, texts of important addresses, and the obituary columns yield a record of many prominent people whose history is not available from "Who's Who."

"Daily perusal of the papers and clipping is vital to keep the Governmental changes up to date and these are super-imposed on the "Canadian Almanac" Miss Schumacher explained. She also keeps the weekly pages provided by some newspapers on Canadian literature. Feature stories give her a great deal of historical data on clubs, orchestras, Little Theatre groups and surveys which may prove invaluable at some time.

"The big trouble is to know how much to clip and how long to keep it" she said. Requests for much of this sort of information may come to the Library 20 years after the article appeared. She finds that lawyers particularly find the obituary file valuable in looking up information on families when settling estates.

Second speaker was Mr Hilton Smith, Librarian at the Toronto Public Library, and his subject was "Free and inexpensive reference material." Most of the general pamphlets which come freely have to be selected with care and intelligence as they are usually disguised advertising for some product" he said. The Library makes endless requests for reference material it desires and in almost all cases received full cooperation from the firm approached. Bank bulletins are filed and provide a record of the economic trends. Official guides to a wide range of regions and cities are available and are used extensively by public planning holiday trips.

Business and technical literature in the library's files provides information on almost every line.

Business and technical literature in the library's files provides information on almost every line. One booklet in the display laid out by Mr. Smith was entitled "How to start a business of your own." It's text pointed out many facts that the average person thinking of going into business might find it well to check carefully. Various house organs are kept and trade catalogues are kept up-to-date as to scientific apparatus and instruments. The catalogues of gramaphone records provide an invaluable glossary of musical terms and composers as well, he pointed out.

"Our material is carefully checked for partisan, biased and misleading information, and the reader is left to decide for himself on the merits of the article described." Mr. Smith said. In conclusion he mentioned the proposed introduction of micro-cards when "people will read by machinery without opening their eyes or their hearts."

"Government Publications" was the subject taken up by Miss Eileen Weber of the Toronto University Library. She said the variety of subjects and the complexity of the departments in the Government which are forever being changed and given new names makes it very difficult for the librarian to cope with these publications. Special study of the government, its functions and the pattern of Legislature is required to handle them successfully. "There is always the problem of what to choose and how to make the best use of it" she said. Records of all proceedings are kept on file and a catalogue system provides titles of various pamphlets that are available.

Miss Grace Schmidt of Kitchener, expressed thanks to all members for attending and making the meeting a success. Minutes were read by secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucille May of Hamilton. An executive meeting preceded the Sunday afternoon session.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Opposing Unsuitable Match Best Way to Speed it widow with a son 24 years old. He is in love with a divorced woman who is 15 years older than he is and who has a child 13 years old. She is lazy and trifling and refuses to keep house even makes my son wash her clothes for her.

Dorothy Dix

My son is very headstrong and will not listen to me or anyone else when we tell him what a mistake he will make if he marries her. Yet what shall I do? I can't sit by and allow him to ruin his life by marrying her. Have you any suggestions as to what I could do to stop the affair?

MRS. D. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The most certain way to promote an unsuitable marriage is by opposing it. Nothing rouses the combative spirit in youngsters so quickly as for their parents to try to keep them from making marriages that are bound to wreck their lives. They are determined not to let anyone dictate to them about whom they marry. The more Mother weeps over Tommy being infatuated by a little nincompoop from the wrong side of the tracks, and the more Father rages over Sally going steady with a lad who is still in grade school, the more set they are on doing it. They are going to show the old fogies!

Waste of Breath

It is a waste of breath to try to convince a bobby-soxer that she isn't capable of a deathless passion for some kid as callow as she is herself, and that she isn't fit for marriage. Nor can you make a youth who thinks he is in love, realize that he is bringing misery down upon his head by marrying before he can support a family.

Arguments are of no avail with the young. Neither are tears and prayers. But ridicule is a deadly weapon that breaks up many a marriage that never should take place. Many an embryonic love affair has been broken off by bad spelling and worse grammar. Love's young dream has been shattered many a time by a girl eating peas with her knife and a boy's clothes not fitting.

So, Mrs. D. C., my advice to you is to stop arguing with your son about the folly of marrying the divorcee. Let it ride. If the jokes his buddies make about his wooing the lady by doing her laundry do not disillusion him. IT'S LOVE.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I married when I was not quite 13 and, although I have a wonderful husband of whom I am very fond and a beautiful baby and a nice home, I wish that I had waited until I was older and had finished my high school education. What I am getting at is that in the event that anything should happen to my husband, I would have no possible way of supporting myself and my baby.

So I would say to all girls: Before you take that important step in your life, prepare yourself for the future. Get as good an education as you can, and learn some trade by which you can make a living. And I would say the same thing to boys. Let them realize that their pay will depend on how much they know and how skillful they are. They can't support a wife and family on the only kind of job they can get if they do not have an education.

YOUNG WIFE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: This is good advice which all young people should take to heart, yet so few do. Most boys and girls think of going to school as a penalty that has been inflicted on them without reason. Only a few sense that a good education is the greatest blessing that can be bestowed upon them. It is the key that unlocks all the privileges and pleasures of living.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My mother disapproves of my using lipstick at my age, which is 13 years. She thinks I should wait until I am at the end of the eighth grade or the first year in high school. But I want to use it now. What should I do?

TERESA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Well, Teresa, you know 13 is a very special age. It is just when you are passing from childhood into girlhood and when you are as lovely and fresh as a flower, and it does seem a pity for you to daum your mouth up with a lot of red paint when your natural mouth is a pink rosebud.

But, still and all, it doesn't seem to me that it matters, and if all the other girls of your age are using lipstick and it makes you feel sort of left out if you don't use it, why, I think your mother should withdraw her objections.

But one thing you should do. Get your mother to take you to a beauty shop and have one of the operators teach you how to put on your lipstick artistically, instead daubing it on hit or miss, as most young girls do.

British Library System Good Reference Division Told

Fall meeting of the Reference Workshop, division of the Ontario Library Association, was held in Peterborough this weekend. Delegates in attendance numbered 32 and were from Kitchener, Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa, Oshawa, London, Kingston, Lindsay, Campbellford, Lakefield and Peterborough. The chairman, Miss Grace Schmidt of Kitchener, presided.

Guest speaker, Miss Margaret Hughes, assistant to the Director of the Ontario Public Library Service in Toronto, addressed members Saturday evening in the library auditorium. Just back from England where she attended the first International Library School ever held, she thinks that Canada might well copy the British library system. She is one of five delegates from Canada, all of whom feel such a system could be applied here and the beginning would be establishment of a central library in each province. In England every municipality of more than 750 people has a public library. Any borrower in the country may obtain any book through a system of regional libraries, based on the National Central Library in London. To simplify this system, the country is divided into ten areas.

The school was attended by 50 librarians from 19 countries, all of whom could speak either English or French, except one. Purpose was to promote understanding between countries and discuss the part they might play in re-establishing the devastated areas. Arranged by UNESCO, the meetings were held in Ashburn Hall, University of Manchester, which afforded accommodation for all under one roof. Miss Hughes particularly enjoyed seeing the circular reading room in the Manchester Library where there are 10,000 books and a system of chutes and lifts will bring any one to hand in two minutes. It is also a centre of the regional library system.

Various trips around the country were arranged by the British Council, and sigh-seeing tours were shared by the British Government with UNESCO.

As a result of the school, UNESCO now has a paper of about 1,500 words written by each delegate about the library system in his or her district, and they have copies of the talks held by discussion groups throughout the month. They feel that the varied opinions will react in some way to help solve common problems.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Laura Freeman of Hamilton and thanked by Miss Jean McMillan of Toronto.

Miss Genevieve Sullivan of the Peterborough Public Library staff, who is vice-chairman of the Workshop, was in charge of arrangements. Greetings were extended during dinner Saturday evening by Librarian Mr. W. L. Graff of Peterborough, who introduced those present. A telegram of good wishes was received from the Ontario Library Association.

Mr. Graff also entertained with showing of two color films, "The Green Girdle" and the "Call of the Kawarthas."

Personal, romantic, financial and creative aims should be pushed with unabated drive, for the most dynamic performance and inner joy.

A child born on this day is bounteously equipped for a romantic adventurous and dramatic career, with many changes, honors and highly creative urges finding rich returns and unexpected happiness.

At the afternoon meeting of Council, E. F. Marston, municipal engineer, told of repair work, and on a motion by Councillor Wright and Deputy Reeve Chapman, it was decided to hire the equipment of the Hi-Way Construction Co. to carry on construction work.

TRAM-BUS CRASH — Six people were killed and some 45 others injured when a chartered bus returning members of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders to Hamilton from a reunion in Toronto crashed head-on with a streetcar near Sunnyside amusement park at Toronto's West end early Saturday. This shows the bus telescoped into the streetcar.

Reaching Targets

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — British Agriculture Minister Tom Williams said Sunday in an interview talk of wholesale dispossession of farmers by Britain's Labor Government for failure to reach specified production targets was a "pipe dream." He said Britain has met and passed production targets all along the line in an "impressive first lap of a four-year agricultural expansion program."

See Scramble For Leadership

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (CP)— A scramble for Republican party leadership, with Harold E. Stassen among those taking part, apparently is in the making as an aftermath of last Tuesday's election.

Despite an assertion by Governor Thomas E. Dewey that he has no plans to step down as titular head of the party, his second straight defeat for the United States Presidency may leave him little to say about future Republican policies.

These policies largely will be shaped by the Republican minority in Congress.

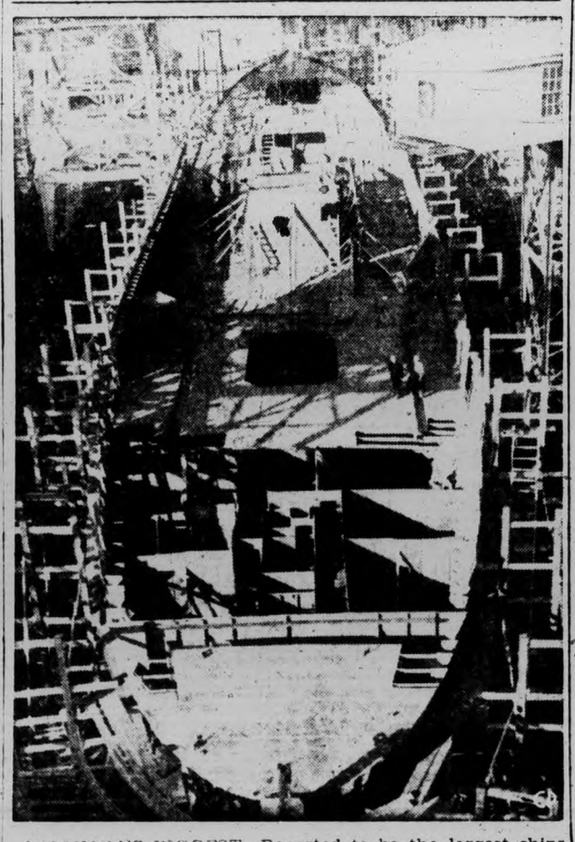
There such familiar figures as Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, speaker of the House of Representatives and House Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana will be in the saddle.

But none of these is a standout now for the Republican presidential nomination in distant 1952.

Instead, some of the Republican politicians are beginning to look outside the formal Congressional leadership.

Those catching their eye include men like Stassen, Senators Irving M. Ives of New York, William Knowland of California, Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut, Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts and Homer Ferguson of Michigan.

Governors who might be regarded now as available for one of the top spots on the ticket four years hence include Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont, Luther W. Youngahl of Minnesota and Frank Carlson of Kansas.



While most of the new crop of Republican hopefuls hold public office, Stassen has perhaps as good a forum as any of them in his presidency of the University of Pennsylvania.

2 In Gestapo To Die

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 8—(Reuters).—A British war crimes court Saturday sentenced to death two former Gestapo officials for taking part in the killing of 50 allied airmen, including six Canadians, who escaped from a German prisoner-of-war camp near Dresden in 1944. The two men were Erwin Wieczorek and Reinhold Bruchhardt. Max Haensel, another former Gestapo man, was acquitted.

Plot To Steal Corpse

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 8—(AP).—A plot to steal the corpse of Jan Masaryk was described Saturday during a murder trial in Prague. An official account of the trial of Miloslav Choc said the defendant confessed he had been in touch with another Czech who was ordered by Czechoslovak fugitives to dig up Masaryk's body. The purpose apparently was to determine just how the former Foreign Minister met his death.

CANADA'S BIGGEST—Reported to be the largest ships ever built in Canada for a foreign power, three 3,100-ton transports for the Argentine navy are taking shape at Halifax shipyards. The first one will be launched early next year.

Says All Nations Be Involved In Third War

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—(CP). — The Dean of Canterbury said last night "every man in Canada, the United States and my own country" would be drawn into any war with the Soviet Union "if it were allowed to take place."

The Very Rev. Hewelett Johnson, nicknamed the "Red Dean" for his Communist sympathies, spoke to 2,800 persons at a public meeting in downtown Massey Hall sponsored by the newly-formed Toronto peace council. Rev. James Endicott, member of the council executive, told the audience 5,000 persons had been turned away.

Dr. Johnson's speech, the third in his current Canadian-United States tour, went off uninterrupted.

The Dean said there was no possibility of a Third World War being a "push-button" war.

Doubts Survival

"Not all the poured-in might of the United States" would be enough to defeat the Partisans of Greece. Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland." He doubted if Britain could survive an atomic war.

The atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima had left 94 per cent of the city's factories intact. Hiroshima had been defenceless but there was no doubt that in the event of a Third World War "gigantic defences" would be prepared against the bomb.

The Soviet Union had been charged with "expansionism" and of "penetrating" eastern European nations on her borders. Britain, however, had always made sure that the Netherlands were never in the hands of any great continental power which might use those countries as a base for attacking her. The Soviet Union insisted that the countries on her western fringe, through which all her enemies had come to attack her, "shall have friendly rulers."

IN NEW FIELD — Premier Stuart Garson of Manitoba will enter the Federal Cabinet in the near future, it was disclosed Friday. Mr. Garson announced his intention to leave provincial politics at a meeting of the Manitoba Liberal Association.

Pass Resolution

KINGSTON, Nov. 8—(CP)—A resolution urging the Dominion government change the neglect of children law was passed at the 22nd annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Women's Institute here Sunday. Mrs. R. J. Penney of Kingston and Mrs. James Haggerty of Napance were chairmen for next year's convention.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

EXACT SUIT LENGTHS

SUPPOSE you want to show the exact lengths of two suits, one a six-carder and the other a five-carder. If the longer is higher ranking, bid it first, next the lower suit, then rebid the lower to show both are of at least five cards and eventually, if your hand can afford it, rebid the higher after that. Note that a bid of the lower suit on that fourth turn would show both to be of six cards. However, if the longer is the lower-ranking, bid it first, then the higher, then rebid the higher to show that it is of at least five and the other longer because it was named first.

South's last bid, of the higher-ranking hearts, was a force to 5-Diamonds if North favored that suit. But since he inadequately supported either, with two cards for hearts or three for Diamonds, he reckoned that a ten-trick game was easier than an eleven-trick project. He knew from South's bidding that hearts were a card longer, hence one-card support gave the side as many hearts as diamonds.

South didn't play as well as he bid. The game was rubbers, so he should have concentrated everything on making the contract, avoiding any risky greed for extra tricks. But after the spade 9 was led to the J and Q and the diamond 9 came back, he saw a chance for velvet if the finesse of the Q would work; he could then score the A and ruff a third diamond to set up the suit if the missing cards were evenly divided. That would give him two extra tricks.

West, however, won the diamond Q with the K, so that one extra trick had evaporated. When the spade 4 was returned to the K and A, ruffed by his heart 3, he decided to seek one extra trick. He laid down the diamond A, then ruffed the 5 with the heart 8. But East over-ruffed and returned the spade 10. No matter what South did now, he was in the soup, with West sure to get a trump trick plus the diamond J. He ruffed high, preventing an over-ruff, but when the hearts split as they did, he dropped the tricks that set him two. After getting the lead on the third trick, he should have taken out trumps at once. So doing, he would have lost only two tricks in diamonds plus one in spades, and would have made his game.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. North - South vulnerable.)

What play must South build to make 7-No Trumps after West, neglecting the diamonds bid by East, opens the heart 2?

Supply Teacher To Be Paid $6 Per Day

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 8 (ENS)—The Public School Board decided to pay the supply teacher six dollars per day during November and December. Principal E. G. Sloan was given the authority to engage the supply teacher when necessary and to select same from names at present on the file.

Principal Sloan reported attendance for October as 273 pupils, average 96.39 per cent. and asked permission to purchase supplies required for science teaching. This permission was granted on motion of Trustees Richardson and Jakins.

It was moved by Trustees Jakins and Bullock that Mr. C. Bickell, caretaker, be authorized to engage help to sweep and dust at the rate of $4 to $5 per week and 50c per hour for snow shovelling and other work.

All the radio merchants in the village had been contacted to submit prices on radios for each room. Prices were submitted from B. F. Blake and C. McFaul.

The report of the finance committee recommended payment of the following accounts: Bell Telephone $4.07; Hydro, $28.66; N. A. Moore, lumber, $149.01; W. J. Bolton, $95.75; Norman Graham, (spraying paint) $15; trucking, $10. These accounts were authorized paid on a motion by Trustees Hunter and Jakins.

In attendance were chairman E. H. Northey, Trustees Roy Bullock, Charlie Hunter, Ken Jakins and Stan Richardson.

Adam And Fallen Man Lesson Sermon Topic

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "There went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." (Genesis 2: 6, 7).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Isaiah 2:22: "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?"

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following: "Anybody, who is able to perceive the incongruity between God's idea and poor humanity, ought to be able to discern the distinction (made by Christian Science) between God's man, made in His image, and the sinning race of Adam."

Albert J. Peeling Funeral Saturday

A large crowd gathered at the funeral service for the late Albert James Peeling, 71, of 628 Gilmour St., at his son's residence Saturday afternoon. The Rev. I. C. Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church officiated and the pallbearers were J. Leask, H. Dinsdale, P. Edwards, F. Payton, F. Gilders and J. R. MacNicholl. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Peeling, a well-known retired merchant and fur dealer in Havelock for 40 years, died in Kingston Hospital on Thursday following a short illness. He was born in Campbellford, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peeling, and before coming to Peterborough 19 years ago, lived in Havelock. He has been engaged in the lumber business with his son in this city since 1939. He was past grand master of Havelock Lodge 286, IOOF.

God's Grace Only Medium To Save World, Legion Told

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8—"It is fitting we should remember those who made the supreme sacrifice. Let us be sincere in our remembrance. We need more today than a mere superficial outward observance of remembrance" were the introductory words of the Rev. W. J. Lennox in an address at the Remembrance Day service on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Lennox is rector of Christ Church, Campbellford and padre of the Midland Regiment.

"Those who die," he said, "do not ask us to speak of them. Those who die in a good cause never fail. The sacrifice they make is not in vain. Through their responding to the call of duty to Canada and the Empire we are still free men and free women. We should be thankful to them for our deliverance. But the price of our deliverance has been heavy. The crosses at the cenotaph call to remembrance part of the price Campbellford has paid for victory."

He said that Remembrance Day had found the world struggling around the conference table. People who had learned to give all on behalf of others had failed in their efforts to bring about peace and brotherhood to peoples and nations. "There is grave disunity among the major allied powers. There is no longer the confident belief that any war will end war. No one speaks today of making the world safe for democracy. Therefore there is need for action as we find Remembrance Day overshadowed by confusion and discouragement. I saw a new heaven and a new earth' were words of cheer and encouragement," he said.

He continued: "God is not the author of confusion. Fear of man and his power has taken the place of faith in God with the result we have confusion instead of order and the only way out of confusion is by the grace of God. He is the light the world needs to drive away the darkness of delusion and confusion. What is it that has failed in these days? It is not God's truth and justice. His way of love and brotherhood has not failed. They have not really been tried."

Veterans Did Their Part

In conclusion he said that those we remember had done all that was humanly possible to bring about a new order. "They gave themselves. It is our duty to dedicate ourselves to the task of bringing in the reign of God's righteousness and peace by accepting his ideals and acting upon them. Man failed because of selfishness, dishonesty, disregard of human right and moral standards. We shall not have a new heaven and a new earth until men had placed God upon His throne instead of greed and selfishness."

"O God, Our Help in Ages Past" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" were sung to the accompaniment of the Campbellford band under the direction of Don Bennett. Captain V. M. Hunt of the Salvation Army and the Rev. J. O. Ralston, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, led in prayer. The Rev. J. E. Latimer of the Glad Tidings Tabernacle read the lesson. Major J. M. Bygott introduced the speaker.

Wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by P. Peeling, representing the Legion; Leonard Begg, the Province of Ontario; V. Cubitt, the Hollywood Theatre; Mrs. Helen Bertrand, the Richardson's Dental Clinic; and Albert Hardy the Campbellford Cloth Co. Mrs. Max Lloyd placed a wreath in honor of her brother, Sgt. Bud Baker. G. W. Rutherford called the Roll and the Last Post was sounded by W. Lowe.

63 Members Join Library

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 8—(ENS)—Librarian Mrs. W. Ridpath was authorized to requisition the local Council for the balance of the funds owing to the Library Board. The question of more chairs for the reading room was discussed and on a suggestion from Reeve W. C. Grant the librarian was instructed to get prices.

On a motion by Reeve Grant and Everitt Sloan, Mrs. Ridpath was asked to have a carpenter put a slot in the library door so that books could be returned when the library was closed. The board decided to pay the librarian's expenses to the library convention in Peterborough. This motion was made by Reeve Grant and E. G. Sloan.

The librarian's report showed an increase in the number of readers this year. Fifty three new members joined in the last month. In September 10 new readers joined. In October it was found that a number of High School students who came in the school buses were unable to avail themselves of supplementary books in the library. Through the co-operation of the High School teachers a section of the library has been set aside for the students, and starting October 28 the library is now open every Thursnoon from 12:30 to 1 o'clock for their convenience..

The students from Mr Sloan's room in Public School visited the library, and as a result a number of students joined for the first time. A number of new residents have also joined. During the month the library was open 20 times with a total circulation of 1,126. Of these 508 were adult and 618 juvenile. Fees and fines amounted to $4.50.

Forty-five new books from previous orders have been added since September. A number of National Geographies and the current London Illustrated News were donated by Col. A. T. LeFevre.

The Peterborough Library also sent copies of Current Biography.

As a result of letters sent the local organizations, the Home and School Association donated $5.00 towards the library funds.

Those who attended the meeting were Reeve W. C. Grant, Principal E. G. Sloan of the Public School staff. Mrs. Ken Jakins, Mrs. Reg Doubt, chairman, and Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, librarian.

LEWIS W. DOUGLAS, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, and former Principal of McGill University in Montreal, who recently visited his 92-year-old father, J. H. Douglas, in Montreal.

Little French Woman Saved Two Canadians At Dieppe

By WILLIAM BOSS

DIEPPE, France, Nov. 8 (CP) —The small French woman, her faded fair hair tucked under a shabby blue felt, smiled and said: "One must do one's duty, mustn't one?"

She was embarrassed as friends vied to tell the story of how Marie Renet, middle-aged French housewife who lives not far from Dieppe's "Carrefour des Canadiens" (Canadian Crossroads), aided two Canadians stranded when their comrades withdrew.

For six days after the Aug. 19, 1942, raid on Dieppe by the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division she fed the two unidentified Canadian soldiers who missed the force's demarkation from the beaches.

Mme. Renet, when the noise of battle died that August afternoon and Canadian prisoners were being herded in the courtyard of the hospital, went into the woods near her home to gather firewood.

Binding her faggots together, she heard a whispered call and turning, saw a Canadian soldier in a thicket. He motioned her to approach and as she did she saw another Canadian in the brush behind him.

They told her they'd been unable to pass German patrols and return to the beach, were hungry, but planned to stay where they were until they'd perfected plans for a get-away.

Brought Food

Mme. Renet told them to stay. She'd bring them food and would return daily at noon to the same spot with as much as she could spare.

She was back shortly with bread and cheese and wine and the first Canadian thanked her, indicating where her dishes would be on the morrow.

The next day, at noon, she returned, found the empty plates but no other sign of the soldiers, and left her food.

Daily for six days the incident was repeated. Mme. Renet turned up, saying nothing to her husband, and replaced the empty dishes with the full.

The seventh day she found the previous day's food untouched. She returned to the spot again later but never saw or heard the two men again.

When the war ended Mme. Renet considered herself free to tell her story. Impressed, the city council investigated, found it supported and authentic and she was honored by the city's decoration and ultimately, through steps initiated by the council, by the Republic.

A New Travel Ration Period

Begins

November 16th

AS ANNOUNCED BY THE MINISTER OF FINANCE THE REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE USE OF U.S. DOLLARS FOR TRAVEL CONTINUE IN FORCE.

As in the past, it will be necessary for Canadians to obtain a permit from their bank if they wish to take out of Canada more than $10 U.S. or more than $25 in U.S. and Canadian currency combined.

Reports show that the saving of U.S. dollars made possible by travel rationing can be expected to amount to between $40 and $50 million during the period November 16th, 1947 to November 15th, 1948. This substantial sum was thus made available for the purchase of many essential supplies and commodities during this time.

The regulations governing the amount of U.S. dollars available for different travel purposes are outlined below:—

Pleasure Travel

The maximum amount of U.S. dollars which any Canadian resident may obtain for pleasure travel purposes during the twelve months beginning November 16th, 1948, is $150. In the case of children of eleven years and under, the amount is $100. There is no restriction on the number of trips as long as the annual allotment is not exceeded. Any U.S. dollars obtained for one trip and not used on that trip must be brought back to Canada and exchanged for Canadian dollars at the traveller's bank immediately on his return. No credit for funds thus turned back can be allowed against the annual ration for subsequent trips.

Business Travel

Applications for U.S. dollars for business travel must include a certification by the employer that the travel is in his business interests. Reasonable amounts of U.S. dollars may be obtained for this purpose.

Travel for Health or Education

Applications for U.S. dollars for health or educational reasons are to be made on special forms available at chartered banks. These applications will be forwarded by banks to the Foreign Exchange Control Board for consideration. Applications for health travel must be accompanied by a medical report on forms which can also be obtained at chartered banks. The Department of National Health and Welfare acts as adviser to the Board in reviewing these medical reports.

Border Travel

A Canadian resident may take out of Canada without a permit up to $25 in currency, of which not more than $10 is in U.S. currency. For this purpose, he may purchase up to $10 U.S. in any calendar month. This is in addition to the annual travel ration.

Travel Requiring Sterling Funds

Applications for sterling funds for travel in sterling area countries are normally approved for any reasonable amounts.

Hungry Mobs Storm Shops In Shanghai

Say Nanking Will Fall To Communists By End Of December

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9 (Reuters). —Hungry crowds to-day stormed rice shops in Shanghai where the prices showed no signs of abating in the economic crisis, described as "the worst in 100 years."

Police armored cars—nicknamed Flying Fortresses—were tearing through the city streets all day with screaming sirens in response to calls for help from the shopkeepers.

Since Monday the prices of most daily necessities including rice have doubled.

Rice rose to 1,800 gold yuan ($44 at the present black market rate) a picul of 170 pounds. Before the currency reform a picul cost $10.

Bread rose from 5½ to 10 gold yuan a pound.

Most Shanghai food stores closed early to-day, complaining it was impossible to do business "owing to the minute-by-minute evaluation of currency."

Hold Conference

City authorities were in conference throughout the day to discuss measures to cope with the rapidly deteriorating situation.

Foreigners here were more concerned about the outcome of the civil war and its effect on the city.

Shanghai is literally starving in the midst of plenty, as rice and other foodstuffs were said to be plentiful in the countryside not more than 10 miles from the city limits.

Farmers were unwilling to sell for the inflated gold yuan and preferred to barter their products for their urgent needs, such as paraffin, sugar, cigarettes, soap, and matches.

Find 2 Bodies Believe Six Others Drown

No Shootings Reported In Season So Far; Blame Rough Water

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—(CP). — Eigt persons are either missing or drowned in the icy waters of northern rivers at the end of Ontario's first week of open hunting season, provincial police here said today. Five hunters are missing and believed drowned. the bodies of two have been recovered and one man is definitely known to have been drowned although his body has not been recovered.

Accidental shootings, which in past years have claimed most hunting victims were the cause of no deaths. All of the accidents were the result of rough water which swamped outboard motor boats, police said.

Police and woodsmen are dragging for the bodies of Melvin Morrison, 33, of Thornhill, and Robert Clapham, 25, of Toronto, believed to have been drowned in the French river when their boat struck a floating log in rough water. Two hunting caps, identified as those of the hunters, were found.

The body of Rev. Arl Serson. 51, from Statesboro, Ga., was found yesterday tangled in the two ropes of a boat floating on Pelican lake, near Sioux Lookout.

Three others, missing with Mr. Serson since Friday when they started out on a deer-hunting trip, are still being sought. They are Peter Serson, 59, the minister's brother, Fred Besley, 27, of Statesboro, Ga., and William Evans, Canadian National Railways employee of Lookout, Ont.

Dragging Lake

The waters of Bear Lake, 40 miles east of Orillia, are being dragged for the body of William Chisholm, 58, of Sadowa, Ont., who was drowned when a panic-stricken dog climbed onto his back after his boat overturned. Two other hunters escaped to shore.

The body of 23-year-old Gordon Ryder, of Norwich, was recovered Monday night in Cranberry Lake, near Parry Sound, by his companions. His boat was overturned by high winds during the week-end as he returned to a hunting camp.

Tauno Hallikainen 21, has been missing in bush country of Hyman Township near Sudbury. He was last seen hunting deer about 1 p.m. Saturday. Search parties today recruited a blood hound to help in the search.

Baby To Have Title

LONDON, Nov. 9 Reuters). —Princess Elizabeth's baby whose birth is expected this week-end, will bear the title of Prince or Princess and will be addressed as "Royal Highness." The King altered a 1917 ruling by his father, George V, to ensure that the baby will have the title. The amendment was announced tonight in the official London Gazette. The new ruling will not affect any children which may be born in the future to Princess Margaret, younger sister of Elizabeth.

Judge Rebukes Witness For Drinking

LINDSAY, Nov. 9—Four Crown witnesses testified Monday in the motor manslaughter trial of Douglas Lamb, before Mr Justice Treleaven, but the only witness who said Lamb was driving the death car was reprimanded by his lordship for testifying after he had been drinking.

Lamb, son of Mayor Charles Lamb of Lindsay, is charged in connection with the death of John Hontoon, an employee of the Lindsay Board of Works, who died when the car in which he was a passenger overturned on Highway 36, east of Lindsay, on Sept. 9.

Garfield Sproule testified that he was in the back seat of the car, which Lamb was driving. They were singing, he said, and Lamb turned to speak to him and Murray Speer, also in the back seat. They warned Lamb to slow down, Sproule said, but the car left the road and overturned.

Sproule returned late after the noon intermission and admitted that he had been drinking.

"I have a notion to have you locked up until you can be of some help to the court," his lordship told him.

Cross-examined by defense counsel R. J. Moore Sproule denied that he had been driving the car, and said that Speer and Lamb were trying to put the blame on him. He admitted running away after the accident, but said it was because he could not stand the sight of Hontoon's blood.

Dr. T. W. Rutherford testified that Hontoon died from a skull fracture and multiple fractures and lacerations throughout his body. Prvoincial Constable W. G. Milton said that the accused denied driving the car, but that Lamb and Speer were both drunk when he arrived at the scene of the accident. He denied Moore's charge that he had slapped Lamb on the way to the jail.

Joseph Burrows owner of the car, said he, Lamb and Speer had been drinking the morning of the accident. He had loaned the car to Lamb, he said.

Demand U.N. Investigation That British Troops Are Entering Trans-Jordan

British Deny Any Soldiers Have Returned To Palestine Since Evacuation; Jews Charge Arab Legion Getting Aid

TEL AVIV, Nov. 9—(AP)—Israel formally asked the United Nations truce headquarters today to investigate reports that "not inconsiderable numbers of British troops" have entered Trans-Jordan and that some of them have entered Palestine. (The War Office in London issued a denial, saying, "We have no troops in Trans-Jordan and there is no question of any British troops going back into Palestine since the evacuation.")

The government also charged Britain with wholesale rearming of both Iraq and Trans-Jordan, Arab foes of Israel. It wrote the headquarters of the mediator, Dr. Ralph Bunche, that large shipments of arms and military equipment for Iraq, including tanks of all classes, have arrived at the port of Basra in a British ship.

A letter from Dr Walter Eytan of the Israeli foreign office declared that if the reports of British troop movements proved true "they would be flagrant violations."

The Arab legion of Trans-Jordan is British trained and subsidized. It bore the brunt of the summer fighting in the Jerusalem area.

Said Aiding Legion

Private Jewish sources declared British troops were moving into sections of Eastern Palestine held by the Arab legion. These informants said the British troops came from bases at Mafrak and Aqaba, Trans-Jordan.

An Israeli spokesman called attention to a speech in which King Abdullah said Trans-Jordan "now has an air force." The spokesman said it is "well known Trans-Jordan never had one before; there has never been a Trans-Jordan warplane seen in the skies of the Middle East and if they have one now, it was acquired during and in violation of the truce."

An unofficial source asserted British shipments to Iraq included some of the newest British fighter bombers, the Fury. The Iraq previously has used old model Spitfire fighters and a few medium and light bombers.

The same unofficial informant asserted Britain has asked for use as barracks the big monasteries at Al-Tour and Isaria, in the Jerusalem area.

Heavy Fire

An Israeli military spokesman said trapped Egyptian troops in the Faluja pocket inland from Gaza in Southern Palestine began heavy artillery fire at dawn against Israeli positions. This was presumed to be a covering action connected with an effort to escape. So far as is known, none of the Egyptians got through the Israeli ring and the firing died down.

This might have been the development which gave rise to an earlier and still unverified report that the Egyptians were evacuating Gaza.

Uranium Strike Brings Rush To File Claims

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 9 — (CP) — A rush to register claims in the area between Alona Bay and Theano Point, an eight-mile stretch of rugged bushland bordering on Lake Superior 72 miles north of here was reported today at the local mining recorder's office of the Ontario Department of Mines. The claims surround the Oct. 8 discovery of pitchblende containing uranium, basic metal for atomic power.

A total of 68 claims have been officially registered, mining recorder W. N. Miller reported, and the demand for registrations is continually mounting. The office has been cleaned out of its supply of blueprints in the unorganized area and more will be received from Toronto today.

He said that the report of 225 claims in the area was "approximately correct," indicating that staking work has already covered an area of about 18 square miles along the whole 22 mile shoreline from Panbake Bay north to the mouth of the Montreal River. The mining recorder's office has been kept busy since Saturday morning when the first registration rush started.

George McLeod, general manager of Algoma Ore Properties who have a considerable interest in the area, Monday substantiated reports of the strike and said today that approximately 800 acres would be staked before the end of the day. Registrations on the Algoma Ore lands are being taken on the site, he said, but a total figure of the company's staking would not be known until officially claimed at the local recording office.

Provincial and Dominion government geologists who went into the area last week so far have declined to make any comment on the pitchblende to the strike.

Wolves Plentiful On First Day Hunters Report

Northern part of Peterborough county was almost no-man's land Monday morning as a near-record crowd of deer hunters cut loose a barrage that echoed through the hills. Hunters report more wolves than at any time during the past five years, and according to Provincial Constable Bert Howden at least three wolves were shot on Monday.

The hunters claim the deer are not as plentiful as they were last fall, and they blames the wolves, with several reporting they caught glimpses of the animals skulking through the bush. Other hunters report they shot at wolves but missed.

Ed. Wigg and Wally Rye who are hunting near Eel's Creek, east of Big Cedar Lake, both got deer on Monday, Wigg downing a beautiful eight-point buck. Wes Powell, Millbrook, who is hunting with J. J. Powell, and Ernie Powell also of Millbrook, shot a spikehorn buck, in the late afternoon.

Two Toronto men, Chas. Stephens and George Moore, who are hunting for the first time in this county, were confident they were confident they wouldn't go

Finds Canadian Passport $10,000 On Black Market

KITCHENER, Nov. 9—(CP).—"A Canadian passport on the Swiss black market is worth $10,000," Mrs. Reinhold Lang, wife of a local industrialist, told the Kitchener-Waterloo Women's Business and Professional Club Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Lang returned to Canada recently from a tour of Europe. The speaker said that everywhere they went people voiced gratitude for the military help Canada gave during the war, and for the many parcels which have been sent to the Continent since the armistice.

An illustration of this gratitude was provided in France where a woman told Mrs. Lang: "If we could, we would stretch a blanket of orchids from Cherbourg to Halifax, because we respect, admire and love you."

She said that in Belgium she found the "people had everything we have in Kitchener. The people worked long hours to be able to buy luxury goods imported by the government."

She pointed out this was contrary to the British policy of keeping luxuries from the people so that exports can be boosted.

Pohl Inquest Nov. 22

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 9—(CP).—Crown Attorney Craig McKay today set Nov. 22 as the tentative date for the inquest into the death of Mrs. Emma Pohl of Kitchener.

Soviets Impose New Controls

BERLIN, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Russians imposed new traffic controls today in an effort to seal off the last trickle of supplies from the Soviet sector into blockaded western Berlin.

The Russians announced they had set up six major road blocks at sector borders to inspect all vehicular traffic. The points are manned by Soviet-controlled German police with Russian forces in reserve.

No foodstuffs or other cargo are being passed, unless accompanied by "release permit" signed by Communist city officials. All other cargo is being confiscated.

The Soviet announcement said the tightened measures are necessary "to protect the economy of the Soviet sector of Berlin and the Russian occupation zone."

Sold Minors Beer, Hotel Fined $1,000

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — Louis Fox and his company, the New Jolly Miller Hotel, Ltd., Monday were fined a total of $1,000 and costs for permitting three minors to drink beer in the hotel beverage Room. Fox's liquor licence has been suspended by the Liquor Licence Board.

County Magistrate O. M. Martin said: "I have gone carefully into the Liquor Licence Act in connection with this case. It is quite evident it is the entire responsibility of the hotel to see that people under 21 years of age are not in a hotel beverage room."

The charge referred to October 23. Mr Martin dismissed the plea of Defence Counsel Deacon that "this is a case of a man being convicted of an offence of which he had no knowledge."

The Crown intimated that probably two weeks will be allowed for payment of the fine. Walter Jacob Smokler of the Jolly Miller, was fined $10 for selling beer to the three minors. The three youths were each fined $25 for consuming the beer.

Security Pact Ready In Month

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.— (CP). — Terms of the North Atlantic Security Pact may be in "black and white" before Christmas, it was learned Monday night.

A source said plans have been developed so well that diplomats of seven nations likely will meet in Washington before the Yuletide season to begin writing up the military alliance as a "bulwark against Communism."

The Washington meeting will be attended by heads of foreign missions "on the ambassador level" between Canada, the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

After agreement is reached by the diplomats on terms of the alliance, the source said they will present copies of the pact to their respective governments for approval.

(Meanwhile, in Germany Monday, a group of senior United States officers took a direct part in talks aimed at planning for the defence of western Europe.

(A British diplomatic source in Paris said the five European nations will meet in London Thursday to begin work on a common draft of the proposed North Atlantic treaty).

Just what role Canada will play in the seven-nation pact still is being worked out, but her financial expenditures at the outset are not expected to be great.

Neither is Canada expected to supply any appreciable number of troops for immediate disposition overseas.

Marchers With Red Banner Try Crash Mayor's Parade

LONDON, Nov. 9.— (CP). — Demonstrators carrying political slogans and a large red banner today attempted to "crash" the Lord Mayor's Day parade as it moved through London streets.

The demonstrators, believed to be Communists, broke into the 1½ mile long parade as it turned into Northumberland Ave. They attempted to form up behind marching guardsmen but mounted police quickly hustled them out of the parade.

At least half a dozen demonstrators were arrested.

The incident occurred in front of television cameras and was viewed by watchers over television sets in many parts of the country.

The show was largely a parade of old soldiers who by tradition "never die."

The city's historic pageant is held annually when the new Lord Mayor takes over his duties.

Can Live Again

This year the procession proved that the veterans of Agincourt and Waterloo can easily be brought back to life with the aid of regimental quartermasters and friendly curators of museums, who acted as honorary wardrobe masters for the day.

The theme of the procession was "the auxiliary forces of the Crown," with special emphasis on recruiting for the territorial army. The main purpose of the parade was to remind Londoners that the auxiliary forces have played a big part in Britain's victories as far back as mediaeval times.

Twenty-five tableaux on wagons and trucks showed, in the uniforms of the periods concerned, the men who made these victories possible.

Seventeen bands, headed by the trumpets and drums of the Grenadiers with pipers of the Scots Guards following, helped keep the giant parade in step as it moved through the streets of the City and Westminster.

The parade finally returned to the Mansion House where the new Lord Mayor, Sir George Aylden, held a luncheon for civil officials.

20 Moose Killed Left In Bush

ROUYN, Que., Nov. 9 (CP)—Investigation into reported illegal slaughter of 20 moose in the Kipawa Lake area went forward today under direction of Diley Gervais, game warden for this district.

Gervais said he was called in when meat from 20 dead moose was found rotting in the bush.

"It seems pretty definite that the moose were killed illegally by tourists without permits," he said. "They fly in from Sudbury and North Bay, slaughter the moose and take the horns. Then they leave the carcass lying there.

"We intend to go into the matter fully. It is difficult to keep a line on tourists who use planes. They can land on any one of a number of lakes, get their moose and leave before we have a chance even to learn about them.'

Gervais said that last month he made 27 seizures of arms and game and registered 14 convictions.

The moose season in the district ended Oct. 31 and the slaughter is said to have occurred before then.

UN Studies Armistice For Palestine Peace

PARIS, Nov. 9 (CP)—The United Nations Security Council explored today a new approach to Palestine peace, transforming the present truce into a UN-sponsored armistice.

The council scheduled two sessions for the day, a closed meeting in the morning and a public meeting in the afternoon.

Informed sources said the armistice would include a wide separation of the warring Jewish and Arab forces, creation of broad demilitarized zones and reduction of the opposing armies.

It was planned that U.N. machinery would be used to establish this armistice, the sources said.

Princess' Doctor On Call From Now On At Palace

LONDON, Nov. 9 (Reuters)—Sir William Gilliat, Princess Elizabeth's gynaecologist, who will deliver her baby in her own room on the second floor of Buckingham Palace, said today that from now on he is on call for the palace.

But he refuses to say whether next Saturday, Sunday or Monday is the expected date of the royal birth — as reported by London papers—or whether the pain-killing drug trilene will be used as an anaesthetic.

"It would be unethical to disclose secrets between myself and any patient, therefore I can not tell the press any details of the royal birth," Sir William said.

Meanwhile Britain is planning celebrations which may rival those of the victory days.

To Light Beacons

Beacons across the countryside will be lighted for the first grandchild to the King and Queen and the first royal baby to be born in direct succession to the throne since the birth of the Duke of Windsor at Royal Lodge, Windsor, in 1904.

The mayor of one London district is giving one guinea ($4.20) in a post office savings book to every child born in his district on the same day as Princess Elizabeth's baby.

A business man in another district is presenting every baby born in his district with a National Savings Certificate.

Whether boy or girl, the baby will be the next heir to the throne after Princess Elizabeth herself.

If it is a boy, it can not become Prince of Wales until after she succeeds to the throne, as this title is reserved for heir apparent.

If it's a girl, she will be displaced if a boy is born later.

Princess Margaret, 18-year-old younger daughter of the King and Queen, will become third in line of the throne.

A-Bomb Threat Noted In Bill

LONDON, Nov. 9 (Reuters) — The threat of the atomic bomb will be fully recognized in Britain's revised civil defence arrangements, which are dealt with in the new civil defence bill published tonight.

Government quarters underline, however, that the Bill bears no direct relationship to the present disturbed state of world affairs.

There will be no compulsion for the civil defence service in peacetime, though volunteers, once they have enrolled, will be subject to a penalty not exceeding £5 if they fail to proceed with their training.

Red Cross Gets $1,000 If Bloodhound Fails

SUDBURY, Nov. 9—(CP). — A donation of $1,000 to the Canadian Red Cross was promised today by Arthur V. Seymour, of Sudbury, if his bloodhound "Georgia" is unable to locate a deer hunter who has been missing in the Hyman township area since Saturday.

The missing hunter is Tauno Hallikainen, 21, of Worthington, who failed to return home from a trip on Saturday.

Search parties were augmented by the bloodhound late Monday night following a plea for assistance in trying to locate the missing hunter.

Yugoslavia Refuses To Cooperate

Ask Greek Neighbors To Help Solve Dispute In Balkans

PARIS, Nov. 9 —(CP)—The United Nations Political Committee today called on Greece's Russian-dominated northern neighbors to co-operate with Greece in settling the Balkan dispute.

Yugoslavia served notice immediately she would not co-operate with the U.N's special committee on the Balkans (U.N.S.C.O.B.). Yugoslav delegate Ales Bebler told the committee his country would maintain its boycott of that committee.

Forty-three of the political committee's 58 members backed the move for co-operation. The six-power Soviet bloc again refused to vote.

The committee resumed this morning its voting on individual paragraphs of a resolution proposed by Britain, the United States, France and China.

The delegates Monday approved a paragraph condemning Yugoslavia. Bulgaria and Albania for aiding Greece's Communist guerrillas.

The first paragraph approved this morning by the committee again calls on Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to co-operate with Greece in an effort to settle the Balkan dispute by peaceful means.

Win Majorities

The Western Powers won majorities of 48 to 50 votes out of 58 for sections of their resolution. A simple majority of those present and voting is required for committee passage. In the general assembly, final approval is voted by a two-thirds majority.

On the first ballot today, 43 delegates voted for the call for co-operation. The six Slav countries announced again they were not taking part in the vote of paragraphs.

Nine countries were absent. Most of the late-comers were in their places in the next vote.

By a vote of 50 to 0, the committee then approved a paragraph calling on Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to co-operate with the U.N.S.C.O.B.

Guatemala and Burma were absent on this vote. They were absent Monday also when the vital voting began.

Want Children Back

The political committee next took up a Greek proposal calling on all U.N. members and all other countries to which Greek children have been removed by Greek guerrillas to send them back to their homes.

Julius Katz-Suchy of Poland opposed this. He said Greek children are being well cared for in Romania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria.

The Polish delegate called on the Greek delegation to state what Greece planned to do with those children upon their return.

"Maybe they (the government) will punish them for the sins of their parents," Katz-Suchy declared. He demanded that the children be permitted to remain where they are until the Greek problem is settled.

Airborne Armies Can Strike Effectively

RIVERS, Man., Nov. 9—(CP).—Airborne armies, under proper conditions that include adequate supply, could strike deep behind enemy lines in any new war and could probably hold out for at least a month alone, an American army officer said today.

Lt.-Col. Hugh Harris, an exchange officer serving at Canada's first peacetime combined operations school, also said that the US is studying methods that could permit elimination of the individual parachute as well as numerous other developments in air landing techniques and methods.

He outlined several possibilities in airborne operations during one of the lectures given by the school's staff before 30 visiting reporters and photographers

Shortages of Electric Power May Aggravate Unemployment—Labor Dept.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Shortages of Hydro-Electric power may aggravate seasonable unemployment in some areas this winter, according to the Labor Department. "Apart from seasonal developments in the labor market during the winter months," says the department in its monthly manpower survey, "severe shortages of Hydro power may affect the employment situation in some areas.

"In addition, continuing shortages of key materials will likely continue to interrupt the continuity of work in some industries." The seasonal shifts of employment, involving some 200,000 workers at this time of year, now are under way, the Department's survey noted. First result is that at Oct. 21 the number of jobless registered with National Employment Service had increased to 99,000 from 87,000 a month previously. Available jobs had dropped from 68,000 to 54,000

The Department said workers now are moving from farms, food-processing plants, hotels and other summer-active industries to woods employment, meat-packing firms and other winter jobs.

As construction activity declines with the onset of cold weather, the survey added, more seasonable workers will enter the labor market and an increase in the number of job-seekers may be expected.

Needs Satisfied

With the ending of the harvest season, the Department said most areas reported their farm labor needs were satisfied for the first time in many years. Credit for this was given largely to the arrival of immigrant workers and to major transfers of harvest workers organized during the season.

In Ontario there were 30,000 unplaced applicants and 23,000 unfilled vacancies. Industrial expansion since the war's end has placed severe strain on Hydro-Electric resources, steel, and labor supplis in this region. Only minor lay-offs have so far resulted from the current shortage of hydro power. However reports vary from production slow-downs without lay-offs but with no further replacement hiring, to the changes in hours, and work on Saturdays and Sundays. Logging operators estimate that their need for bush workers will be equal to last year's, but currently demand is slow.

Unplaced applicants and unfilled vacancies (in brackets) in National Employment Service offices throughout the Dominion at October 21: Guelph 218 (210), Hamilton 2,700 (1,456), London 892 (1,404), Oshawa 1,175 (182), Ottawa 1,982 (841). St. Catharines 1,273 (125), Toronto 6,948 (9,761), Windsor 3,117 (187).

All Groups Slide On Stock Exchange

TORONTO, No. 9 —(CP)—All groups slipped downhill as trading slowly increased on the stock exchange here today. Industrials and base metals showed the severest declines. Golds weakened but a few issues in the juniors attracted attention.

Industrials slipped steadily throughout the session, following the trend established in New York. Papers, utilities and steels were among the heaviest losers. Goodyear fell seven points.

Penny golds were in the spotlight for some heavy trading and strong grains. Roche and Mosher awoke today for strong advances. Dome slipped in the seniors to a new low and Sylvanite, Wright-Hargreaves and Giant Yellowknife were losers.

The base metals list was in a one-way downward movement.

Lie Taking No Part In Berlin Negotiations

PARIS, Nov. 9.—(CP).—Secretary-General Trygve Lie has assigned his top United Nations legal expert to study the Berlin currency problem.

Neutral efforts to find a solution of Berlin crisis broke down last month, mainly over the currency question. Russia wants Soviet-sponsored marks to be the only legal money in the blockaded city. Both western marks and Soviet marks circulate in blockaded western Berlin.

Apparently with the view of learning all the angles of that issue, Lie directed A. H. Feller, his chief counsel, to prepare a report on the currency situation. Informed circles said Feller expected to completed his study in a few days.

A United Nations spokesman said Lie is not taking part in any negotiations on the Berlin deadlock.

The UN took this unusual step in issuing a statement for Lie after a report was published in New York that the Secretary-General was preparing a new compromise proposal on the Berlin crisis.

Lie himself had nothing to say, but his spokesman read the brief statement at a press conference.

Civic Hospital Auxiliary Reports 365 New Members

Reports to the fall general meeting of the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary showed increased service in all branches and evidence that it is being greatly appreciated by patients, also an increase of 365 in membership. Mrs. Ross Williamson, president, conducted the meeting in the YWCA Green Room Monday afternoon, giving a special welcome to the guests who were assistants in the recent membership campaign.

Mrs. E. Braund read a full account of the meetings and social activities attended by Auxiliary delegates to the Ontario Hospital Association convention in Toronto last week Report of the work of the local organization had been splendidly given by Mrs. Williamson and it was evident from the press and comments of other delegates that Peterborough's Women's Auxiliary is outstanding in the province. It was the only one to report giving gifts such as the bootees presented to each new baby at Civic Hospital, raising money for hospital furnishings, and entertainment of DP's. The high standard of service rendered by the local Auxiliary is attributed to the willingness of all members to volunteer their time and energy for any task they are able to do. A report prepared by Mrs. E. Breckenridge of the dinner meeting of the Ontario Nurses' Association dealt mainly with the effect of a hospital patient which his nurses' form of greeting and facial expression can have. Auxiliary members fin dthis is true for themselves as they pay their visits to the hospital.

Peterborough members on the Advisory Board of the Hospital Aid Association are Mrs. H. A. Mitchell and Mrs. E. Lillico.

One of the most popular services rendered at the hospital is the travelling library which makes a round each Tuesday and Friday. The convener, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, reported a total of 500 books in thes library, and 13 magazine subscriptions, one being a donation by the Hadassah Chapter. With Miss G. Sullivan of the Peterborough Public Library staff who has given invaluable help and advice, the convener visited Sunnybrook Hospital recently, and in talking with librarian there found that the local library is a s fine as any in a hospital of this size. Plastic covers have been purchased for preserving the magazines which are sent on to Queen Mary Hospital later. It is expected that a new cart will become available shortly.

Variety and amusement came into the meeting when Miss M. English, convener of the Tuck Cart repeated the dialogue of the average trip. At every turn she encounters high praise for her services and is able to provide the patient with anything from razors to home-made candy. The latter is a new feature that is finding great favor and is a product of her own kitchen. The president advised that anyone might contribute their special brand of confectionery to the cart.

Representing the visiting committee, Mrs. A. Rosborough, Mrs. W. K. Sloan said 60 to 70 patients are visited each week and given fruit. She finds that many of them seem to enjoy having someone to talk to more than the gift, though these are always appreciated. Some patients who have more fruit and flowers than they can use pass them on to others through the visiting committee.

Two members received highest praise from Mrs. F. Barrie, convener in charge of the bootees that are a prettily wrapped gift to each new baby. Mrs. T. W. H. Young has provided wool and fashioned many pairs, but unfortunately the exact number is not known, and Mrs. J. R. Marshall is responsible for the material and knitting of 170 pairs. The convener is hoping that someone will come forward to beat these records. At a cost of $52 to the Auxiliary, 591 pairs have already been presented.

Donations for furnishing in the new Civic Hospital are in charge of Miss E. Morrow. The following have signified they will each furnish a ward: 57th Chapter, Otonabee, Peter Robinson, Lieut. Col. Agnes Neill and Major Bennett Chapters of the IODE, Junior Welfare League, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Moore Preceptory of the Masonic Order, Thursday Club, Hadassah Chapter, Rotary Club, Loyal Orange Lodge of West Peterborough, and two wards will be done by Peterborough Lodge Perfection and Scottish Rite. The Civic Hospital Alumni Association will furnish rooms for graduate nurses and the B'nai B'rith Society will furnish an emergency waiting room. The Women's Association of George St. United Church has promised to give $200 and money is also coming from Murray St. WA, Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's, the Women's Institute of Hall's Glen and of Bailieboro. Two pictures are to be presented by the Women's Art Association.

Mrs. W. D. Fanning of the buying committee told members the convenience afforded by a new loafer chair with added undercarriage converting it to a wheel chair, which has been purchased for the X-ray Department waiting room, and also a similar chair without attachment. Nineteen sets of clinical themometers were given to the graduate nurses in June. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell said the decoration committe had prepared 110 favors for trays, 100 going to Civic patients and ten to Queen Mary Hospital, and those on special diets received attractive cards on the festive occasions. First year nurses have been entertained at a theatre party and refreshments afterward, Mrs. S. J. Graham of the nurses-in-training committee said, and the members had also provided tea for this meeting and helped in planning the life members' party held at Gordon Fraser's home.

Displaced persons have been taken care of by the transportation committee and Mrs. E. Braund said they had been driven to their boarding houses on arrival in the city and also taken to church. Seventeen were entertained with a drive in the country and given dinner at Young's Point.

Membership totals given by Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell were 3,687 general members with fees totalling $921.75, plus 108 life members, four of which have just been added to the list. For campaign purposes the city is divided in five districts and each of the 30 board members given a list of up to 150 names to canvass with the help of assistants. With an increase of 365 reported the convener said the aim would be 4,000 members next year.

Find One Body Of Four Missing

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Nov. 9.—(CP) —The body of Rev. Earl Serson, 51-year-old Baptist clergyman from Statesboro, Ga., was discovered Monday from Pelican Lake near Squaw Island, about a mile and a half from Sioux Lookout's town dock.

Mr. Serson's body was discovered when searchers saw what they took to be a canoe standing straight up in the water. They found it was an up-ended outboard with the clergyman's body tied to it.

Constable James Smail of the Ontario Provincial Police is superintending dragging operations for the bodies of three other men believed drowned while on a hunting trip.

They are 58-year-old Peter Sersen, brother of the minister; Fred Besley, 27, of Statesboro, who was on his first trip to Canada, and William Evans, 44, a Canadian National Railways switchman.

Six-Point Buck

Howard Tufford, RR 1, Beamsville, got a six-point buck near Long Lake. His party includes Fred Roseborough, 496 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Max Roseborough, Joe York and Leonard York all of this city, and Kearney Bartlett of Beamsville.

A freak of the woods, a doe with horns was shot by John Fisher, TCA pilot who lives at Oshawa. He hunted west and south of Haultain with his brother George, his father Wilmer Fisher and Lorne McKee, all of Oshawa. Fisher claims the doe was being followed by two fawns when he shot her, and on examination it was discovered she was what is known as a "wet doe". The horns were about five inches long, curved over the deer's forehead and were in velvet. The party shot two large does on opening day.

Bob McClelland, who is hunting with the Kiwanis Hunt club at John Coons' place got a two-year-old doe on Monday and lost no time in getting the carcass in to the city to put in a freezer. Dinny Fitzgerald hit a deer, but failed to drop it, and after it topped a ridge he heard a shot and reached the top of the hill in time to see another hunter bleeding the animal. The second shot from the other hunter killed the deer, so Mr. Fitzgerald was out of luck.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's China, will be in Communist hands before the end of the year.

The observers discount the ability of the government's armies to hold the Communists at Suchow or Pengpu along the 170-mile northern railway approach to the capital, but base their forecasts of its loss largely on the morale of the government troops, which they describe as being at its lowest ebb.

Opinion on the military situation is almost unanimous but views differ on the possible political future of the Kuomintang (Nationalist) government.

Hint Peace Offers

Some observers believe that once the capital's fate is sealed certain sections of the Kuomintang may make a definite attempt to form a coalition government.

Others believe that Chiang will succeed in taking his government to Canton in Southern China, or to the island of Formosa, though they believe it likely that only high executive officials would accompany such an exodus.

The people of Nanking are believed to fear the general disorder which may occur between any government withdrawal and the arrival of the Communist troops more than the actual taking of the city by the Communists.

Foreign consular staffs are not at the moment unduly alarmed for the safety of their nationals, of whom there are at present some 700 in and around Nanking, including about 100 of British nationality.

Dog's Struggle Drowns Owner

ORILLIA, Nov. 9 — (CP)— Frantic struggles of a pet hunting dog in an overturned boat on Bear lake led to the death Saturday of William Chisholm, 56 year old Sadowa farmer, police say. The other occupants, Donald Chisholm, 38 a nephew, and Harold E. Snyder of Chicago, are safe.

Shortly after leaving French's Landing the boat nose-dived into choppy water, and the three men were thrown out. Choppy waves and the cold water made the dog "lose his head," police say, and he struggled on to his master's back. Both sank into the 50 feet deep water and did not appear.

Donald Chisholm clung to the overturned boat until rescued by a party of hunters. Snyder, wearing a life preserver, swam to the shore and walked 15 miles through dense bush to reach his car.

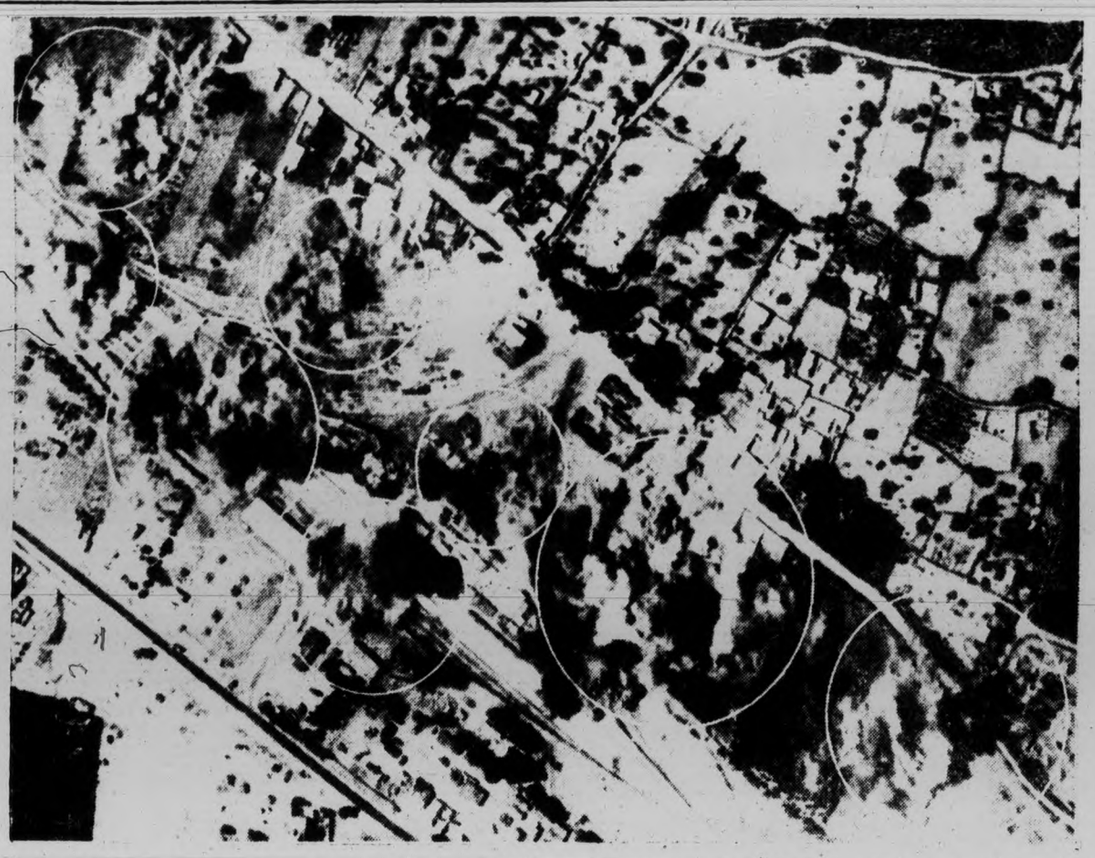
No Home, No Kin Transient's Funeral Held

COBOURG, Nov. 9 — (ENS). — No next-of-kin, no home, John Dockstader, the 68-year-old transient who died in Cobourg Hospital during the week-end, was laid to rest in St. Michael's Catholic Cemetery this morning, after requiem high mass had been solemnized in St. Michael's Church by Rev. G. J. Maher. At the cemetery the burial service was conducted by Rev. J. P. Collins. The children's voices of the St. Michael's School choir sang at the funeral mass. Pall-bearers were six members of the Knights of Columbus of Cobourg. Last night, prayers were said at the funeral home by the Catholic Women's League.

No next-of-kin; no home; but a prayerbook and rosary found in his pockets after he was discovered on the highway following a hit-and-run accident last week, were all that was necessary. He was given the full rites of the Church and funeral mass to which his faith entitled him. He was unknown and there were no mourners, but his funeral was none the less complete from the standpoint of his religion.

Slave Boy Still In Hospital



TORONTO, Nov. 9 — Almost three weeks after he was found scratching on a suburban Etobicoke door begging for food, Gordon Kelley, 19-year-old "slave boy," is still confined to Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, hospital officials said yesterday.

Gordon, naked to the waist and his matted blond hair reaching almost to his shoulders, was taken into police custody Oct. 21 after telling of being kept in a closet for a year on a diet of bread and water. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, who said the youth had been in their care since he was a young boy, denied that he had been mistreated.

Children's Aid Society officials said any possible legal action against the Smiths can not be considered until a report is received from hospital officials. Gordon, faced with a nominal charge of vagrancy, is not expected to be discharged from hospital for several weeks.

Boundary Line Survey Story Told To Rotary

A short address illustrated by two color films on the establishing of the Ontario-Manitoba boundary line was given on Monday to the Rotary Club by John Pierce, Jr., OLS.

Mr. Pierce completed the last 168 miles of the northernmost leg of the boundary line during a four-month period last winter. This stretch was an addition to the 114 miles laid out by his father in 1937. Father and son had the final thrill of knowing that their 282 miles of surveying was within 15 feet of the cairn which had been marked as the exact boundary line when a careful fix determined the spot on Hudson Bay in 1929.

Their feat is considered without parallel in the history of Canadian surveying, and perhaps in that of the world.

The party of 18, consisting mainly of half-breeds who were good workmen and experienced trekkers on snowshoe, are estimated to have covered the equivalent of the distance between Montreal and Winnipeg by the time the trip was finished.

Everything was organized and planned down to the last detail. Ten tons of supplies were carried: transported in large hops from camp to camp along the route by an accompanying airplane equipped with skids. When sections of the country, were reached where a plane was unable to land, the necessities were packed by dog-sled.

Generally Mr. Pierce said, the land was flat. In summer most of it is muskeg but in winter it can be traversed as the ground is frozen over. One of the biggest surprises to the party was the relatively large size of the trees in that flat country. They had been led to expect trees much more undersized than they found.

He said there were intermittent patches where trees that were many years old remained spindley. In one case a spruce six inches in diameter was estimated to be more than 200 years old. However most of the timber was larger than had been expected, until within a few miles of Hudson Bay.

Game in that long extent of country was scarce, he said. There were a few caribou, lots of beaver, mink and otter, but practically nothing else. During the whole course of his camping he said he did not hear a wolf howling.

Everything seemed to go according to plan: the weather was unusually free from storms and the temperature did not sink below 45 degrees below zero; good progress was made in cutting the boundary swath almost all along the line.

The only serious mishap was when an Indian set fire to his tent and burned it down together with supplies. In doing so he very seriously burned himself.

The two 8-mm. films taken by Mr. Pierce were watched with unusual interest by the Rotarians. It is a part of the Canadian north about which little is known.

Mr. Pierce was introduced by F. Tufford and thanked by Gordon Munro. President W. J. Hamilton was in the chair.

Guests were William Goodwin, Toronto; W. Malton, Cobourg; Stan Gilmour, James King, Thomas Lister and Lt.-Col. Max Clarke, all of Peterborough.

Priest Is Speaker

COBOURG, Nov. 9 — (ENS). — Rev. James Farrell of the Redemptorist Fathers, Peterborough, was the speaker last night at the meeting of St. Michael's CYO. He was introduced by Rev. G. J. Maher and thanked by Marion Romano and the CYO president, Lawrence Shrubsole. Father Farrell said that the youth of today needed Christian ideals to guide them and these only came through the practical application of Christian morals to every-day life. The speaker was for seven years in charge of CYO work at Vancouver.

Drew Says Unity Better Than Victory

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 9.—(CP).—George Drew, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, was due to leave here today for Halifax on the second lap of a tour of the Maritimes.

Mr. Drew, who had a busy time keeping up with the official engagements Monday, had no predeparture meetings on his official program.

Among the things he did during his first visit to the island was address a public meeting.

He told the meeting that the unity of Canada is more important to him than a party victory in the next general Federal election.

Recalling that Prince Edward Island was the cradle of Confederation, Mr. Drew said "it seems particularly fitting that I should speak to you about the most important domestic problem facing our people today—the building of a strong, united and efficient system of government throughout Canada."

Despite what "propaganda agencies" had said his views on Dominion - Provincial relations had not changed since he resigned the Ontario premiership after being elected national leader of the party.
